HOW CHURCH DEBT WAS FINALLY PAID.

Those Who Contributed to Lift Mortgage From Grace M. E. Church Property.

DEBT AMOUNTED TO $2,938.

MEMBERS DID NOT EXPECT TO CLEAR IT ALL AWAY.

Subscriptions Came in Rapidly However and at The Service Sunday Evening The Last Dollar of It Was Finally Raised.

Much surprise is expressed in North Plainfield over the phenomenal success of the pastor and trustees of Grace M. E. church Sunday in clearing that institution of a long standing debt of $2 938. This indebtedness represents a mortgage for $2 500 on the church property proper and a note for $438 given in order to enable the trustees to complete the erection of the parsonage adjoining.

Even the more sanguine members of the congregation looked upon the effort as a stupendous undertaking. Rev. Mr. Gardner, himself, did not expect the subscriptions to run above $2 000 at the most, and his energetic helpers were not overly optimistic. It is conceded, however, that the achievement was due in a measure to the practical methods used by Rev. Drs. O'Hanlon and Smith, who furnished evidence of having had some former experience in this line of church work.

At the morning service, from the moment that John Valiant started things moving, there was no interruption until Dr. O'Hanlon announced that the $1,700 mark had been reached and he was getting hungry for his dinner.

The Sunday-school children were expected to contribute $100 at the afternoon exercises, but class rivaly resulted in a total contribution of $300. The climax was reached at the evening service when Andrew Lutkins' final subcription rounded out the $2 938 desired.

Those who subcribed to the fund at the church services were: W J Conroy, John Valiant, H K Carroll, E E Jackson, E E Winckler, G H Fairchild, E H Vermule, A H Wilson, W H Combs, A Winckler, Mrs H K Carroll, E. FOR STEALING COAL.

Two Small Boys in City Court This Morning—They Pleaded Guilty to the Charge.

For some time past a number of boys have made a practice of stealing coal from the railroad company's cars in the local yards The stolen coal is sold by the bag by the youths and the money received used for gambling purposes. Lately the company has received numerous complaints from the consignees of the coal of this pilfering.

Yesterday the company's local agent caused the arrest of Edward Britton and Jerry Griffin for trespassing on the company's property. Britton, before City Judge Runyon, this morning, pleaded guilty to appropriating coal and Griffin to trespassing. City Judge Runyon this morning imposed a fine of $2 on the former and suspended sentence on the other offender because of his extreme youth.

NEW WAITING ROOM READY.

TROLLEY COMPANY HAS MADE IMPROVEMENT AT EXCHANGE.

There Will be an Office For The Starter and Waiting Rooms For Passengers and Employes.

Although all the proposed improvements have not as yet been made, the new waiting room of the trolley company, in the building at the corner of East Second street and Watchung avenue will be thrown open to the public within a few days. The lower floor has been divided into three compartments, two rooms and an office, the latter being for the exclusive use of Starter Phillip Maguire.

In order to facilitate the handling of the cars a telephone has been placed in the building with an extension bell running to the signal pole at the switch, so that the starter may be reached at all times. The office will also be fitted up with a desk and other conveniences which will make it complete in every respect.

Of the two rooms, one directly in front of the building will be for passengers only and the necessary benches were placed in position yesterday. The remaining room will be for the use of the relief crews while waiting for their respective cars. It has also been fitted up in many ways which will add to their comfort.

A time table which embraces the arrival and departure of all cars at the Watchung avenue terminus, has been prepared and placed in the building for reference. Among some of the facts which are of particular interest to Plainfielders are the leaving times of the last cars at night which are noted as follows:

Last car leaves Monroe avenue for the Somerset street terminus at 11:15 and returning leaves the Somerset street terminus at 11:45; last car from the exchange for Dunellen leaves at 11:15 and returning leaves at 11:45, connecting with the last Bound Brook car; last car leaves Netherwood at 11:45. On the Arlington avenue line the last car will leave the exchange at 11:15 and returning leave the cemetery at 11:30 On the through line the cars run on a fifteen minute headway until 11 o'clock, after which time three cars run leaving the Plainfield exchange at 11. 11:30 and 12:15. The last car leaves Elizabeth for Plainfield at 12:08

PICKED THEIR MEN FOR COMING ELECTION.

Republican Primaries Held in North Plainfield Last Evening —N. B. Smalley For Mayor.

TWO VERY LIVELY CONTESTS

HORACE J. MARTIN FINALLY NAMED FOR ASSESSORSHIP.

J. L. Northrup and E. L. Suffern Nominated For Councilmen—Andrew Lutkins Renominated For Freeholder.

The Republican primary in North Plainfield was held last evening in Saengerbund Hall. There were no contests of importance except for the nomination of assessor and freeholder. For the former the contest was quite spirited. The struggle to obtain the nomination for freeholder, though less exciting, was more of a surprise in some respects.

The call for the meeting set the time as 8 o'clock, but long before that hour a large crowd had gathered before the doors of the hall and the supporters of the various candidates were actively engaged in electioneering.

By 8 o'clock fully three hundred Republicans of the borough had gathered within the building. Senator Charles A. Reed mounted the rostrum and called the meeting to order. Charles Place was unanimously elected permanent chairman, and the business of the meeting proceeded forthwith. Frank Rowley was elected secretary and the call for the meeting was read by him.

Senator Reed moved that the primary proceed to nominate candidates for mayor. Mayor Newton B. Smalley, the present incumbent, was named by Councilman George T. Rogers. Nominations were closed and the secretary was instructed to cast one ballot for the meeting. The nomination was made unanimous.

J. W. A. Bauersachs and Wm. L Smalley, Jr., were appointed tellers. Nominations for Councilmen being in order, B. A. Hegeman, Jr., placed James L Northrup's name before the meeting and E. L. Suffern was also nominated. The secretary cast one ballot for the meeting and their nomination was made unanimous. George F. Brown was the choice of all for collectorship and his nomination was quickly made.

The justiceship went begging. There is one vacancy and one expiring term to be filled. Daniel D Smalley, the present holder, was placed befone the convention Other candidates for this nomination were John Goodwin, declined, William Debele, Allen Coddington, E J Long, Frances Whitely, declined. Before any further action tion was taken on this names Senator Reed moved that a committee of three be apnointed by the chair to fill vacancies that might occur. The motion carried as did also a motion to promote candidates for assessor without taking action on the justiceship on that time.

John P. Emmons, J. K. Arnold and Horace J Martin were named for assessor. A vote by ballot was taken, and, while the counting was being proceeded with by the tellers, on motion of Senator Charles A. Reed it was agreed to fix the amount of appropriation to the Board of Health at $550, the same as last year. For assessor 288 votes were cast, five of which because of irregularity were not counted. The vote stood: Martin, 136; Emmons, 88; Arnold, 65. Martin's nomination was made unanimous.

William Day then nominated L E Barkalew for freeholder and Andrew Lutkin's nomination followed. Total number of votes cast 240 A. Lutkins received 135 and L E Barkalew 105. The chair declared Mr. Lutkins elected. After this nomination was made unanimous a motion to nominate candidates for justice of the peace and candidates for other offices not already filled by a committee appointed by the chair, prevailed. Senator Charles A. Reed, P. A. Emmons and Mayor N. B. Smalley were named. The meeting then adjourned.

CHANGE IN THE POSTOFFICE.

J. A. MARTIN WILL SUCCEED JOHN WHITENACK AS ASST. POSTMASTER.

That Office is Only One Left For Postmaster to Fill—Change is Made For Political Reasons Only.

As has been expected for some time past, there will soon be a change at the postoffice. John Whitenack, who for several years has been the assistant postmaster, will resign his position next Monday. Among some this will be a surprise, but among the majority it has been anticipated. It is a case of "to the victor belongs the spoils," and Mr. Whitenack recognizes the fact that he cannot hope to remain in office under a Republican administration, inasmuch as he is a Democrat.

His successor will be James A Martin, formerly an assistant chief in the fire department and former collector of taxes. Mr. Martin is well fitted for the new position and will undoubtedly fill it to the satisfaction of all.

Mr. Whitenack, the retiring official, has served in his present position almost continuously since the first term of the late Postmaster Pope, and during that time he has performed his duties to the satisfaction of all. At times there has been talk of his removal, but for political reasons only.

This position is the only one which is left for the postmaster to fill, and while Mr. Bird reserved that right when he accepted the office, he has not acted wholly on his own responsibility but has consulted with the Republican leaders. Mr. Martin was a choice of Mr. Bird among a number of applicants.

THE DEVIL WAS IN HEAVEN.

SO IT WAS DECIDED IN DEBATE ON THE QUESTION.

Debate Took Place Last Evening at Mt. Olive Baptist Church Between Two Learned Clergymen.

The question as to whether the devil was a chief angel in Heaven constituted the subject of a lively debate conducted under the auspices of the Plainfield Mutual Beneficial Association in the Mount Olive Baptist church last evening. Rev. Dr. G. L. P. Tallaferro, of Philadelphia, presented the affirmative argument and Rev. Dr S. Smith, of Princeton, adroitly contended that his satanic majesty never saw Heaven.

Dr. Tallaferro believed that there is a heaven and hell because the Bible said so, and he thought the latter subject a pretty deep one. Both debaters made use of the devil's method of quoting Scripture to his advantage, and after the profound argument were finished, the judges of the debate, Rev J W. Mitchell, of Plainfield, and Rev. Dr Young, of New York, declared Dr. Tullaferro the winner, the devil was in heaven.

Rev. E. E. Jackson, pastor of the Mt Olive Baptist church, as president of the organization, made an address on the history and work of the association. Rev. E E. Banks, of Brooklyn, pleaded for unity among the colored race.

Three hundred people were present and at the conclusion of the exercises a social was held.

The Councilmanic committee on streets and sewers met in the office of the street commissioner last evening. The chairman of the committee, R I Tolles, was instructed to purchase street signs from Samuel Buckley & Company, of New York.

The signs contain white enameled letters on a blue enameled back ground.

Several owners of property abutting on Woodland avenue along the line of proposed improvement appeared before the committee and remonstrated against making the improvements contemplated.

NO CHANGE TODAY IN LABOR TROUBLES.

Journeyman Plumbers Locked Out of All the Local Shops But One.

MANY MEETINGS ARE HELD.

PICKETS WATCHED FOR NON-UNION MEN, BUT NONE CAME.

Both Sides Refuse to Recede From Present Positions—No General Strike Will Be Ordered at Present—Trade Council's Statement.

Although the lockout of the local plumbers still continues, no general strike has yet been ordered and it is possible that there may not be one after all The troubles between the Master Plumbers' Association and the Building Trades Council still remains, however, as far from being settled as it was forty eight hous ago. Both sides are firm.

There was only one master plumber who did not observe the lockout. The men employed by A. M. Griffin went to work as usual and have not yet been called off. Mr Griffin was out of town yesterday, but the journeymen plumbers declare that he will not stop work. Seventeen men were affected by the lockout.

The was a meeting of the Journeymen Plumbers Union yesterday afternoon at which the situation was discussed, and a resolution was passed declaring that they had violated no agreement, that they would not submit to dictation from the Master Plumbers Association and that they indorsed the stand taken by President John Moran.

The Master Plumbers Association held a meeting last evening when the lockout was talked over and arrangements made to continue work in the future.

A meeting of the Plainfield Building Trades Council was also held in the evening. A protracted session was held which lasted until nearly 11 o'clock. It was decided not to order any general strike. A committee was appointed to draw up a statement for the public which will appear in tomorrow's Daily Press.

The plumbers had pickets on duty early this morning looking for non-union men but failed to find any.

WANT WILSON FOR MAYOR.

REPORTED THAT HE WILL BE TENDERED DEMOCRATIC NOMINATION.

Friends Hope He Will Reconsider Decision Not to Run—Democratic Primary Tonight.

This evening at 8 o'clock sharp the Democrats of North Plainfield will assemble in the Eggerding building, 86 Somerset street, for the purpose of nominating a complete ticket for the spring election. The caucus was originally intended to be held in the basement of the school building, but on account of the large crowd anticipated it was feared that the school room would be too small, hence the change.

There is practically little change in the situation except that is understood that Dr. P. J. Zeglio will decline to allow his name to go before the primary. Dr. Zeglio feels that he cannot spare the time which the proper discharge of the duties of mayor would require. Elston M. French, the present incumbent of the assessorship is unopposed for renomination. His friends claim that he will receive strong support from members of the rival party as well as from his own.

To lead the party, there is an unceasing clamor for the renomination of former Mayor John S. Wilson. Though Col. Wilson is reported to look unfavorably on the use of his name in this connection and is quoted in some quarters as declining to be brought out, it is now generally understood that at tonight's meeting there will be tendered the ex Mayor an unanimous nomination, in the hope that he will reconsider his determination not to run. "Not for years," said a Democratic leader this morning "have the Democrats been so jubilant."

The Republican caucus of last evening, they claim, nominated a ticket that will indirectly reflect favorably on the nominees of tonight's caucus. A few of the old time leaders feel quite sanguine over the prospects of the campaign and the battle promises to be royal.

MR. EMMONS RESIGNED.

Doubtful Whether His Resignation As Member of County Committee Will be Accepted.

Peter A. Emmons last evening tendered his resignation as a member of the Republican County Committee. The resignation was placed in the hands of Senator Charles A. Reed, the chairman of the committee.

Mayor N. B. Smalley this morning, referring to Mr. Emmons' action, stated that in his opinion the resignation would not be accepted. The Mayor says that the services of Mr. Emmons are invaluable to the committee and that every endeavor would be used to induce the latter to reconsider his action.

TWO GOSPEL SERVICES WERE HELD YESTERDAY.

Rev. T. S. Henderson Addressed Large Audiences in Afternoon and Evening.

TWO STRONG SERMONS.

VERY LARGE ATTENDANCE AT THE SERVICE LAST EVENING.

W. C. Weeden, of New York, Was in Charge of the Singing at Both Services—Strong Appeals Made to Sinners to Change Their Way of Life.

Two services instead of one were held yesterday in the First Baptist church, under the direction of Rev. Theodore S Henderson, whose practical and helpful gospel talks have attracted such large audiences and aroused so much interest all through the week.

The first service took place at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon and, for a meeting held in the daytime, was largely attended, The chorus choir was not present, but W. C. Weeden, who acted as musical director on the preceding evening, conducted the singing.

The meeting opened with the singing of several hymns, after which prayer was offered by Rev. John McMurray, of the Monroe Avenue Methodist Episcopal church. Mr. Weeden then sang a hymn written by his father, entitled "My Mother's Prayer" After this Mr. Henderson offered a brief prayer, and then began his address, speaking, as usual, without notes, and with much warmth and earnestness, emphasizing his points with short but telling stories from real life.

The text of the afternoon was the marginal reading of Isaiah 38:17, "Thou hast loved my soul from the pit of ruin." Mr. Henderson began by saying that every soul was naturally estranged from God; that, though it had been originally created in the image of God, the superscription of the Creator had become, like the image on an old coin, sadly defaced. Neither, he went on to say, could the soul raise itself to a better estate, any more than a man could lift himself by his boot-straps. There must come to its help a power outside of itself, and this help can be found only in Jesus Christ, whom the speaker likened to a magnet, which has the power to draw motionless filings of iron after itself.

The way in which those who would help others may become magnets themselves, Mr. Henderson proceeded to show, was by coming into vital touch with the great Magnet, who imparts to those who have His life in themselves the power to draw others. The speaker told with sorrowful emphasis of the many, in every place, who are sunk in the pit of sin, temptation, or dispair, and impressed upon his hearers the fact that only by loving them could they be raised; the power to win them is not in frightening them, or in legislation, or in compulsion, but only in a real and Christian love.

The pit of sin was the first one mentioned by Mr. Henderson, who described Christ's dealings with sinners from whom the modern Christian would turn away in horror. The pit of indifference, of which the victims are almost more hopeless than the preceding class, the pit of temptation, especially the terrible temptation of drink; and the pit of despair and hopelessness, in which are sunk many in whom the life has been killed, were all pictured with vivid clearness.

In closing, Mr. Henderson begged his hearers to get into such close union with the Saviour that they could truly help those about them who stood in such sore need, and, having in their hearts His own love, love others out of the pit of ruin. He told how a little child of Ballington Booth, seeing a picture of his grandfather standing in a boat and reaching out to draw in shipwrecked sailors, asked: "Is he shaking hands with them, or helping them in?" "Which are you doing?" asked Mr. Henderson, "shaking hands with people, or helping them into the lifeboat?"

After another hymn sung by Mr. Weeden, the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Dr D J Yerkes.

The evening service was very largely attended, there being fully as many people present as on the opening night. A deep spiritual feeling was evidenced and an increasing interest and enthusiasm was noticed. A large majority of the city pastors occupied seats on the platform. The song service preceding the sermon was con-

TWO TOWNS ENTERED

Insurgents Burn Fifty Houses In Santa Maria.

A CONSERVATIVE PARTY FORMING.

Manila Chambers of Commerce Send Protests to Washington—Alarm Over the Provisions of the Spooner Amendment.

MANILA, March 1.—A band of 70 armed insurgents entered the town of Suog, in the province of South Ilocos, Luzon, where they killed one native and abducted five. Midnight of the same day they attacked the town of Santa Maria, burning 50 houses. The insurgents were repulsed by the Americans, who had one man wounded. One native scout and two civilians were killed. The insurgents retreated to the mountains, closely pursued. Their losses were not learned.

The projectors of the Conservative party have asked the American Philippine commission to inspect their platform, but Judge Taft postponed action in the matter until Tuesday. They subsequently visited General MacArthur and outlined to him their programme, saying that the ultimate views of the party would be submitted later and would in no way conflict with the principle of American sovereignty.

General MacArthur responded that any Philippine party under the present circumstances should have the establishment of peace throughout the islands for its primary object and advised the avoiding of the discussion of other political principles until peace should be declared. He said the situation today did not permit the encouragement of extreme party ideas. The Conservatives are apparently receiving encouragement from those church authorities who oppose the Federal party.

The ports of Inabango and Quindulman, on the island of Bohol, have been closed to interisland commerce on account of the withdrawal of American troops.

The news that the Spooner amendment prohibits the sale of land, timber and mining concessions has alarmed those here who are dependent upon such concessions for their business success. The three Chambers of Commerce of Manila, the international, the Spanish and the American, are wiring protests.

The Spanish Crisis.

MADRID, March 1.—Senor Sagasta had a conference lasting an hour with the queen regent yesterday. He presented his views to her majesty on the situation in writing. They were not communicated to the press. It is believed, however, that he pointed out that there is room for a change in the government's policy from the Liberal standpoint, but if the queen judged it advisable the present chambers would vote the budget for 1902 and Senor Silvela would form a cabinet if supported by the confidence of the majority. The queen regent conferred also with Senor de Armijo, who said subsequently that any opinion relative to the solution of the crisis would be premature. In political circles it is considered that in case parliament is dissolved Senor Sagasta or Senor Silvela will be appointed to the presidency of the cabinet.

Dr. Kennedy's Double.

NEW YORK, March 1.—Attorney Moore of counsel for Dr. Kennedy, whose second trial for the murder of Dolly Reynolds resulted in a disagreement of the jury, yesterday declared that he had found a man who looks like the twin brother of Dr. Kennedy and who was a personal friend of Dolly Reynolds. He said further: "I am of the opinion that this man was with Dolly Reynolds at the Grand hotel on the night of Aug. 15, 1898. I do not want to be understood as saying that this man killed Dolly Reynolds, but if he was to come to the front he could clear Dr. Kennedy of the charge under which he now rests." The attorney further said that he had informed District Attorney Philbin of the above fact and had furnished Mr. Philbin with the man's name, asking him to send for him.

Emperor's Narrow Escape.

BERLIN, March 1.—About noon yesterday Emperor William had a narrow escape from serious injury while crossing Unter den Linden, when his carriage came into collision with an electric street car near the palace, to which he was returning. The brake of the car did not work effectively, and the emperor's coachman barely succeeded in stopping the horses. As it was the car shook the carriage roughly and somewhat damaged it. The emperor was thrown against the side of the carriage and slightly bruised.

Another Negro Fiend.

MACON, March 1.—Levi Carrell, a young negro, stabbed his father to death. He then went to the house of Dinah Lockett, colored, and while she was asleep stabbed her to death. He said he killed his father because he would not support him.

NO EXPEDITION NOW.

Foreign Troops Leaving China. Australians Lead Off.

TWO AMERICAN COMPANIES REMAIN.

Our Legation Guard Has No Permanent Quarters In View—Ministers Discuss Indemnity Question.

PEKING, March 1.—General Gaselee's orders to have 4,000 men ready should the Chinese prove recalcitrant created unnecessary alarm among the ministers of the powers. He was only obeying a former instruction from Count von Waldersee. No one now believes that the expedition to the interior will be made.

The first troops to leave China are the Australians, the Victorian and New South Wales naval contingents leading off.

General Chaffee's orders to send the United States troops to the Philippines include all except two companies of infantry, which Major Edgar B. Robertson will probably command.

Nothing has been done in the way of preparing quarters for the United States legation guard, although the arrangements for the other powers are well toward completion. The temple of agriculture, two miles away, would not be suitable for guard purposes. Should it be returned to the Chinese the troops would have to pitch their tents in the center of the legation quarter. No suitable arrangements have been made, and the authorities are still awaiting instructions from Washington. No one, either military or civilian, understands the delay in making a decision which is considered of great importance.

At yesterday's meeting of the ministers of the powers the principal point discussed was the question of indemnities.

REBELLION RUMORS.

Shanghai Responsible For Stories of Chinese Uprising.

LONDON, March 1.—The Shanghai correspondent of The Standard says reports from native sources assert that Li Hai Chun, a protege of Prince Tuan and General Tung Fu Hsiang, has started a rebellion with 5,000 men near Lan-chau-fu, province of Kansu.

The Peking correspondent of The Daily Mail, wiring Wednesday, says:

"Great Britain, Japan and Germany have unitedly advised China through Li Hung Chang, I understand, against granting special concessions to the subjects of any nationality. These representations refer to the Russo-Chinese convention regarding Manchuria, which has not yet been ratified by China."

Sir Ernest Satow and Mr. Conger, after consulting with the missionaries, have decided, according to the Peking correspondent of The Morning Post, to reject the Chinese proposition, made on the suggestion of M. Pichon, that they should act as representatives of the ministers of the powers to discuss with the Chinese plenipotentiaries the missionary question and the claims of native converts.

A Second List of the Doomed.

SHANGHAI, March 1.—The native newspapers publish a second list of officials whose punishment is demanded by the powers. It includes Lu Chuan Lin, grand councilor and president of the board of rites. Duke Lan has been arrested and awaits punishment. Prince Tuan has not yet been taken.

The Bulgarians Restless.

LONDON, March 1.—"An imperial irade orders the concentration of 50,000 Turkish troops on the Bulgarian frontied near Kustendil," says the Constantinople correspondent of The Daily Mail. "This measure is taken on the advice of the ministry of war owing to the agitation of the revolutionary Bulgarian committee in Macedonia, which is assuming the form of brigandage on a large scale. Prince Ferdinand opposes the operations of the Macedonian committee, but is believed to be powerless to stop them, and there is no doubt that sympathizers in Bulgaria are providing the promoters of the revolution with arms."

Ferrell Pays the Penalty.

COLUMBUS, O., March 1.—Rosslyn H. Ferrell, who murdered Express Messenger Charles Lane on the night of Aug. 10 last, was put to death in the electric chair just after midnight. He showed no remorse for having taken the life of the man who had been his friend and who was befriending him at the time of the murder was committed by permitting him to ride free in the express car from Urbana to Columbus.

Tariff War In Jamaica.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, March 1.—A tariff war has commenced between the Royal Mail line of London and Elder, Dempster & Co. of Liverpool on freight between England and Jamaica. Both lines are cutting rates heavily, and the end is not yet reached. Shipping circles here are much interested in the outcome.

NOTED CAREER ENDS

William M. Evarts Dead In His New York Home.

SECRETARY OF STATE UNDER HAYES

Was Famous For His Knowledge of International Law—An Orator of Exceptional Brilliancy—Held Many Places of Trust.

NEW YORK, March 1.—William M. Evarts, the celebrated lawyer and former secretary of state, is dead at his home at Fourteenth street and Second avenue after a brief illness of pneumonia. Mr. Evarts was seized with his last illness last Sunday morning. While he had been in feeble health for several years his condition was such that he seemed to be in no immediate danger. No alarming symptoms were discovered until 4 o'clock yesterday morning, when Dr. Samuel W. Lambert, the attending physician, discovered that Mr. Evarts was sinking fast. The members of his family, all of whom were in this city, were summoned hurriedly, and they remained at Mr. Evarts' bedside until the end.

Mr. Evarts celebrated his eighty-third birthday on Feb. 6. He had been in failing health for a period of five years, and for three years he had not been out of his house. Two years ago he was stricken almost blind.

William Maxwell Evarts came from good New England stock. His father was Jeremiah Evarts, lawyer and philanthropist, and his mother was Mehitabel, the daughter of Roger Sherman, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. William Maxwell Evarts was born Feb. 6, 1818, at Charlestown, Mass., where his father was then practicing law and editing a well known journal of that time. William M. Evarts spent all of his childhood at Charlestown and prepared for college at the Boston Latin school. In 1838 he entered Yale, where his father had been graduated in 1802, and while there he displayed much of the vigor and acumen that characterized his whole public career. While a student at Yale young Evarts founded The Yale Literary Magazine.

Being graduated from Yale in 1837, the young man taught school near his home while he took a law course at the Harvard law school. Later he entered the law office of Daniel Lord in this city, where he continued his studies, and in 1841 he was admitted to the bar of this county. Early in his career as a lawyer Mr. Evarts formed the professional associations that in after years resulted in the formation of the law firm of Evarts, Choate & Beaman.

William M. Evarts was famous as a lawyer for his knowledge of international and constitutional law. He was also an orator of exceptional brilliancy. As a statesman and a patriot his services are well known. His public service began in 1849, when he accepted the appointment as deputy United States district attorney here. He retained the office until 1853.

Mr. Evarts first appeared prominently in politics in 1860, when he was chairman of the New York delegation at the national convention at Chicago. It was he who proposed the nomination of William H. Seward. The next year Mr. Evarts and Horace Greeley were rivals for election to the United States senate before the New York state legislature. Mr. Evarts withdrew his name early in the contest and joined in the support of Ira Harris, who was elected. In 1863 Mr. Evarts was chosen by this government to go on a secret mission to England. After this he devoted his time to his law practice, often appearing before the United States supreme court, until 1866, when he defended President Andrew Johnson in the impeachment proceedings.

Having been successful in that case Mr. Evarts in July, 1868, accepted from President Johnson the portfolio of the attorney general, which he held with distinction for the remainder of that administration. Mr. Evarts was appointed secretary of state by President Hayes and served a full term of four years.

The political career of the great lawyer ceased with his term of six years in the United States senate. He was elected to this office in 1885 and retired in 1891. From that time until his death Mr. Evarts appeared little in public life.

Fatal Mine Explosion.

SOUTH M'ALESTER, I. T., March 1.—An explosion occurred last night at mine No. 5, one mile northeast of this city, which resulted in the death of three men and the probable injury of many more. The dead are Steve Delucas, Bristo Barto and W. B. Welch. All three men were shot firers and had just gone into the mine to work when the explosion occurred. It is supposed that the pit was overcharged with gas. A rescuing party is working to reach the dead men, but as the force of the explosion shock resulted in great damage to the mine slow progress is made. The mine is the property of the Osage Coal and Mining company, which is controlled by the Missouri Pacific Railway company.

Shake Up In Custom House.

NEW YORK, March 1.—One of the biggest shake ups in the history of the custom house occurred yesterday, when the treasury department, acting under suggestions from Collector Bidwell and Surveyor Croft, abolished the offices of 31 staff inspectors attached to the surveyor's office and removed from office that number of customs inspectors who have been under the jurisdiction of the surveyor. The department also requested the resignations of Deputy Surveyors Daniel E. Dowling and Theodore F. Reed.

Treaty Likely to Fail.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Nothing has been received here from British sources to indicate the character of that government's response to the senate amendments to the Hay-Pauncefote Nicaraguan canal treaty. Neither Lord Pauncefote nor Secretary Hay has any information on the subject. The general belief prevails that the treaty will be permitted to fail.

First New York Negro Voter Dead.

KINGSTON, N. Y., March 1.—George Peter Newkirk, colored, is dead at Old Hurley, aged 117 years. He was born a slave, purchased his liberty, acquired property and was the first negro to vote in New York state.

Michigan Judge Renominated.

GRAND RAPIDS, March 1.—Justice Robert M. Montgomery of Grand Rapids was yesterday nominated by the state Republican judiciary convention to succeed himself on the supreme court bench.

STATE PRISON DOOMED.

Nebraska Institution on Fire—Prisoners Out and Under Guard.

LINCOLN, Neb., March 1.—Fire which started in the living rooms of the warden in the main building of the state penitentiary at midnight seems certain to destroy the entire main building, together with the cellhouse and other buildings.

Just after 2 o'clock this morning a telephone message came saying the room in which the telephone instrument was located was in flames and must be vacated.

This cuts off the only means of immediate communication with the prison, which is nearly four miles from the business district of the city.

Between 1 and 2 o'clock this morning, however, a message from a member of the Lincoln fire department telephoned that the penitentiary proper was doomed and that the fire was spreading.

Before the flames had gained great headway Warden Davis gave orders to release the convicts from the cells and march them under guard to the prison yard under double guard. This was accomplished safely and without disorder. Extra guards were also posted on the stockade walls, armed with shotguns, with orders to permit no escapes. The origin of the fire is unknown.

SWEPT BY HUGE WAVE.

The Teutonic Has a Severe Experience at Sea.

NEW YORK, March 1.—The White Star steamship Teutonic reached this port with two of her passengers in the ship's infirmary seriously injured as the result of a phenomenal wave which swept over the ship last Sunday morning off the Grand Banks. John Michalsen, a Swede, in the steerage, one of the injured men, had his left foot torn off, and his leg was so badly injured that the lower part of it had to be amputated.

It is doubtful if he will recover. The other injured passenger is Stanley C. Wilson, a first cabin passenger, who suffered a fracture of the jaw. He will be laid up for a month, the ship's surgeon says, and in the meantime he will be cared for at the expense of the steamship company.

The wave that swept the ship rose out of a comparatively smooth sea. There was no wind to speak of, and the promenade decks had a number of passengers out taking the air. The sea rose ahead and, curling over the port bow, poured in a torrent upon the forward steerage deck, filling the space from rail to rail.

RAILROAD COLLISION.

Two Dead and Three Badly Hurt in a Pennsylvania Accident.

PITTSBURG, March 1.—Two dead, three badly hurt and a passenger train burned is the result of a head on collision between passenger train No. 16, south bound, and a local freight on the Pittsburg, Virginia and Charleston railroad last evening at Coal Valley, five miles from McKeesport.

None of the other passengers was hurt beyond minor cuts and bruises.

Immediately after the collision the passenger cars took fire and soon were totally destroyed, only one car escaping the flames.

The trains in collision were the Uniontown express, south bound, and the local freight coming toward Pittsburg. The local was standing on a siding between the north and south bound tracks delivering freight at the time. For some reason, as yet unexplained, the express instead of keeping to the main track shot off into the siding and telescoped the other train. All of the victims were on the express train, which carried between 50 and 60 passengers. The engineer of the freight jumped when he saw the collision was inevitable.

Did Not Answer Distress Signals.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 1.—Ellingson, the coast guardsman connected with the Fort Point life saving station who was on duty at the time of the wreck of the steamer Rio de Janeiro on Feb. 22, has confessed that he heard the Rio's signals of distress, but no importance was attached to them and for that reason he failed to arouse the life saving station. Captain Hodson, in charge of the station, has suspended Ellingson and will make a thorough investigation. It has been claimed by persons who were on the wrecked steamer and by others that if the life crew had been made aware of the disaster many lives could have been saved.

Named For Wildman's Post.

MILWAUKEE, March 1.—The Washington correspondent of The Sentinel wires that William A. Rublee, formerly one of the editors of The Sentinel, has been chosen consul at Hongkong in place of the late Consul General Wildman, who a few days ago was drowned on the Rio de Janeiro in San Francisco bay. Mr. Rublee was for four years consul at Prague under President Harrison, but for the past seven or eight years has been an editorial writer. He is about 40 years of age.

Serious Freight Wreck.

NORWICH, Conn., March 1.—A freight train on the Central Vermont road was derailed almost on the boundary between this state and Massachusetts yesterday, the engine, 14 cars and the caboose leaving the track and going over an embankment. All the train hands escaped uninjured. A broken rail was the cause of the accident. Traffic on the road was delayed for over two hours until a crew sent from this city had cleared away the wreck.

Rand Powder Mills Explosion.

NEW YORK, March 1.—An explosion at the Rand powder mills in Pompton, N. J., killed one man, seriously injured two and slightly hurt three others. So loud was the report of the explosion that it was heard for miles around. The building which was destroyed was the drying room.

Child Fatally Burned.

THE SENATE AT PEACE.

River and Harbor and Revenue Reduction Measures Disposed Of.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The serenity of yesterday's proceedings in the senate was in sharp contrast with the tempestuous discussion of Wednesday. An immense amount of business was disposed of, and not a single point raised was sharply controverted. The river and harbor bill, carrying appropriations of more than $50,000,000, was passed without a word of discussion, and the senate adopted the conference report on the war revenue reduction measure without disturbing in the least the mill pond smoothness of the proceedings. Final conference reports were made and agreed to on the diplomatic and consular and the agricultural appropriation bills, and another conference on the postoffice bill was ordered. Conference reports on several other measures were agreed to, and several bills of a minor character were passed.

The last hour and a half of the session was devoted to consideration of the sundry civil appropriation bill.

The house cleared the decks of a number of important conference reports without much difficulty. The conference report on the war revenue reduction bill proved generally acceptable to both sides and was adopted without division. Mr Richardson, the minority leader, acquiesced in it as the best that could be done although he stated that the minority still believed the war taxes should be reduced $70,000,000. Final reports on the diplomatic and consular and agricultural appropriation bills were adopted. The major part of the day was devoted to the bill to promote the efficiency of the revenue cutter service. Although the bill is a house measure, its friends were very persistent and in the face of many difficulties hung on to it with bulldog tenacity and finally forced the bill into such a parliamentary situation that it will be voted upon after five minutes' debate today.

BOTHA'S SURRENDER.

Rumors Not Yet Verified, but Report Gains Credence.

LONDON, March 1.—The Daily News says:

"We learn that Commandant General Botha offered to surrender on certain conditions and that pour parlers are still in progress. It is probable that Mrs. Botha brought proposals from her husband to Lord Kitchener."

The Pall Mall Gazette said last evening:

"Information has just reached Downing street that Commander in Chief Botha formally surrendered to Lord Kitchener at Middelburg, Transvaal, shortly before 9 o'clock this morning.

"All details had previously been arranged and the modus vivendi settled some days before."

A placard posted by the afternoon Sun announcing that Botha had surrendered and that the news was official created a sensation in London. The Evening News also stated that it had information that General Botha surrendered this morning.

The war office has no confirmation of the report.

De Wet Failed to Cross.

OUDTSHOORN, Cape Colony, March 1.—General De Wet, it is officially asserted, having failed to cross the Orange river at Daltonspoort, is hurrying to Roefontein by way of Petrusville. The Orange river is falling fast.

Conger Stories Laid at Rest.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—A misunderstanding appears to exist in European capitals as to the conditions under which Mr. Conger was replaced at Peking by Mr. Rockhill in charge of the negotiations for the United States. The impression seems to have gained currency that the change was made by the state department because of dissatisfaction with Mr. Conger's action. It is said at the department that Mr. Conger was relieved at his own request, and his cable message of last week strongly urged that he be allowed to come home for 60 days, not intimating any purpose on his part to remain longer in the United States. In the same message Mr. Conger recommended that Mr. Rockhill be charged with the conduct of the negotiations, and in so directing the state department has done nothing more than carry out the request of Mr. Conger.

Big Railway Deal.

KANSAS CITY, March 1.—Announcement of the purchase of the control of the Kansas City and Fort Scott and the Kansas City, Memphis and Birmingham railway system by investors who are interested in the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad is made here. The transaction will result in the consolidation of the Frisco and Memphis systems. The Memphis and Frisco consolidation will make a system with 3,002 miles of railroad, of which the Memphis contributes 1,250 miles. The Memphis road has purchased the Deckerville, Osceola and Northern road, which runs from Deckerville, Ark. to Luxora, Ark., 45 miles northeast of Deckerville, on the Mississippi river. The road was owned by the Pond-Decker Lumber company.

Thief a German After All.

VIENNA, March 1.—The man who was arrested here Wednesday having in his possession jewelry of the value of £5,000 supposed to be the proceeds of burglaries and robberies in London and New York city and who then gave his name as W. A. Morley, asserting that he resided at 211 West Thirty-seventh street, New York city, now confesses that his name is Carl Heinrich Wolf and that he is a deserter from the German army.

Spring Elections Abolished.

TRENTON, March 1.—Governor Voorhees late last evening, after consultation with the attorney general as to its constitutionality, signed the antispring election bill which passed both houses of the legislature. This makes the bill a law and abolishes spring elections in all cities of the state. The municipal officers will hereafter be elected in the fall, and those in office have their terms extended until Jan. 1 next succeeding, when their terms would otherwise expire.

The Leak Not Discovered.

THE INAUGURATION.

Plans For the Great Event Now Complete.

CROWDS EXPECTED IN WASHINGTON.

Veterans Refuse to Participate In the Parade—A New Way of Conducting the Ceremony—Only Griggs Will Retire From Cabinet.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The preparations for the inauguration of President McKinley next Monday are rapidly nearly completion, and without all signs fail there will be a larger crowd of strangers present to witness the ceremonies than Washington has seen in many years. The general inaugural committee has been hard at work for more than a month perfecting the arrangements, and the spectacular features of the celebration as well as the general arrangements made for the occasion will be on an exceptionally fine scale. The reviewing stands which have been erected at intervals along Pennsylvania avenue from the foot of the capitol grounds to Seventeenth street have been uniform and unique in design, and the general decorations of the city, especially along the line of the parade, will be more lavish and artistic in character than formerly. Although Pennsylvania avenue will be illuminated during the three nights of the 4th, 5th and 6th of March as rarely before, a special feature will be made of that part extending from Fifteenth street to Seventeenth street on the north front of the White House grounds. This section has been designated the "court of honor," and many special features of illumination will be introduced. The circular drive in front of the executive mansion is included in this grand scheme of illumination, and a large force of workmen has been engaged for two weeks or more in the erection of pillars of classic shape at frequent intervals along this drive. From these pillars novel effects in electric illumination will be displayed, and it is expected that the court of honor will surpass in beauty anything of the kind ever before attempted in this country and certainly in Washington.

Officers having the government buildings in charge are putting in place special decorations in honor of the occasion.

Representatives of the various veteran organizations who through General Daniel Sickles declined to participate in the inaugural ceremonies because they were dissatisfied with the place assigned them in the parade also declined an offer of the grand marshal, General Francis V. Greene, to send a guard of honor of 20 men from each local post to act as an escort to the president. The veterans declined to have any part in the ceremonies unless this invitation were extended to all members of veteran organizations, both local and visiting from other cities.

The inaugural committee has completed every detail of the programme. The inaugural ceremonies proper, for the first time, will be conducted by a joint committee of the senate and house, the custom heretofore having been to leave the conduct of the inauguration entirely in the hands of the upper body of congress. At 11 o'clock Mr. Roosevelt will take the oath of the vice presidency in the senate chamber in the presence of President McKinley and a distinguished company. After the delivery of his inaugural address the vice president will administer the oath of office to the senators elect.

At noon the oath of office will be administered to President McKinley by Chief Justice Fuller in front of the main entrance to the capitol, where a stand for this purpose has been constructed. The president then will deliver his inaugural address. He will take his lunch at the capitol before heading the brilliant inaugural parade up Pennsylvania avenue to the executive mansion. General Francis V. Greene will head the parade as grand marshal. President McKinley will follow, escorted by Troop A of Ohio. The body of the parade is divided into two grand divisions, military and civic, and will be a notable pageant in many respects. A company of volunteer troops from Porto Rico will form a part of the first brigade and be an attractive feature of the parade, as will a large detachment of sailors and marines.

The grand inaugural ball, which will be held in the great court of the pension building, will be the social feature of the occasion. Large amounts of money are being expended in floral and other decorations, and the committee having this part of the programme in charge have no doubt that this great room will eclipse in point of beauty and brilliancy anything Washington has seen.

President McKinley has decided to request the resignations of all of the members of the cabinet to take effect March 4. On Tuesday he will renominate them all, with the exception of Attorney General Griggs, who thus far has resisted the president's importunities to remain at the head of the department of justice for another four years. It is known that Mr. Griggs has finally decided that his business interests are such that he cannot afford to remain and has so informed the president. He will remain in office, however, until about April 1.

Four Children Burned to Death.

WAVERLY, N. Y., March 1.—Four children 4 to 12 years of age were cremated in the burning residence of Jacob Balt at Litchfield, Pa., nine miles south of this place. Balt was away from home. A hired man rescued Mrs. Balt and Mrs. Alonzo Scott. It was impossible to reach Mrs. Scott's four children, who were asleep up stairs. Their cries could be heard until death came.

Engineer Killed.

KINGSTON, N. Y., March 1.—Charles Klothe was killed on his engine on the Wallkill Valley railroad between New Daltz and Gardiner by the explosion of steam pipes. He was hurled 50 feet out of the engine cab and his skull fractured. The fireman was slightly injured.

Couldn't Wake His Subject.

KINGSTON, N. Y., March 1.—Imitating a hypnotist now exhibiting here, Earl Conklin practiced upon Eugene Hamm, a companion, and put him to sleep. He tried to wake Hamm, but could not. Physicians succeeded only after an hour's work.

New Brunswick Legislature Opens.

ST. JOHN, N. B., March 1.—The New Brunswick legislature was formally opened at Fredericton yesterday. A salute of 15 guns marked the occasion. C. W. Robinson, M. P., Westmoreland county, was elected speaker.

The Republicans of North Plainfield have selected their candidates for the coming borough election, which takes place Tuesday, March 12 As was expected, Mayor N. B Smalley was again chosen to head the Republican ticket. In accepting the nomination, Mayor Smalley practically calls upon the voters of the borough to pass judgment on his administration of the past two years. If they are satisfied, the ballot will go toward the re-election of the present Mayor Otherwise, it will count for Mr. Smalley's opponent.

In two issues particularly, Mayor Smalley has taken a decided stand and both are likely to play important parts in the campaign now at hand The Mayor was chiefly instrumental in the decided reduction in the cost of running the borough police department. For this he has been criticized, his opponents claiming that he has reduced the efficiency of the department below what it should be in his effort to reduce expenses.

The other particular issue is the widening of Somerset street. Mayor Smalley has advocated that improvement very actively and has personally supervised the work of removing the trees on that thoroughfare. It is proposed to have the expense borne by the borough at large instead of by the property owners directly interested.

There is a general disposition on the part of many boroughites to forget strict political lines in a municipal campaign and vote accordingly to local issues. Mayor Smalley's strength will therefore be influenced by the choice of the Democrats at their primary tonight.

There existed a natural Republican majority in the borough which is likely to carry considerable weight in the election. As far as the mayoralty is concerned, however, the issues are clearly drawn. It is simply the approval or condemnation of the present management of borough affairs. If Mayor Smalley is re-elected, he will feel perfectly justified in continuing as at present as his election will show a confidence in his methods of municipal government.

There are some business men suggests the Philadelphia Record who recognize the value of newspaper advertising, but who do not consider it necessary to advertise all the time. A New York merchant has told the editor of Information (an advertising periodical) that according to his experience "new readers for advertising are made every day by the changing conditions of life—by its births, sicknesses and deaths; that all the persons who are interested in an article can never be reached in a given time, and that to become a successful advertiser one must advertise day by day, year in and year out."

It is probable that the Common Council will be called upon at the meeting of that body Monday evening, to take some action regarding the proposed changes in the sewage disposal beds. Bids have been received and opened and it now lies with the members of the Council to decide whether or not they will accept the lowest of these bids and begin work. The question may be dodged at Monday's meeting but it is one that has got to be answered this spring and the Councilmen will do well to face it squarely and take a definite stand either for or against the proposition.

Co-operation on the part of adjoining property owners can do much to improve the present appearance of Green brook as viewed from the new bridge which unites Madison avenue and Duer street. At present, it is not pleasant to look upon, and the sooner the existing condition of affairs is remedied the better it will be.

As far as Plainfield is concerned, the idea of uniting Union, Somerset and Middlesex counties into one Congressional district would be very satisfactory. It would undoubtedly mean that the Congressial conventions would frequently be held in this city as it is one of the most central locations in that suggested district.

Plainfield figures very prominently this year at the annual gathering of the State officials of the Improved Order of Red Men. William Newcorn, of this city, retires after a very successful year as great sachem and is advanced to the office of great prophet.

If the large double truck open cars, which last summer were used between Plainfield and Elizabeth, are placed on the local lines this summer instead of the much shorter ones which have been used here, the trolley service in Plainfield will be greatly improved.

The present Borough Council of North Plainfield will wind up its career this evening when the last meeting before the borough election will be held It is too near election to expect that any very important action will be taken at the meeting tonight.

The combination of the State and charter elections will mean that the results in Plainfield on election days will not be heard until a much later hour than formerly.

Already the large attendances and the deep earnestness has shown that the series of evangelistic meetings now in progress are a great success.

There are many citizens who are waiting anxiously for the day when the street signs will be seen in Plainfield once more

Mayor N B Smalley will again head the Republican ticket in the borough. Who will the Democrats run against him?

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short and Gossipy Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

The ingenious method used last Sunday by the pastor of Grace M. E. church to liquidate the debt on the property consisted of a blackboard upon which was blocked off squares representing various sums. As a subscription was offered a block corresponding in amount was cancelled, until the last dollar was subscribed and the blocks all taken. When the offerings seemed to lag, a prominent member of the congregation would announce a subscription from "a friend," meaning himself. This novel idea, which proved very successful, reminds one of the plan once adopted by Dean Swift. The reverend wit, after closing his sermon, told his parishioners that he had a business matter to lay before them. Alms were needed for the poor. He then read from the text "He that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord." "If you approve of the security," said the dean, "down with your money." The response was a large collection.

MASTER PLUMBERS TALK.

Claim That Journeymen Violated the Agreement the Day It Was Made.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—In your issue of last evening we noticed an interview you had with Mr. Moran, president of the Journeymen Plumbers' Association, in which he states that the journeymen have lived up to all the agreements made with the Master Plumbers' Association.

Perhaps he has forgotten the first day the eight hour agreement went into effect. The very first day that the men went to work at 8 a. m. at 10 a. m. he called the plumbers of two shops off because a non union steam fitter, who was willing to join their union, but whom they would not accept because, as they claimed, he had not served an apprenticeship, although the master plumber who employed him was perfectly satisfied with his work and willing to pay him union wages. At that time there was no agreement except for plumbers. This was the first breach and the first day the agreement went into effect.

Our Store - "The People's Store.

We insist that the interests of merchant and patrons are identical. The merchant, to be successful, must study carefully the wants of his customers, and conscientiously endeavor to offer only what is new, reliable, desirable and correct in style and price. He has a right to expect the support of the community in which he may be located in return for such effort. The moral and material effect of such support naturally leads to further effort and the mutual advantage of all parties. The sale will open each day at 3 o'clock and remain open evenings as long as business is good. The committee ask those who have anything in the way of clothing, groceries or anything that will realize money, that they are willing to contribute to the sale, to send them by Wednesday afternoon if possible. The committee take this method of inviting all to contribute as it will be found impossible to make personal solicitation to all.

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

"The Utopians," who appear at Music Hall tonight, present a first part to the programme entitled "In Grand Utopia" The word "grand" is totally inadequate to express the gorgeousness of the production which must have cost a small fortune to produce. The magnificently painted scenery by the famous New York scenic artists, Gates and Morange, rivals for grandeur, brilliant coloring, gorgeous settings and appointments anything ever produced in this country. The scenes in this first part represent the realms of bliss in the land of dreams, and the fun runs fast and furious created by the principals with the aid of bright catchy music, up to date songs and jokes and the frolics of sixteen handsome girls who appear as "Pierettes" Altogether the programme of the "Utopians" is unequalled in the excellence of its talent and the lavish manner in which its production is mounted and costumed.

"The Dairy Farm" Eleanor Merron's successful domestic play, which ran for 109 nights in New York and 133 in Chicago, will be produced at Music Hall next Wednesday. Although written by an actress, "The Dairy Farm" is not at all "of the stage, stagey;" but on the contrary, remarkable for its honest, homely simplicity and real human interest The beaten path followed so closely by the authors of most recent so-called rural plays, is said to have been departed from by Miss Merron, and she has been highly complimented for her truthful work.

In these days of so many theatres turning into what is called "popular-priced" houses, Mr. Proctor's policy of some eight years ago, when he first introduced in New York his famous 15c., 25c., and 50c. programmes of vaudeville is being extensively copied, It is extremely gratifying to note the gradual extension of this philanthropic idea, and it is a significant indorsement of Mr Proctor's policy to observe its general adoption. The Proctor standard has steadily advanced to that stage where no feature is too big; no star too high-priced; in fact, no expense too great to incur in placing the best of talent before the host of patrons who have made popular-priced programmes possible and profitable. A Proctor show invariably means a good big entertainment; and day and night thousands are enjoying just such shows, whether at Proctor's Twenty third Street Theatre, just west of Sixth avenue; Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre, Broadway and 28 th street; Proctor's Palace, 58th street and Third avenue; or Proctor's 125th Street Theatre. David Belasco's "Madame Butterfly" has settled down for an indefinite run at Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre, and delighted audiences are crowding the big auditorium to the doors at every performance. The prices remain the same, 25 and 50 cents.

Sachsen.

Dresden. Das sächsische Landes-Medizinal-Kollegium hat mit einer großen Mehrheit beschlossen, sich dahin zu erklären, daß eine Aenderung der jetzt giltigen Vorbedingungen für das Studium der Medizin weder im Interesse der Allgemeinheit, noch des ärztlichen Standes gelegen sei, daß aber, falls die Abiturienten der Realgymnasien beziehungsweise Realschulen dennoch zu jenem Studium zugelassen werden sollten, die Zulassung in demselben Maße und ohne alle Einschränkung für alle Fakultäten ausgesprochen werden müsse.—Von dem Defizit des im vorigen Jahre anhier abgehaltenen 13. Deutschen Bundesschießens wird die hiesige privilegirte Scheibenschützengilde verhältnißmäßig am empfindlichsten betroffen. Die Gesellschaft, die auf ein Bestehen von 500 Jahren zurückblicken kann, hatte sich verpflichtet, volle 50 Prozent des von ihr gezeichneten Garantiefonds aufzubringen. Das Hauptvermögen der Gilde besteht in dem schönen und werthvollen Schützenhofgrundstück in Trachenberge, weniger in Baarmitteln.

Frankenberg. Der Cigarrenpresser Richard Albrecht, welcher in seiner Eigenschaft als Kassenbote eines hiesigen Sparvereins circa 500 Mark unterschlug, wurde zu einer Gefängnißstrafe von neun Monaten verurtheilt.

Leipzig. Einer der reichsten Leipziger Großhändler, Neuer, wurde der Wechselfälschung im Betrage von 600,000 Mark angeklagt.

Lichtentanne. Im Streuwerke des Königs Albert-Werkes ergoß sich beim Entleeren der Spiegeleisenpfanne aus unaufgeklärter Ursache die glühende Masse nach der entgegengesetzten Seite und verbrannte den Obermeister und drei Gehilfen schwer. Einer der Verletzten, der Arbeiter Friedrich, erlag seinen Wunden.

Loschwitz. Die Loschwitzer Schwebebahn, welche eine bequeme Verbindung zwischen dem Elbthal und der 100 Meter über der Thalstation liegenden Rochwitzer Höhe herstellt, wurde letzthin dem öffentlichen Verkehr übergeben. Sie ist die erste Bergschwebebahn.

Zwickau. Vom 7. bis 14. Juli d. J. wird hier das 17. Mitteldeutsche Bundesschießen abgehalten. Einige 30 Scheiben sollen aufgestellt werden.

Thüringische Staaten.

Eisenach. Für das hier zu errichtende Burschenschaftsdenkmal waren bis vor Kurzem bei dem hiesigen Kassenwart 73,706 Mark eingegangen.

Ichtershausen. Unsere Gemeinde wurde jüngst von einer starken Zigeunerbande in unverschämter Weise heimgesucht. Nicht allein, daß Weiber und Kinder stehlend und bettelnd den Ort durchzogen, plünderten die Männer das wohlgepflegte Gehölz am Schützenhause, indem sie zahlreiche Bäume fällten. Da die Zigeuner den auf 15 Mark angegebenen Schaden nicht decken wollten, so ließ der Ortsschultheiß ein Pferd pfänden. Nachdem dieses am Abend wieder eingelöst worden war, rückte die Ortsfeuerwehr an und vertrieb die Anfangs sich widersetzende Bande.

Meiningen. Im Wiederaufnahmeverfahren wurde von der Strafkammer der Korbmacher Fuchs freigesprochen, der wegen schwerer Körperverletzung zu zwei Jahren Gefängniß verurtheilt worden war und diese Strafe auch verbüßte.

Freie Städte.

Hamburg. Die Hamburg-Amerikanische Dampfschiffgesellschaft hatte eine zweite viereinhalbprozentige Anleihe in Höhe von 27,500,000 Mark ausgeschrieben. Die Diskontogesellschaft von Berlin und die Norddeutsche Bank in Hamburg haben die ganze Anleihe unterzeichnet.—Auf ein Ausschreiben zur Erlangung von Plänen für das Empfangsgebäude des Hauptbahnhofs waren zehn Entwürfe eingegangen. Vier darunter hat das Preisgericht mit Preisen im Gesammtbetrage von 24,000 Mark gekrönt. Zwei erste Preise zu 8000 Mark erhielten Bauinspektor Möller-Altona und die Firma Reinhard & Süssenguth in Charlottenburg, zwei zweite zu 4000 Mark Baurath Schwartz-Altona und Architekt Kröger-Berlin. — Hier erschoß der in Ilmenau studirende Techniker Adolf Tamm seine Braut Alwine Jensen und sich selbst.

Bremen. Die bremische Rhederei hatte im Jahre 1900 einen Zuwachs von 22 Dampfern mit 66,000 Netto-Registertonnen Gehalt zu verzeichnen. Es bedeutet das ein Anwachsen um rund 12 Prozent. Die Segelflotte erlitt einen Abgang von 9 Schiffen und 5000 Tonnen. Unter den Dampfern sind es der Zahl nach hauptsächlich die Fischdampfer, die den Zuwachs ausmachen. Die oldenburgische Weserflotte hatte eine Abnahme von 6400 Tonnen, die preußische eine solche von 500 Tonnen aufzuweisen. Im Ganzen umfaßt die Weserflotte jetzt 663,000 Tonnen Netto; davon gehören Bremen 579,000, Oldenburg 61,000 und Preußen 23,000 Tonnen.—Hierorts starb der Schriftsteller Wilhelm Berger. Er hat eine Reihe von Romanen veröffentlicht.

HEADACHE

Headaches are nature's warnings that there is physical trouble somewhere in the body. A cure can generally be effected by putting the stomach into good condition. Ripans Tabules will do it. "I have been troubled with sick and nervous headaches ever since I can remember, but have been worse for the last two years," writes a young married woman living in Elmira, N. Y. "I could not do my housework in the way it should have been done. I was sick at my stomach most of the time, was nervous and trembled and I could hardly walk across the floor without aid, for I was so dizzy. I took everything I saw advertised for the cure of headache but I did not find relief until I tried Ripans Tabules, which were highly recommended to me by friends. I had taken but two small boxes when I could see a change, and now I can go about my daily toil with comfort. I have been taking them eight months, and I will continue. I am a new person since I began to take Ripans Tabules."

ARABI PASHA'S PARDON.

Famous Egyptian Revolutionist Said to Hesitate About Returning After His Long Exile.

After 18 years of exile in Ceylon, Arabi Pasha, the famous Egyptian revolutionist, is said to hesitate about accepting the pardon which has been granted him, although it is known that about a year ago he was anxious to return to Egypt. Arabi Pasha was sent to Ceylon January 18, 1883, under sentence of exile for leading a revolt against the khedive's government. He was accompanied by several adherents and by his wife, son and a servant. He has seen some of the men who accompanied him into exile buried and others released, until only he and Ali Fehmy remain. His spirit is said to have been completely broken. Arabi Pasha was born near the borders of the desert and became an officer in the Egyptian army at the time when Said Pasha replaced many foreign officers by native Egyptians. He appeared at the head of a revolt in 1881 and became dictator. Then England interfered, Alexandria was bombarded and Arabi and his army were defeated at Tel-el-Kebir. Arabi fled to Cairo and surrendered to Gen. Drury-Low. He was tried, pleaded guilty to rebellion and was condemned to death. His sentence was commuted by the khedive to perpetual exile from Egypt, and he and his fellow-conspirators were sent to Ceylon.

EDITORS IN SENATE.

After March 4 Colorado and Tennessee Will Be Represented by Popular Journalists.

This is a good year for journalistic politicians. Hon. Thomas K. Patterson was elected to the United States senate from the state of Colorado early in the year, and a few weeks later Hon. E. W. Carmack was similarly honored.

Mr. Carmack, who has been elected by the legislature of Tennessee to succeed Thomas B. Turley in the United States senate, is a journalist, and was formerly the editor of the Memphis Commercial-Appeal. He was one of the foremost free silver men in the south four or five years ago, but resigned his position as principal editor of the Commercial-Appeal when the stockholders of that paper objected to its financial policy. Mr. Carmack is at present serving his second term in the national house of representatives. He is quite popular with the masses, who have hailed his election to the senate with considerable satisfaction.

Saved by His Ready Wit.

Ready wit is a very valuable possession, as a certain bold poacher in Germany must have thought recently. At an imperial shooting party at Neugattersleben, Kaiser Wilhelm had just shot an unusually fine hare, when, to his astonishment, one of the loafers who always hang around on such occasions suddenly darted up and, catching up the trophy, bolted with his booty, leaving the kaiser speechless with indignation. As soon as he had recovered sufficiently from his amazement his majesty offered a reward of 100 marks to anyone who could catch the thief, and there ensued an exciting hunt, which was ended by a mounted groom bringing back the culprit and the stolen hare. The thief was led before the kaiser, who asked him how he came to behave in such a manner and received the answer that the former had merely taken the hare because he desired a souvenir of his imperial majesty. At this Kaiser Wilhelm could not help laughing, and he let the man go, with the words: "A nice souvenir, but you can keep it!"

Trolley Wire for India.

A company at Ansonia, Conn., has just received the largest order for copper trolley wire ever placed in this country. The weight is more than 1,000,000 pounds and the destination is British India, where the wire will be used to equip one of the first trolley lines in that colony.

FASHION'S FANCIES.

Interesting Details of the Prevailing Mode.

Adjustable collars are immensely worn and afford much variety to a limited wardrobe. They are very high and are as ingeniously diverse as can be contrived. Bead and metal embroidery is much used upon them, also cabochons and tiny gold, silver or steel buttons. In fact they frequently have a cravat bow, the ends terminating in metal points of filigree.

Many velvet blouses are seen, some plain, others striped or changeable or embroidered with dots and other small silk designs. They are trimmed with very small gold buttons arranged in lines or groups. Plaited bodices are not new, but the use of plaits for very thick materials like velvet or cloth is rather novel. The plaits are really extremely minute tucks, standing erect, and sometimes a tiny gold cord is sewed upon the crest of each tuck. This of course is a decoration suitable for an elaborate corsage, not a shirt waist.

The cut shows a costume of cress green cloth. The cloth is in narrow stitched bands alternating with bands of black lace insertion on white satin. The skirt is entirely composed of stripes thus arranged lengthwise, and the bodice is striped to match, but has a yokelike collar of green cloth entirely stitched. The sleeves are striped horizontally and have a puff of black lace over white satin at the elbow and a ruffle of the same at the wrists. The collar is of lace over white satin, the belt of green velvet and steel buttons with black silk cords ornament the front of the bodice. The hat is of black felt trimmed with black velvet and black ostrich plumes and a steel buckle.

SEPARATE CORSAGES.

Bodices of Various Kinds For Use With Different Skirts.

Plaited chemisettes are always those preferred for wear with boleros. They accompany skirts of cloth or plain wool.

There are many bodices of Louis Quinze panne, printed with pompadour designs and made in a style recalling that of the period. Bodices of broche faille in rose, blue, white and delicate tints are generally made in the blouse style. Jabots of lace or mousseline de soie are arranged in front. On corsages entirely of mousseline de soie the bolero entirely of lace frequently appears with very elegant effect.

For simple blouses of dark silk, velveteen or fancy goods the collar and bottom of the sleeves are much ornamented. These blouses are exceedingly convenient and are not likely to go out of fashion for a long time on that account. The same may be said of the blouses of French flannel, plain or embroidered which have taken a firm hold upon favor.

An illustration is given which shows a blouse of swiss blue taffeta. It has a guimpe and plastrons of cream surah horizontally plaited, and the collar is of the surah with ears of guipure and a cravat of cream satin ribbon with gold tips. The bodice is trimmed with bands of the ribbon, tying in front with gold tipped ends, and also with applications of guipure. The belt is of blue taffeta with guipure applications. The pagoda sleeves are ornamented to match the bodice and have two large puffs at the bottom, separated by bands of ribbon.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning March 3—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Barrenness.—Luke xiii, 6-9.

The topical reference is the parable of the barren fig tree. This parable was spoken by Christ to teach the Jews that unless they repented and brought forth fruit they would perish. Pilate had slain Galileans at worship and mingled their blood with the blood of their sacrifices. A tower had fallen upon 18 in Siloam and had killed them. The Jews concluded that these things were proofs that these people had sinned. They looked upon these calamities as the judgments of God for sin, and as no special judgments came upon them they falsely concluded that they were righteous and that the absence of calamity and adversity was conclusive proof that they enjoyed God's favor and blessing. To abuse their minds of these errors Christ told them the parable of the barren fig tree. It brought forth no fruit. The master ordered it to be cut down. The vine dresser pleaded that it might have one more trial and then declared that if it bore no fruit he would agree to its destruction.

1. Barrenness is not in accordance with the will of God. God has placed all mankind in this world for a purpose—to glorify Him and to do His will. He has for every nation and for every individual a work. We live that we may bear fruit, and he who fails to bring forth fruit is a cumberer of the ground. He stands in the way of others. He makes it impossible for others to do what he himself fails or refuses to do. Such a life is displeasing to God, and destruction awaits it. The tree that is barren is cut away and destroyed. The branch that abides not in Christ that it may bring forth fruit to the honor and glory of God is likewise cut off and cast into the fire. Barrenness where there should be fruitfulness is not to be tolerated. It was not with the Jews, the chosen people of God, and much less will it be with us. God expects in us the fruits of a Christian character and a Christian life, and a severe punishment awaits us if we fail in producing them.

2. Forbearance in the matter of judgment is not to be misunderstood. It does not mean indifference. A year of grace added to the fig tree's life did not make its destruction less certain if it did not repent, as it were, and bring forth fruit. For Christ's sake God used great forbearance with his people. They misunderstood this forbearance. They took delay for entire postponement. We may often do the same, but we should not. Punishment for barrenness may be delayed. If it is, it is only with the hope that we will correct our mistakes. Punishment will be as certain and even more severe if we remain unfruitful in spite of God's forbearance. By faith let us abide in Christ, that we may bring forth fruit. The cumberer perishes. The fruit bearer casts his crown before the throne of God in heaven.

THE PRAYER MEETING.

BIBLE READINGS.

Math. iii, 10; vii, 15-20; xxi, 18-20; xxv, 31-46; Luke iii, 7-9; John xv, 1-16; Eph. v, 9-11; Titus iii, 14; II Pet. i, 1-11.

Heroism Better Than Stoicism.

Discouragement is never permitted to the child of God, nor stoical nonresistance. There is a fatalistic as well as a Christian way of facing the ills of life. Shall I allow my will to sleep in the presence of any calamity on the ground that calamity is resistless before man or God? So, we are told, the Hindoos often do before famine or pestilence. They sullenly bow beneath the storm, their efforts paralyzed by a false dogma. So hundreds of a more enlightened race are victimized in the presence of physical ills or business misfortunes by idleness or weakness induced by unmanly fears. The saying, "What can't be cured must be endured," is frequently on our tongues. More profitable the saying, "While there's life, there's hope." Destroy the ant hill a thousand times, and its tiny inhabitants will yet promptly begin its rebuilding. So while a grain of strength remains to us we should labor on toward our betterment, trusting God to cure when our own best remedies fail. —Sunday School Times.

As the Master Did.

Christ's style of preaching was characterized by beauty, strength, sympathy, warmth, boldness, directness, cheerfulness, plainness, love and hopefulness. The same admirable qualities should mark the ministrations of all who stand in His place and proclaim His truth. The gospel is as much needed as ever, and if presented as the Master did it will find its way to human hearts and consciences.—Presbyterian.

The Higher Life.

The much talked about "higher life" is simply living close to God, on the Sabbath in His sanctuary and through the week in our own dwellings and places of business. It is keeping our citizenship in heaven and our eyes above the blinding mists of worldliness and our hearts in close touch with our divine Master.—Rev. T. L. Cuyler in Evangelist.

Repetition.

Over and over and over
These truths I will weave in song,
That God's great plan needs you and me,
That will is greater than destiny
And that love moves the world along.

However mankind may question
It shall listen and hear my creed,
That God may ever be found within,
That the worship of self is the only sin,
And the only devil is greed.

Over and over and over,
These truths I will say and sing:
That love is mightier far than hate,
That a man's own thought is a man's own fate
And that life is a goodly thing.
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox in Cosmopolitan.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning March 3, "Religious Barrenness"—Text, Luke xiii, 6-9.

"Every tree which bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down and cast into the fire."

Fig trees and grapevines are grown for the fruit they will yield. If they still remain fruitless after proper care in cultivation, they are destroyed and the land planted with others.

Jesus makes it plain in all His teaching that our future well being depends on the use we make of our opportunities in this life. Sincerity and good wishes are not enough. Not what we intend, but what we perform, is of consequence.

There is altogether too much of religious barrenness at the present time. It is of little profit to spend time in comparing the present with the past and asking if the world is growing better or worse. The prime fact is that there is much land lying untilled in all our lives. Fields are fallow where great crops should be growing.

We can learn a lesson from the sugar planters of Hawaii in this matter. On the island of Maui, high up on the slopes of the great extinct volcano Haleakala, lies a tract of land 6½ miles long and 1½ miles wide, lacking only water to make it wonderfully productive. W. J. Lowrie, Esq., found water enough high up the mountain wasting itself in wild cataracts and hiding in deep gorges. After 13 months of toil and the expenditure of $250,000 the water has been brought in a great ditch 21 miles over ravines, through tunnels in the mountains, in volume sufficient to supply four cities like San Francisco or ten like Honolulu, and sugar cane will now grow over these 6,000 acres of barren mountain slopes.

If men can do all these things to make sugar and increase wealth, why should not we pour water from the fountain head of all healing down over earth's waste places and make them blossom and bear sweetness for the Master?

Take a survey of yourself and see if there are not places in your life which can be improved. Dry they may now be and covered with weeds or dust clouds, but there is water enough high up the mountain slopes and in the wells of salvation. Let the pumps of prayer get at work. Run the channels of communication up to the very source of all refreshment. Let God pour down the floods of His grace upon you, and the hills shall shout with harvests.

The League and Citizenship.

The Christian has duties to government as well as to the church. The possibility of good government rests on integrity and ability of the people. The country has passed through one of the most exciting of political campaigns. Differences of opinion were sharp and openly expressed, but there were less bitterness and denunciation than usual. In many places the young men in the League cast their first vote for president. The care which they exercised in selecting their party was noticeable. Their interest in the issues and ability in discussion were marked. It would be an excellent idea to spend an evening during the winter under the auspices of the literary department in explaining the mode of conducting caucuses, conventions and elections. Many people do not yet understand how the president is actually elected. It would be profitable to have the young men present the topic to the League.

My Place.

Have you any such in the prayer meeting, so that if absent it will be noticed? Any at preaching service, Sunday school and class meeting? You ought to have. In traveling you secure a seat in the car, at table in the steamer and a berth. In the store, shop, school, on the farm, you have your place and work. You have no less right and duty in the church. It is reserved. Be sure you fill it, not merely have your card in it, not just occupy it. Fill it! Seats in the New York Stock Exchange have sold for $45,000. Your seat in God's kingdom ought to be worth more than that.

High Cultivation Pays.

No crop raised in the Connecticut valley pays so well as tobacco. But it is one of the most perplexing crops to handle. It must be well fertilized or it is valueless. It must have closest care at just the right time or a single night may ruin it by frost. The soil cannot be made too mellow. Some growers plow the land four times and would do more if possible.

It all suggests so much in Christian culture. How necessary to have deep plowing and mellow soil for Christian virtues to grow quickly. Plow well. It pays.

For His Sake.

Oh, thou, so weary of thy self denials
And so impatient of thy little cross,
Is it so hard to bear thy daily trials,
To count all earthly things a gainful loss?

What if thou always suffer tribulation
And if thy Christian warfare never cease?
The gaining of the quiet habitation
Shall gather thee to everlasting peace.

But here we all must suffer, walking lonely
The path that Jesus once Himself hath gone.
Watch thou in patience through the dark hour only—
This one dark hour—before the eternal dawn.

Poor wandering soul! I know that thou art seeking
Some easier way, as all have sought before,
To silence the reproachful inward speaking—
Some landward path unto an island shore.

Oh, that my faithless soul, one great hour only,
Would comprehend the Christian's perfect life!
Despised with Jesus, sorrowful and lonely,
Yet calmly looking upward in the strife!

For poverty and self renunciation
The Father yielded back a thousandfold;
In the calm stillness of regeneration
Cometh a joy we never knew of old.

And He will come in His own time and power
To set His earnest hearted children free;
Watch only through this dark and painful hour,
And the bright morning yet will break for thee.

REFUGE FOR LEPERS

The Famous Settlement on the Island of Molokai, H. I.

It Consists of Three Villages, None of Which Is Without Its Social Life—Church Founded by Father Damien.

MOLOKAI, translated, "The Land of Precipices," is one of the now familiar group of Hawaiian islands, lying nearly in a direct eastern line from Oahu, which is commercially the most important of the group, having on its coast the city of Honolulu.

Molokai has ever had a strange little history—not the tales of enterprise, none of the benefits or woes of conquest, for its barren, rocky soil is not productive without the efforts of labor, and Hawaiians have the southerner's usual aversion to work. There are only four watercourses on the island, and consequently no large areas suitable to the cultivation of sugar or coffee, but lately the latter is making some progress owing to the infusion of American or European energy. King Kamehameha V. had an extensive grazing ranch on the western plateau, and here he set up the lares and penates of his favorite resort. Several deer sent him by friends were set at large and that portion of the island has grown to be quite a deer park. Kaunakakai is the chief landing place for steamers, and is a considerable town, with its post office, a church, two schools and numbers of residences. However, the chief center of interest of the island—one which attracts visitors and yet repels them—is the leper settlement on the north side.

Boats passing along the coast line give travelers a peep into this curious town, with all its attending horrors, without the least danger of inoculation with the disease of the living death. At the Kalaupapa docks the miserable unfortunates are put ashore. Once there they enter a living tomb and are forced to bid adieu to the busy world they left behind. Day after day they toil at their duties, and some even become so engrossed in the affairs of their new sphere as to join in the town meetings and the little functions with some show of merriment. There is "society" among the lepers, strange as it may seem. The settlement consists of three villages—Kalaupapa, Kalawao and Waikolu—and the other inhabitants of the humble little hamlets visit each other and seek to find in one another's cheering words some solace for wrecked bodies and ruined lives. The little houses are kept clean and comely; and when the Sabbath bells ring out at church time all who can limp their way to the sanctuary attend the service.

There is something unspeakably pathetic in the devotion of those who, it would seem, had had their hearts hardened to all thoughts of a merciful deity, for their suffering is such as none but themselves can know. Like the frail ivy, clinging to the strong battlements of a timeworn castle, they clutch at the hope of a happier life in the great beyond, and call themselves blessed for being among the chosen ones to suffer. A band of devoted Sisters of Mercy plod diligently between the couches of the dying, relieving, as best they can, the pangs of the final struggle. Occasionally one of these self-sacrificing little women is shrouded in the flowing robes, and laid away in the tombs, with the other victims.

The church shown in the cut is the one built by Father Damien, who sacrificed his life in the effort to save the souls of the lepers. His tomb is in Kalawao, not far from the church he built.

This shore, which has been set apart as the dwelling place of the "unclean," is a natural house of detention. To the back of it, it is encircled by a row of precipitous cliffs, and the other side is guarded by the sea. A water-pipe was laid along the base of the cliffs in 1887, under the direction of Mr. C. B. Wilson, and the supply of fresh water it affords brings wonderful relief to the sufferers.

In the days of the monarchy, Queen Lil gave much attention to the needs of the lepers, and under the present regime these "wards of the nations" are receiving even greater benefits. A bit of legendary lore (the island abounds in mythology) attaches itself to Molokai. In the reign of Kealiikuku, Kahavali, a chief, and one of his companions went out to amuse themselves on the slope of a hill. Vast numbers of people collected to witness the sport. The gay youths had begun to dance to the music of the drums, and the toboggan race between Kahavali and his favorite began. Pele, the goddess of fire, came down in the disguise of an ordinary woman and challenged Kahavali to slide with her. The proposition was accepted, and they started off together. Pele, less accustomed to the art of balancing on a narrow sled, was beaten. She commanded Kahavali to give her his "papa" (sled), but he, never dreaming she was the goddess, said "aole" (no), and forthwith her avengeful fires were aroused. Pele stamped on the ground, and an earthquake followed, which rent the cliffs asunder. She called, and the liquid fire of lava arose, bearing her on its flaming billows in hot pursuit of the fleeing Kahavali. Thunder and lightning and earthquakes joined her in her wrath, but the swift-footed chief reached his home, snatched up his wife and two children, and just as the angry deity was about to seize them they escaped from the shore in a canoe.

The east wind sprung up, and fixing his broad spear for a sail, Kahavali and his loved ones were carried to Molokai, where they rested, and put up a new hut for themselves. The terrible Pele became more wrathful than ever, and because her would-be victims had escaped her, she cursed the island. And so it is that the lava soil is not productive; and, resting under the bane of Pele's revenge, it has become the abode of the miserable suffering lepers.

Few readers there are who are sure of their pronunciation of Hawaiian names. A few simple rules, when followed, make the seemingly "tongue-splitting words" quite easy indeed. The vowels of the Hawaiian language all have the soft sounds, and there are no diphthongs, or silent letters. Each vowel must be pronounced. Thus the name of the deposed queen is pronounced Lil-i-o-u-ka-la-ni, with no accent save what the lengthened sound of the a in next to the last syllable would give.

Molokai is pronounced thus—Mo-lo-kah-ee; Kalaupapa — Ka-la-u-pa-pa; Ka-la-wa-o, Wa-i-ko-lu, Pele—Pee-lee; Ka-ha-va-li; Ka-nie-ha-me-ha, with the aspirant h, and a quick utterance as Ka-mehameha.

An English Grandmother Who Maintained That She Never Dropped a Single One.

To encounter the English "H" on its own soil affords annually much innocent amusement to traveling Americans, but if anything the letter is even funnier when it emigrates to the "'Appy Land." There is a household in a small Massachusetts town of which the most honored member is an aged grandmother, who was born in England. She has two granddaughters, twins, named—although their mother now admits she ought to have known better—Hannah and Anna. The old lady is extremely attached to them, but there is seldom a day in which her bright old eyes do not snap and her pretty white curls quiver with wrath at what she calls with spirit the "'opeless haggravation" of trying to make them understand which she is talking to. "I didn't call 'Annah,' I called Hanna," she will protest, indignantly, when the wrong one responds to a summons. "Why don't Hanna come 'erself, instead of sending 'Annah, when she wasn't hasked for?" Nothing makes her angrier than to suggest, no matter how carefully and delicately, that any confusion of H's might be responsible for the difficulty. "I'm Henglish, I hown," she says, with frigid dignity, "but I 'ope I know 'ow to pronounce my haitches! It's only the hignorant Henglish who say 'ouse for 'ouse and 'orse for 'orse. Hanna! 'Annah! What are you laughing at? I didn't say 'ouse. I said 'ouse—'ouse and 'orse—hexactly as you do! 'Ark now and 'ear me." Then very slowly and with deep impressiveness: "'Orse! 'orse! 'orse! 'ouse! 'ouse! 'ouse! And I 'ope you're satisfied!" They are! They would not exchange for the choicest American grandmother procurable in "the states" the dear little Englishwoman with her high spirit, her soft voice and the unaccountable, unconfinable, vagarious gypsy H that has accompanied her from the "hold 'ome!"

Runaway in Collision.

A horse, belonging to Jonn E. Keely, attached to a carriage, ran away from near the station this morning. At the corner of Watchung avenue and East Fifth street, it collided with Councilman G. P. Mellick's runabout, in which were the driver, John Ha'ner, and Mrs. Mellick's sister, Miss Hartley, of New York. Neither of the occupants were injured but the carriage was partially wrecked. The runaway horse was captured before any other damage resulted.

TWO GOSPEL SERVICES WERE HELD YESTERDAY

ducted by W. C. Weeden, who has been taking the place of F. H. Jacobs for a short time. He also sang effectively "The Model Church" as a solo. Before Rev. Mr. Henderson took charge, Rev J. W Richardson and Rev Dr. W. R Richards offered brief prayers asking God's blessing on the efforts being made to win souls.

Mr. Henderson, as on the preceding nights, preached a powerful gospel sermon, and he presented the truths in a most convincing manner. His text was taken from the Gospel of Luke. 9 h chapter and 56th verse: "For the Son of Man is not come to destroy men's lives, but to save them."

"Henry Drummond never uttered truer words than 'destruction is the end of men's souls,'" said Mr. Henderson. "Many are in a drift toward destruction, and unless the tide is turned, destruction will be the swift and sure end. Jesus Christ is the great 'Life-Saver.' If you study the vocabulary of Jesus you will know about Him. Whatever else you may have, if you haven't Christ you haven't life. Christ is in the life-saving business. He came to save you for all time.

"The United States Government has adopted two methods for life saving. The first is the life boat that is to be found along our coasts. But, to use these boats there must be a wreck and there must be a great need for them. Christ saves the wrecks of humanity, and He never despises anyone, no matter how bad the wreck. Shame on the christianity that despises the down-trodden. The second method employed by the Government for saving life is the light house. This is used as a warning that ships may steer clear of the rocks and thus life may be protected Jesus Christ came to save from the very beginning and there is no need of going on the rocks. It is far greater to save men before they go on the rocks and shoals, than afterward.

"There are three possibilities that I wish to present to you this evening The first is that a man may lose his life and lose his soul. A man has got to do simply nothing to lose his life or his soul. John Roach, the great shipbuilder, was never able to build a ship that would carry him across the Jordan. And while he lost his life he was saved at the end and accepted Christ. General Grant's soul was saved just before he passed away, and his great sorrow was that he could not live just one year more to demonstrate the consistency of church members.

"A man's life may be saved in the last second of time, though his life may be lost, but is this fair to throw the dregs of a wasted life in the face of Christ and then ask Him to have mercy and forgiveness? 'What hast thou done for me?' is the question Christ asks, and that is the solemn question you must answer. The third possibility is that a man may save his life and save his soul. There is a person on this platform that told me he was converted at the age of ten years. Now, while this beautiful life is drawing to a close, it is an impressive sight to witness a person at such an advanced age, ready to offer to Christ a life of devotion and service.

"If you put off salvation one more day that means that twenty-four hours have gone for redemption and you cannot reclaim those hours. What are you going to do with these wasted hours? If you leave out Christ there is no hope. Will you take Christ and take Him now?"

At the conclusion of Mr. Henderson's discourse, a short time was devoted to a word with the unconverted, and several in the audience manifested a desire to become Christians. They were given cards to sign and these were collected. An impressive part of the service was when a large number arose thus signifying that they have relatives or friends for whom they wished prayers offered. Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass then offered a fervent prayer. The service closed with the benediction by Rev. A. E. Main.

In was announced that this evening's service will be especially for school children who, on account of studies, have not been able to attend the other services. Tomorrow morning Rev. Mr. Henderson and F. H. Jacobs will conduct the regular service at the Seventh-Day Baptist church.

Why You "See Stars."

If you are one of those who frequent the police courts, you have no doubt often heard the victims of assaults declare that their assailants hit them so hard that it made them "see stars." And, indeed, the sensation which you experience from a violent blow on the head resembles very much the sight of stars. The fact is, there is a phosphorescent power in the eye, which shows itself when the head is struck violently, and is often perceived in the act of sneezing. The jar to the system caused by the blow produces a pressure of the blood vessels upon the retina, causing either total darkness or a faint light which floats before the eye and in which the imagination discovers thousands of fantastic figures, the majority of which resemble stars.—Chicago Tribune.

THE TRADES COUNCIL PRESENTS ITS SIDE.

Prepared a Statement For The Public Concerning The Existing Labor Troubles.

WHY THE FIGHT STARTED.

EXPLAIN ADVANTAGES OF THE BUILDING TRADES COUNCIL.

Claim That No Objection Was Raised to Its Formation Although They Say Bosses Well Understood Its Plans—What Caused Troubles.

At the meeting of the Plainfield Building Trades Council Thursday evening a committee was appointed to prepare a statement presenting to the public their side of the controversy. The committee prepared the following:

At Thursday night's meeting of the Building Trades Council it was decided that in view of the fact that several accounts of the labor trouble existing in Plainfield at present had appeared in the papers during the past week, presumably coming from the bosses, that it was only fair to the public and to ourselves that a fair statement of the troubles be given by us. Nearly all of the bosses in town when approached individually claim they believe in legitimate labor organization. They are glad that the different local unions are in existence and will treat with any one body separately, but they object to affiliating with the Trades Council. They claim that sympathy strikes demoralize trade, that they don't know when their men will return to the shop, being compelled to quit a job when a non-union man of another craft is working there.

Now, the Trades Council, while conceding that this argument, the only one we have heard, is a good one, believe it could easily be overcome if the bosses were sincere in their desire to avoid friction.

The Trades Council made a modest demand of the bosses in Plainfield. They requested that they take no contracts without first ascertaining if all other contractors on the job employed union men. When this notice was sent out all the leading bosses in the city were recognized as employers of union men. A few of the smaller bosses had not yet agreed to the demands for wages and hours. It was and is our firm belief that it was to the interests of the bosses, who were paying union wages and working union hours, to try and force these men who were employing cheap labor and working longer hours, to agree to our demands, to make them compete equally with the bosses who employed the members of our organization.

It is impossible for us to work with non-union men. Every boss in the city knows this. Our whole strength is in this rule and it is the one that has forced many men into our organization. When we started our crusade against non-union bosses, all the union bosses were asked to do to avoid trouble for themselves was to avoid taking contracts on buildings where these non-union men had already secured contracts.

Every boss in the city knew just what we were doing. Not a single one of them raised an objection at the time, and to our knowledge the majority of them was doing all that was asked of them. They gave us no reason to believe that they were doing so unwillingly. This occurred some months ago and has caused very little trouble, the bosses almost to a man were classed on the fair list, that is, they employed union men. Some of the smaller bosses, who worked with tools themselves, were blowing hot and cold with the same breath. That is, they were employing union men on a fair job and on an unfair job were doing the work themselves, arguing that as bosses they were outside the jurisdiction of the union and they could not be controlled by us.

To this we objected as it encouraged a few small contractors to hold out against the Trades Council. We therefore took steps to bring the working bosses under the same conditions as the journeymen. To gain this end the Trades Council passed a resolution to the effect that any working boss who worked on a foul job, the contract for which was signed after having received notice from the Trades Council, would be considered the same as a non union man, that is they would be placed on the foul list.

This aroused the ire of the Master Plumbers' Association, an organization composed of every boss plumber in Plainfield. They decided that the CLOSING SESSION OF THE BOROUGH COUNCIL.

Routine Matters Came Up at Business Session of Borough Council Last Night.

ANNUAL REPORT RECEIVED.

WILL SEND COPY TO EACH REAL ESTATE OWNER IN BOROUGH.

Ordinance, Changing Dividing Line Between Election District, Passed On Final Reading—Cost $40 to Cut Down the Trees.

The last regular meeting of Mayor Smalley and the present Borough Council was held last evening, with every member in attendance, including Mr. Swackhamer.

The report of Collector George Brown was read as follows:

Taxes and interest, $320 99; Board of Health, $4 16; special school, $165 18; clerk, fines, $5; dog tax, $1 20; Plainfield Street Railway, $85 71; balance on hand last year, $644 32, total receipts, $1,226.56; disbursements, $27 61; cash on hand March 1, $1,198.95; borough fund, $588 70; Watchung avenue fund, $610 25.

The report of Chairman Clark, from the street committee, showed that it cost $40 to cut down the trees on Somerset street, and $17 90 to clean the snow off the sidewalk during February; also $1 75 for filing a saw used in cutting trees, making a total expenditure for February of $59 65.

Chairman Lee, from the marshal committee, reported that there were three arrests during February. In connection with the reading of the monthly claims, the bill for printing the annual borough report was read. It cost the borough $40 for 1,000 copies. Considerable fault was found with the report on account of the blundering manner of arranging the list of delinquent taxpayers. The list was not arranged in alphabetical order and was very confusing. However, it was accepted, and the clerk was ordered to send a copy to every real estate owner in the borough.

Mr. Rogers, chairman of the fire, water and lamps committee, offered a resolution which provided that the borough furnish the wire to connect fire tappers in the residences of Charles Stahl and Dr. Albert Pittis with the fire alarm system at fire headquarters. Mr. Rogers explained in the case of Dr. Pittis, that he goes to every fire in the capacity of a physician, and often renders valuable assitance.

The ordinance providing for the readjustment of the election districts in the borough, as reported at the last meeting, was called from the table and adopted on the second and third readings. The final business was the adoption of a resolution offered by Mr. Rogers providing for the borrowing of $2,500 for six months.

COL. WILSON'S LETTER.

Would Not Allow His Name to be Used as Democratic Candidate for Mayor.

Last evening ex-Mayor John F. Wilson sent the following self-explanatory letter to Elston M. French, a member of the Democratic borough executive committee:

"The North Plainfield Democratic Executive Committee:

"Gentlemen—Have just learned that my name will come before the primary this evening as a candidate for mayor. I am forced to decline that honor. Respectfully,

"John F. Wilson."

ASK FOR INJUNCTION.

Plainfield Man One of the Defendants in New York Court.

The New York firm of Levering & Garrigues, of which Wm. A. Garrigue, of Plainfield, is a partner, are among the defendants in a suit tried this week in New York. The action is for the cancellation of an agreement made whereby the defendants were to be secured for material and labor furnished in the construction of a building on Bleeker street, New York. The plaintiff, Louis M. Jones, desires to foreclose certain mortgages which it is alleged by the defendants were made for the purpose of defeating their right to a prior lien on the building.

Levering & Garrigue have asked for the appointment of a receiver of rents and for an injunction to restrain the foreclosure proceeding.

ELSTON M. FRENCH WAS RENOMINATED FOR ASSESSORSHIP.

Democratic Choice for Councilmen Were John H. Van Winkle, Jr., and David A. Mills—Committee Appointed to Fill Vacancies.

The Democrats of North Plainfield held their primary last evening in the Eggerding building on Somerset street. A complete ticket, excepting one nomination for justice of the peace, was named. The hall was well filled with a good representation of the party's workers.

Promptly at 8 o'clock the meeting was called to order by Andrew E. Kenney, a member of the borough executive committee of the party. Mr. Kenney was unanimously chosen permanent chairman and in a few well delivered terms he thanked the convention for the honor conferred upon him and stated in detail the purpose of the meeting. Lewis R Bird was selected as secretary and on motion the primary immediately proceeded with the nominations.

William Kieley placed the name of Howard Prescott Reynolds before the meeting as a candidate for the mayoralty nomination.

The chair appointed Walter Lindbarger and David Kenney as tellers, and Mr. Reynolds had no opponents and received an unanimous nomination. John H. VanWinkle, Jr., and David A. Mills were the choice of the meeting for councilmen. W. J. Conroy was also nominated but his name was withdrawn at his request.

For assessor, Elston M French was nominated without opposition. In seconding the nomination Samuel S. Swacknamer said that Mr. French was particularly efficient in the position and his accounts had always been accurate. As chairman of the committee on accounts, Mr. Swackhamer said that he had special knowledge of the ability and integrity of the present assessor.

Patrick J. Reagan nominated Wm. J. Conroy for collector and Jacob Voehl, Sr., was then chosen as the candidate for freeholder. John Emmons refused to permit his name to be used in connection with the freeholdership. But one nomination was made for justice of the peace. The man selected is David D. Smalley. W. N. Pangborn was also mentioned but declined.

A motion was carried to appoint a committee to fill vacancies that may occur and to name an additional candidate for justice. The chair selected W. L. Saunders, Elston M. French and Andrew Love, Sr., as a committee for this purpose.

It was voted to make the appropriation for the Board of Health $500. Before adjournment Samuel S. Swackhamer addressed the meeting on the subject of nominations. He said that the nominee for mayor had made a grand success as a business man and had retired on the fruits of his well directed ability. Further, that Mr. Reynolds had lived an honest, industrious and conscientious life and was well known for his sterling worth. The speaker felt sure that if elected Mr. Reynolds sitting as a magistrate would administer equal justice to the lowest individual, to the most honored citizen, and that as mayor he would devote his time and ability to the best interests of the borough and for whatever represented the people and the people's interests. The ticket, said he, is clean and representative. Mr. Swackhamer besought the party to stand by the candidates and by so doing the chances of election would be greatly enhanced.

The meeting then adjourned.

Ten Candidates Initiated.

At the regular meeting of Friendship Lodge, No. 4, D. of R., held Thursday evening, the members enjoyed a visit from Hope Lodge, of Newark, and Esther Lodge, of Elizabeth, the latter lodge bringing their handsome paraphernalia and initiated ten candidates.

A SUSPICIOUS CHARACTER.

WM. BOYD ARRESTED IN THE BOROUGH LAST NIGHT.

Geo. Ball Alleges Boyd Approached Him With Inducements to Commit Burglary.

A suspicious character who gives his name as William Boyd was placed under arrest at 11:30 o'clock last night on Somerset street by Marshall Campbell on information received from George Ball, a coachman employed in the borough. Mr. Ball alleges Boyd had approached him with an inducement to help him commit a burglary.

When placed in the lock-up Boyd refused to divulge much concerning himself except that he was formerly employed in Kenyon's bicycle shop. Upon being searched, a set of tools including a screw driver, several wrenches and a razor were found on his person This morning the police department forwarded to police headquarters at New York and elsewhere a full description of the individual and accompanied it with a request for any information they might have concerning his record. Nothing will be done until the various police headquarters are heard from and the man will then be given a hearing The police are very reticent about the arrest and refuse to give any information.

DEATH OF MRS. J. B. DUMONT.

SHE PASSED AWAY THIS MORNING AFTER SHORT ILLNESS.

Faithful and Conscientious Member of Grace P. E. Church—Also Secretary of Woman's Guild.

The death of Mrs. John B. Dumont occurred about 12:45 o'clock this morning at her home on East Seventh street, corner of Watchung avenue, after a comparatively short, but very severe illness. Some days ago she went to Louisville, Ky., to visit her daughter, Mrs. Belknap. While there she was taken very ill. She thought best to return home and her daughter accompanied her, remaining here a few days. Mrs. Belknap then returned to her home.

Although, Mrs. Dumont's death is a great shock to the community, for sometime past it has been known among those most intimate with her, that she was a sufferer from liver trouble which had previously yielded to treatment. A sudden development Wednesday of a malignant form quickly exhausted her vitality and was the cause of her death.

Mrs. Dumont was born at New London, Conn., Dec. 17, 1843, and was the daughter of Samuel A. Cook and Susan S. Cook, both of whom were of old New England stock, and through their ancestry she was a Colonial Dame and a Daughter of the American Revolution. She has been a resident of Plainfield since February, 1869. Her father died July 23, 1870, and her mother died in this city March 17, 1879. Mrs. Dumont was a faithful and conscientious member of Grace P. E. church and for nearly twenty years she was secretary for the Woman's Guild. She was very active in church work, but never undertook more than she could do well. She was a faithful mother and wife and thoroughly devoted to her home.

She had a bright and genial disposition and was loved and admired by a host of friends and acquaintances.

Mrs. Dumont leaves a husband, J. B. Dumont, president of the Common Council; a daughter, Mrs. Belknap, of Louisville, Ky., who is expected to arrive in the city today; two sons, John B. Dumont, Jr., and Morris Dumont. She also leaves a sister, Mrs. C. W. Starr, who lives in New York.

LEAGUE RALLY ENDS ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

Gathering of Epworth Leaguers at Grace M. E. Church Last Evening.

ATTENDANCE WAS LARGE.

REV. R. M. AYLESWORTH, OF JERSEY CITY, MADE ADDRESS.

Spoke on "The Leaguer of the Times" and Impressed on His Hearers the Necessity of Having a Purpose in Life—Social Hour Followed.

The ninth anniversary services of Grace M. E. church, which have been held during the past week, came to a close last evening with an Epworth League rally. Long before the hour of commencement the pretty little edifice was well filled with not only members of the local leagues but with delegations from churches at Scotch Plains, Westfield and Dunellen. Rev. S. K. Doolittle, of Dunellen, and Rev. Mr. Bright, of Scotch Plains, were also among the visitors.

A brief introductory song service opened the programme after which Rev. G. W. Gardner, pastor of the church, introduced the speaker of the evening, Rev. R. M. Aylesworth, pastor of the Simpson M. E. church, of Jersey City. Mr. Aylesworth was a speaker capable of holding the undivided interest of his hearers throughout. In keeping with the occasion he gave an excellent address on "The Leaguer of the Times."

"Much has been said and written," said Mr. Aylesworth, "regarding the achievements of the past century, but while not disputing the fact that wonderful advancements have been made, these should be regarded by every Epworth Leaguer simply as a foundation on which higher attainments are to be made. The leaguer of the times should have a purpose, and once secured and kept in view, he is bound to succeed. The purposeless man simply floats higher and thither with the flotsam and jetsam of life and ends in nothingness. Again when once a purpose is secured it should be extended to others that all may derive the benefit. In this way mutual progress is assured, not only to the individual members of the league, but to the league itself and eventually the parent church.

"The leaguer of the times," continued the speaker, "should be a consecrated man that he thus may be enabled to impart in a more able manner the true word as it should be taught. And above all he should live not only the alloted three score and ten, but with the Saviour as his guide, prepare himself for an endless life in the realms beyond which is promised to all who grasp the opportunity."

Following the address a short programme was rendered consisting of violin duets by Messers. Winckler and Korf, accompanied by Herbert Harold, a vocal selection by Mrs. Gardner and a flute solo by Walter Sampson, after which a social hour was passed.

The reception committee of the league, which had the rally in charge, consisted of Miss Grace Clark, Miss Mamie Steiner, Miss Ada Woolston, Miss Elizabeth Hoagland, the Misses Tingley, Mrs. Most and Mrs. G. W. Gardner; and C. E. A Heywood, William Woodland and A. H. Wilson.

NICE THINGS SAID OF BOROUGH OFFICERS

General Exchange of Compliments at End of Closing Meeting of Borough Council.

MAYOR SMALLEY TALKED.

MR. ROGER'S IDEAS ABOUT THE SUBJECT ON TAX COLLECTING.

Thought Collector Should Go Forth and Collect — Pleasant Words For Past Relations of Members of the Council.

After the regular business was transacted at the March meeting of the Borough Council last evening, there was a general exchange of compliments. Mayor Smalley felt constrained to say a few words as it was the closing of his first term as the chief executive of the borough.

His Honor referred to the fact that it was the last meeting and that he had accepted the nomination for a second term. He said that he was willing to stand on his record for the past two. As a body of officials representing the people of this borough, Mayor Smalley said that the business during the past two years have been transacted above board. All improvements, that had been made, were profitable and a benefit to the public.

The Mayor regretted that two councilmen were going out and spoke of the complete harmony that now existed between all the members. It was a source of satisfaction to the Mayor that the members had worked so well together and had given to the borough such good service which had been free from all ulterior influences. He was willing to leave the result of the coming election in the hands of the people as to who should occupy his chair during the coming term.

Mr Rogers followed Mayor Smalley and made a few remarks. He agreed with His Honor in what he had said. He said that after serving the borough four years he could concur with Mr Smalley in his remarks about the harmony of the Council. Each member had performed his duties with unselfish devotion, with not the slightest suspicion of influence.

While a member of the Council, Mr. Rogers said, he had been greatly interested in tax matters, and had reached one conclusion. With all respect to Collector Brown, he thought the method of collecting taxes was a lax one. He believed that he should be a collector in the true sense of the word. Not sit in his office throughout the year and wait for people to come in and pay their taxes, but go out and collect them. He thought it well enough to receive taxes in the office for the first three or four months, but after that the collector should go out and collect just the same as a business man would do.

Mr. Rogers stated that if the same amount of energy was devoted in the collection of taxes as a man devotes in collecting his bills it would materially decrease the taxes to be collected.

Mayor Smalley took occasion to reply to Mr. Rogers, and said that he hoped the latter's words would not be construed to injure Mr. Brown and his work. The collector had followed custom and he, knowing as much as he does about the collector's work, could say that Mr. Brown had made every effort to get the taxes in. He was sure no one could attack the collector from any direction and his record was far above that of any collector the borough has had.

Mr. Rogers said by way of explanation that it was not at Mr. Brown he was directing his remarks, but at the system in vogue. He criticised the system and condition. He paid a high compliment to Mr. Brown, but thought the borough should take another step toward collecting taxes.

Borough Counsel Reed took occasion to say that human nature is the same always and that one cannot keep a man's nose at the grindstone at all times. He considered the plan proposed in the light of a hardship.

Mr. Swackhamer suggested as he is chairman of the committee on taxation, it would be well to allow the chairman a percentage on collections and that would solve the problem. In conclusion Mayor Smalley paid another tribute to the borough officials who had performed their duties so well.

Trying to Increase Membership.

ANOTHER INTERESTING EVANGELISTIC MEETING

Large Attendance at the First Baptist Church Last Evening.

BRIGHT SONG SERVICE.

THREE SERVICES TO BE HELD TOMORROW EVENING.

William Phillips Hall to Begin His Work in the First Baptist Church—Leaders of Other Meetings.

In spite of the threatening weather last night, and the fact that services was being held in several other churches, another very large congregation filled the First Baptist church at the hour for the union evangelistic meeting, the main floor and gallery both being entirely filled. A large number of the clergymen of the city were present, several of whom, Rev. Dr. W. O Snodgrass, Rev. W. F. Jones, Rev. Charles Lyman Goodrich, Rev. J. O. McKelvey, Rev. John McMurray and Rev. Dr D. J. Yerkes, occupied seats upon the platform, in company with the speaker, Rev. Theodore S. Henderson.

A bright service of song, led by F. H. Jacobs, the musical director, the chorus choir, and D. E Davis as organist, opened the meeting Prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Jones, then some important announcements were made by Dr. Snodgrass. He stated that Mr. Henderson and Mr. Jacobs would be in charge of the service at the Seventh-Day Baptist church this morning, and that Mr. Jacobs would speak and sing at the Y. M. C. A. men's meeting Sunday afternoon. Sunday evening there will be three services. In the First Baptist church William Phillips Hall will begin his work. In the First Methodist church a leader to be provided by Mr. Hall will conduct the service, and W. S. Weeden will sing. In Hope chapel the third service will be addressed by Rev. Charles E Herring, of the First Presbyterian church. During next week, evening services will be conducted in the First Baptist church by Mr. Hall, and afternoon services will be held in Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at 3:30. Three afternoons during the week meetings for children will be held in the Crescent Avenue chapel, conducted by Mr. Jacobs.

Before Mr. Henderson began his address, Mr. Jacobs sang "There is a Calm," a beautiful song having for its theme the message; "The Choice of Life or Death is Given; Which Will You Choose." Mr. Henderson then, after a word of prayer, announced his text for the evening: I Kings, 18: 21, "How Long Halt Ye Between Two Opinions?"

"Decision For Christ; What Is It?" was the subject of the address. Mr. Henderson began by impressing upon his hearers the fact that decision for Christ is a voluntary act, an act of one's own will; that even God Himself could not compel a man to make that decision unless he was willing himself; that there might be no feeling in the matter at all. He added that God was willing and anxious to see every man make the decision; that if it depended on His willingness everyone would be a Christian now.

Decision for Christ is a personal matter, the speaker went on to say. No man can make the decision for another; no father or mother for a child; no Sunday school teacher for a pupil; it must be a matter between the soul and God.

Another point made by the speaker was that this decision was the most important one that can be made. Questions of reading, education, many things are important, but none so important as this. And it is important that it be not postponed, for who is sure of tomorrow?

Mr. Henderson said also that the decision for Christ should be open. He spoke very strongly of the contemptibleness of being ashamed to own the Lord, for fear of ridicule.

That decision for Christ should be immediate, was the last point of the address. Mr. Henderson told a very sad story of a friend of his who, when almost persuaded, was suddenly killed. Then, in closing, he pleaded with his hearers, with all his heart, to make the great decision without waiting longer.

Prayer was offered by Mr. Jacobs, then the cards to be signed by those desiring to become Christians were distributed, Mr. Jacobs singing "Come, Sinner, Come." The choir sang "I Surrender All," then the benediction was pronounced by Mr. Goodrich.

THE TRADES COUNCIL PRESENTS ITS SIDE.

Trades Council was an objectionable institution and must be put out of business. To accomplish this it was necessary to have have the support of all the bosses in the other building trades and a meeting was called to which every boss was invited. At that meeting, they claim that they received a guarantee of support from the other bosses. Relying on this support, they declared a lockout on every shop in town except one, A. M. Griffin's, Thursday morning.

The reason given for this aggressive action is that the journeymen plumbers refused to leave the Trades' Council. At least, this is the real reason as it is impossible for the journeymen plumbers to raise the strike on Leland & Co.'s work without leaving the Council.

There the matter stands at present. The plumbers, to the number of sixteen, are locked out without any effort having been made to arbitrate the difficulty; locked out by an organization of eighteen men, only five of whom employ labor, and not one of the five are in any way affected by the rule which they took exception to.

This is part of the report submitted by the journeymen plumbers to the Trades Council meeting Thursday evening. The Trades Council, at that meeting, endorsed the action of the plumbers. No other trade, as a whole, is yet affected, except for a few men who left a job on account of a non union plumber working there.

John Moran,
President of the Plainfield Building Trades Council,
Frank T. McInerney,
Secretary of the Plainfield Building Trades Council.

ATTRACTIONS STILL TO COME.

"THE DAIRY FARM" WILL BE THE PRINCIPAL PLAY OF NEXT WEEK.

What Is Promised at the Stillman Music Hall in the Near Future —One Play This Week.

Beyond the performance of the Utopian Extravaganza Company at Music Hall last night there have been no dramatic entertainments at the local playhouse the past week. The Broadway Theatre Stock Company, which was to have begun an engagement of a week of repertoire plays last Monday night, failed to put in an appearance. The supposition is, they were "lost in the shuffle"—in other words, compelled through circumstances to abandon their tour.

This placed Manager Maze Edwards in embarrasing condition, but by dint of exertion, he secured the appearance of "The Utopians," so the week was not wholly lost.

The Utopians seemingly pleased a good sized gathering last night. The specialties in the olio and the two extravaganzas were heartily applauded and well rendered.

For the coming week, and at this writing, only one performance is positively assured, "The Dairy Farm" on Wednesday night. The management of "Sporting Life," the English melodrama booked for Friday night, notified Mr. Edwards Thursday night, that they would be unable to fill the date, but it is expected that another attraction will be secured to fill the time, of which due notice will be given.

The company presenting Eleanor Merron's charming play, "The Dairy Farm," which will be seen next Wednesday night includes some of the best artists known to the American stage. Each one of the actors has been selected by that veteran manager, James H. Wallick, who is directing the tour, with a view to their especial fitness for the characters which they interpret. The cast is a very long one and includes among others a village miser, a village pastor, a bluff old squire, a country peddler and his pretty granddaughter, a plowboy, a fugutive slave and his mother, together with several others who tell the story of the days before the war and during the years of 1854 and 1856. Eleanor Merron's wide experience as an actress has enabled her to write a most charming and picturesque play. The plot is laid in the old village of Hurley, Ulster county, N. Y., and the quaint costumes of that period are worn, including hoopskirts, chignons and the pagoda sleeves, which will bring back to many the days of their youth. The season just closed has lasted within one week of an entire year and would still be running had it not been for the fact that the regular season of the theatre at which it was being done in Chicago was about to open and no further time being available at the other houses in that city. Fourteen weeks were played in New York City and thirteen in Chicago during the year.

"On Swanee River," a very interesting southern play, which was here last season and will be pleasantly remembered, will again be seen on Monday, March 11, and on Wedeeday, March 13, Herrmann, the magician, will hold forth.

Strikes a Rich Find.

"I was troubled for several years with chronic indigestion and nervous debility," writes F. J. Green, of Lancaster, N. H. "No remedy helped me until I began using Electric Bitters, which did me more good than all the medicines I ever used. They have also kept my wife in excellent health for years. She says Electric Bitters are just splendid for female troubles; that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak, run down women. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by L. W. Randolph.

—John Carter has taken up his residence on Liberty steet, removing there from North avenue.

—Counterfeits of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve are liable to cause blood poisoning. Leave them alone. The original has the name DeWitt's upon the box and wrapper. It is a harmless and healing salve for skin diseases. Unequalled for piles. L. W. Randolph.

No Drama Given.

Owing to the illness of one of the characters, the temperance drama, "The Moderate Drinker," which was to have been given in Reform hall Thursday evening, was indefinitely postponed. As a substitute there were excellent addresses by C. M. Raybert, John Van Middlesworth, W. C. Smith and Michael Arm-trong, violin selections by Clarence Mills, recitations by John Manley and imitations of well known actors by Harry Hammill. At the close of the meeting two young men signed the pledge.

Birthday Surprise Party.

A birthday surprise party was given Mrs. Charles Debele, of Pine Grove Farm, Thursday afternoon. The party included friends from Dunellen and Plainfield. A hearty supper was served before the guests returned to town.

Built on Honor.

I take great pleasure in anouncing to my friends and the general public that I have had the good fortune to secure the sole agency for the world-renowned McPhail Pianos, of Boston, Mass. Built on honor and sold on merit for the past 63 years. A Piano excelled by none and equaled by few. I shall in the future carry a full line of these superb instruments, together with the celebrated Kimball, which I have so successfully handled in the past. Thanking you all for past patronage and wishing a continuance of the same, I beg to remain,

Very truly yours,

DEMANDS OF RUSSIA.

Absolute Control In Manchuria the End Sought.

FOREIGN POWERS SEND PROTEST.

Want Chinese Minister at St. Petersburg Shorn of Power to Negotiate Treaty—Missionaries Returning to Shangtung.

PEKING, March 2.—Prince Ching and Li Hung Chang met yesterday and had a long consultation over the new demands of Russia regarding Manchuria, which virtually mean absolute Russian control, while at the same time China would be responsible should anything go wrong there.

Both the Chinese plenipotentiaries admit that they fear to refuse these demands, although recognizing that compliance means the loss of a province to China. They also think that compliance might mean trouble with other powers, for Russia announces that only Russians and Chinese will be allowed to trade there except at the greatest disadvantage.

Prince Ching will request the advice of other ministers.

The representatives of the foreign powers have sent a protest to the Chinese peace commissioners against the action of Yang Yu, the Chinese minister at St. Petersburg, in carrying on negotiations with Russia in regard to Manchuria at the Russian capital.

They have requested the Chinese envoys to ask Emperor Kwangsu to withdraw Yang Yu's power to negotiate this treaty and to commit the affair to the concert of the ministers.

The missionaries are returning to the interior of the province of Shangtung. Sir Ernest Satow, the British minister, gave his consent to this movement.

Private Calvin of the Ninth United States infantry has been acquitted of the charge of manslaughter brought against him for killing a French soldier who was endeavoring to pass a post where Calvin was sentinel.

CHINA SHOULD NOT SIGN.

Agreement With Russia In Regard to Manchuria Unwise.

BERLIN, March 2.—Statements representing that Germany, Japan and Great Britain have jointly remonstrated against Russian annexation of Manchuria are officially denied. The facts of the case are that the powers constituting the tripple alliance and Great Britain, Japan and the United States have separately made to the Chinese plenipotentiaries in Peking friendly representations as to how unwise it would be for China at the present stage of the peace negotiations to grant any power separate concessions and thus to render more difficult an agrement with the others.

United States Embassador White confirms the foregoing declaration of German officials, adding that the United States is "in perfect accord with Germany in this matter."

Crop Conditions.

WASHINGTON, March 2. — The weather bureau has issued the following summary of general crop conditions: While the month has been cold in the principal agricultural districts, the precipitation was light, and such farm work as is usually performed in winter has been conducted very satisfactorily. In the southern states extensive preparations for spring planting have been made. In southern Texas and in Florida some corn has been planted, and oat seeding has begun in portions of the central gulf states. Over the southern portion of the winter wheat region owing to general lack of snow protection and alternate freezing and thawing the reports respecting winter wheat are for the most part unfavorable, but over the northern portion there has generally been ample snow covering, and the reports indicate that the crop is in a very promising condition.

Pan-American Stamps.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The first sheets of the Pan-American exposition stamps, upon which the bureau of engraving and printing has been at work for four months, have been finished. The stamps are in two colors, and a view of the latest production of the bureau will have the effect of making the viewer a "stamp fiend" if he harbors the least bit of philatelic sentiment in his make up. The department will be ready to supply requisitions several weeks prior to the opening of the exposition. It is believed the demand will be very great from all parts of the country, and stamp collectors throughout the world undoubtedly will use several millions of the stamps.

The Reichsrath Still Disturbed.

VIENNA, March 2.—During yesterday's session of the reichsrath the president called Herr Wolf, the Nationalist leader, to order for attacking the president's censorship on the interpellations on matters connected with the confessional. The president then threatened to suspend the sitting, and a prolonged uproar followed.

More Chinamen Arrested.

MALONE, N. Y., March 2.—Twenty-three Chinamen were captured on the Canadian line north of Malone yesterday and are in jail here. The same number is coming today. They probably will be taken to Ogdensburg. Commissioner Woodward of Plattsburg refuses to hear cases until his back pay and the $5 a head fee are forthcoming.

Public Debt Decreased.

WASHINGTON, March 2. — The monthly statement of the public debt shows that at the close of business Feb. 28 the debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $1,087,019,504, a decrease for the month of $7,576,374.

Scarcity of Water.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., March 1.—The farmers of Cochecton, Sullivan county, are in despair owing to the scarcity of water for stock. They are melting snow, but that is fast disappearing.

Four Killed by Cartridge Explosion.

FONTAINEBLEAU, March 2.—A portion of the Caguy la Genevraye Dynamite Cartridge manufactory was blown up last evening, four women being killed.

GRAND FORKS, N. D., March 2.—Fire destroyed the business portion of Park River, causing a loss of over $100,000; partially insured.

Famous Russian Battle Scene Painter In the Philippines Looking For Material—Excitement Over Gold Discoveries.

MANILA, March 2.—Twenty-one rebel officers and 120 bolomen have surrendered to Lieutenant Desque of the Forty-seventh United States volunteer infantry at the town of Irocin, in Albay province, southern Luzon.

The Federalists are securing many new members for their party in Laguna province, east of Manila.

The promoters of the Conservative party have published a long address to Judge Taft, president of the American Philippine commission, written in flowery and fulsome language, the gist of which seems to be expressed in the following paragraph:

"We confess to being distinct from some of those men who are co-operating with the American government for peace in that particular which refers to the maintenance, against restrictions and exactions, of our programme which places the maintenance of peace subject to a compliance with the conditions, which would lead to a point whence there is no outlet. We believe there is no better means of perpetuating it than an absolute and unconditional adhesion as younger brothers, and, as conditions may admit, this country can be raised to the level of its aspirations, blessing the hand which strengthened it and kissing the hand, if it so deserves, that cut asunder the last cord of its dependency and thus converting it into its own equal."

Vassili Verestchagin, the Russian painter of battle scenes, has reached the Philippine Islands, searching for material for new war pictures. He has called upon General MacArthur. Verestchagin is favorably impressed with the American soldiers and has made many sketches of the battlefields near Manila.

Excitement over gold mining in the province of Lepanto, in northern Luzon, is increasing. A number of pockets have been discovered, but no well defined ledges have been found.

The Commission at Work.

BALANGA, Luzon, March 2.—When the launch bearing the members of the United States Philippine commission appeared off the shore of the mountainous peninsular of the province of Bataan, it was met by more than 100 flag decorated bancos, each propelled by 14 or 18 oarsmen stripped to their waists. On the boats were painted the names of the towns they hailed from, and in them were the head men of the villages. Each flotilla passed the commission's launch in review, the oarsmen shouting, "Vivas!" The whole procession then scurried toward the shore, headed by a sail banco towing a canopied barge in which were the members of the commission and their party. The barge grounded amid a crush of small boats, and the younger natives sprang into the water and dragged it to a point where were wagons hub deep. These carried the visitors to dry land to Puerto Rivas and thence to Balanga, passing through lines of natives and streets of flag decorated houses to the military headquarters. The public session of the commission passed off as previous public sessions had elsewhere.

Anticlerical Demonstrations.

LISBON, March 2.—Anticlerical feeling is running high in Lisbon. The Liberal journals publish violent articles regarding the recent incident. The president of the council general said in the course of an interview that the government was determined that religious establishments which had no legal existence should respect the law. One paper calls upon the government to "expel the Jesuits and other religious orders which constitute the scourge of Portuguese society."

All Quiet at Tutuila.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Advices received at the navy department from Commander B. F. Tilley, commandant of the naval station at Tutuila, under date of Auckland, Feb. 6, state that the cruiser Abarenda has been extensively repaired in the drydock at Auckland and will return to her station at Tutuila in about ten days. He says the health of the ship's entire company is excellent and that everything is quiet and satisfactory in Tutuila.

Didn't Know It Was Loaded.

HIGHLAND FALLS, N. Y., March 2.—Arthur Engelskircher, aged 13 years, shot and fatally wounded his cousin, Joseph Engelskircher, the same age, in the jewelry store of his father in this village. Arthur was handling his father's shotgun and playfully pointing it at Joseph pulled the trigger. The gun went off, and the entire charge entered the boy's neck. He died half an hour later. Arthur says he didn't know the gun was loaded.

Coal Miners Strike For Pay.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., March 2.—Twelve hundred men and boys employed at the Shamokin Coal company's Natalie colliery went on strike because the company, they say, failed to pay them at a specified time Thursday afternoon. The colliery is completely tied up. The company has agreed to pay the employees today. The strikers will not resume work until the company fulfills its promises.

Off to Inauguration.

ALBANY, March 2.—Governor and Mrs. Odell and Major Harrison K. Bird, the governor's military secretary, left this city at midnight for Washington, where they go to attend the inauguration of President McKinley. They will return to Albany on Tuesday next.

Spinners Strike.

FRANKLIN FALLS, N. H., March 2.—The spinners on Walter Aiken's Sons' hosiery went out on strike to protest against a wage reduction. The mill, which employs about 150 hands, is closed pending settlement.

SAVED BY AN INCH.

Narrow Escape of a Pennsylvania Train at Newark, N. J.

NEWARK, N. J., March 2.—Nearly 200 passengers on the 10:23 train last night from Newark to New York on the Pennsylvania railroad narrowly escaped being thrown into the Passaic river from the Newark end of the Center street bridge.

Five ordinary passenger cars and a combination baggage and smoking car made up the train, which was in charge of Theodore Noble, the conductor. At a switch about 100 yards from the western end of the bridge the forward trucks of the third car behind the locomotive jumped from the rails and went bumping over the roadbed and ties, tearing up the former and splintering and displacing the latter.

Passengers in the car were jolted about from side to side, and those in the other cars were also shaken up. There were shouts and screams, and a panic ensued, which only subsided when the train was brought to a standstill. The passengers and the train crew then jumped out, and the most remarkable feature of the accident was revealed.

The locomotive and the first two cars were wholly upon the bridge trestle, and the third car was well over the river and turned almost at right angles with the other cars. Its derailed forward trucks were resting on a tie within an inch of its outer edge and so far up on the tie that the greater part of the circumference of the wheel was hanging over the river, which was running strongly 20 feet below.

DE WET DRIVEN OUT.

Forced Back Across Orange River With Heavy Loss.

LONDON, March 2.—The war office has received the following from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria, March 1:

"De Wet has been forced north over the Orange river and is now clear of Cape Colony. Two hundred prisoners have been taken.

"Eighty men of Kitchener's fighting scouts were attacked by superior numbers and, after a prolonged fight and sustaining 20 casualties, surrendered."

The war office has made a contract with an American merchant to supply 3,000 felling axes for the British troops in South Africa, English firms being unable to make sufficiently prompt delivery.

The Hopetown correspondent of The Times, in a dispatch dated Feb. 27, which describes Colonel Plumer's pursuit of General De Wet, which has been continually hampered by heavy rains, says:

"Since Colonel Plumer's attack at Wolvekuil, Feb. 15, the invaders have behaved like harried hares. The report that De Wet had crossed the river arose from some small parties crossing in a boat at Mark's drift, where Colonel Plumer prevented the crossing of the main commando and took 100 prisoners."

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Mrs. Nation returned to jail at Topeka.

Sir Cavendish Boyle was made governor of Newfoundland.

A combination was reported in Liverpool of steamships in Brazilian trade.

Sir Thomas Lipton said the Shamrock II will be totally unlike any yacht launched in America.

The wreckage on the Newfoundland coast was decided not to be from the steamer Lucerne.

Merchants and manufacturers were invited to display their products at the Nicaraguan national museum.

Assassin Was a Student.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 2.—Peter Karpovich, who shot at and wounded the minister of public instruction, M. Bogoliepoff, last Wednesday while the minister was holding a reception and who was subsequently arrested, was expelled from the Moscow university in 1896 for taking part in the students' riots there. He was also expelled from the Dorpat university for the same reasons in 1898 and studied at the Berlin university in 1900. It was under the pretext of handing to the minister a petition to be readmitted to Dorpat university that he entered the ministry on Wednesday.

Suspected Counterfeiter Held.

TROY, N. Y., March 2.—Adam Gearbolt, who is suspected of being one of a gang of counterfeiters operating in the mountains in the eastern part of this county, was held by United States Commissioner Landon to await the action of the United States grand jury, which meets in Syracuse in April. His bail was fixed at $1,500. At the examination yesterday a hotel keeper from West Stephentown testified that lead half dollars were freely offered in that district for circulation.

A Baby In Pawn.

ATLANTIC CITY, March 2.—An 18-month-old baby is being held by Mrs. Dora Jacobs of 2,312 Arctic avenue as collateral for a board bill. The parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hanes. The child was left in care of Mrs. Jacobs on Jan. 31, and the parents, who had spent the last two weeks in Philadelphia seeking employment, returned and made a demand for their infant. Mrs. Jacobs was willing to part with it provided $12 for doctors' bills and board was paid.

Railroad Matters.

KANSAS CITY, March 2.—The Star says the Frisco and Memphis railway systems will maintain separate identity for the present at least and will be managed by separate sets of officers. The general offices of the Memphis will be continued in Kansas City. Later it is expected that both parties will be absolutely merged into one company, with one set of officers and a new name. The Memphis has practically two lines to Springfield, one from this city.

Bloody Battle In Colombia.

COLON, Colombia, March 2.—News has just been received here that a bloody battle was fought Feb. 20 near Maria la Baja between a small force of government troops and 500 insurgents under Rozles, resulting in a victory for the government forces. The insurgents lost 30 killed and 10 wounded and the government troops 8 officers and 7 men killed and many men wounded.

Will Visit Denmark.

LONDON, March 2.—It is asserted that King Edward and Queen Alexandra will go to Denmark about the middle of March and remain there a fortnight, that they will then visit the Duchess of Anhalt-Bernbourg at Ballenstedt and that afterward they will visit the Dowager Empress Frederick and the court of Hesse-Darmstadt, returning to England toward the end of April.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

Jobbing Business Gaining—Grain Markets Firm.

NEW YORK, March 2.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Jobbing trade in groceries, hardware and iron specialties has further gained in volume in the east since our last report, and retail business has been good, except for a slow movement of some descriptions of dry goods, notably clothing, of which dealers fear they must carry over unusually large stocks. In the west and southwest, however, the season has been satisfactory. The greatest industrial combination ever arranged, that providing for the union of the leading steel interests, has not directly affected business as yet and may not do so otherwise than by removing some competition from the industry. Meanwhile prices of commodities decline slightly.

Nominal quotations of iron and steel are misleading. According to published lists, it appears that while pig iron has steadily advanced for many weeks little change has occurred in finished products. This discrepancy is due to the figures fixed by the various pools and associations, but at which it is impossible to secure prompt deliveries.

Further increase appears in sales of wool at the three chief eastern markets, 8,830,500 pounds changing hands for the week against 8,528,500 in the previous week. A year ago the total transactions were less than half the present week's operations.

Loss in domestic consumption of raw cotton seems assured, and foreign buying is far from satisfactory. The position of this staple is made firmer by news that sales of fertilizers surpass all records in many southern states.

Grain markets are firmly maintained. Domestic crop conditions are encouraging, and the best explanation of strength is found in Atlantic exports during February of wheat, flour included, amounting to 10,348,204 bushels against 7,671,552 last year and 14,730,262 bushels of corn against 12,724,645 in 1900.

Commercial failures in February were 1,024 in number and $11,287,211 in amount compared with 1,242 in January, with liabilities of $11,220,811. In manufacturing there were 212 defaults for $4,398,741, in trading 757 for $4,444,873 and in other commercial, including real estate, brokerage and transporting, there were 55 failures for $2,443,597. Banking insolvencies were seven in number and $432,132 in amount against eight in January for $1,070,857. Although total liabilities exceeded those of February in either of the two previous years, it is gratifying to find that the difference was entirely in the third class, which has little influence on general business. It is also worthy of note that nearly a third of the liabilities in manufacturing failures were due to the single bankruptcy of a railway contractor, while not one of the 757 trading defaulters owed as much as $100,000.

The Nebraska Penitentiary Fire.

LINCOLN, Neb., March 2.—The fire which destroyed the main building of the Nebraska state penitentiary, three miles south of this city, yesterday also swept the warden's kitchen and one of two separate buildings containing cells. The convicts were all taken out in safety with the exception of one man, a life prisoner, who refused to leave his cell and was burned to death. The fire originated close to the warden's sleeping apartments and when discovered by his wife had obtained such headway that the efforts of the primitive fire department of the prison could not stay it. Warden Davis and his assistants were new appointees and had only been in charge of the penitentiary during February. Therefore he was unable to state the exact amount of pecuniary loss, but thought it would exceed $275,000.

New Men For Customs Work.

NEW YORK, March 2.—Collector George R. Bidwell, who notified 31 customs inspectors Thursday that the positions which they occupied had been abolished "for the good of the service," has promoted 16 clerks of the first class to the rank of acting deputy collectors to take the places of some of the men discharged. These acting deputy collectors will go down the bay in the revenue cutters to take the declarations of incoming transatlantic passengers and have been empowered to administer oaths. It is the intention of Collector Bidwell to have the new force organized by Wednesday under the charge of Deputy Collector Quackenbush. The pay of the members of the new force was formerly $1,200 a year, but acting in their capacity they will receive $1,400 a year each.

Industrial System Threatened.

LONDON, March 2.—Mr. Herbert Henry Asquith, member of parliament for East Fife, speaking last evening at Coventry on the defects of the British industrial system, said: "We are seriously threatened in our industrial system for the first time in our history. The exports of the United States now exceed those of Great Britain. The truth is that we have lost our start in the race and that other nations, both in opening out their material advantages and still more in training the industrial intelligence of their citizens, are everywhere and in all markets pressing us hard."

A Quarrel Over Cards.

NEWTON, Mass., March 2.—A dispute over a deal at cards and a revolver contributed to a deed of blood yesterday. Italians were in the mix up, Francisco Caravani being the victim and Gerraro Medaglia the assailant, the latter being locked up, and the former, dying apparently, was taken to the Newton hospital Pauline Medaglia, the wife, was locked up as a witness.

ARMY BILL PASSED.

House Concurs In the Senate Amendments.

BILL NOW GOES TO THE PRESIDENT.

Senate Appropriates $500,000 For the Buffalo Fair, $5,000,000 For St. Louis and $250,000 For Charleston.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The house removed all possibility of an extra session yesterday by concurring in the senate amendments to the army appropriation bill. The vote stood 159 to 134. It was a strict party vote with the exception of Mr. McCall of Massachusetts, Mr. Loud of California, Mr. Driscoll of New York and Mr. Mann of Illinois, who voted with the Democrats.

Mr. Cooper of Wisconsin answered present and was not paired. The bill now goes to the president. The house was brought to a vote by a special order prepared by the committee on rules which permitted an hour's debate on a side. The Democrats attempted to filibuster, but they were overwhelmed. The debate was not especially noteworthy. The Philippine and Cuban amendments were defended by the Republicans and assailed by the Democrats.

The final conference report upon the Indian appropriation bill was adopted, and a number of minor bills were put through the final stages. The conference report on the St. Louis exposition bill (which agreed to Sunday closing) was agreed to, and the bill was sent back to conference. A motion to concur in the Charleston exposition amendment was defeated, 84 to 132. The revenue cutter service bill was side tracked early in the day by a vote of the house.

During the greater part of a long and tiresome session of the senate the sundry civil appropriation bill was under consideration. An interesting and at times lively debate was precipitated in the first two hours of the session on a resolution to discharge the committee on interstate commerce from consideration of the bill requiring railroad companies to make detailed investigations of all accidents involving loss of life on their lines and report to the interstate commerce commission. No action was taken. The old question as to the reclamation of public lands in the arid and semiarid sections of the country was brought up, but the effort to attach an amendment to the measure appropriating money for the work was defeated. The bills appropriating $500,000 for the Buffalo Pan-American exposition, $5,000,000 for the St. Louis Louisiana Purchase exposition and $250,000 for the Charleston Interstate and West Indian exposition were attached to the bill as riders.

All of the public galleries of the senate were thronged with spectators when that body reconvened at 8:10 p. m. Hundreds of the strangers in the city to attend the inauguration ceremonies were among the spectators.

The appeal taken by Mr. Morgan from the decision of the chair upon his Nicaragua canal amendment was the pending question. Mr. Morgan asked unanimous consent that his amendment go on the bill, but Mr. Lodge of Massachusetts objected. Mr. Morgan then addressed the senate upon his amendment.

By a vote of 36 to 16 the senate sustained the point of order against Mr. Morgan's Nicaraguan canal amendment to the sundry civil bill.

The senate agreed to the memorial bridge project, limiting the cost of the bridge to $5,000,000, $100,000 to be immediately available.

Nurse Davis Acquitted.

NEW YORK, March 2.—The trial of Jesse R. Davis, one of the Bellevue nurses charged with being responsible for the death of Louis H. Hilliard in the insane pavilion at Bellevue on Dec. 12, resulted in a verdict of acquittal after the jury had been out for five hours. The acquittal was a triumph for Ogden Mills, son of the founder of the Mills Training School For Nurses, where Davis, Dean and Marshall, the accused nurses, were pupils. Mr. Mills brought the case through for Davis to protect the name of the school.

The Borough Campaign.

The campaign in North Plainfield is now on. Both parties have chosen their candidates and the issues are well defined. Will the present administration be endorsed? That is the question which the voters of the borough will have to answer at the polls Tuesday, March 12.

At their primary last evening the Democrats nominated a ticket complete but for one candidate for justice of the peace. There were no contests and everything appeared very harmonious.

Most important of the nominations is, of course, the one for mayor. H. P. Reynolds is the choice of the Democrats to head their ticket. Mr. Reynolds is one of the best known citizens of the borough. For several years he has retired from an active business career and so will have plenty of time to devote to official duties. There is no question to his integrity and intelligence and he is qualified to fill the office of chief executive of the borough with credit to himself and to the community.

Mr. Reynolds is not a politician in any sense of the word and his administration, should he be elected, will undoubtedly be a fair and honest one.

Another important nomination is that of assessor, for which Elston M. French is renominated. Mr. French has proved that he is well qualified for the place, and his general popularity in the borough makes him an exceptionally strong candidate.

It is a good thing that the two parties have chosen well-known citizens of high standing and ability for no matter which side wins, the citizens of the borough will have the satisfaction of knowing that the chief control of the affairs of that municipality will be in the hands of a man who can be trusted to administer affairs honestly even though they do happen to differ on some questions of policy.

Plainfield's militia company is a reality now although a captain is still lacking. The right material has found its way into the ranks of the company and there are those connected with it who promise to give strength and stability to the organization. It is undoubtedly one of the best companys in the National Guard of the State and will soon attain prominence in the State militia.

The street signs have been ordered. The street committee has not delayed and at its last meeting instructed its chairman to order the necessary signs. It will now only be a question where the signs are to be placed. There is some question as to whether it will be better to place them on electric light poles or erect small posts especially for them.

While the evangelistic meetings have now been in progress for a week, Evangelist William Phillips Hall will not arrive here until tomorrow. Those who have heard Rev. T. S. Henderson, who has been in charge during the past week have found him an earnest and powerful speaker. Already there is no doubt of the complete success of the meetings.

Now that the anti-spring election bill has received the Governor's signature and has become a law, some of the cities in the State are preparing to test the constitutionality of the law As Plainfield is affected by it, the result of this attempt will be watched with interest by all Plainfielders.

There were many Democrats in North Plainfield who were earnestly hoping that Col. John F. Wilson would change his mind and accept the Democratic nomination for mayor. But Col. Wilson evidently could not see it in the same light.

A lengthy statement is published today coming from the officers of the Plainfield Building Trades Council. It gives their version of the existing troubles between that organization and the Master Plumbers' Association.

There were some pleasant things said at the Borough Council meeting last evening when the present Council held its last regular meeting.

It will only be a short time now before the street corners will be decorated with signs, giving the names of the thoroughfares.

There was plenty of harmony at the primaries of both Republicans and Democrats.

Local interest in speedways seems on the decline at present.

COMPLETELY SURPRISED.

Mrs. E. B. Maynard, of North Avenue, Celebrated Birthday Anniversary — About Forty Friends Present.

With the assistance of about forty of her friends from this city, Newark, Elizabeth and Dunellen, Mrs. E. B. Maynard, of North avenue, celebrated the anniversary of her birthday Thursday evening in a very pleasant manner. The guests came laden with an array of presents which took the celebrant completely by surprise, but she responded in an able manner to a presentation speech made by Rev. J. W. Cooper.

During the evening a pleasing programme was rendered, consisting of piano selections by A. Preston White, recitations by Cora Pearson, of Dunellen, solos by Miss Fanny Olden and Mrs. Fred Mitchell, a select reading by Miss Ida Mitchell and addresses by Revs. J. W. Mitchell and J. W. Cooper.

The serving of supper shortly before midnight brought the evening's pleasure to a close. Mrs. Maynard was assisted in receiving the guests by Mrs. J. W. Mitchell and Mrs. Henrietta Grobes.

IN NEW QUARTERS.

Success Has Crowned the Efforts of the Sperry and Hutchinson Company in Plainfield.

After four years of steady growth, the Sperry and Hutchinson Company has moved into new quarters at 325 West Front street. Perhaps no institution in Plainfield has been more persistent or more "cheerful under adverse circumstances" and, at the same time, has attained a stronger position in the confidence and good will of the general public. With anti legislation and prejudice to contend with its path has not always been strewn with roses. Notwithstanding, it has constantly stood its ground for the past four years. Today it is recognized as a fixture among the Plainfield establishments and its store as being one of the attractions for the downtown shoppers of the city.

It may be of interest to know that The Sperry & Hutchinson Company is a New Jersey corporation, capitalized at $1,000,000, and that the president of this company is T. A. Sperry, a resident of the neighboring town of Cranford.

Although the company commenced business in a moderate way, having stores in but two towns at the beginning, yet today they are doing business in upwards of two hundred cities throughout the United States, also in numerous towns throughout Canada, England, Germany, Sweden and Australia.

The company claims that it owes its success almost entirely to the fact that it has avoided misrepresentation and has always endeavored to keep its promises.

Dancing was a feature of the evening's pleasure and was kept up until near midnight when refreshments were served. Dancing was again resumed after the hour's intermission and was kept up until a late hour.

The Baptist parsonage seems to be the Mecca of late for those who enter the matromonial state. Several marriages have been solemnized during the past few days and more are expected. The happy couples were all from out of town and desired to keep their marriages a secret for the present.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

(Special Correspondence.)

South Plainfield, March 2—Men are inquiring about this vicinity for available property which may be purchased. It is stated that they want five hundred acres of land. This is causing a great deal of speculation, and the story is about that an immense paint factory is to be started and the local supply of red shell rock utilized in the manufacture of paints. This story is given color by the fact that two barrels of red shell rock were shipped to an assayers office in New York last Sunday. The local red shell has a peculiar oily property and is broken upon being exposed to the air.

George Corriell, of New Market, spent yesterday with friends in town.

Unclaimed letters are at the post office for the following: Miss Helma Johansson, Mrs. E. W. Horack, Mrs John Greeley and J. E. Clark.

The entertainment which was to be given next week under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, has been postponed until March 13. At that time talent from Plainfield will furnish vocal and instrumental music.

Miss Florence Johnson has returned home after a week's visit with her aunt in Newark. She has been undergoing treatment for her eyes.

The subject of Rev. J. A. Cubberley's sermon tomorrow morning will be: "The Old Landmarks;" in the evening, "Are You Keeping the First Commandment."

Established Record.

Rev. Scott Wallace, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church, esbablished a record for himself in the marrying line Thursday evening by tieing the nuptial knot for four young couples, all of whom reside in this city. Three of the ceremonies were performed at his residence as follows: Junius Betts and Miss Mildred Davidson, Charles Cruse and Miss Lou Minor, Daniel Epps and Miss Sarah Drayton. The remaining couple, Samuel Dillard, driver for Neuman Brothers, and Miss Mary Scott, were married at the latter's home on East Sixth street.

Before adjournment $100 was ordered given to the cause of missions—$50 to foreign and $50 to domestic—and still the band has a snug sum in the treasury. Catarrh Cannot be Cured with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. Oldenburg.

Oldenburg. Zur Gründung eines Nikolaus Friedrich Peter-Gedächtnißfonds zur Fürsorge für bedürftige Kinder hat der Großherzog die 10,000 Mark bestimmt, die der Stadtrath anläßlich der Beisetzung des Großherzogs Nikolaus Friedrich Peter im vorigen Jahre bewilligt hatte.

Mecklenburg.

Schwerin. Anläßlich ihres Namenstages ließ die Großherzogin Anastasie dem Magistrat die Summe von 1000 Mark zur Anschaffung von Feuerungsmaterial und zu dessen Vertheilung an die würdigsten und bedürftigsten Schweriner Stadtarmen überweisen.

Braunschweig. Anhalt. Lippe.

Braunschweig. Der Reisende Franz Rothenberg von der Firma Gebrüder Kweht hatte 1800 Mark unterschlagen. Als er versuchte, bei einem Kunden weitere Beträge einzukassiren, traf er dort zufällig seinen Prinzipal. Rothenberg ergriff die Flucht, wurde aber verfolgt. Auf der Straße schoß er sich selbst eine Kugel in den Kopf; in hoffnungslosem Zustande wurde er in's Krankenhaus gebracht.

Dessau. Der Gemeinderath beschloß die Aufnahme einer Anleihe von 1,000,000 Mark zur Fertigstellung des neuen Rathhauses, das etwa 1,250,000 Mark kostet und am 1. September d. J. eingeweiht werden soll, sowie zu verschiedenen anderen kommunalen Einrichtungen. Das Geld wird nicht durch Ausgabe börsenfähiger Obligationen beschafft; die Stadt übernimmt vielmehr die 1,000,000 Mark betragende Summe, welche Frau Baronin v. Cohn-Oppenheim, Tochter des verstorbenen Hofbankiers, für gewisse gemeinnützige Zwecke stiftete, als Anleihe.

Detmold. Dem reformirten Diakonissenhause waren von der Stadtverwaltung jährlich 500 Mark für zwei Gemeindeschwestern bewilligt worden; darauf wandte sich der St. Elisabethverein an die Stadt mit dem Ersuchen, für eine katholische Gemeindeschwester jährlich 250 Mark in den Etat einzustellen. Das Gesuch ist einstimmig genehmigt worden.

Großherzogthum Hessen.

Darmstadt. Zwischen der Stadt Darmstadt und der Firma Merck ist nach langen Verhandlungen ein Tauschvertrag zu Stande gekommen, durch den der Stadt die bekannte Merck'sche chemische Fabrik erhalten bleibt, deren Verlegung andernfalls bevorstand. Die Firma bekommt für ihr innerhalb der Stadt belegenes Fabrikgelände, das der Entwickelung der Stadt große Hindernisse bereitete, an der Peripherie der Stadt 150,000 Quadratmeter städtisches Gelände und 30,000 Mark baar. — An der Technischen Hochschule in Darmstadt studiren im Wintersemester 1900—91 insgesammt 1664 Personen, darunter 111 Frauen.

Mainz. Die rheinhessischen Unterverbände der Raiffeisen'schen Kasse beschlossen, für den Bezirk Mainz eine Getreidevorkaufs-Genossenschaft mit Lagerhaus zu gründen, ebenso die Bildung von Winzervereinen für den Weinverkauf. — Der Schulden halber aus Mainz geflüchtete Teigwaarenfabrikant Paul Langfeldt hat in Alzey Selbstmord begangen.

Seligenstadt. Eine beneidenswerthe Gemeinde ist der Ort Mainflingen. Er erhebt keine Kommunalsteuern, weist vielmehr seinen Gemeindeangehörigen jährlich namhafte Naturalleistungen und Baarbeträge zu und hat neuerdings mit Rücksicht auf die günstige Finanzlage das Schulgeld aufgehoben.

Bayern.

München. Anläßlich des Todes der Königin Victoria von England war für Bayern eine Hoftrauer auf drei Wochen angesagt worden. Eine Armeetrauer wurde für Bayern nicht angeordnet.—Die Zahl der Selbstmorde in München belief sich im Jahre 1900 auf 110, gegen 81 im Jahre 1899. Den größten Antheil an dieser Ziffer hatte das männliche Geschlecht mit 83 Fällen. Auf die Altersstufen vom 16. bis zum 50. Lebensjahre entfielen 76 Selbstmordfälle, auf das jugendliche Alter von 6 bis 15 Jahren 2 Fälle. Ueber 70 Jahre alt waren 5 Selbstmörder. — Der in den 30er Jahren stehende Ingenieur Trölsch von München war mit der Untersuchung des Elektrizitätswerkes in Krumbach beschäftigt. Dabei kam er mit der ungeschützten rechten Hand der Leitung zu nahe und wurde vom elektrischen Strome augenblicklich getödtet.

Bamberg. Nestor der unterfränkischen Lehrerwelt, Martin Stock, wurde hier zu Grabe getragen. Er wirkte fast 50 Jahre als Lehrer, darunter lange Jahre in Mellrichstadt, und war der Verfasser beziehungsweise Herausgeber des weitverbreiteten, prächtigen Liederwerkes „Amphion."

FASHION HINTS.

Items of Interest Concerning the Styles of the Moment.

Silk bodices of bright tones are worn under jackets or boleros, and wide corselet belts of cloth, silk or elastic tissue plain or embroidered with metals and jewels are fashionable. The newest wide belt is of morocco with cut or pressed arabesque designs and a large rectangular buckle.

Many red hats are seen, both dark and bright. The favorite millinery decoration consists of brown, russet or dark green leaves; berries, black, brown, green or red; hips and haws and all the autumnal and wintry class of vegetation. The velvet of a toque is often of the same color as the leaves decorating it, and the effect is harmonious, especially with the addition of ostrich tips to match.

Since gold is so much worn mention must be made of the gold ribbons of all widths which are employed for belts, collars and cravats. They are used alone and in combination with other things, especially with black velvet, this combination being particularly effective.

The illustration given depicts a jacket of reversible golf cloth. The right side is plain navy blue and is used for the body and sleeves of the jacket, which is close fitting at the back and straight down in front. The plaid side is used for trimming, forming a strap down the front, pocket tabs, cuffs for the pagoda sleeves, collar and capuchon. Horn buttons serve as an additional decoration. The hat of navy blue felt is trimmed with navy blue velvet and white feathers.

ACCESSORIES.

Small but Important Items of the Wardrobe.

Very little ornamentation is worn in the hair. Scarcely any flowers are employed, but jewels and Louis Quinze knots of ribbon, gauze or spangled velvet. Lace wings are also used, but often the hair is dressed without any decorations save its own arrangement.

Stockings and shoes invariably match the color of the evening gown. Gloves extend to the top of the arm or to the edge of the sleeve.

White or very pale gloves are the only sort admissible for ceremonious occasions. Colored gloves are worn with ordinary costumes solely.

Fichus and scarfs of all kinds have been revived, and the decolletage of many evening gowns is encircled by a fichu serving as a bertha. The effect is often very pleasing, as there are various ways of draping and arranging such an accessory. Fichus of plain or dotted net are also pretty accompaniments to house gowns.

The cut shows a costume having a skirt of champagne tinted cloth, with groups of plaits at the hips and back and an application of guipure around the foot. The bolero is of old blue peau de soie, with a border and revers of guipure over champagne cloth. There is a wide corselet belt of blue peau de soie and a little plaited basque at the back. The sleeves of the bolero have cuffs of guipure over champagne cloth. Under the bolero is a chemisette of crepe de chine embroidered with cabochons, and there are full puffs of the embroidered crepe de chine at the wrists. Choux of loops of narrow velvet are placed on the collar and at the closing of the bolero. The hat of old blue silk has a brim covered with guipure. A line of roses encircles the crown, and there are two ostrich plumes.

HAS NOTABLE RECORD.

Gen. Sir Henry Evelyn Wood, Who May Arrange for Peace with the Boer Leaders.

Sir Henry Evelyn Wood, who, it is reported, will soon go to South Africa empowered to treat for peace with the Boer generals, is the adjutant general of the British army. It is understood that this movement of the government looking toward an end of the war has been inspired by the king. It is not believed to mean that Gen. Wood will go in a military capacity, but rather in a diplomatic one. He would, therefore, hardly be sent as a successor to Lord Kitchener. Sir Evelyn is one of Great Britain's most notable soldiers. He entered the navy in 1852, and after winning distinction in that service he crossed over to the army, became a captain in 1861 and a major in 1862. He served through the Indian campaign of 1858, fought with Wolseley in the Ashantee war, won C. B. and a medal with clasp, and then astonished his friends by turning to the law. He was called to the bar in 1872, but rejoined the army for the Zulu war. He was made a K. C. B. in 1879, and was a major general in the Boer war of 1880. He arranged the peace with the Transvaal in that affair, and afterward commanded the Egyptian army. In 1897 he was made adjutant general.

HATED BY CHURCHMEN.

Waldeck-Rousseau, French Premier, Who Is Making a Fight on All Monastic Orders.

Pierre Marie Waldeck-Rousseau, whose mighty war on the Roman Catholic orders of priesthood in France is arousing the keenest interest in Europe, was made premier in 1899 after several years' retirement from a political life, which was never very conspicuous. His government is warmly supported by a majority of the legislators in its attempt to dissolve the monastic orders in France. The struggle is one of the most remarkable in the religious history of the great unstable republic. The government's bill, which, it is argued, will drive religious associations from France, is couched in general terms, but the third section, if enforced, would be mortal to the monastic orders which flourish in the republic. It provides (1) that no association between Frenchmen and foreigners can be formed without a state charter; (2) that associations whose directors are foreigners or live abroad and associations whose members live in common cannot exist without special acts of parliament permitting them. This is the most important law proposed by the third republic, and one of the most important developments of French political life since the great revolution.

Plaint from New Zealand.

So difficult has it become to get domestic servants in New Zealand, or a woman help of any kind, that in many places the only way to secure the services of the washerwoman is by sending a gig for her. This is the experience of a woman who writes to a friend in England, stating at the same time that servant girls are expected to be called "lady helps" and demand the right to use the piano and have a private sitting-room of their own.

For a Colonial Museum.

Prominent women of Trenton, N. J., are interesting themselves in the purchase of the old British barracks of revolutionary date, to be converted into a museum for colonial and revolutionary relics. The barracks was the headquarters of British officers during the revolution, and at present is occupied by the Old Ladies' home.

CUBANS IN DOUBT.

Action of Congress Places Them In an Embarrassing Position.

HAVANA, March 2.—Senor Capote, president of the Cuban constitutional convention, called upon Governor Genera' Wood and informed him that the convention felt itself in an embarrassing position owing to the vote in the United States senate. He said the delegates had not decided whether to continue the sessions or to dissolve.

General Wood advised him to urge the convention not to take any rash action, but to complete its work as originally outlined, drawing up the electoral law.

Yesterday afternoon the delegates held an informal meeting and after some discussion agreed to wait until congress had acted on the Cuban amendment.

The full text of the amendment was received by General Wood Tuesday night and was given the following morning to Senor Tamayo, chairman of the relations committee. Senor Tamayo said at the time that the committee had reached its conclusions, but he was urged to withhold an announcement of those conclusions until the proposed amendment had been considered in order to avoid the possibility of radical changes of opinion if the amendment should be adopted.

The convention nevertheless insisted upon announcing its views publicly and immediately before presenting them to General Wood, who did not receive them in official form until 20 hours later.

The conservative element feels that this act, coupled with the convention's ignoring of the views of the executive department at Washington, has placed the Cubans in an unenviable light.

Several delegates on hearing last evening that congress had adopted the amendment said this would not affect the attitude of the convention, as its members would not agree to the scheme of relations suggested in the amendment.

SOME BOSTON RULINGS.

A Crowded Car Decision and a Tall Building Case.

BOSTON, March 2.—The full bench of the supreme court yesterday decided that as street cars are run it is not negligent to take on passengers when all the seats are occupied, when there is no more standing room in the passageway of the car and the new passengers have to stand on the platforms and even on the steps and, furthermore, that a passenger takes the risks incident to the mode of travel he chooses to adopt.

The court also ruled that the commonwealth has not the right under the police power of the state to restrict the height of buildings without paying damages to property owners affected.

The Grand Army Pacified.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The dispute between the inaugural committee and the war veterans over the matter of precedence in the parade Monday has resulted in a compromise under which the veterans will take part to a certain extent in the ceremonies. At a conference between Secretary Root, General Francis V. Greene, grand marbal of the parade, and General Daniel E. Sickles it was decided that the local and visiting Grand Army veterans will form the honorary escort to the president from the White House to the capitol on the 4th of March. The further conclusion was reached that the veterans will not participate in the afternoon parade on the return from the capitol to the White House, but after the procession has passed through the "court of honor" they will be reviewed by the president.

Attorney General Griggs' Successor.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—At the cabinet meeting, the last of this presidential term, all of the members presented to the president their resignations, to take effect upon the qualification of their successors. Attorney General Griggs, who is the only member who has decided not to remain during the coming four years, was among the number, and his renomination will go to the senate with the others on Tuesday. He will not serve longer, however, than about April 1, when, it is now believed, Mr. Philander C. Knox of Pittsburg will receive the appointment.

Brewing Company In Trouble.

BALTIMORE, March 2.—The Maryland Brewing company has defaulted in its payment of the half yearly interest on $7,500,000 of bonds, and the Citizens' Trust company will today file a bill asking for receivers for the company and a sale of the property under foreclosure at the end of the 60 days required by the terms of the mortgage. Judge Dennis, in circuit court No. 2, announced that he would hear all the questions connected with the subject on March 11, until which time there will be no action taken by the court.

A Fellowship For Yale.

NEW HAVEN, March 2.—The current issue of The Yale University Bulletin announces the establishment of a fellowship in American history through a gift of $10,000 received from Mr. Jonathan Buckley of New York city, Yale, '79, in behalf of several members of his family.

Fire In Ballston Springs.

BALLSTON SPA, N. Y., March 2.—Fire destroyed $75,000 worth of property in this village. An appeal was sent to Saratoga for help, and this was immediately sent to Ballston. The insurance will not meet half the loss.

Canada Covets Menier's Island of Anticosti

The Millionaire Frenchman Is Building a Minature Empire at Our Northern Neighbor's Door

CANADA is becoming alarmed at the growing importance of M. Menier's island of Anticosti, in the St. Lawrence river, and now proposes to dispute possession of this new empire the wealthy Frenchman is building practically within her doors with him.

Some time ago influential Canadians took the subject in hand, and, so press dispatches inform us, addressed a communication to the colonial secretary at London urging that the island be expropriated and fortified by the imperial authorities. While the communication did not have all the desired effect, being referred back to the governor general of Canada for action, the subject has not been dropped, and the men who first brought it to attention propose now that the colonial office say Canada has the power to deal with the situation to make the question an issue in Canadian politics and bring about the desired results in that way if possible.

This, however, is not the first time that M. Menier and his island empire have been the subject of discussion in Canadian political circles. Soon after he acquired possession, a little over five years ago, he found trouble in regulating the habits of the few squatter settlers he had found upon the shores of the island when he purchased it, and finally evicted them. This action brought down a shower of wrath upon his head, and it was intimated then, and has since continued to agitate Canadian officials, that the French millionaire was but the agent of the French government, who was under his agency building a French colony in Anticosti that might some day dispute with Canada the control of the mouth of the St. Lawrence river.

THE CAPITOL OF ANTICOSTI AT ENGLISH BAY.

All this is probably untrue, but the present agitation serves to bring Anticosti to public notice again, and some little description and history of it should prove interesting at this time.

The island of Anticosti lies directly in the mouth of the St. Lawrence river. It is 135 miles in length and 40 miles broad, and contains some 3,000,000 acres of ground. For neighbors it has Quebec, province of Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Newfoundland. Its soil is fertile and well adapted to the raising of cereals and other products that are grown in the surrounding British colonies. But its greatest wealth lies in its vast forests of spruce and its fishing.

It has figured both in history and fiction, and several fairly good descriptions of it are to be found in stories of seafaring life. Charles Lever's "Con Cregan" is one of these books, and in it the writer describes the barren island as a gigantic monster, upon which there is not a trace of foliage or verdure, and over which reigns as king a black sailor of tremendous strength.

MAP SHOWING LOCATION OF ANTICOSTI.

In historical legend it has even a worse name than in fiction, one writer saying of it:

"It (Anticosti) was at all periods of the year a place avoided by navigators, owing to its exposed position and the peril incurred through approaching its rock-bound coast. Its history of shipwrecks is long and forbidding. For more than two centuries its inhospitable shores have been a cemetery for the bones of many a noble craft. In 1736 the French frigate La Renommee was wrecked upon its rock coast, with large loss of life. On Egg island, not far distant, on the 22d of August, 1711, eight heavily-laden British transports conveying troops to capture Quebec from the French were wrecked and more than 2,000 soldiers were dashed to death upon the rocky shores or drowned in the turmoil of waters.

"In the ten years between 1870 and 1880 106 craft, consisting of seven steamships, 67 full-rigged ships and barques, 14 brigs and brigantines and 18 schooners, met disaster or ruin upon the rock-ribbed coast of Anticosti."

Anticosti has passed from one owner to another time after time. In 1889 it was purchased by a company organized for the purpose of exploiting it, but the company found it unprofitable and sold it to the present owner, M. Menier, for the insignificant sum of $125,000. What the wealthy Frenchman got for his money was nothing but 3,000,000 acres of unbroken wilderness, through much of which no white man had ever penetrated, but he had investigated the island before he purchased it, and knew full well the possibilities.

He at once took steps for his colonization and government. He has given to Anticosti the benefit of the experience gained in building his manufacturing town, Noisiel, in France.

The laws governing Anticosti are made by M. Menier. Among other things they provide that no one can take up his residence on the island or even land there without having secured permission of the island administration. Permission must likewise be secured before anyone is at liberty to practice his chosen trade or profession on the island. Residents are not permitted to employ or give shelter to anyone who has landed upon the island without securing permission from the island authorities. Such persons as are permitted to land must subject themselves to vaccination immediately. Refusal to comply with this rule means immediate eviction.

The killing of fur-bearing animals is strictly prohibited, and to enforce this rule another is made that prevents the retention of firearms by the employes and tenants.

The importation or export of provisions, liquors, plants, seeds, cattle or animals in general, or any objects or other things otherwise than through the commercial board of the island, and by vessels owned by Menier, is strictly prohibited unless permission is obtained from the governor of the island. Except in the case of a shipwreck or damage to a vessel, no craft shall load or unload cargo except by permission of the administration.

It is forbidden to take fish in the rivers, lakes and ponds of the island. The right of sea fishing and the hunting of seals by the inhabitants is reserved and regulated.

All discoveries of minerals must be immediately reported, not only by those who have made the discovery, but by those who have any knowledge of the fact.

The use of alcohol, spirits and fermented drinks is prohibited.

Any infringement of the rules is cause for the revocation of the lease or contract which exists, or of permission to remain on the island.

Since M. Menier secured possession of the island he has expended more than $2,000,000 upon its improvement. The heavy natural forests have been invaded and clearings made for farms, which, under the direction of the chief of agriculture, are supplying the employes and tenants of the island with much of their provisions. A number of settlements have been established at different parts of the island, and on the shores of English bay has been builded a well-laid-out, well-constructed town which serves as the island capital. In this town, though but a miniature in size, are paved streets, a well-kept plaza, a miniature system of waterworks suited to the size of the town, free schools, a free hospital, clubhouse, gymnasium and music hall, and one store from which the needs of the island settlers are provided. Landing quays and wharfs have been provided, and a general air of prosperity and happiness pervades the entire village.

Plans for the further improvement of the island include the building of a port for deep-sea vessels at Ellis bay, the construction of lobster canneries at Fox bay, the erection of a pulp factory for the conversion of the spruce forests of the island into a marketable commodity, the building of good wagon roads and a railroad that will connect all the different settlements and manufacturing establishments with the port at Ellis bay and the capital at English bay.

If Canada does not force the present owner to surrender his property to the government it is probable that several millions of dollars will be expended in the once desolate island within the next few years.

KENNEY WILL READ.

Divides Cash and Personal Property Among Brothers, Sisters and Husband.

The will of Mrs. Marshall Kenney, (nee Amanda M. Willis,) colored, who for a long time was employed by Henry Mellick, the miser, who lived near Oak Tree, was read Thursday at the home of Dr. M. B. Long. Dr. Long is the sole executor of the will. The will divides cash and personal property, including mortgages, among three brothers, a sister and a husband, and is estimated to be worth $3,500. The residue of the estate is left to the husband, Marshall Kenney. The will is to be offered for probate next Wednesday.

Mrs. Kenney lived with the Mellick brothers for many years, and when they died received a share of their estate. After the death of Mellick she married Marshall Kenney. Her funeral was held last Tuesday at Marconnier chapel.

Working to Secure Settlement.

No new developments have appeared in the local labor troubles during the past twenty-four hours. The chances of a general strike are growing dimmer. Several of the local builders are now working to secure a settlement between the master plumbers and their men, and hope to bring about a satisfactory agreement.

REYNOLDS MAY NOT ACCEPT

DECLINES TO STATE HIS POSITION UNTIL NOTIFIED.

The Notification Committee Expects to Call on Mr. Reynolds Today.

It is safe to predict that H. P. Reynolds will refuse the nomination of the Mayoralty given him by the Democrats of North Plainfield at the caucus last evening.

When seen by a reporter for The Daily Press this morning Mr. Reynolds declined to state whether he would accept the nomination made until a formal notification of the primary's action was received by him.

In the course of the interview he said that the nomination, which he highly esteemed as a great honor, came to him as a total surprise. He had been unofficially informed of it but had not had sufficient time to fully consider the matter. Mr. Reynolds believes it is his duty to withhold any expression of his final determination until waited upon by the notification committee. He said, however, that as it now appears it will be impossible for him to accept. The mayoralty makes a great demand on one's time, said he, and business affairs would not permit him giving it the attention required.

The notification committee, of which Elston M. French is chairman, expects to call upon Mr. Reynolds some time today.

Objections Withdrawn.

It now seems quite probable that the generous offer of James E. Martine of land for a site for the new hospital, will be accepted by the board of governors of the hospital. F. O. Herring and several other property owners in that neighborhood have withdrawn their objections to its location there. The committee from the board will meet with Mr. Martine in a day or two and definitely decide.

HONORED HIS RETIREMENT.

FRIENDS OF WILLIAM NEWCORN TENDER BANQUET.

Given at Hotel Imperial Last Evening—About Twenty-five Were Present.

In honor of his retirement from the office of great sachem, of the State of New Jersey, a banquet was given to William Newcorn in the Hotel Imperial last evening by his fellow members of Wetumpkah Tribe, No. 229, I. O. of R. M. About twenty-five were in attendance.

The position of toastmaster was very acceptably filled by Robert M. Clark, and his calls for toasts met with ready responses on the part of all. Mr. Newcorn replied in an able manner to the query, "Why I Am a Red Man?"

Councilman R. I. Tolles, who was the only paleface present, was asked to respond to the toast, "Why I Am Not a Red Man," but he begged to be excused.

Following the toasts Mr. Clark arose and in a few well-chosen words presented the retiring officer, on behalf of the tribe, with a gold-headed umbrella, suitably engraved. The recipient was agreeably surprised, but retained his composure and thanked the donators.

Among those present were Chiefs Wm. A. Westphal, Robert Humphrey, F. J. Blatz, N. R Titsworth, H. H. Coddington, Meyer Leichtentritt and Francis E. Whiteside, and Braves Frank Smith, Dr. A. H. Dundon, Elwood Sebring, Marcus Hoyt, Joseph C. Martin, John B. Anderson, F. G. Meeker, Edward O. Clark, Lewis S. Thomas, Morris Newman, Fred S Jones, R. M. Clark, Nat Samuels and Councilman B. Frank Coriell.

Drying preparations simply develop dry catarrh; they dry up the secretions which adhere to the membrane and decompose, causing far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all drying inhalants and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals. Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy and will cure catarrh or cold in the head easily and pleasantly. All druggists sell it at 50 cents or it will be mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N. Y.

—F. H. Jacobs, who will address the Y. M. C. A. rally tomorrow at 4:15 p. m., will also speak at the boys meeting held in the upper hall at the same hour. F. H. Martin will also speak at the meeting.

GREAT CROWDS ATTEND THE GOSPEL MEETINGS

Two Overflow Meetings Were Necessary to Accommodate People Last Night.

MR. HALL'S FIRST ADDRESS.

ANOTHER MEETING WAS HELD IN THE WEST END.

Earnest Plea of Wm. Phillips Hall Drew Many to The Right Path—Monster Congregation Assembled Early in The Evening—Other Meetings.

The second week of the evangelistic services commenced in a most satisfactory manner last evening at the First Baptist church and long will the meeting remain as a joyful memory in the hearts and minds of Plainfield's Christian workers. William Phillips Hall, an enthusiastic and very earnest lay propagator of the gospel of Christ, conducted the service and his success was greatly augmented by the hearty co-operation of the musical leader, F. H. Jacobs, and his well selected band of choristers. By 7:15 o'clock every available seat in the body of the church and galleries was occupied.

Before the meeting commenced Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes arose and announced that the doors of the First Methodist church across the way had been thrown open to accommodate those who could not gain admittance.

As at the previous meetings the platform was set apart for the organist, choirmaster and singers. Rev Dr. D. J. Yerkes, Rev. J. W. Richardson, Rev. J O McKelvey, Rev. C. L Goodrich, Rev. Edward Love, F. H. Jacobs and Wm. Phillips Hall were conspicuous among those on the platform.

An inspiring song service served as a forerunner to the real evangelistic part of the programme. Led by D. E. Titsworth, the congregation as well as the choir joined in singing "Blessed Assurance," and in turn "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," "Scatter Sunshine" and "There is Power in the Blood" stirred the religious emotions of all.

Dr. Yerkes invoked God's blessing on the meeting and prayed that every heart would be given the spirit of prayer, and then announced that at 3 o'clock Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons a half-hour service of prayer would be held in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and that upon its conclusion evangelistic meetings would be held at the same place on the days specified.

Announcement was also made by Mr. Jacobs that on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons a children's meeting would be held at 4:15 o'clock in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church and he requested that some of the young Christian women would make it their duty to attend and assist in the services.

A request was also made that the pledge cards outstanding be returned as quickly as possible.

Dr. Hall opened his address with a short prayer and then quickly became absorbed in his well-chosen subject, "The Atonement."

He said the good old Book was never so popular as it is today, and in truth it is a dearly beloved Book. Queen Victoria, said Dr. Hall, when asked the secret of England's greatness, pointed to the Bible in response. The Holy Writ is right up to date and is really much ahead of most people. Christ's death on Calvary made man one with God and this is the doctrine of the atonement or the doctrine of substitution.

He impressed upon his hearers that they must give up all for Christ and that though it was human nature to do the one thing out of the thousand and that one being the wrong thing yet one must forswear that evil thing. Man, said he, in his natural sinful nature is separated from God, citing Adam and Cain as examples. To do good the sinful man must turn right about face.

Continuing Dr. Hall remarked that Christ's terms to the wicked were unconditional surrender. He then pictured the horror of being spiritually dead and said that if one hasn't come in touch with the revivifying influence of the great dynamo of the Holy Spirit he is spiritually dead. Christ, said he, accepted death to save man and God had so accepted the atonement of His dearly beloved Son. The speaker concluded his discourse with the story of his own conversion and implored others to do as he had done and seek Jesus.

The members who arose in response

YOUNG WOMEN'S CLUB ALIVE.

OPENED NEW CLUB ROOMS INFORMALLY SATURDAY EVENING.

Much Interest Shown at House Warming and Classes Have Been Formed at Once.

The members of the Young Women's Club met in their new rooms in the Babcock building Saturday evening and enjoyed a house-warming. It was the first time in many months that the club had met and there was a large attendance of members and many young women who will no doubt become identified with the club. Through the generosity of several well-known women of means the club will have two rooms in the Babcock building free of rent, and thus will be able to carry on their work. Classes in millinery, dressmaking, calisthenics, singing, etc, have been formed and will be continued under competent instructors Miss Kregar is the president of the club and she was in charge Saturday evening.

The programme included the rendition of several popular songs by the singing class, and the presentation of shadow pantomimes. These included "The Courtin'" and "The Ballad of the Oysterman," the former from James Russell Lowell's poem and the latter by Oliver Wendell Holmes. There was also an interesting address by the president of the club in which she gave all a hearty welcome and urged everyone to attend the mass meetings and assist the club in every way possible.

After the programme was rendered all joined in playing games. The affair came to a close after refreshments were served by a committee in charge. The club will now meet frequently and consider ways and means to carry on its helpful work.

AT Y. M. C. A. DINNER.

Plainfield Represented at Banquet at State Association at East Orange.

A large delegation from Plainfield attended the annual dinner of the State executive committee of the Young Men's Christian Association held at East Orange Friday evening. Wm. D. Murray, of West Ninth street, was one of the principal speakers of the evening. On behalf of the State committee he related the work accomplished and spoke especially of the great increase in the number of conversions. Mr. Murray also dwelt upon the advancement made in the attendance of the Bible class.

Around the banquet board were Wm. D. Murray, A. V. D. Honeyman, Wm. O. Worth and George F. Brown.

Drake Doesn't Understand.

S. D. Drake, who has been one of the promoters of the Woodland avenue boulevard scheme, informed a reporter for The Daily Press this morning, that nearly all of the property-owners along the avenue consented to the improvement and a majority urged it. He does not understand why these same people come forward and oppose the widening. With the exception of one or two all signed the petition presented to the Common Council, and those who did not sign said that they would not oppose it.

New Church Members.

Communion services were held in many of the city churches yesterday and many additions were made to each. At Trinity Reformed church there were 13 accessions, 8 on confession and 5 by letter. The First Presbyterian church received 6, of which 4 were on confession and 2 by letter. The Crescent Avenue church received 9 by letter and 4 by confession. Communion services were also held at Warren chapel, Grace M. E. church and the Congregational church.

WORK DONE IN PUBLIC SCHOOL

FINE EXHIBIT HAS BEGUN AT NORTH PLAINFIELD SCHOOL.

Parents of Pupils at Borough Schools Are Invited to Visit Schools This Week.

The parents and friends of the pupils of the North Plainfield public schools have an opportunity this week to see just what is being accomplished by the pupils in the regular lines of scholastic education. At any time during the present week the public is privileged, and, in fact, requested to attend any session they may desire and examine the original work done by the pupils in the various branches.

The walls and blackboards within the building are covered with samples of the work performed in spelling, writing, commercial geography, grammar, arithmetic, physiology, drawing and painting. The two last subjects constitute the chief feature of the exhibition. The complete exhibit is representative of the entire schools from the kindergarten to the High School inclusive.

The proficiency acquired by the pupils, especially with the pen and pencil, speaks well for the standard of the teaching corps.

In the hallway of the main entrance to the building is shown the work of the primary department pupils. It consists of sketches in ink, crayon and water colors, and also designs in tissue paper. With this as an introductory the visitor, as he passes from room to room, observes at a glance the rapid progress made by the pupils as they are advanced from one grade to another.

In the kindergarten is taught merely a few elementary principles in drawing and designing, and with this as a beginning little by little the course advances until in the High School scenic work with pencil and crayon forms the basis of the instruction. On the twelve blackboards in one of the High School rooms are designs which appropriately represent the months of the year. In this collection the work of DeWitt Brokaw, George Smith and Frank Curtis is exceptionally well done.

The citizen of North Plainfield will feel well repaid for the time he spent in visiting the schools this week.

SETTLEMENT PROBABLE.

Another Joint Conference of Bosses and Men Will be Held This Evening.

A conference was held yesterday between the committee from the bosses of all the building trades and the executive committee of the Building Trades Council. As neither committee had any power to effect a settlement, no action was taken. A meeting of the Master Plumbers' Association and a meeting of the Plainfield Building Trades Council will be held this evening to give the committees power to act. It is expected that at the joint conference which will follow that the present trouble will be adjusted satisfactorily to both sides. There is no change in the situation today.

NEW STATION OPENED TO PUBLIC SUNDAY.

Handsome Structure Was Much Admired by Crowds Yesterday.

BUILDING THE FENCE NOW.

TICKET OFFICE HAS BEEN REMOVED TO THE NEW BUILDING.

Interior Decoration of New Station is Very Handsome—About the Tunnel—Iron Fence Will Extend From Park to Watchung Avenues.

After many weeks of anxious expectation on the part of the citizens, Plainfield's handsome new east bound station was thrown open to the public promptly at 7 o'clock yesterday morning. From that time until late last night without an hour's cessation an admiring crowd thronged the building, viewing the handsome interior and promenading up and down the main room.

The new building shows in every way the combination of architectural skill and experienced workmanship, the result being the most handsome edifice of its kind on the Jersey Central. Finished throughout the interior with quartered oak fittings, supplemented by highly polished spruce walls and ceilings it presents an appearance seldom seen in a public station. The toilet rooms located in the east end have been built on the most scientific plans.

The tunnel, or underground crossing is much higher and lighted far better than any of the similar crossings along the road. The stairways, leading to the approaches, have been finished in quartered oak, while the main part is of concrete. There are three entrances, one from North avenue, one from the ladies' room in the old building and the remaining one in the new station. Neat and attractive signs inform passengers as to their location.

The ticket office was removed from the west bound station yesterday afternoon and will hereafter be located in the new building. This has also been fitted up in the most improved style and connects with the baggage rooms and telegraph office in the old building by telephone. The honor of buying the first ticket at the new station is credited to Dr. Rolland Tomlinson, who purchased a commuter's ticket soon after Agent Geo. Ballantyne had become installed in his new quarters.

Under the direction of W. A. Mulford, of Roselle, a gang of workmen commenced this morning the erection of the fence which will separate the east and west bound tracks, thus reducing to a minimum the liability to accidents from crossing in front of trains The fence will probably extend from the Park avenue to the Watchung avenue bridge and will be of iron.

The committee appointed by the Democratic primary to wait on H. P. Reynolds and inform him of his nomination for the Mayoralty met Mr. Reynolds Saturday evening. The primary nominee expressed his thanks for the honor and stated that after full consideration he found that his regular business duties would prevent him from accepting the nomination.

Mr. Woodruff is a custom house broker in New York and has resided in Plainfield for the past decade. He is a tax payer and property owner Mr. Woodruff's friends believe that he will run especially well in the second district where he is favorably known.

APPEAL FOR MORE INTEREST

REV. MR. SHOTT MADE AN ADDRESS TO HIS CONGREGATION.

Occasion of His Second Anniversary as Pastor of the Scotch Plains Church.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, March 4.—Rev. G M. Shott, who gained more than a local notoriety last spring and summer in his fight against the granting of liquor licenses to the several hotels in the township, observed his second anniversary as pastor of the Baptist church Sunday. Mr. Shott at his morning service said: "I do not intend to preach an anniversary sermon or go into our work of the two years as pastor and people but I do feel as though I should give a short prelude to my sermon.

"There are several painful points in my work I feel as though I must touch upon. The past has had many encouragements in it, but there have also been many discouragements. Chief among these is your lack of interest in the Sunday school. Every active member of the church should be an active worker also in the Sunday-school. But there are many of you who lack this interest in this part of your church work.

"There is the midweek prayer meeting. This is the one night in the week that I am more than discouraged. When I come to the church to lead this service I see but few of you in attendance. The interest in the Sunday evening service is about the same. I can hardly expect the public to become interested in our services as long as the church members have lost their interest.

"I feel as though I must tell you that this lack of interest which is so discouraging to me in the work, can only lead to one thing, the severing of our relations in the future. You can look back with pride upon one hundred and fifty years of sacred history. But do you ever think of the present and future? If you will revive an interest in your church attendance, then your pastor will have a better heart to ask the public to attend our services. Let us as pastor and people say: 'Let the dead past bury its dead.' Let us revive our interest in the work for the Master. When you do this you will do much to lift the discouragement which has pained your pastor much and then I would like to spend my life here with you."

PANGBORN-ALLEN CASE.

Will Come Up for Trial in Williamsport, Pa., Tomorrow.

The case in which Mrs. Louisa Miller, of this city, is endeavoring to prove that Stephen Pangborn and Winfield Scott Allen was one and the same person and that he was her father will be continued in the Lycoming County Court at Williamsport, Pa., tomorrow. This morning Mrs. Miller and a large number of witnesses, both for and against Mrs. Miller in her claims, left for Williamsport to be present at the trial. Bruce & Runyon are among the lawyers who represent Mrs. Miller, but owing to Mr. Runyon's illness he will be unable to attend. Lawyer Clark, of Westfield, also for the plaintiff, will be present. Among the witnesses who will be called are William Pangborn, of Chatham street, and William N. Panborn, of Linden avenue, both relatives of the late Stephen Pangborn.

Y. M. C. A. Meeting.

F. H. Jacobs, who has been leading the singing during the past week at the evangelistic services, gave an interesting talk and also sang at the afternoon meeting in the Y. M. C. A yesterday. Considerable interest was shown on the part of the large audience in attendance and at the close a batch of the pledge cards were signed.

BOYD STILL IN JAIL; POLICE SUSPECT HIM

Detectives Looked Him Over And His Past Record is Being Investigated.

RESEMBLES A CROOK.

MAYOR SMALLEY SENTENCED HIM TO LOCKUP FOR FIVE DAYS.

Charge Was For Being Disorderly—Police Think He Knows Something About The Recent Burglaries—Was Photographed Saturday.

The man arrested by Marshal Campbell Friday evening as a suspicious character is still under detention. The police have not as yet completed the investigation which they believe proper to make before releasing him. "William A. Boyd" is the name he gives himself, but this is believed to be merely an alias.

Boyd is five feet eight inches in height, and has blue eyes and a pallid complexion. Over the right temple he carries a scar which he alleges is the result of a knife wound received some years ago in a fight in New York. The right eyelid droops perceptibly.

From the man's story it is gathered that he is a native of Mendham, Morris county, and has worked almost all his life at sewing machine repairing. He admits having resided in many places on the map. Potter, Newark, New York, Utica and Plainfield have furnished him a domicile at various periods.

In New York, he claims to have worked for a firm on Cortlandt street, and he says Samuel Mundel, of Bank street, employed him for a considerable period.

A year ago he worked for Kenyon, the West Front street sewing machine man, and since November he has held the same position. Boyd lodged, while here, with Alfred Drew, of 315 West Front street.

Mr. Drew called Saturday afternoon to see Boyd at the lockup and was given permission to talk with him through the iron grating of the cell.

When seen later by a reporter for the Press Mr. Drew said that he had no information concerning Boyd's past history. The prisoner had always been a quiet peaceable boarder and he was much surprised to hear of the arrest. Mr. Drew admitted, however, that for the past month Boyd had been given to drink and kept very late hours. A search of his room at 315 West Front street made Saturday afternoon by the police brought no results of any value.

Saturday Boyd's photograph was taken twice by Photographer Moffet, of Somerset street. Later the prisoner was examined by Detective Carroll, of Newark, and by Seymour Benjter, assistant superintendent of the Pinkerton's New York agency.

To the Pinkerton detective Boyd admitted that he was acquainted with a number of well known crooks in New York. His Newark record, so far as is known, consists of one night's detention in the station house.

Boyd remembers where he was prior to his arrest Friday night and who he was with but cannot recall much of his conversation during the evening.

Saturday evening Boyd was brought before Mayor N. B. Smalley who, sitting as a magistrate, sentenced him to five days' incarceration in the lockup on the charge of disorderly conduct.

In the course of the investigation it has been learned that Friday afternoon a man called at Vito Feraro's fruit store on Somerset street and inquired of Mrs. Feraro whether she needed any sewing machine repairing done. On Mrs. Feraro's statement that she had, the man offered to repair the machine without charge if permitted to examine it on the second floor, where the machine was located. Mr. Feraro requested the stranger to call some other time, and when leaving the store the mechanic presented his business card upon which was inscribed "J. C. Smith" and the address "25 Maple avenue, Somerville, N. J."

Sunday afternoon Mrs. Feraro after having seen the prisoner in the lockup, said that she was not positive that Boyd was the man who called Monday.

Yesterday afternoon a Pinkerton man from New York came on with a photograph of a crook well known to the agency. Boyd, it is said, bears a remarkable resemblence to the crook photographed. The scars above his right temple and on his shoulder tally with the marks corresponding on the picture.

Richard Boyce, proprietor of the Somerset Hotel, called at the lockup this morning and identified Boyd as a man who came to the hostelry on October 23 and signed the registry as Andrew Raisley, Maddaughs, Pa.

W. Randolph.

Night Was Her Terror.

"I would cough nearly all night long," writes Mrs. Chas. Applegate, of Alexandria, Ind., "and could hardly get any sleep. I had consumption so bad that if I walked a block I would cough frightfully and spit blood, but, when all other medicines failed, three $1 00 bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery wholly cured me and I gained 58 pounds." It's absolutely guaranteed to cure Coughs, Colds, LaGrippe, Bronchitis and all Throat and Lung Troubles. Price 50c and $1 00. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

LITERARY.

The March issue of "Success" has a description of the life saving service, from the pen of former Governor Newell, of New Jersey, whose career has been full of romance. Miss Gould writes her first signed magazine article for this issue devoted to the work of the ladies among the enlisted men of the army and navy. The other contributors include Edwin Markham, Helen Nicolay, Senator Hoar, Ella Wheeler Wilcox, Cy Warman, Madame Melba, Mrs. Russell Sage, and Thomas Wentworth Higginson. The entire issue is characterized by virility and grace. "Success" has caught the point that physicians and educators strive for, namely, that while people don't like to have medicine or advice poured down their throats, they are rather pleased than otherwise, when they find they have inadvertently swallowed some in the form of an appetizing or artistic preparation

Strikes a Rich Find.

"I was troubled for several years with chronic indigestion and nervous debility," writes F. J. Green, of Lancaster, N. H. "No remedy helped me until I began using Electric Bitters, which did me more good than all the medicines I ever used. They have also kept my wife in excellent health for years. She says Electric Bitters are just splendid for female troubles; that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak, run down women. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by L. W. Randolph.

—Plainfield Council, Royal Arcanum, will meet this evening in regular session.

—Residents of West Fourth street are greatly annoyed by a flat wheel car that makes freqent trips through that street.

—Counterfeits of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve are liable to cause blood poisoning. Leave them alone. The original has the name DeWitt's upon the box and wrapper. It is a harmless and healing salve for skin diseases. Unequalled for piles. L. W. Randolph.

—At the meeting of Watchung Court, I. O. F., Thursday evening, John Praed was received on a transfer from Court Plainfield.

—Like Oliver Twist, children ask for more when given One Minute Cough Cure. Mothers endorse it highly for croup It quickly cures all coughs and colds and every throat and lung trouble. It is a specific for grippe and asthma and has long been a well-known remedy for whooping cough. L. W. Randolph.

DE WET ESCAPES.

Boer Leader Lost Heavily on His Cape Colony Venture.

LONDON, March 4.—General De Wet lost heavily in men and stores by his incursion into Cape Colony, but he seems to have made a clever escape with the bulk of his commando. Apparently Commandant Hertzog crossed the Orange river with him.

General Bruce Hamilton, who was pursuing, heard that General De Wet was surrounded at Philipstown, northwest of Colesberg. On arriving there he found the Boers had not been at Philipstown at all, but had doubled back and were struggling across the river at Colesberg. Apparently this is another instance of defective intelligence regarding the doings of the Boers.

The Daily Telegraph has a dispatch from Colesberg, dated yesterday, which says:

"Our numerous columns are still hunting for De Wet. This place is in a hubbub, and troops are marching off in various directions to press the pursuit farther."

Bubonic Plague Spreading.

CAPE TOWN, March 4.—The bubonic plague is spreading here. Five corpses, all of colored persons, have been found since Saturday morning. Ten colored persons and one European woman, believed to be affected by the disease, have been removed to the hospital. Numerous persons who had come in contact with suspected cases have been isolated.

Boers Across the River.

COLESBERG, Cape Colony, March 4.—Fifteen hundred Boers, with whom, it is alleged, were General De Wet and former President Steyn, found a spot at Lilliefontein, near Colesberg bridge, where the Orange river widens and the current is slow, and they all crossed, both men and horses, by swimming.

COMPLETE INDEPENDENCE.

Cubans Send a Petition to McKinley. Cheers For the United States.

HAVANA, March 4.—Saturday evening, after the demonstration in front of the Marti theater, where a torchlight procession composed of members of the National, Republican and Popular parties was reviewed by the members of the constitutional convention, the procession, 5,000 strong, went to the governor general's palace, where a delegation presented to General Wood a petition to President McKinley urging absolute independence for Cuba.

The demonstration was originally intended as a rebuke to the United States senate and house of representatives for adopting the Cuban amendment, but no such feeling was displayed at the palace. The committee was cordially received by General Wood and on retiring gave cheers for the United States.

THIRTY-FIFTH COMING HOME.

That Regiment Arrives at Manila Ready to Embark.

MANILA, March 4.—The Thirty-fifth United States volunteer infantry arrived here yesterday from the province of Bulacan and will probably sail for home March 15 on the transport Thomas.

Captain Draper, commandant at Olongapo, scouted along the west coast of the province of Bataan with 180 marines, capturing 2 insurgent officers and 14 men, taking 26 rifles and destroying 14,000 bushels of rice and 104 carabaos.

The insurgent Colonel Cristobal has surrendered at Naic, province of Cavite, with 2 officers and 12 men. He handed over 12 rifles to the Americans.

Lipton Will Launch In April.

GLASGOW, March 4.—Sir Thomas Lipton, when interviewed by a representative of the press on his return from his inspection of Shamrock II, expressed himself as completely satisfied with the workmanship and progress made. "From what I had heard," he said, "I was afraid there was more than a probability that we should be forced to avail ourselves of the new clause allowing us three weeks to refit, and I was agreeably surprised to find the plating of the hull well forward. So far as I could see there is no reason why we should not be able to launch with the high tides which run about April 20. I do not claim to have technical knowledge enough to criticise the boat's lines, but I can say with confidence that so far as the workmanship goes it would be impossible to surpass her. The whole hull seems polished as smooth as the back of my watch. I think that in workmanship at least Shamrock II will be unrivaled.

Editor Rice Arrives.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 4.—George T. Rice, editor of the Manila Bulletin, who was ordered deported from the Philippines by General MacArthur, was a passenger on the transport Pennsylvania, which has just arrived from Manila. Owing to the fact that some papers which he had expected to receive here had not yet arrived Mr. Rice was unwilling to make any formal statement of his side of the controversy between himself and the military authorities. Mr. Rice will remain here about a week, when he expects to go to his former home, Redwing, Minn. There he will lay his case before the state officials and congressional delegation with a view of bringing the matter before President McKinley and also bringing suit against the national government for damages.

Turkey Stirred Up.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 4.—The sultan has ordered a financial commission to negotiate a loan, guaranteed by a 6 per cent increase of the property tax, for urgent payments, including the claims of American and German contractors for ships and guns. Russia and other powers have addressed remonstrances to the sultan against the Macedonian disorders.

Prizefighters Have a Hearing.

GALVESTON, March 4.—Joe Choynski and Jack Johnson, arrested last Monday night by state rangers on the charge of prizefighting, will have a habeas corpus hearing before Judge Allen of the criminal court in this city today. The men are still in jail.

Lake Fishermen Lost.

SILVER CREEK, N. Y., March 4.—Twenty-one fishermen were carried out on Lake Erie off Silver Creek yesterday afternoon, 17 of whom were rescued. The other four have probably perished.

King Edward at Home.

LONDON, March 4.—King Edward arrived in London last evening from the continent.

ARTIST SANS ARMS.

Wonderful Work Done by Bartram Hiles, an English Painter.

Earns His Living by Painting with His Teeth—Technique of His Work Is Equal to That of Most of His Colleagues.

How strong the artistic instinct in a man must be to survive what would seem to be insuperable disadvantages is illustrated in the case of Bartram Hiles, a young painter of Bristol, England, who lost both his arms several years ago and now paints by holding the brush between his lips.

Young Hiles lost both arms when a boy of eight years, and then he had already made a beginning in art by studying drawing. The loss of his arms was supposed, of course, to put an end to anything further in this line. But it didn't.

When Hiles recovered from the horrible injury he thought of nothing but drawing and how to resume it. There was only one way, and that seemed nearly impossible. It was by holding the brush in his mouth.

Inconceivable as it may appear to anyone appreciating the manual dexterity which the ordinary artist, or, rather, the artist who works by ordinary means, is compelled to exercise, Hiles acquired such control over the muscles of his mouth that in two years after he began to work in this way his work took a prize at a local exhibition.

When he was 16 Mr. Hiles exhibited a water color at the British Fine Arts academy which elicited much admiration, though the fact that the painter was without hands was not known by those who saw the picture. So far as his present work goes the technique is in every way the equal of that of men who work with two hands.

In fact, Mr. Hiles in no way acknowledges that he is handicapped by his physical misfortunes. He is wrapped up in his work and is bright, cheerful and happy—neither expecting, nor even admitting, that his case calls for sympathy. He seems absolutely to have found a substitute for his hands in working with the brush, mixing the colors skillfully and laying them on deftly.

THE ARMLESS ARTIST.

In past times Mr. Hiles has made no reference to his lack of arms when offering his work for exhibition, and hanging committees have not been aware of his misfortune. He simply stands on the merits of his work—happily excellent ground for him to stand on—and asks no odds. He is a jolly young man, who has paying engagements for his products, not the least lucrative of which are designs for patterns in wall papers and carpets.

As an encouraging example of what may be accomplished by a man of determination, industry and pluck in the face of obstacles, Mr. Hiles gives to the world much that is as valuable as his artistic genius. The young fellows with all their limbs and faculties who idle listlessly about because they "don't know what to do" may here find a lesson which ought to set them speedily to work.

Mr. Hiles' work is now carried on in a little alcove in the south nave of the Crystal Palace, London, where he is surrounded by sketches, designs and artistic drawings, all products of his own art. He works as long every day as the light lasts and then betakes himself to exercise, for he is handsome and an athlete.

In the array of productions by himself and the other artists working here, Mr. Hiles' work stands out by reason of a certain breeziness or atmosphere which is not altogether lost even in the reproduction, as the sketches accompanying this article will show. His best effects, where tints have been employed, have been secured by the use of water colors. It is doubtful whether he will ever excel in oil, the heavy pressure of that sort of work being perhaps too much for one compelled to secure results by such means as Mr. Hiles is forced to adopt.

Mr. Hiles has several other accomplishments not generally set down in behalf of an armless man. For instance, he is an expert swimmer, which fact seems almost as strange as does his remarkable gift of art. He is a regular and skillful whist player, but in this requires the assistance of another person to cut, shuffle and deal the cards. In his walks he wears a large military cape, under which the physical defect is not noticeable, and anyone meeting him casually in the street and not knowing who he is would as little suspect that he had lost his arms as he would that he is one of the rising young artists of England, who works with his brush between his teeth.

PEKING TO MANILA.

Departure of Americans From Chinese Soil Hastened.

BRITISH PLAN GRADUAL WITHDRAWAL

Germans Show No Signs of Intended Evacuation—French to Send Garrison to Hankow—Ministers Meet Thrice a Week.

PEKING, March 4.—The American preparations for departure are going actively forward. All supplies, except enough for two companies, have been packed and marked for Manila.

The British plans contemplate a summer along the Pei-Ho and a gradual withdrawal of forces to India, leaving behind by next winter half a battalion of Welsh fusileers as a legation guard in Peking, together with an Indian regiment to guard the railroad.

The Germans show few signs of intention to depart, but they are endeavoring to sell 5,000 American and Australian horses as well as a quantity of camels.

It is reported that the French intend to withdraw most of their forces, leaving one infantry brigade, a regiment of cavalry and some artillery to protect the French legation and to guard the lines of communication. A part of this force, it is understood, will be employed to guard the Franco-Belgian railroad from Peking to Pao-ting-fu.

In French military circles it is freely asserted that the French intend to send a force to be stationed permanently at Hankow and to guard the other end of the Lu-han railroad, 120 kilometers of which have been completed. More definite information on this point is awaited with anxiety by the British, who regard such an intention with serious misgivings, because it is calculated to bring about complications with the Yang-tse viceroys if for no other reason.

The ministers of the powers now meet thrice a week, but no business of great importance is transacted. At present they are going over local claims.

The subject of legation defenses is also being considered, although this will be left for final consideration until the United States government has reached the decision as to the legation barrack question, which the legation is anxious to have settled immediately in order that the building may be constructed before the rainy season sets in.

Japanese Withdraw In March.

LONDON, March 4.—"The Japanese have decided to withdraw their troops during March," says the Peking correspondent of The Morning Post, wiring Saturday, "and to replace them by 2,000 fresh troops, 500 of whom will be posted here. As a result of the conspicuous divergence in the attitude of the powers the Chinese imagine discord is beginning. Li Hung Chang has sent two mandarins to inspect the route between Peking and the province of Shensi and to prepare for the return of the court."

Evarts' Funeral In Vermont.

WINDSOR, Vt., March 4.—The remains of Hon. William M. Evarts, who died in New York last Thursday, were brought to Windsor in a special car, accompanied by members of the family. A brief service was held at the house Sunday morning for the family, and the public services were held at St. Paul's church at noon, Rev. E. N. Goddard, the rector, officiating. This is the church in which Mr. Evarts was married in August, 1843, by Rev. Dr. Wolson, now of Syracuse. The church was filled with a large sympathizing crowd of people who feel that in the death of Mr. Evarts they have lost a noble friend, for he had ever had the best interests of Windsor at heart. It was through him and the late Mr. Beaman, his son-in-law, that Windsor is possessed of a public library. The floral remembrances were profuse. The interment was in Ascutney cemetery in the family plot.

Railway Consolidation.

CLEVELAND, March 4.—E. W. Moore, for the Everett syndicate, and J. H. Harding, for C. D. Barney & Co., the Philadelphia bankers, have signed an agreement for consolidating the Lorain and Cleveland, Sandusky Interurban and Sandusky and Norwalk Southern lines, including both local Sandusky railways, under the name of the Lake Shore Electric Railway company. The capitalization will be $4,000,000. A traffic arrangement has been made for trolley lines from Sandusky to Toledo, from Toledo to Monroe, Mich. Through trolley freight and passenger cars will be run from Cleveland to Toledo along the Lake Shore, thence to Detroit and from Detroit to Monroe, Mich.

Steamer Forced to Turn Back.

QUEENSTOWN, March 4.—The Elder, Dempster & Co.'s Beaver line steamer Wassau, in command of Captain Symons, which touched at this port on Feb. 27 for passengers and mails on her way to Halifax and St. John, N. B., from Liverpool, whence she sailed the previous day, has returned to this port in a much disabled condition. The steamer reached a point 300 miles west of Fastnet, where on Thursday night a terrific gale, with high seas, was encountered. During the night the vessel suffered badly from the storm, having her steering gear disabled and much damage done about her decks. Several members of the vessel's crew were injured.

Trouble With Indian Wards.

GRINNEL, Ia., March 4.—The government is having trouble with Sacs and Foxes, the remnant of the tribe of the famous Blackhawk, now located on the Tama reservation. The tribe has formulated its grievances in the form of a protest which a committee of six tribal leaders will take to Washington. The tribal laws and customs don't conform with the moral standard of the agent, who charged them with polygamy. They claim that the agent forcibly interferes with the family relations resulting from their marriages, and they demand exemption from such interference.

President of Haiti on an Excursion.

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, March 4.—President Sam left Port au Prince yesterday with an important part of the Haitian army for an excursion into the northern part of the country. During his absence, which will continue for three months, M. Tanorede Auguste, minister of the interior, conjointly with a special commission, is charged with the administration of civil affairs at the capital.

BULOW AND AMERICA

New German Chancellor Is an Admirer of Our Country.

His Exalted Position Is Full of Care and Perplexities—Surprised the Reichstag Parliamentarians by His Elegant Oratory.

Up to the time when Prince von Hohenlohe, the third chancellor of the German empire, presented his resignation to the kaiser no one knew positively who would be chosen his successor excepting perhaps a number of German rulers enjoying the full confidence of his majesty. They had been repeatedly informed by him that the natural successor of Hohenlohe was the secretary of the foreign office, Count Bernhard von Bulow. This information was given particularly to the grand duke of Baden, to whom the emperor is always frank and open. But no one really supposed, not even Count von Bulow himself, that he would be asked to take into his hands the reins of the government previous to the opening of the reichstag.

How was this sudden change brought about? It can be explained by an utterance made by Hohenlohe to a confidant: "It is difficult to be chancellor to an emperor who wishes to be his own chancellor, but it is even more difficult when one is not advised of the secrets of his diplomacy. I am no longer master of the situation."

It was acknowledged on all sides that as a speaker the new chancellor is ahead of any of his predecessors. Bismarck was not a brilliant speaker. He usually spoke slowly and carefully but in the heat of debate lacked the qualities of quiet explanation and subjective reasoning to defend his diplomatic measures. Caprivi at the beginning of his career was considered a rather monosyllabic speaker, but very soon surprised the reichstag by a display of capacity, giving him the reputation of being a better debater than Bismarck. Hohenlohe, on the other hand lacked every qualification as a speaker or debater. His voice was decidedly weak, and even the shortest explanation which he had to make was read from manuscript. Even in the use of the latter he would mix up the pages, making the appearance of utter helplessness.

COUNT VON BULOW.
(German Chancellor Is an Orator as Well as a Diplomat.)

Bulow, as secretary of the foreign office, had frequently appeared before the reichstag in well-memorized and elegantly-worded utterances. No one supposed, however, that he possessed any special qualifications as an effective debater. To the surprise of the whole reichstag, in a number of happy addresses, he held his own with such ready and noted speakers as Richter, Bebel and Lieber. Bulow, bred in the elegant school of French and Italian diction and eloquence, speaks in short, clear sentences, which are full of esprit and flowery irony. He holds the entire attention of his audience by never repeating or improving upon the words previously spoken.

Cares not alone within but also without await Count von Bulow in abundance, says the Chicago Record. When Bismarck began his career, in his efforts for the greater Prussia, and in the creation of the new German empire, it always remained his aim to be on friendly terms with Russia. He came thereby into strong opposition to public opinion in Germany, which in a measure contributed to his unpopularity at the beginning of his career. In the same manner Bulow, owing to the expansion policy which has pushed Germany to the front, has been influenced to put his country on the strongest and best terms with England, just as his great predecessor had done. But just as it was with Bismarck, public opinion is little satisfied with the present policy of its chancellor. It is believed by the mass of the German people that England for years has aimed to injure and destroy Germany's growing economic and political prosperity. Added to this was the recent consummation of the Anglo-German agreement and the refusal to receive President Kruger. In support of his position Bulow contended that if he should follow the advice of the Anglophobes he would only please France and Russia, who are anxious to humiliate and weaken Germany. These are some of the problems confronting the new chancellor.

As to the United States, he is anxious to cultivate the friendliest relations with our country. When Ambassador White came to Berlin Count von Bulow expressed the hope that the same friendly relations would exist between the foreign office and the American embassy as existed when Bulow's father was Prussian minister of foreign affairs and the present American ambassador was minister to Germany.

PORTO RICAN TROUBLES.

Natives Embarking For Cuba and Hawaii Detained.

PONCE, Porto Rico, March 4.—Saturday as 400 emigrants were about to embark for the Daiquiri iron mines in Cuba on the British freighter Aldborough, Captain Tarrant, the customs officials interfered on the ground that the Aldborough, being a freighter, could not be allowed to carry passengers from American ports. Mr. Fox, representing the Spanish-American Iron company, who was in charge of the expedition, dismissed the emigrants, who demanded four days' pay for the time they had been waiting to sail. When he refused to comply with the demand, they raised a disturbance and made threats, though nothing more serious occurred. Mr. Fox disappeared, and the emigrants marched in a body to the city hall in quest of the alcalde. When they arrived there, they made another demonstration, but they were ultimately quieted by Chief of Police Teller. Ultimately they encamped on the plaza, and for a time it was feared that there would be trouble.

They were engaged by agents of the Spanish-American Iron company to work in the mines for $1 a day. Mr. Fox, when finally located, explained that he was simply an employee of the company and was under no obligation to make the payment demanded. He disclaimed all responsibility in the affair and laid the blame on the company for not sending a proper vessel. He said he had cabled the facts of the situation to his employers.

The people of Ponce are indignant at such treatment of their fellow countrymen, and considerable sentiment has been aroused.

The New York and Porto Rico Steamship company's Californian, having on board 500 emigrants for Hawaii, was about weighing anchor when she also was detained by the authorities. The local press had been publishing alarmist stories of ill treatment, slavery and starvation, thus discouraging and frightening would be emigrants, and men and women had been calling on the police to recover runaway children. Dozens of women had asked for the detention of deserting husbands. As a result of these complaints and requests the police boarded the Californian. The officers of the ship refused to act, and the alcalde wired Governor Allen for instructions. Ultimately the custom authorities received orders to detain the Californian, and the police took off four children and five adults. The Californian sailed at half past 10 last evening for New Orleans.

New Forestry Board.

ALBANY, March 4.—Commissioner of fisheries, forestry and game, Dewitt C. Middleton of Watertown, salary $5,000, term four years; consulting commissioners for the first two years, Charles H. Babcock of Rochester and Lieutenant Governor Timothy L. Woodruff of Brooklyn, no salary. Immediately after his return from Washington Governor Odell will appoint this new forestry board under the provisions of the bill passed last Thursday and sent to him. The bill provides for consolidating the present forestry preserve board and the fisheries, forest and game commission, and the governor believes it will effect a saving to the state annually of about $20,000. Mr. Middleton, who will after two years be made the sole commissioner, is at present a member of the fisheries, forest and game commission at a salary of $2,500 a year. Mr. Babcock, who is named as a consulting commissioner, is appointed at the request of the owners of Adirondack lands.

Irish Demonstration In Chicago.

CHICAGO, March 4.—Maude Gonne, John Daly, mayor of Limerick, and Major McBride, late of the Irish brigade in the Transvaal, addressed 2,000 of their countrymen last night in Central Music hall. Miss Gonne quoted facts and figures to prove that parliamentary agitation had been of no usefulness to the Irish cause and that open rebellion is now the only remedy to which her countrymen could look for alleviation of their troubles. Mayor Daly re-enforced her remarks with a broadside of personal experience aimed at the parliamentary agitators, who, he charged, are traitors to the cause. He closed with an appeal to all the Irishmen to temporize with England only so long as the party would cover the introduction of arms and ammunition into the island in preparation for open war. Major McBride stirred the audience with a story of the Irish brigade's fighting in the Transvaal besides the Boer regiments.

Cruiser New York Sails.

NEW YORK, March 4.—The United States first class cruiser New York, in command of Captain Morris R. S. Mackenzie, under orders to proceed to Hampton Roads, passed down by quarantine at 8:57 o'clock yesterday morning and out Sandy Hook at 9:48 o'clock. The New York has been at the Brooklyn navy yard undergoing a complete overhauling preparatory to her voyage to the Asiatic station, on which she will carry the station's new commander, Rear Admiral Frederick Rodgers. The New York was to have proceeded direct from New York to Manila by way of the Suez canal, but orders were received last week to have the vessel go to Hampton Roads first.

New Spanish Cabinet Today.

MADRID, March 4.—Senor Villaverde, who was minister of finance in the Silvela cabinet, has agreed, after consulting with Senor Silvela, to undertake the formation of a cabinet. He will present a list of proposed members to the regent today. Queen Maria Christina received General Azcarraga, the retiring premier, at noon yesterday, but he again declined to attempt to organize a ministry. The regent is endeavoring to resolve the crisis without a change of policy.

New Railway For British Columbia.

VICTORIA, B. C., March 4.—An application has been filed with the provincial parliament for the incorporation of a railway to be known as the Crow's Nest Southern. The road is to run from Michel to the international boundary, where it will connect with the Great Northern, placing that road in touch with the vast coalfields of British Columbia. The Canadian Pacific railway will strongly oppose the application for a right of way.

Gale In Central New York.

SYRACUSE, March 4.—A severe windstorm has been blowing, doing considerable damage to property. Several buildings have lost their roofs, and windows in the business part of the city have been destroyed. John Murphy, a foreman in the public works department, was struck by a window blown from a high building and instantly killed.

THE DYING CONGRESS

Friday's Legislative Day Resumed Sunday Afternoon.

CONFERENCE COMMITTEES BUSY.

Motion to Concur In Exposition Appropriations In Sundry Civil Bill Lost In the House.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The house, which is still in the legislative day of Friday, was in session from 2 to 6 yesterday afternoon, and last evening from 8 o'clock it worked on into the night to dispose of the conference reports which crowded in upon it. Everybody was at high tension, and it only required a spark to create a scene. No sensational incidents, however, such as usually occur during the closing hours happened.

Although several hard fights over items in the various appropriation bills loomed up on the horizon, the leaders were confident that all the disputes would be amicably settled before noon today, when congress expires by limitation. All the members of the house came prepared for a siege through the night if the complications made an all night session necessary. Mr. Grosvenor of Ohio, from the committee on rules, presented a special order providing that after ten minutes' debate it should be in order to move nonconcurrence in the senate amendments to the river and harbor bill and to agree to the conference asked for by the senate. Twenty minutes on a side were allowed by the rule. No Democrat desired to speak, and Mr. Richardson of Tennessee yielded his time to Mr. Hepburn of Iowa, who aroused the house with a passionate speech denouncing the measure.

The debate continued for some time.

Mr. Burton of Ohio, chairman of the river and harbor committee, then entered the motion to nonconcur in the senate amendments, and after a brief statement the motion was adopted, and the bill was sent to conference. Messrs. Burton, Reeves of Illinois and Catchings of Mississippi were appointed conferees.

When the house reconvened at 8 o'clock, the discussion of the resolution presented by Mr. Dalzell in the afternoon for the appointment of a special committee to visit Porto Rico, Cuba and the Philippines was resumed. The debate was interrupted by Mr. Burton, chairman of the river and harbor committee, who presented a conference report on the river and harbor bill agreeing to all items except four.

The report was adopted by a vote of 134 to 25.

A motion to concur in the senate amendment to the sundry civil bill providing for the St. Louis, Buffalo and Charleston expositions was defeated in the house by a vote of 76 to 139.

The conference report on the deficiency appropriation bill was concerned in, thus disposing of that measure.

At 5:45 p. m. a recess was taken until 8 o'clock.

After a spirited fight both in conference and on the floor of the senate the final conference report on the naval appropriation bill was agreed to, the senate receding from the one contested amendment authorizing the construction of three additional Holland submarine torpedo boats.

A conference report on the general deficiency bill was agreed to without comment. During the afternoon and evening the senate passed a large number of bills, among them being that to promote the safety of railway employees.

An agreement has been reached by the conferees on the postoffice appropriation bill. The senate receded on the proposition for rural free delivery to small towns, and the house agreed to the amendment for an investigation of a postal telegraph system.

At 10:55 the house took a recess until midnight.

WHAT CONGRESS HAS DONE.

Appropriations Reach a High Figure Owing to Expansion.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The volume of work done by the congress just closing was shown in a supplement to the house calendar prepared by Tally Clerk Wakefield of the house staff. The congress was in session 197 days, which is less than any congress for years. The following is given of bills, acts, etc.: Number of bills, 14,336; number of reports, 3,000; public acts, 345; private acts, 1,250; total acts, 1,595; number of joint resolutions, 395.

During the Fifty-sixth congress, which expired by constitutional limitation today at noon, the country has entered upon the first stages of worldwide empire.

Problems which have never before confronted the national legislature have arisen, and in the effort to solve them congress has exercised powers the constitutionality of which has been questioned by many distinguished lawyers and which have been called into question in cases still undecided by the supreme court of the United States.

When the Fifty-first congress terminated in 1891 with a total of appropriations amounting to a little less than $1,000,000,000, the country was startled by the amount of the bill the taxpayers were called upon to pay, and it was thought that the extreme limit of expenditures in time of peace for many years to come had been reached.

Yet now, only ten years later, the $1,000,000,000 limit has not only been passed, but the total appropriations for the congress will amount to nearly $1,500,000,000. The figures, as nearly as they can be given in advance of the official footings, show a total of about $1,460,000,000.

The total appropriations for the first session of congress, including the sinking fund, footed up $710,150,862. For the session ending today the total will be at least $750,000,000.

Much of the increased expenditure has been due to the maintenance of the large volunteer army and the prosecution of the expensive military campaigns in the Philippines and China, and the impetus given to naval construction by the Spanish war has led to the appropriations for that arm of the service being more than doubled.

Suicide After Enjoying Meal.

ONEONTA, N. Y., March 4.—Chester Tuttle of Ely Creek, a bachelor, aged 70 years, ate a hearty dinner, laughed and joked with friends at the table and then went to the barn and hanged himself. He was active in church circles and respected. No cause can be assigned.

Change in Ticket.

A change has been made in the ticket which the Democrats of North Plainfield nominated at their primary last week. When the committee waited on H. P. Reynolds, who was nominated for mayor, Mr. Reynolds informed them that while he greatly appreciated the honor which they had conferred on him, he could not accept the nomination.

In place of Mr. Reynolds the committee selected Hiram A. Woodruff who is well and popularly known in the borough, but has taken little or no part in politics there. While Mr. Woodruff is not as well known as the opposing candidate, Mr. Smalley, he has favorably impressed those who have met him, and it is believed by the Democrats that he will make an excellent man for the place.

While Mr. Woodruff has not yet formally declared his acceptance, the Democratic leaders declare that he will be a candidate and they expect to make an active canvass at once. With Mr. Woodruff at the head of the Democratic ticket, as with Mr. Reynolds there, the borough voters need have no fear as to the integrity and honesty of either candidate for the mayoralty.

It has been estimated, says the Philadelphia Record, that not less than two hundred million dollars is expended every year in the United States for advertising, chiefly in the newspapers. It is also estimated that a hundred years ago not as much as one hundred thousand dollars a year was paid for advertising. Then, and for many years later, merchants and others advertised mainly to help support the local newspapers, and not to promote business. Now nobody advertises in a spirit of charity, but purely as a business proposition. Every advertiser fully expects to get profitable returns from his advertising investment. That the business men of this country expend millions annually for newspaper space is the best kind of proof that newspaper advertising does pay.

Plainfield has always been so famous for the excellence of its water supply that it is a fact greatly to be deplored when for any reason the water supply fails to maintain its old standard of excellence. The complaints which have recently been made in the borough seem to indicate that the present arrangement, whereby the water is allowed to stand in the reservoir on the mountain, is not satisfactory and should be carefully examined and the defects remedied by the officials of the Plainfield Water Supply Company at the earliest possible moment.

Great interest is being shown in the evangelistic meetings now in progress at the First Baptist church. Last evening William Phillips Hall, the evangelist, conducted his first meeting. The church could not accommodate all who desired to attend. Every evening except Saturday this week the meetings will continue under the charge of Mr. Hall, while Rev. T. S. Henderson, who proved such a popular leader last week, will be in charge of meetings every afternoon in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church.

The anti-spring election law will undoubtedly be a factor in keeping the present Republican administration of Plainfield intact. On strictly local issues there was always the possibility of the defeat of the Republicans by a combination of all the local forces opposed to the present policy of administration. When State and county issues figure in the same election, however, the overwhelming majority of Republicans is going to be very hard to break.

Councilman George T. Rogers, of North Plainfield, and Councilman J. B. Dumont, of this city, are of the same opinion regarding the duties of the tax collector. They both believe that the old custom of being merely a tax receiver should be done away with and that the tax collector should be a collector in action as well as in name.

One of the new street signs is now to be seen in the office of the Daily Press. It appears to admirably answer the purpose for which it was designed When the six hundred and seventy of these signs are placed in position it will be a time for general congratulation on the part of all the citizens.

Without doubt, William Newcorn was one of the most efficient and capable men who ever stood at the head of the Improved Order of Red Men in New Jersey. The growth of the order under Mr. Newcorn's administration, is an excellent evidence of that fact.

The attention of such Plainfielders as were not able to attend the inauguration of President McKinley today, is called to a summary of Mr. McKinley's inaugural address, which is published on the fifth page of The Daily Press today.

It is to be hoped that the trouble between the master and journeymen plumbers can be settled without causing a general strike in all the building trades. Such an event would be greatly deplored for many reasons.

The happening which will make the ninth anniversary of the founding of the Grace M. E. church a red letter time in the history of that church was the clearing away of the indebtedness of the church.

The campaign publication of the borough Democrats, as edited at present, promises to be more harm than good to their campaign.

To many, the combination of the State and municipal elections seems like a step backward.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short and Cossipy Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

One great inconvenience in connection with the use of the new railroad station will be that patrons of the road going east will have to go through the tunnel to arrange for having baggage checked or to attend to matters pertaining to the telegraph office. The people may become used to the change, but they will no doubt think and say many hard things while doing so.

Our Store - "The People's Store.

We insist that the interests of merchant and patrons are identical. The merchant, to be successful, must study carefully the wants of his customers, and conscientiously endeavor to offer only what is new, reliable, desirable and correct in style and price. He has a right to expect the support of the community in which he may be located in return for such effort. The moral and material effect of such support naturally leads to further effort and the mutual advantage of all parties. Working upon these lines we are fast building up a business in this city upon the solid foundation of "Mutual Benefit." Hence we term our establishment "The People's Store." (Special Correspondence.)

Scotch Plains, March 4—A very quiet, but happy marriage was solemnized at the Baptist parsonage Saturday evening, shortly after 7 o'clock, when Mary B, daughter of Mrs. Anna Miller, of Fanwood, became the bride of Frederick Youndt, of Dunellen. The couple were attended by only a small gathering of relatives as they desired a quiet wedding. After Rev. G. M. Shott spoke the few words which made them one they tarried only long enough to receive the congratulations of those present, when they were escorting to a carriage in waiting and left for Dunellen, where the groom had furnished a house in anticipation of the event. Mr. Youndt is a civil engineer and has a host of friends in Dunellen, while his bride was one of Fanwood's fairest daughters and has many friends.

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

"The Dairy Farm," which will be at Music Hall Wednesday night, was one of the greatest successes of last season and comes with the prestige of runs of 109 nights in New York and 133 in Chicago. No play has received a greater degree of approval from the best class of theatre goers; not only have the critics praised it, but it has won the endorsement of the clergy in every city where it has been presented for its healthy moral, its purity of theme, its strength of characterization and the fidelity with which it depicts episodes of pastoral life. The scene is laid in a little village in Northern New York in the decade preceding the civil war. The story is extremely fascinating and of great dramatic power. The basis of the plot is the hate of a miserly old man for his neighbor, a country 'squire of the old school; the mutual love of the niece of the one and the nephew of the other, and the tragic revenge of a runaway slave who has been trapped and sold back into bondage in the South by the miser. The slavery question agitating the country during the campaign that resulted in the election of Franklin Pierce to the Presidency, plays a prominent part in the development of the story and an old time political rally, in which the abolitionists and pro-slavery men are arrayed against each other, forms one of the most thrilling episodes. The costumes of the period are faithfully reproduced and an entirely new outfit of beautiful and picturesque scenery.

INAUGURATION DAY.

McKinley and Roosevelt Take the Oath of Office.

VAST ASSEMBLAGE WITNESSES EVENT

Parade Down Pennsylvania Avenue This Afternoon Will Be One of the Largest Ever Seen—Three Days' Programme.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Last evening at 9:30 the weather bureau sent the following bulletin to Mr. John Joy Edson, chairman of the inaugural committee: "The weather tomorrow will be the finest ever experienced on the inauguration of a president. The sky surely will be clear and the temperature warm and balmy, a fit meteorological climax to the magnificent work done by yourself and your able assistants."

This prediction was amply fulfilled today, and the inauguration of President McKinley and Vice President Roosevelt has taken place under the most auspicious conditions.

President McKinley rode to take for a second time the oath of office as president of the United States in the carriage that he generally uses in pleasant weather for his daily drive and behind horses of his own. The president's equipage differed from the one he uses on everyday occasions only in that it was drawn by four horses instead of two. The carriage was an open one. The horses were fine. The leaders were the beautiful pair of blacks that have become so familiar in Washington as the McKinley carriage horses, and the wheel horses were the new team of bright bays which the president recently purchased in Ohio. The White House coachman drove for the president, and the White House footman sat upon the box beside the driver. Both are fine looking negroes and were clad in brand new McKinley liveries.

President McKinley was escorted from the White House to a stand erected for the occasion in front of the capitol by a guard of Grand Army veterans. At the stand he was met by a joint committee of senate and house, headed by the chief justice and Vice President Roosevelt, to whom the oath of office had been previously administered in the senate chamber.

On reaching the platform President McKinley took the seat reserved for him, Chief Justice Fuller of the supreme court sitting on his right and the sergeant-at-arms of the senate on his left. The committee of arrangements occupied seats directly behind the president.

All other distinguished guests having occupied the special positions assigned them, Chief Justice Fuller at a few minutes past the hour of noon administered the oath of office to President McKinley, who delivered his inaugural address to one of the largest assemblages ever gathered in front of the national capitol and only a handful of which could hear a word that fell from the speaker's lips. On the conclusion of his address the vice president and the members and officers of the senate returned to the senate chamber, and the president was escorted to the glass inclosed reviewing stand in front of the White House grounds.

The president's address was in part as follows:

"My fellow citizens, when we assembled here on the 4th of March, 1897, there was great anxiety with regard to our currency and credit. None exists now. Then our treasury receipts were inadequate to meet the current obligations of the government. Now they are sufficient for all public needs, and we have a surplus instead of a deficit. Then I felt constrained to convene the congress in extraordinary session to devise revenues to pay the ordinary expenses of the government. Now I have the satisfaction to announce that the congress just closed has reduced taxation in the sum of $41,000,000. Then there was deep solicitude because of the long depression in our manufacturing, mining, agricultural and mercantile industries and the consequent distress of our laboring population. Now every avenue of production is crowded with activity, labor is well employed, and American products find good markets at home and abroad.

"The national verdict of 1896 has for the most part been executed. Whatever remains unfulfilled is a continuing obligation, resting with undiminished force upon the executive and the congress.

"Honesty, capacity and industry are nowhere more indispensable than in public employment. These should be fundamental requisites to original appointment and the surest guarantees against removal.

"Four years ago we stood on the brink of war without the people knowing it and without any preparation or effort at preparation for the impending peril I did all that in honor could be done to avert the war, but without avail. It became inevitable, and the congress at its first regular session, without party division, provided money in anticipation of the crisis and in preparation to meet it. It came. The result was signally favorable to American arms and in the highest degree honorable to the government. It imposed upon us obligations from which we cannot escape and from which it would be dishonorable to seek to escape.

"Intrusted by the people for a second time with the office of president, I enter upon its administration appreciating the great responsibilities which attach to this renewed honor and commission promising unreserved devotion on my part to their faithful discharge and reverently invoking for my guidance the direction and favor of Almighty God.

"Strong hearts and helpful hands are needed, and fortunately we have them in every part of our beloved country We are united. Sectionalism has disappeared. Division on public questions can no longer be traced by the war maps of 1861. These old differences less and less disturb the judgment. Existing problems demand the thought and quicken the conscience of the country, and the responsibility for their presence as well as for their righteous settlement rests upon us all—no more upon me than upon you.

"We will be consoled, too, with the fact that opposition has confronted every onward movement of the republic from its opening hour until now, but without success. The republic has marched on and on, and its every step has exalted freedom and humanity. We are undergoing the same ordeal as did our predecessors nearly a century ago. We are following the course they blazed. They triumphed Will their successors falter and plead organic impotency in the naton?

"My fellow citizens, the public events of the past four years have gone into history. They are too near to justify recital. Some of them were unforeseen, many of them momentous and farreaching in their consequences to ourselves and our relations with the rest of the world. The part which the United States bore so honorably in the thrilling scenes in China, while new to American life, has been in harmony with its true spirit and best traditions, and in dealing with the results its policy will be that of moderation and fairness.

"We face at this moment a most important question, that of the future relations of the United States and Cuba. With our near neighbors we must remain close friends. The declaration of the purposes of this government in the resoluton of April 20, 1898, must be made good. Ever since the evacuation of the island by the army of Spain the executive, with all practicable speed, has been assisting its people in the successive steps necessary to the establishment of a free and independent government.

"The peace which we are pledged to leave to the Cuban people must carry with it the guaranties of permanence. We became sponsors for the pacification of the island, and we remain accountable to the Cubans no less than to our country and people for the reconstruction of Cuba as a free commonwealth on abiding foundations of right, justice, liberty and assured order. Our enfranchisement of the people will not be completed until free Cuba shall be a reality, not a name; a perfect entity, not a hasty experiment bearing within itself the elements of failure.'

"While the treaty of peace with Spain was ratified on the 6th of February, 1899, and ratifications were exchanged nearly two years ago the congress has indicated no form of government for the Philippine Islands. I shall continue the efforts already begun until order shall be restored throughout the islands and as fast as conditions permit will establish local governments, in the formation of which the full co-operation of the people has been already invited, and, when established, will encourage the people to administer them. The settled purpose, long ago proclaimed, to afford the inhabitants of the islands self government as fast as they are ready for it will be pursued with earnestness and fidelity.

"We are not waging war against the inhabitants of the Philippine Islands. A portion of them are making war against the United States. By far the greater part of the inhabitants recognize American sovereignty and welcome it as a guaranty of order and security for life, property, liberty, freedom of conscience and the pursuit of happiness. To them full protection will be given. They shall not be abandoned. We will not leave the destiny of the loyal millions in the islands to the disloyal thousands who are in rebellion against the United States."

The final estimate of the size of the inaugural parade, which starts at 1:30 p. m., as given out at military headquarters, was: Military, volunteer and regular, 22,240; veteran organizations, 1,200, and civic societies, 7,800. General Francis Greene, the grand marshal, estimates that the parade will take 4½ hours to pass the reviewing stand if no unforeseen contingencies arise. Assuming that the inaugural parade actually gets under way on its turn from the capitol by 2 p. m., this will make it 7:30 by the time the last section passes the White House.

More than a dozen of governors of states and territories, with their staffs in full uniform, will be in line. Among the number are Governor Odell and staff of New York, Governor Stone and staff of Pennsylvania, Governor Bliss and staff of 30 members of Michigan, Governor Nash and staff of 18 members of Ohio, Governor Yates and staff of Illinois, Governor Richards and staff of Wyoming, Governor McLean of Connecticut, Governor Smith and staff of Maryland, Governor Dietrich and staff of Nebraska, Governor Shaw of Iowa, Governor Heard of Louisiana, Governor Longino of Mississippi and Governor Murray Crane of Massachusetts.

Sunday was quiet, but crowded. The weather opened threatening, with a southeast wind and a clouded sky, but toward noon it cleared, and the sun set fair, with every indication of a good day to follow. From early morning till toward midnight every street in the down town section was crowded. The local churches kept open doors both day and evening and were crowded with worshipers at every service, many of the visitors being in uniform and reminding old residents of wartime Sabbaths.

Sunday at the White House was uneventful. The building was closed to the public, and but for the visit of Vice President Elect Roosevelt the day indoors was not noticeably different from many others. The president, accompanied by his brother, Mr. Abner McKinley, and Mr. Hawkes, a visitor, attended church in the morning and on his return found that Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt, their two children and Mrs. Cowles had arrived and were with Mrs. McKinley.

Vice President Elect Roosevelt put in a busy Sabbath preceding his inauguration. He is staying at the home of his sister, Mrs. Cowles, wife of Commander Cowles of the navy. After an early breakfast with the family Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt attended morning services at the German Reform church, of which

HIS LOVE WAS TRUE.

Pretty Romance in the Life of a Noted Desperado.

His Wild Deeds in the Border War Expiated by Years of Honest Industry and Devotion to a Dear One's Memory.

"Bill" Hailey's death, recently reported from St. Joseph, Mo., recalled his wild deeds in the days of the border war, when he served as lieutenant of Quantrill's famous band. But the real story of Bill Hailey's life was a story of love and sorrow, says the Cincinnati Enquirer.

He had been with Quantrill for two or three years, and gained his commission from that officer, when he fell in love with a beautiful young southern girl who lived at Independence, Mo. Shortly after the famous sack and burning of Lawrence, Kan., in which he played a conspicuous part, he obtained leave of absence and went to visit her. At that time Independence was full of soldiers, and no sooner had he appeared in the streets than they recognized and seized him.

A drum-head court-martial tried him and sentenced him to be shot on the third day following. Pending his execution he was placed in the county jail at Independence. Word of his capture and impending fate came to his lady love late that night. She inquired where Quantrill might be found, and, mounting a horse at midnight, rode off alone in search of him.

She found him at daybreak 30 miles away, and told her story. Without halting, except for a short rest, Quantrill led his desperate followers back to Independence, and she went with them.

At noon they halted on the hills above the town, and there she watched them as at the border chief's command they thundered down into it and set her lover free. And when the battle and burning was over he came to her, and to her pleading promised to leave the band and the border altogether.

He kept his word, and, shortly afterward, believing that it would not be best to begin married life in poverty, started west in the hope of soon winning a competence. For awhile he did well, fighting and trading on the plains, and was just making ready to return when a month old letter came telling of the death of his fiancee.

From that time on for several years he drifted everywhere through the west. Now he was a cowboy in Texas, now a prospector in the mountains of California, a sheep herder in Utah, or a freighter on the trails west from Ogden. Finally, about 12 years ago, he returned to St. Joseph and obtained a place on the city police force During all the time he was here, the past 12 years, he was accounted one of the cheeriest natured men in the town, and, though he spoke at rare intervals of the girl who died long ago, even those who knew of his great attachment for her did not believe that the disappointment troubled him very deeply. But he never married.

In the ravings of his last illness, however, the burden of his unsettled thoughts was of her—she was the one woman of his whole life.

Cheerful Business Invitation.

An enterprising undertaker in Holton, Kan., has thrown his shingle to the breeze and in a local paper makes the cheerful announcement: "I have just completed a course in the embalming school of Kansas City, and returned with my diploma. I will have a full stock of coffins and funeral supplies ready by the first of the week, and invite all needing my services or goods of this character to give me a call."

Monkey Gets Yellow Fever.

The yellow fever commission working at Marianao, Cuba, tried an experiment on a monkey to further ascertain the truth of the theory that the disease is spread by mosquitoes. The monkey was inoculated by being bitten by an infected mosquito and on the fourth day the animal developed well-marked symptoms of the disease.

Arizona's Petrified Forest.

There is a petrified forest covering an area of 100 square miles, in Arizona. Thousands and thousands of petrified logs strew the ground, and represent beautiful shades of pink, purple, red, gray, blue and yellow. One of the stone trees spans a gulf 40 feet wide.

Plenty of Breathing Space.

There is plenty of breathing-space in parts of Texas. Bailey county has but four residents; Cockran has 25; Andrews has 37; Lynn has 17, and Dawson has 36. Twenty-five other counties have populations of less than 500 each.

Scorned by His Best Girl.

A Georgia editor, having been discarded by a lovely maiden whom he had been unsuccessfully wooing for months, has come to the ungallant conclusion that "a girl may be a peach, and still have a heart of stone."

OUT OF DOOR GOWNS.

Fashion Decrees That They Shall Be Quite In Style.

For out of door wear costumes are of great simplicity. However great the name of the dressmaker and milliner who have composed the toilet, however costly the furs, the effect maintained is one of quiet elegance, with nothing striking.

Formerly calling gowns were invariably of silk. This was a fashionable obligation not to be overlooked. Now even tailor made walking gowns are permissible, provided they are smart and fresh. Amazon cloth and satin finished cashmere are favorite materials, and such colors are adopted as deep blue, brown, iron gray, dark green and medium shades of blue, gray and beige. As for calling gowns of blue, red and other delicately tinted pastel cloth, they necessitate a carriage and are quite unfit for walking in the street.

The illustration given today shows a costume of copper red cloth. The tablier of the skirt is formed in single bands of copper velvet ribbon, and three bands of the ribbon are carried around the rest of the skirt, half way up. The bodice has a small basque at the back and is trimmed with bands of velvet ribbon which follow the edges and form a sort of yoke which extends from the top of the sleeves. The lower part of the sleeves is bell shaped and bordered with velvet bands, and beneath are full sleeves of light copper silk with copper dots gathered into a velvet wristband. There is a sort of vest of guipure on light copper silk, covered by bands of velvet, and the full chemisette is of the dotted silk. The collar is covered with guipure and the belt is of velvet. The hat of copper felt is trimmed with copper velvet and a gold and jeweled buckle. JUDIC CHOLLET.

FASHIONABLE LINGERIE.

Colored Underwear Abandoned In Favor of White.

The fancy for colored underwear has waned, and there is a return to entirely white garments, even the ribbons being preferred without tint. This is always in the best taste and is, moreover, a serviceable style, as colored underwear becomes faded and defaced by the frequent laundering that is necessary.

The most fashionable underwear is comparatively plain. Bands of embroidery are much less used than formerly, the embroidery now appearing upon the goods of the garment itself. The French corset cover or underbodice is replacing the old fashioned, plainly fitted one and is gathered at the top and waist or tucked altogether at the back and adjusted to the figure in front by a series of tucks extending upward from the waist line a few inches, the upper part being left free and full. Lace is the usual decoration. The bolero bodice is also seen, short and plain at the back and tying across the bosom in a fichu knot. This is pretty and suitable for a stout figure, as it does not increase the size of the waist.

The illustration given shows two designs for nightgowns. They are both of fine batiste. The first is cut in a deep point in front and has a shawl collar embroidered at the edge and bordered with a deep ruffle of embroidery. A large bow with embroidered and ruffled ends fastens the collar. The sleeves are gathered into a cuff, embroidered and ruffled to match the collar. The second model has three graduated ruffles covering the shoulders. They are trimmed with lace, and the lower one is continued down the front in a double jabot. The high, turnover collar is also trimmed with lace, and the cuffs of the full sleeves are ornamented to match. JUDIC CHOLLET.

The Question Indiscreet.

"What kind of weather do you think it's going to be tomorrow?" he asked of the editor. "I fear it's going to be like your subscription." Then he remembered that that was unsettled and was sorry he had asked.

ENFORCES THE LAW.

Washington Blessed with an Efficient Chief of Police.

Hard on So-Called Gentlemen Who Are Devoted to Gambling and the Excessive Indulgence in Ardent Spirits.

[Special Washington Letter.]

MUSCULAR moral suasion seems to be necessary in some places. In one of the sovereign states of this republic the laws prohibiting the sale of alcoholic and other liquor cannot be enforced without force; hatchets and other implements being used without discrimination or consideration of moral laws. Moral suasion is out of the question in that locality.

When officials charged with the execution of the laws violate or seem to violate their oaths of office, public sentiment often takes the place of law and order. This accounts for the resort of unthinking people to lynch law, which means the violation of all law. Fortunately for the reputation of the national capital the officials here are men of the highest order of integrity and they usually enforce the laws to the best of their ability. We have an unusually efficient chief of police.

Maj. Richard Sylvester was for almost 20 years the Washington correspondent of several western newspapers, while he acted at the same time as chief clerk of police headquarters. In his newspaper work he became well acquainted with the congressman from the Eighteenth congressional district of Ohio, one William McKinley, Jr., and when that congressman became president of our republic he remembered Sylvester and appointed him chief of police of the District of Columbia; and he made no mistake. In making that appointment he selected the man of all men who knew most, practically, about the work of the police department, and a man of superior education, experience and probity of character.

The chairman of the inaugural committee has made Maj. Sylvester chairman of the committee on public order during the inaugural ceremonies; and everybody here approves the selection as a wise one. Our chief of police has already taken steps to conserve the public order during that important ceremonial, and when the time comes his additional special policemen will be thoroughly drilled and instructed concerning the duties which they must rigorously perform; and also concerning the limitations of the authority intrusted to them.

The limitations of police power cannot be too well defined for such an occasion. The writer has in vivid memory an occurrence during the inauguration of President Harrison March 4, 1889, when a domineering mounted policeman, instead of forcing back the crowd at a corner actually drove his horse into a crowd, trampling citizens down and seriously injuring one of the state officials of Wisconsin, who was unavoidably in the crowd because of the loss of his horse by a runaway before the procession started.

But, before preparing for the presidential inauguration, Maj. Sylvester has inaugurated a system of moral suasion which is rather intolerable to gentlemen in the realm of society who are devoted to gambling and excessive indulgence in drinking ardent spirits. He has decided to make gambling practically impossible during inauguration week by employing additional detectives, who will carefully watch for crooks of all sorts; and all suspected gambling places will be closely watched.

Moreover, our chief of police has decided upon a permanent enforcement of the law against the sale and use of liquor after the midnight hour.

MAJ. RICHARD SYLVESTER.
(Chief of Police of the District of Columbia.)

This is not only to apply during inauguration week, but for all time. While saloons are being smashed in another quarter of the country, all unlawful abuse of the liquor selling privilege will be prevented here by the strict administration of the statutory laws by the guardians of the peace. There will be no selling of whisky after midnight, nor on Sundays, at any point nor under any circumstances.

One of the favorite devices of men of means has been to organize social clubs, under the guise of law, and the authorities have recognized certain rights of such alleged clubs. But that is now a matter of past history, of the recent past. The chief of police has decided that not even in these alleged clubs shall liquor be sold at unseasonable and unreasonable hours. This is an innovation which has staggered many of the staggerers who have been accustomed to suppose that the laws of the land applied to all others than themselves. From henceforth the men with dollars to burn will have no more right to assassinate their physical strength by the unlawful use of alcoholic poison than the poor and ignorant who dissipate their earnings while those dependent upon them for food and clothing suffer in obscurity and miserable silence.

Truth telling is not always popular, but sometimes men who are required to portray real life in the national capital are expected to tell the whole truth without evasion or indirection. This story of the determination of our chief of police would be incomplete without the bald statement that clubs and hotels have long been in the habit of violating the laws. Policemen have been permitted to secretly get their whisky in dark corridors adjoining the barrooms of hotels. They have been admitted by kitchen entrances to club rooms, and have been served with whatever they might choose to order. Then, with the poison in their stomachs, they have been deaf to all that they might otherwise hear.

There are and always have been all sorts of clubs here, the naming of which would require reams of paper. For two or three years there was a press club in this city, but it died almost seven years ago; died under the hammer of an auctioneer. None of the leading correspondents were members of it when it was sold. It had fallen into the hands of men who used it as a gamblers' den, a whisky den, a home for indigent and weaklings, who were alleged to be newspaper men, a place where whisky could be obtained at all hours and on Sundays; and, mirabile dictu, all on credit. The end was inevitable, and the auctioneer had the best of it—better far than the unfortunate creditors.

There have been congressional clubs in almost every hotel. In these places men occupying high official positions, one of them a speaker of the house of representatives, gathered nightly for gambling and drinking. Nobody in the hotel, except the proprietor, would know of the existence of the congressional club. Nevertheless, there would be nightly meetings, where cards would be shuffled until early morning, where wine would be kept constantly opening, and where large stakes of money would constantly change hands. The hotel barrooms were opened all day Sunday, and those who were patrons during the week were welcome on the Sabbath day, although the front doors and blinds were closed. Probably it is so in other cities; it certainly has been so in this city for many years.

Then there have been army and navy clubs, metropolitan, athletic and other clubs, within the walls of which all laws have been set at defiance. But Chief Sylvester has closed all of them, without the use of a hatchet. The governors and managers of all of the clubs know that he will enforce the law. They all know that he can invade their precincts with detectives whom they would not suspect; and that when he issues a police order or regulation he will sleeplessly enforce the edict. Therefore they are not trying to evade the order.

The policemen who have been protecting the hotels have been given warning, and they must fulfill their functions faithfully or lose their positions. Incidentally this will give us a sober police force in those localities, although it must be admitted that even the policemen in hotel precincts are known to have been always on the prudential side of their cups, albeit they have taken their regular drinks without expense to themselves. But no man, in uniform or otherwise, is capable of performing his best functions while alcoholic poison courses through his veins.

In telling the truth about the congressmen and their clubs it would be unfair to permit the people to suppose that all congressmen spend their time and their money in dallying with "wein, weib und gesang." Nor are all of them given to gambling. But it is truth to say that quite a number of them have been so habituated from time immemorial, in the brief history of our republic.

One representative, whose term hastens to a close, was taken into a private congressional gathering and robbed of $3,975 between ten p. m. and three a. m. by those whom he called intimate friends. On the following afternoon, when he crawled from under the table, and realized what he had done, all of his checks had been cashed, and he had no redress. It is just as well for him, as well as for his constituents, that he goes out of congress.

Two Men Who Have Been Famous in the Turf World

TWO turf characters known all all over the world of thoroughbred horses, Edward H. (Snapper) Garrison and Maj. Barak G. Thomas, are critically ill. The former has a good chance on account of his youth to pull through. But the veteran major is an octogenarian, and may soon be laid away to rest at Dixiana, the world's most famous thoroughbred breeding farm. So long as the horses sport silk in America the names of both of these men will be associated with the greatest turf events in the history of the United States.

"Snapper" Garrison is, perhaps, more of an evanescent character than the impressionable ones will admit. While I will admit that he was practically the originator of the present successful style of riding horses—the "humped up" style, and that he stamped his name deep on the turf annals, he squandered a fortune made piloting animals and partially dropped from public view by adopting the avocation of a trainer when he became too heavy to sit in the saddle. Other riders followed Garrison's style, won and gradually passed him in the struggle for honors. "Tod" Sloan, "Johnny" Reiff, "Nash" Turner, "Tommy" Burns, Dominick, "Jenkins," etc., all have profited by Garrison's style. Some critics go so far as to say that had Garrison gone to England in the height of his fame as an American rider, he might have taken to himself all of the glory that has been given to Sloan, the Reiffs, etc., and incidentally might have made a great fortune in the employ of royalty. His fame might have been greater than that of Fred Archer. I do not share in this rosy outlook. Garrison was primarily a creature of circumstances, and with his limited amount of knowledge, "book learnin'," etc., his lack of tact, his independence and his disposition to handle a horse just as he himself wished, he never could have risen to a place as high as Archer's.

Garrison's most famous victory was in the Suburban of 1892, when he won with Montana. Everybody unconsciously talks of a "Garrison finish." The "Snapper" could draw them fine, if anybody could. Major Domo seemed to be cut out for that race, while the mighty Lamplighter was coming strong. Turning into the stretch, Montana was apparently beaten. It really was a grand race, and it was my good fortune to see it. I never did think as much of Lamplighter as the eastern fellows did—I have since seen the animal quit like a dog—and expected that that little bunch of nerve Major Domo would take the event. However, "Snapper," who lived in the atmosphere of praise and adulation, glided up on Montana's neck, seemed to gather the animal into a huge spring by the power of his wrists and rode like a demon. It was fiercer than any finish "Dutch" Taral has ever made in his life. It gruelled the life almost out of Montana, but it won the big race. It was a harder victory for the animal than was Boundless' win in the $50,000 American Derby with "Snapper" up. Montana never amounted to much after that race.

The late copper king, Marcus Daly, once thought Garrison was the greatest jockey he ever heard of. I recall the eagerness of Mr. Daly to see the man who was going to pilot his great horse Tammany in a big race. Daly had engaged Garrison at a large retainer to ride, and as he raced horses only for the love of seeing his "copper, silver and green" silk jacket show in front of a field, he wanted the best pilot to be engaged.

"Where's that Snapper bye?" Daly said to Matt Byrnes, his trainer. "I want to set my eyes on him." The meeting exchanged by millionaire and rider was cordial, but entirely lacking in formality on Mr. Daly's part. "Yes, you're a fine broth of a jockey, me bye. Ride to win, but take good care of my horses," was the rich man's remark.

Various stories are told of Garrison's life, but I guess it is true that he was born in New Haven, Conn., in 1868, and that "Father Bill" Daly, the famous turf character who made him a jockey, was his uncle. Daly has supplied the turf with at least three famous riders, Garrison, Johnny and Joe Lamley. For a long time after Garrison went into "Father Bill" Daly's stables he was but an exercise boy. It was in 1882 that he had his first mount in a race. During his long illness, Garrison was faithfully nursed by his wife, who was a daughter of a rich Coney Island hotel keeper, when the jockey, enjoying the great returns of his avocation, married her.

It would be difficult to tell the story of the romance that threads through the life of Maj. Thomas. He is the only turf character of his kind. In the old school once were J. A. Grinstead, Dr. Weldon, David McDaniels, Price McGrath, Maj. E. O. Elliott, Wood Stringfield, Gen. Buford, Capt. Viley, John Harper, John M. Clay and scores of other great breeders. Yet all of these men have gone, and the sturdy old hero of days at Dixiana is battling with disease at the age of 85. At the close of the civil war, Maj. Thomas, then a man of 50 years, and dressed in a suit of ragged confederate gray, asked Col. Grinstead for enough money to "get on his feet again," as he said. From that start came Dixiana. Domino, the son of Himyar, the stallion owned by the blue grass king, won more money than any other American horse—$203,000 in round numbers—and earned a stellar place in the list of animals bred by Maj. Thomas.

SNAPPER GARRISON.

King Thomas, the disappointment, but the horse has sold as a yearling for more than any yearling ever bred in America, was a product of Thomas' farm. Correction, Ban Fox, Yemen, Wah Jim, Tommy Atkins—the J. R. Keene three year old that died en route to England, after winning over $15,000 as a two year old—The Hero, Himyar, Persimmons, Punster, Quesal—what a great mare this animal was—Maximo Gomez, Dago, Lady Reed and scores of other winners of much money on the turf, might be given as instances of the major's shrewdness in breeding. Hira, the daughter of the great Lexington, and Hegira, was the racer that really laid the foundation of the fortune that the fine old southern gentleman has tried hard to spend in hospitality of late years.

Once I had an invitation to visit his farm. Failing to accept, I was informed by the Kentuckian who acted as Maj. Thomas' friend, that I had missed the grandest trip that ever came to a follower of the turf. Maj. Thomas has bred animals that have won their owners a million dollars, but several New York millionaires who once visited Dixiana said that the old man's cellar had more wealth in it, represented by "cawn," as the attendant calls the bourbon whisky, than a horse could earn in a century. It must have cost the old soldier a pang when he thought his end was near, and sold his beautiful stud farm and moved to a smaller farm near by and called it Hiraville, in honor of the mare that had "set him on his feet."

Lady Reel, the dam of the mighty Hamburg, the stallion that was recently sold in New York at the Daly sale for a little over $60,000, was bred by Maj. Thomas. It was expected that Hamburg, although an untried sire, would bring close to $100,000, as the death of Domino had made J. R. Keene wish for a great animal to take his place. But John Madden, the former owner of Hamburg when he was a youngster, bid him in for W. C. Whitney, America's richest and most representative turfman.

One of the unwritten chapters of turf history is the story of the sale of Maud Hampton, after she had produced Ban Fox, King Fox and King Thomas, for the highest price ever paid for an American brood mare. J. R. Haggin, the western millionaire and former business associate with Marcus Daly, bought her and asked that the price paid be kept quiet. Maj. Thomas never told what the sum was, beyond hinting that "it war powerful high."

JOE HOOKER.

Webster and the Trout.

With each increase of Webster's fame as a lawyer and an orator friends and admirers grew more and more urgent that he should once more return to public life. He did, indeed, consent to serve as a presidential elector, and for ten days sat in the Massachusetts legislature. Many years afterward, in the course of a speech, Webster referred to this service, and told his hearers a story quite characteristic of the man. "It so happens," said he, "that all the public services which I have rendered in this world, in my day and generation, have been connected with the general government. I think I ought to make one exception. I was ten days a member of the Massachusetts legislature, and I turned my thoughts to the search for some good object in which I could be useful in that position; and, after much reflection, I introduced a bill which, with the general consent of both houses of the Massachusetts legislature, passed into a law, and is now a law of the state, which enacts that no man in the state shall catch trout in any other manner than in the old way, with an ordinary hook and line."—Prof. McMaster, in Century.

to request for all professing Christianity to arise included ninety per cent of the congregation.

After a few gospel hymns were rendered the benediction was pronounced by Rev. J. O. McKelvey.

A short meeting of the band of two hundred workers took place immediately after adjournment of the services. Mr. Jacobs addressed the members and requested them to use all effort to bring the unsaved to the meetings during the present week.

TWO OVERFLOW SERVICES.

Meetings Were Held in the First M. E. Church and Vincent Chapel Last Evening.

The first overflow service was held in the First M. E. church. Those who were in doubt as to whether such a service would be necessary had their doubts dispelled early in the evening. Before 8 o'clock the Methodist church was filled, every seat being taken and many were standing. For the benefit of those who could not get a seat, a third meeting was held in Vincent chapel conducted by Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, assisted by D. E. Titsworth, who led the singing. This service was well attended.

The large meeting at the Methodist church was opened with a song service conducted by W. C. Weeden, the evangelistic singer. Before the preaching service he sang effectively "The Inner Circle." Both Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass and Rev. A. E. Main were present and offered prayers at the opening and closing of the service.

F.H. Jacobs, the evangelistic singer, had charge of the service and preached. He read the eleventh chapter of Hebrews and from that drew forth many helpful and interesting lessons. The first part of his discourse was devoted to a consideration of heroes, and he remarked that the kind that people of the present day would select as heroes would not be the kind that God selected, and the kind read of in the Bible. He said that people today are so busy with other matters that they do not take time to consider the things which are unseen and which are real.

Mr. Jacobs considered Abel and compared him with Cain, and he said that at one time he thought one was as good as the other. But when he learned that without shedding of blood there is no remission of sins, he saw a marvelous difference in the two men. Abel brought the first fruits of his flock, representing the sacrifice. Cain was not in the same spirit and his offering was not so pleasing to God.

"Have you the foundation principle in your life," continued Mr. Jacobs. "Am I speaking to anyone in this audience with no hope beyond this vale? The shedding of blood should mean more to us today than ever, and if you are ever saved it must be through the blood of Christ. I want to hold up Christ to you tonight. It is His blood that cleanseth from all sins. I plead with you to accept Christ and give yourself to Him.

"You must first have faith and then your works will follow. The two must go together. There must be a cleansing of the heart, morality will not save you, but Christ will."

At the close of the sermon Mr. Jacobs made an earnest appeal to the unconverted and many yielded, deciding to become Christians. A number of cards were distributed and collected and much encouragement was found in the deep spiritual interest manifested by all.

MEETING IN THE WEST END.

Many People Attended Evangelistic Service Held in Hope Chapel Last Evening.

While the several evangelistic meetings were in progress in the center of the city, another none the less interesting was being held in the West End, in the form of a union service at Hope chapel. Practically every seat was occupied, and the same spirit of earnestness manifested at the larger meetings was much in evidence.

In addition to Rev. G Kennedy Newell, pastor of the chapel, the pastor of the chapel, the clergymen occupying the platform were Rev. John McMurray, of the Monroe Avenue church and Rev. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, the latter being the speaker of the evening.

After a brief introductory song service Mr. Herring announced his text as being found in Luke 42:23 but took from it but two words "Remember Me," as were uttered by the dying and repentant thief upon the cross who, realizing his misdeeds, sought everlasting life from the Saviour who was by his side. To this self-confessed outlaw the speaker attributed five redeeming qualities, faith, heroism, penitence, belief in himself and belief in others and from which he drew a convincing moral by which all might profit in turning to Christ Who is a constant companion and asking His remembrance as did the dying thief.

Following Mr. Herring the incident of the cross was further referred to in a few remarks made by Mr. Newell, after which cards similar to those used at the meetings during the past week were passed among the congregation, many of them being returned with signatures.

At the conclusion of the meeting those who professed their acceptance of Christ remained for the purpose of a brief conference with the pastors which proved helpful and beneficial.

CHARLES M. SCHWAB.

Head of the Great Billion Dollar Steel Combination.

Story of His Life Reads Like a Romance—Less Than 20 Years Ago Was Working for a Pittance of $2.50 a Week.

Charles M. Schwab, the man who has been selected through the influence of Andrew Carnegie for the president of the new steel trust, has, like his rival for that position, Mr. Frick risen from the ranks of labor. Mr Schwab is a native of Pennsylvania and is 39 years old. He was graduated from St. Francis college at Loretto, Pa., when he was 17, and at once entered the employ of the Edgar Thompson Steel company. He became chief engineer and vastly improved the mechanical works of the plant. In 1887 Mr. Carnegie made him superintendent of the Homestead steel works, and in 1892 he became general superintendent of the Edgar Thompson plant also. He has a marked ability for controlling men is courteous, and can be easily approached by any of the laborers over whom he is placed. His wealth is large.

And this is his story of how he rose from an obscure clerk to his present position, as outlined in the periodical Success:

"In the first place I stood on my own feet—always relied on myself It is really a detriment to have anyone behind you. When you depend on yourself you know that it is only on your own merit that you succeed Then you discover your latent powers, awake to your manhood and are on your mettle to do your uttermost It is a very good motto to depend on yourself. I am a great believer in self-reliant manliness, which is manhood in its noblest form.

"There was one thing that I discovered very early—that it was well to make myself indispensable instead of looking continually at the clock Employers appreciate to the full men who may be trusted to do their work as if they were working for themselves.

"We do everything in our power to make the men realize their importance in our company. My employers, Mr. Carnegie and his managers, realized mine, and I in turn follow their example.

"When I first went to work for Mr Carnegie it was necessary for me to be up to the top notch to give satisfaction. I worked faster than I otherwise would have done, and to my impetuous, hustling overseer I attribute the impetus I acquired. My whole object in life was to show him my worth and prove it. I thought and dreamed of nothing else but the steel works. In consequence I became his assistant. I attribute my first great success to hard and active work. I found that those who were quickest were those who were promoted.

"A college education is not indispensable for a business man—a college man is usually in dreamland most of the time.

"To understand his business a man must start at the bottom and work himself up.

"A man to be successful must have a good general knowledge.

"I appreciated this fact so much that I never neglected opportunities to study. In my own home I rigged up a laboratory and spent many hours at chemistry.

"No man can rest on his laurels who hopes for advancement.

"Achievement is possible to a man who does something besides his mere duty that attracts the attention of his superiors to him.

"An employer picks out his assistants from the best informed.

"Always be sure of your facts—you lessen the esteem of your employers if you are not.

"I never encourage those who are not susceptible to encouragement.

"A man must be up to date and wide awake."

These Girls Mean Business.

The Business Girls' association in New Jersey has started a temperance movement which includes a pledge "not to accept as a husband any man who is not a total abstainer from intoxicating liquor, and not to marry any man to save him." The basis of their principle is that when the drinking man can be made to feel that he is a "dreg" in the matrimonial market it will be a long step toward sobriety, and when he can be brought to realize that no woman considers him sufficiently worth saving to marry him for this purpose he may conclude to make himself a little more valuable. Success to the Business Girls' association. It evidently means business.

PREPARING TO MAKE SEWER BED CHANGES.

Ordinance Introduced at Council Meeting Last Night Providing for Improvements.

IT WILL BE ADVERTISED.

TO COME UP FOR FIRST READING AT MEETING MARCH 18.

It Also Awards Contract—Will Buy a New Steam Boiler—Other Important Business—Many Petitions Presented—Some Were Granted.

The March meeting of the Common Council was held last evening. In the absence of President J. B. Dumont, the chair was occupied by Mr. Corlell. Mr. Mellick was the only other member absent. A considerable amount of business occupied the attention of the members. Among the petitions was one for a liquor license. Hans Hansen was the petitioner and he wants to open a saloon in the building at 214 Richmond street owned by Thomas Callahan. The matter was referred to the license committee.

Residents in the vicinity of Leland and Jackson avenues on Second street, petitioned for two electric lights. John G. MacLoughlin, for the Mutual Life Insurance Company, asked the Council to adjust the taxes on a number of Plainfield properties. A petition, not signed, which was a protest against granting liquor licenses, was laid aside and not read. Mary M. Silver, of Highland avenue, asked the Council to cross from the books a dog tax for the years 1897-1900, which she does not owe, never having owned a dog.

Corporation Counsel Marsh communicated with the Council and informed the members that the ordinances to date had been compiled and that bids for having the same printed could be received. He suggested, however, that the street railway, sewage and telephone ordinances be omitted. The matter was referred to the finance committee. Building Inspector Doane reported that four permits were granted during February. The city physician reported that twenty-two patients had been treated during the past month. Seventeen were cured, one died, and the rest were either improved or practically their condition was not changed.

Regarding the alleged infringement of certain patents claimed by J. E. McClintock, of Boston, in the construction of certain kinds of sewage bed disposal, Corporation Counsel Marsh reported that in his opinion the Council could go ahead and improve the beds as proposed. One patent, claimed by Mr. McClintock, he said, had expired by the law of limitation and the second did not apply in the case of the one to be used in this city. He could see nothing that would interfere with the proposed improvement in Plainfield. On motion by Mr. Tolles the opinion was ordered spread on the minutes.

Mr. vanHerwerden reported back the petition from the Board of Health asking for an appropriation of $3,000 for the coming year. On the recommendation of the finance committee that amount was agreed to, but with the understanding that the Board is to turn over to the city treasurer all the amounts received as fines, etc.

President W. H Blair, of the Watchung Water Company, of Dunellen, asked the Council to accept the two hydrants located near the city line, which he believed it was necessary to do before they were used. The same was agreed to.

Mr. Tolles reported back the petition of J. E. Totten and others asking for sidewalks on West Fifth street, between Grant and Monroe avenues, with the advice that the petitioners be informed that the Council has no jurisdiction over streets that have not been accepted. Mr. Tolles also reported back the petition of the Board of Trade which urged the use of street signs, with the information that the signs have been ordered.

Another petition reported back by Mr. Tolles was the one asking that Prospect avenue be macadamized. The street committee had learned that so few property-owners had signed for the macadamizing that no action was recommended. The same action was taken in the matter of the petition for the widening of Woodland avenue. This was decided on account of the opposition to the improvement from a majority of the property-owners.

FUNERAL OF MRS. DUMONT.

WAS HELD FROM GRACE P. E. CHURCH YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

Conducted by Rev. E. M. Rodman, Bishop Scarborough and Rev. Floyd Appleton—Impressive Service.

The obsequies of the late Mrs. J. B. Dumont were held from Grace P. E church yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The edifice was completely filled with sorrowing friends who mourned the death of one who was not only admired, but loved by all who knew her. It was a touching tribute to the memory of Mrs. Dumont to see not only those in the high walks of life, but those from the lowly stations, present to bear testimony to the endearing qualities possessed by her.

Included among those present at the funeral were a number of Councilmen and other city officials, as well as representative people from New York and distant points.

As further evidence of the esteem in which Mrs. Dumont was held, there was a profusion of floral tributes including a number of wreaths of galax leaves, violets and choice roses. There was also a great many bunches of roses and violets, all of which completely surrounded and completely covered the casket.

The service, which was of the Episcopal church, was in charge of Rev. E. M. Rodman, rector, and he was assisted by Bishop Scarborough, of Newark, and Rev. Floyd Appleton, formerly curate at Grace church, but now of Brooklyn. The full choir was present and under the direction of Mrs. Freeman, organist, rendered the musical part of the service in an impressive manner.

Following the service interment took place at Hillside cemetery. Those who served as honorary pall-bearers were Col. Mason W. Tyler, Dexter O Tiffany, J. T Closson, Dr. B. VanD Hedges, O T. Waring, Charles E. Brooks, C. P. Bull and Samuel F. Kimball. Those who served as ushers at the church were Orville G. Waring and George VanBoskerck.

SAID HE COULDN'T HEAR.

That Caused Trouble and Wound Up in the Police Court This Morning.

Amos Blazier, of West Fourth street, charged with assault upon Henry D. Thompson, of the same locality, was given a hearing by City Judge Runyon this morning. It is said that Blazier laid his hand upon the other in a threatening manner one day last week when the two unexpectedly met.

Thompson earlier in the day it is alleged had accused the other, a motorman, of being deaf, alleging that the latter did not respond to a signal given to stop his car.

The testimony consisted of the uncorroborated statements of the two men. The City Judge continued the hearing until Thursday morning so that the parties could produce additional evidence.

BOARD TAKES ACTION ON WATER POLLUTION.

Borough Board of Health Declares Trouble is With Storage Tank on Mountain.

THERE MUST BE A CHANGE.

OR ELSE THE BOARD WILL APPEAL TO STATE AUTHORITIES.

Believes That Fresh Water Should Pass Through It Every Day—War on Poor Milk is Continued—Officers Elected for New Year.

The Board of Health of North Plainfield met last evening, elected officers for the ensuing year and transacted some important business.

The water and milk supplied to the residents came in for a good share of attention. For some time past, Dr. Honeyman has been making tests of the milk by means of the lactometer and creamometer and the results so far obtained show that some very poor milk is being used by North Plainfielders. Over seventy tests have been made and more are to follow.

In this connection the Board considered information received that a number of cows in the neighborhood are affected with tuberculosis. Counsel will be consulted and such legal action as is warranted will be immediately taken by the Board.

The dairymen of the borough have lodged a complaint alleging that sewage is being emptied into the brook and the water is being contaminated, but the Health Inspector has found upon investigation that the point where this nuisance is carried on is beyond the borough limits, and the Board therefore has no power to act.

The parties residing along the brook above the Duer street bridge were ordered to cease dumping ashes into the stream. The Board is dissatisfied with the condition of the brook in that neighborhood and intends to have it cleaned up as soon as possible, as The Daily Press suggested.

The most important business of the evening was the considering of the condition of the water supplied to the residents. After considerable discussion the following resolution was passed:

Whereas, The water furnished to many in our borough by the Plainfield Water Supply Company has for the second time become offensive to the smell and also contains objectionable floating matter, owing, as we believe, to the storage tank on the mountain;

Therefore, be it resolved, That this Board hereby enters to the said water company a formal protest against the furher use of said storage tank, unless the system is so changed that fresh water passes through it every day.

Resolved, That the secretary be instructed to notify the Plainfield Water Supply Company that unless this matter is remedied at once, an appeal will be made to the State Board of Health or other authority to take such action as will prevent the further use of said storage tank.

The officers elected for the ensuing year were: President, Andrew Love; secretary and treasurer, Rev. W. E. Honeyman; counsel, Hon. Charles A. Reed; health inspector, William N. Pangborn.

Miss Edith H. Smalley, of Netherwood, and Miss Edith Hyde, of East Front street, will serve as bridemaids at the marriage of Miss Sarah Gibbs Thompson to Stephen Pell, which will be celebrated April 17 at the Church of the Heavenly Rest, New York. Miss Thompson, it will be remembered, was one of the bridemaids at the marriage in December of Miss Johanna Hayes Shepard to Osborn W. Bright in the Crescent Avenue church, of this place.

Will Be Ready Today.

Although it was so reported Saturday, the new electric cranes at the Pond Tool Works foundry are not as yet in working order. On account of their non-completion nearly the entire foundry department had to suspend work yesterday. It is expected that they will be completely installed sometime today.

LOCAL LABOR TROUBLE IS FINALLY SETTLED

Amicable Adjustment Reached Last Evening After Long Conference.

THE LOCKOUT IS NOW OVER.

BOTH SIDES CONCEDED SOMETHING TO SECURE SETTLEMENT.

Master Mechanics Will Form Permanent Association Which Will Recognize Council, But Will Have Supervision Over "Working Bosses."

The existing labor troubles have been satisfactorily settled by arbitration through the efforts of the master builders' committee. Such was the statement given out this morning concerning the result of the fight between the Master Plumbers' Association and the Building Trades Council with the subsequent strike and lockout. This morning the journeymen plumbers, seventeen in number, who were locked out, returned to work and all appears to be satisfactory.

This settlement was brought about through a conference between the master builders' committee and the executive committee of the Building Trades Council last evening. Both sides conceeded something and an amicable adjustment of the difficulty was reached.

The proposition was that the master mechanics and builders should form a permanent organization which should have entire control over all "working bosses" in any of the building trades who will not be required to take out cards from the Trades Council. The master mechanics association will, however, recognize the Trades Council and work in co-operation with it. All strikes are to be settled by arbitration by the two organizations.

This proposition was favorably considered by the two committees last night. The Plainfield Building Trades Council agreed to accept it at a meeting last evening. It was then considered by the Master Plumbers' Association, at a meeting of that organization, last evening, and approved.

It required considerable time for all these meetings so that the proposal was not finally adopted until after midnight. The Building Trades Council then removed Leland & Co's. shop from the "unfair" list and the Master Plumbers' Association revoked the orders declaring a lockout.

The men were notified as early as possible this morning and returned to work. Both sides seem satisfied and it is generally hoped that the trouble between the two organizations is over for good.

W. T. NEWMAN DEAD.

Well-Known Borough Fireman Died at His Home on Race Street This Morning.

William T. Newman, aged forty-one years, of 38 Race street, died at 5:30 o'clock this morning after a lingering illness with lung trouble. Mr. Newman, up to a recent period, was a trusty employe of the Potter Press Works. His wife, Annie Newman, survives him.

The funeral services will be held in Warren chapel Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and the interment will be made in the Methodist cemetery of North Plainfield.

Mr. Newman was at one time engineer of the Warren Engine Company and has for a long time been closely identified with that branch of North Plainfield's fire department. At the regular meeting of the company tonight appropriate action will be taken by his comrades and a committee will be appointed to attend the obsequies. Mr. Newman's death is mourned today by a host of friends in the borough.

Didn't Like His Methods.

Marshal Campbell yesterday afternoon took in custody for disorderly conduct a stranger who gives his name as H. Wilson and claims Bethlehem, Pa., as his place of residence. Wilson wanted to repair the electric bell system in the house of George Weiss, on Duer street, although he had no tools with which to perform the work. Mayor N. B. Smalley gave the man a hearing last evening and sentenced him to seven days in the lockup in default of paying $3 fine.

Barn For Woodhull & Martin.

A VIGOROUS CAMPAIGN TO SAVE SINNERS.

Many Were Present at Last Evening's Meeting Despite the Rain.

URGENT APPEALS ARE MADE.

EVANGELIST HALL TOLD NAUGHT COULD BE HIDDEN FROM GOD.

Made Powerful Address—Rev. Mr. Henderson Was in Charge of the After-Meeting—Many Wished to Become Christians.

Despite the unfavorable condition of the weather, the evangelistic services last evening in the First Baptist church were extremely well attended. The rain did possibly detain many at home, but it did not dampen the intense religious fervor of a multitude who by their presence, at least, are helping to make the gospel meetings a grand success.

Promptly at 7:25 o'clock the large volunteer choir, under the leadership of F. H. Jacobs, sang "Blessed Assurance." The congregation with one voice joined in the singing and the effect was truly inspiring. Other songs dear to the hearts of Christian workers followed and then a short period of silent prayer ensued. The people with bowed heads asked God's blessing on the evening's service. Suddenly there came from the organ the strains of "Come, Thou Almighty King" and this was a new signal for a continued service of praise.

At this juncture Wm. Phillips Hall and Rev. Theodore S. Henderson took their seats at the front of the platform and they were quickly followed by Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes and other local ministers. Dr. Snodgrass and Rev. Mr. Henderson each in turn asked God to bless and keep the hearts and minds of those who had assembled together to assist in the spreading of Christ's kingdom on earth.

A schedule of the services for the week as contained in yesterday's Daily Press was announced from the platform, and after the rendition of a solo by Mr. Jacobs the address of the evening was made by Evangelist Hall. The speaker selected as the basis of his theme Proverbs XXVIII, 13th verse: "He that covereth his sins shall not prosper; but whoso confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy."

The sinner, said he, is one who breaks God's law, and it was pointed out as a truism that no man ever got the best of the divine commands, for retribution follows the disobedience of spiritual and moral laws as surely as it does the physical. The laws of God are most adorable and not horrible as some would imagine. If one breaks but a single law of God he is a sinner, and the curse of the Lord is in the house of the sinner. The sin can be hidden from man but not covered from God. Every act of one's life is stamped indelibly in what psychologists term the sub-consciousness and there it remains for God's examination.

When man stands before the great white throne he will have to reveal everything whether he wills to or not. Every move is photographed by the camera of God's eternal record. Dr. Hall then pictured how one small sin lead to another and another and how the erring man sank in sinfulness by degrees, and he implored all the unrepented to seek Jesus before it is too late.

The Christians in the audience were then asked to stand up and most of those present arose. During the singing of "Just As I Am" the decision cards were passed about, and the "after meeting" commenced.

This service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Henderson, whose well known magnetism, held those who remained in the edifice spell bound during the remainder of the services.

Mr. Henderson amplified on the subject introduced in Mr. Hall's address. He stated that whilst man could not hide his sin from God yet God could cover man's wrong doing. God said he buries one's sins when he is truly repentent. Mr. Henderson, in a short prayer, asked those who wished to surrender to the Lord to raise their hands and several throughout the congregation did so. The meeting terminated with the doxology and benediction.

DRIVER FEIRING WEDDED.

MARRIED TO MISS MARGARET MARIENSCHENCK LAST EVENING.

Ceremony Was Followed by a Reception at the Home of Groom's Parents.

In a very quiet manner and with no one present but the bridal party, George Feiring, one of Plainfield's most widely known and popular firemen, was united in marriage last evening to Miss Margaret Marienschenck, daughter of Mrs. Mary Marienschenck, of Dunellen. The ceremony was performed at 7:30 o'clock by Rev. William Trebert, pastor of St. Peter's Lutheran church, at his residence on Watchung avenue.

The bride was attended by Miss Annie Feiring, a sister of the groom, while Edward Feiring, a brother, acted as best man. Miss Marienschenck was very prettily gowned in white organdie trimmed with white satin ribbon and carried a bouquet of bridal roses. The bridemaid's gown was of pink organdie with white lace trimming. She carried pink roses.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the newly married couple repaired to the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs Gustave Feiring, of Harrison street, where over one hundred guests, among whom were a number of prominent city officials, awaited their coming. The bride and groom were then given a very enjoyable reception which lasted until long after midnight.

Before the festivities terminated Mr. and Mrs. Feiring departed amid showers of rice for their new home at the corner of West Fourth street and Spooner avenue, which has already been furnished by the groom.

The esteem with which the young couple is held by their large circle of acquaintances was made evident by the beautiful presents received, being as diverse in kind as they were numerous. Among them was a handsome remembrance from the boys of the West End Hose Company, No. 3, for which the groom has been driver since its formation by the city several years ago, previous to which he drove the chemical engine.

CATS AND CATS.

Interesting Lecture by Miss Repplier On Pussies Famous in Ancient and Modern History.

Miss Agnes Repplier, of Philadelphia, the well-known essayist, delivered a lecture full of charm and entertainment before the Monday Afternoon Club at the Casino yesterday afternoon. The subject of the lecture was "The Cat, in Life and Letters."

In a pleasant vein Miss Repplier told of ancient cats on the Nile, in Greece and Rome, where they were regarded as gods and pets; of superstitious and mysterious connections with the witch-world; of famous pussies belonging to famous owners, and of the modern cat, cuddled in the lap of luxury, the type of happy comfort and complacency.

He will occupy the desirable property at the northwest corner of Sixth and Sycamore streets. Mr. Alpaugh will bring his horses and carriages with him so that he and his family may enjoy Plainfield's fine roads. Mrs. Alpaugh is the daughter of Rev. J. G Williamson, who preached in the Bethlehem Presbyterian church near Clinton, Hunterdon county, for fifty years and now lives retired at Sydney, N. J. It was through Mr. Eoff's presentation of Plainfield's many advantages as a residential place that Mr. Alpaugh and his family chose this city as a place of residence in preference to several other places.

CITY SCHOOL BOARD SUSTAINED MR. MAXSON

Final Settlement of Case of Willie Cox, Accused of Stealing Skates in School.

BELIEVE HIM TO BE GUILTY.

MR. MAXSON TOOK THAT VIEW AND COMMITTEE DID LIKEWISE.

Superintendent Maxson Gave Interesting Report of Proceedings at National Educational Association—Other Routine Business Done.

The report of Superintendent Maxson in regard to his investigation of the charges made against Willie Cox, the young colored boy dismissed from the Lincoln school last January, and subsequent action on the part of the members, formed the most important matter brought up for discussion at the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education held last evening. So far as the Board is concerned the matter is now definitely settled, it having been thoroughly discussed and disposed of by a committee appointed for the purpose during the meeting.

Previous to this matter the usual amount of business was disposed of. The report of the collector of taxes showed that $1,603 12 had been collected and deposited to the credit of the Board. According to the medical inspector's monthly statement, 102 pupils were examined during February. The custodian of school moneys reported a balance on hand of $12 658 15 in the general account and $4 12 in the Martin Act account.

Secretary Lounsbury stated that as yet nothing had been heard from the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Railway Co. in regard to their proposed change in the present system of school tickets, as brought before the board at the last meeting by Assistant Superintendent Collins. A further report in the matter was to have been given last evening by Mr. Collins and as he was the one desirous of the change no action in the matter will be taken until he communicates with the board.

A very interesting communication was read by Mr. Maxson in which he gave a brief report of his attendance at the meeting of the National Educational Association held in Chicago last week. He stated that the meeting was one of the largest in the history of the association, superintendents being present from all parts of the country and that the subjects discussed were of vital interest in their bearing upon school work. He referred in particular to a number of these, mainly, manual training in schools, how to organize schools more efficiently for the interests of the pupils and the introduction of literature in the grades below the High School and the course of study in general, for all of which he expressed the wish for the time to come when funds and facilities were at hand for undertaking them. The report was listened with much interest and at the conclusion was ordered placed on file.

An informal discussion of the vertical system of penmanship in vogue throughout the city schools at the present time, which is not giving the best results, occupied some time, after which the Cox matter was brought up by Mr. Maxson.

The latter stated that he had investigated the matter fully, also examining the boy in the presence of witnesses and his father, and that he was convinced the lad was guilty, as charged, of stealing a pair of skates from a schoolmate. On arriving at this conclusion he had extended the boy's original sentence of suspension three days longer, after which he returned to school Feb. 11. This report and one from President Probasco to the effect that Lawyer Angleman had written him requesting a public hearing before the board with those concerned, was referred for settlement immediately to a committee composed of Messrs. Richards, Lovell and Abbott, who went into executive session. After deliberating for twenty minutes the committee returned and stated they had confirmed the superintendent's decision and that they thought there was no necessity for an appeal. This was their final disposition of the case and the clerk was instructed to inform Mr. Angleman to that effect.

The Board then went into executive session.

Took Four Drays.

It required four heavy drays to carry the parts of a large printing press which was moved to New York yesterday by Wm. Hand & Son for the Campbell Press Works.

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

"One touch of nature makes the whole world kin"—such is the motto of Eleanor Merron's quaint rural drama, "The Dairy Farm," which, after long runs in New York and Chicago, will be seen at Music Hall tomorrow night. The play contains that "touch of nature" to a remarkable degree, and therein lies its great charm. It is an idyl among modern stage productions—a play that makes the jaded theatre-goer feel, after he has witnessed it, that the world is better than he thought it was before, that the sun is brighter and life altogether more worth living than it had seemed to be. Farm and village scenes all—farm and village ideas all. A simple, homely story of the loves and hates, the nobler and meaner natures, the tragic and comic occurrences, the joys and griefs, that help to make up the sum of existence in rural communities as elsewhere. This is the foundation of "The Dairy Farm." The characters are of the sort that are to be found in the simplest country life. They are living, breathing people—not simply marionettes to carry out the author's plot as chessmen are moved about the board—and what they say and do is all so true, so natural, that one forgets it is only acting. The stage setting—an entire new outfit—is extremely picturesque as well as realistic. Old furniture, old farming tools, old vehicles, horses, cows, sheep, chickens, are introduced to give the idea of actuality, and the people are dressed in the costumes of the period, fifty years ago. All playgoers heartily endorse the commendations of those of other cities, and Music Hall should be crowded to see this remarkably fine play.

Thousands, yes, millions throughout the United States and Europe have read Mark Twain's works, but none of them have met with such success as his book of "Tom Sawyer," from which the principle has been embodied into a comedy, and will be seen at Music Hall this coming Saturday afternoon and evening, where the mischievous Tom Sawyer and his chum, Huckiberry Finn, will form the comedy element, and Indian Joe and Judge Sawyer, other characters, will form the picture of principal characters into a comedy drama of interest. The play is interspersed with songs, dances, comical situations and startling climaxes. The principal scenes shown include the grocery store, the Judge's home, a funny court room scene and an exciting and realistic graveyard scene. Manager Edwards has arranged the matinee which is especially intended for women and children, and will be of the popular kind, with admission prices at 10 cents for children, and 25 cents for adults. Reserved seats, 50 cents.

"On the Suwanee River," which comes to Music Hall Monday evening, March 11, tells a story of intrigue and hardship in the sunny south, in a quiet way. It promises to be as long lived as the old familiar song from which the title is derived. The management have given the play a fitting frame of scenic environment admirably painted from drawings made of the most picturesque spots along the famous stream. The action is laid near the small village of Suwanee and shows the old Southern Clayton family mansion, one of the first settlers in the state of Florida. The company will include Stella Mayhew, Willow Frances, Kate Western Cherry, Fred Truesdell, Earl Atkinson, Allan H. Bailey, Harrison Stedman, and the famous Clover Leaf Quartette.

LAST HOURS OF CONGRESS.

The River and Harbor Bill Defeated Carter's Long Talk.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The senate remained in session all of Sunday night with the exception of a recess from 8:45 until 10:30. It was for the most part a dreary wait for action by the conferees on the great appropriation bills although the time between the various reappearances was all filled with uninteresting speeches.

At midnight four of the bills, the post office, the naval, the sundry civil and the river and harbor, were still in process of adjustment between the two houses the failure of any of which but the last named would bring about an extra session of congress.

On the naval bill an agreement had been reached some days ago on all but the senate proposition to purchase additional Holland submarine boats. The house conferees were unusually insistent that this should go out of the bill, carrying their opposition to the extent of refusing to report an agreement. Finally the senate by a vote receded from its amendment, and the bill was disposed of.

The postoffice bill was in a similar position, but the conferees reached a compromise.

The sundry civil bill was thought the hardest nut to crack. The senate had added 153 amendments to the bill after it passed the house, many of them carrying large sums of money. The conferees made three partial reports before their last attempt, and then they presented a disagreement on the largest item in the bill, that appropriating $5,000,000 for the St. Louis exposition $500,000 for the Pan-American exposition and $250,000 for the Charleston exposition.

The house voted twice against the Charleston exposition specifically, but Senator Tillman, the sponsor for that item, had declared that if that went out the others should too. The conferees therefore recommended that the senate give up the three appropriations, and this was done at 5 a. m. The St. Louis exposition appropriation, however, was afterward passed in a separate bill after the Charleston appropriation had by a vote of 38 to 10 been stricken out of it.

One of the most notable occurrences in the history of congressional legislation marked the closing hours of the last session of the senate of the Fifty-sixth congress. Senator Carter of Montana signalized his retirement from the senate after six years of brilliant service by talking the river and harbor bill to death. He occupied the floor, constructively, for nearly 13 consecutive hours, although in the aggregate about three hours of that time were devoted to other business.

At the conclusion of the session of the Fifty-sixth congress Vice President Theodore Roosevelt was sworn in and immediately called the senate of the Fifty-seventh congress to order. It was a simple but beautiful and impressive ceremony The new senators were sworn in in groups of four.

All Night In a Snowdrift.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., March 5.—A south wind of frightful velocity began blowing in northern New York Sunday afternoon and continued furiously all night. Little or no snow fell, but that already on the ground was blown from the fields into the highways and deep cuts on the railroads. The Montreal express, which was due in New York at 7:25 o'clock yesterday morning, became stalled in a drift near Lacolle, Quebec, on the Grand Trunk railroad. To add to the trouble telegraph and telephone wires were blown down, and for a time communication with trains was cut off and passengers had to make themselves comfortable as best they could all night. At about 1 o'clock in the afternoon a force of 150 men succeeded in digging them out by running snowplows all night.

Safe Blowing In New Jersey.

MILBURN, N. J., March 5.—William Smart's grocery store was entered by burglars early yesterday. They blew open the safe and got $400 in money and stamps, most of which belonged to the Short Hills postoffice, the postmaster having placed his cash and stamps in the safe. So heavy was the explosion that the front of the building was blown out. There is no clew to the burglars.

OLD CREED ASSAILED

Presbyterian Leaders Urge the Need of Changes.

DOES NOT REPRESENT MODERN BELIEF

President Stewart of Auburn Favors Formulation of New Standards. Dr. Johnson Suggests Modernizing Westminster Confession.

NEW YORK, March 5.—Old creeds were attacked and the necessity for revising or replacing them was urged by representatives of two theological seminaries at a meeting of the Presbyterian union last night, while a professor from a third seminary declared that in this critical period of the church's history there should be no meddling with the Westminster confession.

Questions that have been discussed behind closed doors at meetings of presbyteries and on which widely divergent views are entertained by leading theologists were argued before a large attendance of lay and clerical members of the church at the Hotel Savoy. Conservatism was represented by the Rev. Dr. John D. De Witt, professor of church history of Princeton seminary: the demand for new standards of belief was voiced by the Rev. Dr. George Black Stewart, professor of practical theology of Auburn seminary, and the retention of the creed in a modernized form was advocated by the Rev. Dr. Herrick Johnson of McCormick Theological seminary.

Professor De Witt was the first speaker.

"In the present crisis of the church," he said, "we shall pursue the wisest course if we hold the Westminster confession unchanged and direct our efforts to the revival of Christian work at the beginning of the new century. No one of us looks upon our confession as perfect and incapable of improvement, but this is no time to undertake it. Faith is at present engaged in a fight with doubt. Go to the most celebrated theological school, and you will find every department pervaded by an apologetic spirit. Read the most popular books.

"They are filled with a philosophy of doubt. I am criticising no theological seminary, and I do not assail Mr. Balfour or the Rev. Dr. Van Dyke. The age is one of doubt. The new Biblical criticism asserts that the Bible is untrustworthy. This is therefore not the time for creed mending and creed making."

Dr. George Black Stewart, president of Auburn Theological seminary, speaking to the thesis "Entirely new standards of belief are demanded at the present time," said that he would not assail the Westminster confession and catechism, as he venerated them for what they had accomplished in the past.

"Nevertheless we need a new creed," said Dr. Stewart. "We have the right to one. Surely the Westminster divines who exercised this privilege themselves would be the last to deny it to others. The right to formulate a creed carries the right to change it. Every age has the right to state its own faith in its own way. Our church is not without a faith or the ability to express it. We still stand for something in the religious thinking of the world and something positive and real. We still believe in the value of a living creed and in the importance of our church writing one for the age.

"We ought to prepare a new creed for many reasons.

"The simple fact is that the present confession does not correctly or adequately represent the faith of our church today. Neither in point of view nor proportion nor in all of its statements nor in its omissions is it the creed we would write if we were formulating one. The doctrine of preterition, which beyond controversy is in the third chapter, is repugnant to the gospel as understood by all of our members and most of our ministers."

Dr. Stewart said that the new creed should be short, positive, concrete and scientific. Fewness of words, he said, and simplicity of expression should be aimed at.

The Rev. Dr. Herrick Johnson of McCormick Theological seminary advocated restating the Westminster confession in modified form. In the course of his remarks he said:

"Restatement respects the very wide and deep rooted feeling in our church that the old, revered, historic text of our confession should not be tinkered with or have its visage marred by change. Something, say what we may, will always be due in this world to sentiment. To ignore it or seek to sneer it away or stamp it out is to strike a blow at some of the most sacred as well as subtle and mighty forces in social and religious life.

"Obviously therefore by doctrinal restatement we are not laying aside the old confession or the old faith. Simplifying a truth is not rejecting it. Clarifying a doctrinal system is not putting it on the shelf."

A Prosperous Railroad.

PHILADELPHIA, March 5.—The Pennsylvania railroad's annual report for 1900 announces that at the approaching shareholders' meeting, on March 12, they will be asked to increase the issue of capital stock, accept the state constitution of 1874 and the classification of the board of directors. The amount of increase in capital is not as yet stated The report gives the gross earnings of all the Pennsylvania lines east and west of Pittsburg for the year at $172,924,738 operating expenses $118,849,182 and net earnings $54,075,556. Compared with 1899 the gross earnings increased $20,525,650 and the net $8,399,844.

Forming a Cabinet.

MADRID, March 5.—Senor Villeverde was busy yesterday conferring with the leading members of the various political parties regarding the personnel of the new cabinet. It is understood that he has offered the foreign office portfolio to the Duke of Mandas, Spanish embassador to Great Britain, and is awaiting his reply before submitting the full list to the queen regent.

Late last evening Senor Villaverde conferred with the queen regent, informing her that he had failed to construct a cabinet and must decline to pursue the endeavor further.

More Chinese Arrested.

MALONE, N. Y., March 5.—Another lot of 23 Chinamen were arrested north of Malone, on the Canadian line, yesterday. These, with the 23 in the Malone jail, were taken to Ogdensburg, where they were arraigned and later sent to jail at Canton.

Weather Probabilities.

SECOND TERM BEGINS

Grand Ball Winds Up McKinley's Second Inaugural.

MARRED BY FIRST LADY'S ILLNESS

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The one incident to throw a sort of gloom over the general festivities of inauguration day came at the grand ball, when Mrs McKinley, the first lady of the land suddenly became indisposed. The president would not leave her, and so the grand march, for which all was ready had to be given up. Mrs. McKinley's condition was not serious, but the excitement of the day had served to unnerve her.

The culminating event of the inaugural festivities was the inaugural ball held in the vast auditorium of the pension office.

When the doors of the great structure were thrown open at 8 o'clock, an eager crowd besieged every entrance and lines of carriages stretched into the surrounding streets and avenues. Platoons of police, mounted and unmounted, guarded the outer entrances, keeping back the rush of curious spectators and bringing order out of the tangle of carriages. Through the long arched entrance, hung with bunting and vines, passed the merry, pleasure seeking throng, the women in luxurious gowns with the flash of jewels in their hair and at their throats.

Soon the vast interior of the building began to take on life and animation. The presidential party was not to arrive until 9:30 o'clock, and the early comers busied themselves in viewing the exquisite beauties of the scene.

The decorations of the ballroom had yellow for their predominant tone. No cumbersome effects of light or color were in evidence, but above and on all sides stretched a wavy, rippling canopy of yellow bunting that covered the walls and skylight and was broken only where the lining of the president's balcony at the west end stood out white in bold relief. Myriads of yellow electric bulbs glowed and blinked like fireflies in the garlands of green that intwined the scores of pillars supporting the galleries and shone out from the stars and bars of the big American shields, which in the midst of clusters of American flags hung high up in the center of each side of the immense crowded hall.

The big fountain in the center of the hall held a billowy mass of the purple bouganvillea, the flower of the Philippines. In the midst rose tall palms and ferns bearing scores of yellow light blossoms, and around the border fringed with the white spirea were placed gilded urns of growing plants and flowers.

In the extreme west of the hall stood the president's balcony decked with groups of Roman wreaths and clusters of American Beauty roses bound with bright colored ribbons. Above the executive's stand flashed a big shield of hand embroidered silk topped with fine stuffed specimens of the great American eagle.

Down at the eastern end was the big stand erected for the musicians. It comprised an upper and lower story, the former for the stringed orchestra and the latter for the accommodation of the big inaugural chorus and the brass band. Back of the singers and musicians was a great gilded sounding board which threw the strains of sound to all parts of the big hall.

The expense of the decorations entire is set down at about $45,000. The floral and electric decorations alone came to nearly $20,000, there being no less than 15,000 electric lights involved in the illumination.

The president and Mrs. McKinley did not lead the grand march, as had been intended, owing to the sudden illness of the latter. This caused great disappointment to all assembled.

THE PARADE.

Never has an inaugural parade in Washington passed off with as little friction and with the general picturesque effect that accompanied the great pageant that served as President McKinley's and Vice President Roosevelt's escort to the White House after they had taken the oath of office under the shadow of the capitol. The police arrangements throughout were exceptionally effective. The inaugural committee had provided a durable barrier of iron posts and wire cable along both sides of Pennsylvania avenue from the Peace monument to Seventeenth street and succeeded in absolutely keeping clear the line of march for the first time in the history of inaugural displays in Washington. This barrier was not broken through at any point during the whole day, and the troops were able to march in extended formation, thereby adding to the beauty of the display and the speed with which the procession was enabled to pass a given point. The start was made from the capitol about 2:15 o'clock, and the last of the civic organizations had passed the reviewing stand at the White House a little before 6 o'clock. Considering the weather conditions the parade in point of numbers closely approximated the official forecast. The promptitude with which it was handled by the grand marshal was decidedly above the average for such an event.

In point of beauty the military display probably never has been exceeded in Washington. The cavalry, infantry and artillery were uniformed as though for the most exacting official inspection, and their discipline was beyond criticism. The same could be said with equal emphasis of the naval contingent. The marines, a splendid body of sea soldiers, and the jackies, with their rollicking free and easy step, were especially well received by the crowds. The naval contingent was larger than ever has been seen in a Washington parade, and the impression it produced reflected the highest credit on the naval officers who had brought their commands to such a state of efficiency. The youthful cadet corps of West Point and Annapolis in the severe simplicity of their uniforms, quick, snappy action and machinelike accuracy with which they performed every evolution were a body quite apart and distinctive from all the others. The band with the naval cadets created much comment as perhaps the best musical organization in the whole procession, rivaling even the famous Marine band of the Washington barracks.

One of the unique features of the military display was a battalion of the Porto Rican regiment recently organized in our island possession and recruited from among the native population. They were not to be distinguished from the other regular infantry regiments except by their swarthy complexions and evidences in their marching of an enthusiasm that won them continuous applause along the line of march. Their welcome was of the warmest.

THE REVIEWING STAND.

The enthusiasm which had greeted the president and vice president along the entire length of the avenue on their return from the capitol to take their places on the reviewing stand reached a climax when their carriages, preceded by Troop A of Cleveland, were seen turning into the court of honor from Fifteenth street. At that moment the thousands seated in the stands stretching from Fifteenth to Seventeenth streets rose in their places and amidst a wilderness of fluttering handkerchiefs and waving hats cheered again and again. The demonstration did not subside until the carriage had re-entered the White House grounds.

The inaugural committee met the president and vice president at the executive mansion and after a short delay escorted them to the reviewing stand at the entrance to Executive avenue, between the White House and the state, war and navy building. All of the reviewing stands on this occasion were uniform in general design and more ornamental than ever before. The small stand which the president and vice president occupied was exceptionally beautiful. It was inclosed in plate glass as a precaution against stormy weather and projected some distance beyond the line of the others. From it an unobstructed view was afforded of the procession as it approached from Fifteenth street.

A few minutes after 6 o'clock the president left the stand, appearing remarkably buoyant and cheerful considering the long hours of exposure, for the most part with bared head. He retired immediately to the White House to dinner and much needed rest before attending the inaugural ball.

Mrs. McKinley reached the White House by a side street ahead of the president, but was very tired when she returned from the capitol and thought it prudent to retire to her room for rest. She did not witness the parade. Her guests, however, were in the stand, as well as many high officials of the government, the members of the diplomatic corps and their ladies and a large number of distinguished visitors who had received special invitations. When the president and vice president and the cabinet members took their places, they were immediately recognized by the throng, and another demonstration was precipitated. The presidential party had hardly made themselves comfortable before the review began.

TAKING THE OATH.

Amid the cheers of thousands and the good wishes of millions William McKinley repeated the second time the words "I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States and will to the best of my ability preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States."

That was really the inauguration. All else was incidental—interesting, impressive, as it should be, in view of the exalted station of the chief magistrate of eighty millions of his fellow citizens; gorgeous, it may be, in consonance with the doctrines of republicanism and the artistic feelings of the American people, but accessory.

Despite elaborate preparations for the start to the capitol, the details of which were perfectly carried out, there was a striking absence of everything resembling pomp and ceremony. As the president emerged from the house he was chatting smilingly with Senator Hanna and the other members of the escort committee. Pausing long enough to bow to the few persons standing on either side of the porch, several of whom were personally known to him, the president entered his own carriage, which was used for the purpose at Mr. McKinley's request. There were no decorations whatever on horses or carriage.

After completing the signing of the bills which awaited him and before appearing at the front of the capitol to take the oath of office himself the president attended in the senate chamber the ceremony of swearing in Vice President Elect Theodore Roosevelt.

The white pillared, roofed stand in which the oath of office was to be administered faced directly south, and about 100 feet directly in front of it in the midst of the crowd was a raised white platform on which stood a battery of cameras. The house and senate stands to the south and north respectively were packed with people standing. In front of the president's stand the crowd spread out. A little to the left in the midst of the crowd were some gayly caparisoned mounted aids and farther along Troop A of Ohio. To the right in a slightly open space near the outskirts of the crowd the West Point and Annapolis cadets stood at ease.

The supreme court and officers, leading the inaugural column, emerged from the main doorway of the capitol at 12:58. They took seats on the left of the presidential stand. Members of the diplomatic corps, headed by Lord Pauncefote of Great Britain, followed, taking the seats reserved for them on the right.

Vice President Roosevelt, accompanied by the officers of the senate, elicited a round of shouts from the crowd. The black clad members of the senate and house followed slowly and stood in front of their blocks of seats.

Thunders of applause greeted the nation's chief executive when, tall and erect, on the arm of Chief Justice Fuller of the supreme court, he strode firmly down the capitol steps to the inaugural pavilion stand. Immediately behind the president walked Senator Marcus A. Hanna, chairman of the Republican national committee, and James K. Jones, chairman of the Democratic national committee.

The president then took his position in the box where he was to take the oath, closely followed by Vice President Roosevelt.

Meanwhile Chief Justice Fuller was waiting with his Bible to administer the oath of office. Vice President Roosevelt stepped back, facing the two. Mr. McKinley took his stand back of a marble table, and Chief Justice Fuller faced him while the oath was administered. With one motion the crowds on the stands bared their heads, and the embassadors nonchalantly uncovered also. Mr. McKinley repeated the oath of office in a firm, steady voice. Then, as he bowed at its conclusion and Chief Justice Fuller retired to a seat in the rear of the stand, another shout burst from the crowd.

William McKinley of Ohio had assumed the reins of our national affairs for another four years. That was the significance of the shout that broke back over the stand, surged through the standing crowd and swept the masses packed two blocks away on the steps of the Library of Congress.

President McKinley, still bareheaded then faced the crowd to begin his inaugural address, but it was fully a minute before the applause died down sufficiently to allow him to make himself heard.

Theodore Roosevelt of New York took the oath of office as vice president of the United States at half past 12 o'clock.

Three years ago, when the country rang with the din of coming war, Mr Roosevelt had suddenly left the gay life of Washington. Strenuous of conscience no less than of physical habit, he had relinquished a comfortable and honorable post in the navy department to don the khaki blouse of a soldier. Many thought his course patriotic, some thought it erratic. Vice President Roosevelt has answered the call of duty again. He returns to the capital once more a factor in Washington life, no longer as a department assistant, but placed by popular franchise in the office next in succession to that of the chief executive.

NO FIREWORKS.

Thousands of persons who assembled in the white lot in the rear of the White House and in adjacent streets and buildings to view the elaborate exhibition of fireworks advertised by the inaugural committee were disappointed. The afternoon rain had thoroughly saturated the grounds, and the committee announced that as it was probable that another downpour would occur during the evening it had been decided to postpone the fireworks. The programme will be carried out tonight should the weather be favorable. The crowd took their disappointment lightly and found the illumination of the court of honor very interesting. All the stands along the court were illuminated with electric lights, while a search light from the top of the state, war and navy department threw a white glare upon the "official section" of the city.

ENGLISH LORDS CLASH.

Wolseley Attacks War Office—Lansdowne's Sharp Reply.

LONDON, March 5.—Sharp words were said in the house of lords yesterday by Lord Lansdowne in replying to a speech by Lord Wolseley, former commander in chief of the army, who tried to throw the blame for Great Britain's military shortcomings on the former secretary of war, magnifying the limitations of his own office. In his reply the Marquis of Lansdowne pointed out, with much heat, many failures of the former commander to put the military forces on a proper basis.

Lord Wolseley's speech was a two hour attack on the military system of Great Britain which, it is understood, he had long meditated. He said his arguments were not directed against individuals, but against the system, which he had tried for five years and found wanting.

His view was that the commander in chief was robbed of his chief usefulness by having to hand over the management of the army to a civilian secretary of state, upon whom the responsibility for everything rested. The commander in chief could only bring the army's needs to the secretary's attention.

"My lords, I need scarcely tell you," said Lord Wolseley impressively, "that our soldiers do not love the war office nor its civilian rulers. You cannot flout the sentiment of the army without injuring its morale."

The Marquis of Lansdowne, replying as former war minister, said Lord Wolseley during his term of office had failed to understand his duties. He might have warned the government that one army corps was not sufficient to crush the Boers. He might have enabled the government to turn to better account the auxiliary forces of the country. He might have told the government before the war that Ladysmith was not a suitable military station. He might have prepared schemes for defensive and offensive operations.

To Visit Mrs. Maybrick.

LONDON, March 5.—Baroness de Roques, who arrived in London last evening to make her quarterly visit to her daughter, Mrs. Florence Maybrick, at Aylesbury prison, said to a press representative: "I have no intention to visit the United States embassy or to contribute in any way to the agitation for my daughter's release at this time. Such unwarranted statements as have recently been made can only injure the cause I seek to serve."

Electric Cabs Give Up Chicago.

CHICAGO, March 5.—After a two year struggle with Chicago's bad streets the Illinois Electric Vehicle company, operating 100 autocabs, has decided to go out of existence. Word to the effect that the directors of the cab company would recommend the winding up of the company early next month was given out yesterday. The directors say that at the present time Chicago is not ready for modern improvements in the way of electric cabs.

BOERS NOT BEATEN.

Reported to Have Twenty-one Thousand Men In the Field.

SMALL ARM AMMUNITION FOR YEARS

An American Just From the Seat of War Says Reports of Surrender Are Absurd—British Bitterly Denounced.

LONDON, March 5.—Mr. W. E. King of Atlanta, who says he was formerly a lieutenant in the Seventy-first regiment in the New York state national guard while in Cuba, has just returned to London from South Africa after serving for more than a year as aid-de-camp to General Delarey, the Boer commander, whom he left Jan. 29. In the course of an interview Mr. King said:

"At the time I left General Delarey the Boers had 21,000 men in the field and sufficient small arm ammunition to last four years. I am going to the continent to assist in the endeavor to get more Krupp guns and shells. Yesterday morning I received a telegram from Colonel Dubois, dated Paris, saying, 'Good news from South Africa.'

"The British will never meet the Boers. Rumors of surrender are absurd. General Louis Botha is generally mistrusted, but even if he were to surrender that would not entail the surrender of the other commanders."

He spoke in the most bitter terms of the British, saying among other things:

"If we ever catch Milner, he won't live 12 hours. He will get such a swift injection of lead that he won't know what struck him."

Mr. King declared that the British ill treated the Boer women. He described several occasions on which American allies of the Boers dressed in khaki entered the British lines at Johannesburg and other places, secured orders for ammunition and other supplies and then drove off with them to the Boer camps.

The Blame For De Wet's Escape.

COLESBERG, March 5.—The blame for General De Wet's escape is placed on the system rather than on the commanders pursuing him. It has been impossible to direct the operations by telegraph, and the feeling is that greater discretion should be allowed commanders in the field. General De Wet marched five miles a day faster than the swiftest British column. Although the Boers are now demoralized, it is believed they will quickly recover if they are allowed a few days' rest.

CIVIL GOVERNMENT SOON.

Indications That a Change Will Soon Be Made In the Philippines.

MANILA, March 5.—The character of some of the measures which the commissioners are privately considering indicate their expectation of the early establishment of general civil government. Whether President McKinley and Secretary Root are in full accord with them regarding this important point is not known here, but if the situation continues to develop favorably it is believed that a Philippine government will be created in the course of a few months.

The fact that there has been no insurgent attacks for months, except isolated instances of firing volleys into towns by marauders who immediately run away at the top of their speed; the rapid spread of peace sentiments in all directions, the large number of those who surrender and the willingness to take the oath of allegiance on all sides—these and similar considerations are all regarded as pointing to the virtual establishment of peace in the near future.

Commissioner Wright last evening completed the draft of a bill, which will doubtless pass the commission before the end of the week, establishing a department of insular constabulary. It creates the office of insular chief of constabulary, the incumbent of which will be appointed by the commission and will have general control as the chief peace officer in the island. He will be authorized to appoint municipal constabulary chiefs, Americans or natives, for the various municipalities, as well as assistant chiefs. In each of the four districts of the archipelago there will be a constable for each 1,000 inhabitants of each municipality and not exceeding one officer for each barrio. All the police organized under military control, including those in Manila, will be incorporated in the new department. The act will go into effect immediately on adoption.

Major Hughes reports that Mondigar, an important insurgent commander in the vicinity of Iloilo, island of Panay, has surrendered with 50 men. Hundreds are reported to have sworn allegiance to the United States government at various points.

Would Examine the Engaged.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 5.—The senate has passed a bill which is designed to limit divorces in Indiana by preventing ill chosen marriages. The bill provides for the appointment of a commission by the governor which shall be composed of two women who are mothers, two physicians of conceded ability and one attorney of high standing, who shall prepare rules for the government of officers in the issuance of marriage licenses and of ministers in performing ceremonies, and examinations shall be made of all applicants for licenses, and no marriage shall be celebrated in the state unless the requirements are complied with.

The New Station.

Probably no improvement which has been made in Plainfield for the last decade will tend to further the city's best interests as much as will the new east bound station of the Jersey Central Railroad, which has just been opened to the public this week. For years, the citizens of Plainfield have hoped for the new station. The question was agitated many times. Finally a committee from the Board of Trade secured an interview with Vice President Warren, of the Central. Mr. Warren assured them that the improvement would be made as soon as possible. And he has kept his word.

Every stranger who passes through Plainfield on one of the trains of the Jersey Central cannot help but be impressed by the two substantial structures which border the track on either side. Of course, the new one is the more imposing but the other is still well suited for the place and, with a little exterior re-decoration, will be a fit companion for the new east bound station.

It is a matter for general satisfaction that the officials of the Jersey Central Railroad care enough for the interests of their Plainfield patrons to build such a costly structure and equip it so well. It shows a broad policy on the part of the railroad officials which will be much appreciated by the citizens of Plainfield.

Plainfield now possesses the best station facilities of any city, Jersey City excepted, along the line of the Jersey Central. Of course, the terminal will naturally be the best equipped, but it speaks well for the city and its trade when such elaborate arrangements are made here.

There is only one thing lacking and that is a ticket office in the west bound station. With only one ticket office, as at present, the would-be passengers intending to take west-bound trains will be considerably handicapped particularly when they have to check baggage as well as purchase a ticket. Elizabeth has two ticket offices and so should Plainfield.

Until the public becomes accustomed to the change, there may be some who will find several of the changes a hardship for them. It has always been a matter for great wonderment, however, that with so many passing trains and no fences to protect the passengers boarding or alighting from any train, no one was killed. Great caution on the part of the local employes undoubtedly prevented many serious if not fatal accidents which will not now be possible under the new arrangements.

Far more successful results can be attained in any school when the parents of the children work in co operation with the instructors. Superintendent Wightman, of the North Plainfield public schools, has always been very glad of any assistance from the parents of the children under his general supervision. This week he has, with the assistance of the corps of teachers in the borough schools, arranged an exhibit of the regular work done in the different branches and has invited the parents of the school children to inspect the work and also visit the schools. There will be no attempt to make a display in the classes but the regular work will be done so that the parents may see for themselves the methods used. While a special invitation is extended at this time, Mr. Wightman is always glad to see the parents of the children at any time.

Political campaigns in Plainfield and North Plainfield have been, of late years, pleasantly free from "mud-slinging." Neither party has favored such a course and does not at the present day. The attempt to incorporate it into the campaign of the Democrats of the borough has not found sympathy with the men of that party. The alleged Democratic pamphlet, which has appeared in the borough, is deeply regretted by the better class of borough Democrats who are very much opposed to campaign work of that character. The sooner such abusive attacks cease, the better it will be for the interests of the Democrat party in North Plainfield.

A Boston advertiser who has used nearly all of the various forms of publicity told a Boston Herald interviewer recently that he now relies mainly on newspaper advertising. "Other advertising makes no permanent impression on me; but when I take up a newspaper it is for the purpose of learning something and my mind is in a state to receive impressions. If I remember an advertisement I can be sure it was in a newspaper that I had read it."—Philadelphia Record.

Plainfield was represented at the inaugural ceremonies at Washington yesterday. Very little happens these days at which some citizen of Plainfield is not present.

A remarkable fact concerning the evangelistic meeting now in progress is that there are many young men who are taking a deep interest in the movement.

McKinley and Roosevelt are now President and Vice President of the United States.

Never has the city been stirred by such a deep religious feeling as at present.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May Be Of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

After all said and done, if Mr. Meeker hadn't introduced his bill to abolish spring elections, where would the matter be today? Mr. Meeker has had his measure mightily amended, but he deserves the credit for having brought the question to an issue.—Elizabeth Journal.

. . . . . .

The board of governors of the Muhlenberg Hospital, of Plainfield, have been offered a site for their proposed new hospital. The property was offered by Hon. James E Martine and the members of the board are looking it over, in the hope that it may prove just what they need. It is not difficult to get a hospital, but to keep it going nicely—that's a different matter.—Elizabeth Journal.

. . . . . .

The prospects of the passage of the bill abolishing the poll tax in New Jersey, introduced by Senator Reed, of Somerset county, continue to decrease. At first the most pronounced opposition came from the rural counties. Now some of the cities are expressing the fear that the passage of the bill would greatly reduce their revenue. In Essex county, for instance, in which Newark is situated, and which has a large non property owning population, it is said that the reduction of revenue from the poll tax would approximate $40,000.—New York Tribune.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short and Gossipy Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

A teacher in the North Plainfield public school tells the following: A little Italian girl in one of the classes wore such soiled clothes that the teacher of the class wrote a note to the mother of the child asking that the soiled clothes might be washed. The mother sent word to the teacher that she would have to be excused from washing the child's clothes, as they were sewed on for the winter.

The moral and material effect of such support naturally leads to further effort and the mutual advantage of all parties. FIGHT TO RETAIN WESTFIELD'S POLICE.

That Will Be One of Issues of Campaign Preceding March Election in Westfield.

A FIERCE BATTLE IS ON.

HOTEL KEEPERS AND DEMOCRATS WORKING AGAINST THE FORCE.

Want to Give Up That Department—Advocates, Headed by J. Alston Dennis, Are Putting Up Strong Fight to Retain It.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, March 5.—As fierce a political battle as this town has ever known is now on, with two well known hotel keepers and several Democratic leaders on one side and the advocates of a police force arrayed against them.

Charles Burtis, proprietor of the Park Hotel, is the leader of the anti police force and J. Alston Dennis, a member of the township committee, and by virtue of his office, chief of the police department, is for the continuing of that department.

At the last spring election the people voted a small appropriation for the purpose of establishing a police force and John F. Knapp, C. P. Wilcox, Elmer E Woodruff, James Harrison and Thomas O'Neil were uniformed, equipped and sworn in as police officers. From that time the town began to take on a more respectable tone until today a drunken man on the streets, a peddler without a license, or a street fight is a rare sight. The saloon keepers have also been more careful in obeying the laws, and slot machines have become things of the past so far as Westfield is concerned.

There has been a certain amount of opposition to the police for several months, but it has not been openly expressed until last week when an election was held for the purpose of deciding if the people desired to have Westfield incorporated as a city. On that day Mr. Dennis was told that the police appropriation would be killed at the coming election.

The plan of the anti-police force, as expressed by several of their workers is to pack the Democratic primary and prevent the police appropriation of $2,500, recommended by the Township committee, from being placed on the Democratic ticket.

The local papers and a certain element of the town are strongly in favor of the police and, as the hotel keepers have a large following, a close and exciting time is expected, not only at the primaries but at the spring election on Tuesday, March 12.

This question will be the all absorbing one at the election as there is but one important office to fill, that of township committeeman in place of W. W. Connoly, whose term expires. Mr. Connoly has made an excellent official and it is expected that the Republicans will renominate him but the commuters have a candidate, it is said, in the person of James B. Wilson, who was to have had the Republican nomination for mayor. The Democrats have failed to name a candidate as yet, although the names of W. E. Tuttle, Jr., Harry E Knight, John Darsh and Charles Clark have been mentioned.

Chronic Nasal Catarrh poisons every breath that is drawn into the lungs. There is procurable from any druggist the remedy for the cure of this trouble. A small quantity of Ely's Cream Balm placed into the nostrils spreads over an inflamed and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation, cleanses, heals and cures. A cold in the head vanishes immediately. Sold by druggist or will be mailed for 50 cents by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

Will Take Possession.

Wm. Hand & Son, of Park avenue, yesterday moved the goods of J. P. Laire from a freight car into his new home, 415 LaGrande avenue. Mr. Laire and family are expected to take possession today or tomorrow, or as soon as Mrs. Laire's health will permit her removal.

A Horrible Outbreak

HISTORY OF A SAFE.

The First Strong Box Used by the Mormon Church.

Now Preserved by Gentiles at Kirtland, O.—All Efforts Made of Late to Procure It for the "Saints" of No Avail.

An interesting relic of the early days of Mormonism, when Ohio was the home of the prophet, Joseph Smith, has just been presented to the Western Reserve Historical society. It consists of a massive iron, fireproof safe, which has held hundreds of thousands of dollars in money and valuables. For a number of years it was the depository of all the money of the Mormon church. Deeds of property, valuable diamonds and other gems belonging to the church were also stored in this little relic of bygone days.

The depository of the Mormon church in those days was what was known as the Bank of Kirtland. It was after the Mormons became involved in financial difficulties that the bank failed and the big safe or vault of iron and wood was turned over to the attorneys of the church in lieu of fees. Remaining in the possession of the attorneys while they lived, it descended to the family of J. R. Morley, of Painesville, and then to Mrs. C. H. Morley, of Kirtland, who presented it to the Historical society.

The relic is different in construction from the modern safe and is heavy and strong in appearance. During the last week it has been undergoing much needed repairs and now is in good condition. Were it not for the fact that the burglar has progressed in the last 75 years and would make short work of the safe, strong as it appears to be, it would still be used for storing away valuables.

Like all iron safes of the real old-fashioned type, this Mormon safe has hidden springs in sufficient number to tax the ingenuity of the person not acquainted with their location. One of the springs covers the keyhole. It works from without and is simple in construction. By pressing one's thumb on the iron stud nearest the keyhole the hole is immediately closed, giving the same the appearance of having no keyhole whatever.

SAFE WITH A HISTORY.
(First Treasure Box Used by the Mormon Hierarchy.)

On a direct line with the keyhole spring is the most ingenious one of the lot. The manipulation of this makes it impossible for a person not in the secret to open the safe door. A slight pressure of the thumb on one of the studs, however, releases a spring and the door flies open.

Aside from these peculiarities there is nothing to be commended in the usefulness of the safe. Without dynamite or explosives of any description it could be opened on short notice. The studs could be torn from their fastenings with the aid of an ordinary hatchet and with a cold chisel the thin wrought iron bands could be cut open. Once through the thin outer shell of the wrought iron, progress would be easy. First there would be a layer of fireproof wood to cut through, then a sheeting of tin. All the inner compartments are fashioned out of this last mentioned metal. The safe was manufactured about the year 1820 by Jesse Delano, of New York city.

On the inside of the door is pasted the following notice: "This safe was taken on account by the late law firm of Perkins & Osborn (Painesville) from Joseph Smith and others then in Kirtland, O., and is the same, as I was informed and believe, used by the said Smith and others for a vault and place of safe keeping for the valuables of the bank in Kirtland, O."

A newspaper clipping also pasted on the inside of the safe door explains that the safe became the property of Perkins & Osborn in the year 1837, they taking it in part payment for their fees as attorneys for the prophet. Later it was used by that firm and remained in the firm's office at Painesville until the partnership was dissolved. It then became the property of William L. Perkins, remaining in his office until, as property, it reverted to J. R. Morley and subsequently to his daughter, Mrs. C. H. Morley, of Kirtland.

Efforts have been repeatedly made by the Mormons to gain possession of the relic, but overtures on their part have always been unsuccessful.

A CASE OF IT.

Many More Like It In Plainfield.

The following case is but one of many similar occurring daily in Plainfield. It is an easy matter to verify its correctness. Surely you cannot ask for better proof than such conclusive evidence.

Mrs. W. W. Mills, of No. 86 Summit avenue, says: "I suffered at times with a severe pain across the small of my back and in my hips. If I did any lifting or stooping my back became lame and sore and though I used plasters they only helped me for the time being. I was feeling very badly when I had my attention called to Doan's Kidney Pills. They were so highly recommended for troubles like mine that I got a box at L. W. Randolph's drug store. I felt their good effects in a few days. When I had finished the treatment my back was better and stronger and I had much more energy to attend household duties."

STRENGTHEN THE NERVES.

Persons whose occupations wear upon their nerves ought to use Ripans Tabules. They tone up the nerves and keep the body healthy. A literary man of Augusta, Me., gives some interesting facts regarding his own case: "I was completely run down and was suffering constantly from extreme nervousness and sleeplessness and for about two years I was never without that tired feeling. My stomach was in a weak condition and I was unable to eat the lightest of food without having distressing pains, and gas forming continually on my stomach made me miserable. I tried all the advertised remedies for dyspepsia but found no relief until two months ago a friend advised me to try Ripans Tabules and I am now feeling well. I can eat almost any kind of food, have no gas on my stomach and the tired feeling is all gone. I feel well and Ripans cured me. Too much cannot be said of their merits and I recommend them to all."

TABLE DECORATION.

Ornamentation For the Dining and Luncheon Board.

The latest way of marking tablecloths is to have two ciphers or monograms placed at the two seats of honor. Napkins have the cipher in one corner or even in the middle.

Very fine white damask receives no decoration except the cipher, as the design is in itself sufficient ornament. Plain linen, however, is enriched by embroidery, lace or guipure. Pure white is used for formal dinners, but tinted damasks are seen at luncheons and for the tea table or white linen embroidered in colors.

Some sort of floral decoration is always desirable for the table, even at the ordinary family dinner. The fashion of tall epergues has happily been abandoned, and now a flat basket or fern dish occupies the center of the table and is filled with short stemmed flowers, low ferns or fruit intermingled with foliage. Ferns are the most durable decoration, as they will last for several weeks if properly cared for and watered daily.

The picture given today illustrates a bolero of cloth. It is short and fastens with three enameled buttons. The tight sleeves have deep cuffs, and the edges of the cuffs and of the bolero are finished with stitched bands of cloth. The collar and revers are of fur, and there is a stiff satin cravat. The bolero is worn over a bodice of panne, and there is a wide corselet belt of elastic tissue closed by a long enameled buckle.

NOVELTIES.

Little Variations and New Ideas In Trimming.

For walking costumes rough, hairy woolen goods are having a great success. Shaggy materials or those having a rough surface like homespun are in demand and compose some very attractive toilets for general use. The skirt may be moderately short, but for all formal occasions such skirts are tabooed, and long, enveloping folds are essential.

Novelty very often consists in some little detail rather than in any strikingly new departure in the way of cut or color. For example, there are two things which give one effect of novelty to an otherwise simple bodice—one is the use of small gold buttons, which are replacing the crystal ones seen last year; another is the bow or cravat of velvet, satin or gold ribbon, the ends of which terminate in metal spikes or ornamental tips. These latter are utilized almost universally, but lose their effectiveness when too many at once are employed.

The picture shows a costume of pink bengaline. The skirt has a deep circular flounce headed by scallops of lace application. The tight bodice is plain and has a wide lace collar and a little guimpe of pink mousseline de soie. It closes at the left side under a line of little black velvet bows, which are carried down the side of the skirt to the flounce. The pagoda sleeves have cuffs trimmed with bows and full puffs of pink mousseline de soie at the wrist. The high collar is of draped mousseline de soie and the belt of black velvet. The hat is of chenille braid trimmed with a large pink ostrich plume.

The Moonshiners and Loggers of the Tennessee Mountains.

In the Cities of the State, However, the March of Progress Has Made Itself Felt, Socially and Commercially.

[Special Chattanooga Letter.]

FROM the picturesque Blue Grass region of Kentucky through the wild, weird mountain scenery to Chattanooga is almost like a transformation to a far distant country, so great is the change. The beautiful hemp fields are changed for the more rugged views of mountain streams, mountaineers, and their primitive cabins, with moonshiners' huts in the distant nooks, almost concealed from view, and only approached by trails. The cabin of the mountaineer woodsman is off the roads—the mountaineer has no use for roads, nor the time to make them. These cabins are usually by the side of a swift stream that tumbles down from the mountain, swiftly hurrying on to the Tennessee river, or else perched on the mountain side, seemingly on the verge of tumbling down, yet hesitating out of regard for its numerous and humble occupants. The mountaineers are mainly engaged in the timber and coal industries. The few who make moonshine whisky do not engage in the illicit distillery for revenue only, but mainly for home consumption. As they are large consumers, according to popular reports, comparatively little of the stuff is sold. When brought to the city it must be diluted, for the moonshine article has a taste that takes hold, and is something like an electric shock to those not accustomed to drinking hemlock, or poison. Periodical efforts are made to stop "moonshining," but the mountaineers have a system of signals by which the approach of an officer is rapidly communicated. Many who are not moonshiners encourage the industry, because they want an occasional jug of the electricity. Consequently, the small farmers, lumbermen and coal men are friendly to the moonshiners, and will throw the government "spies" off the track at every opportunity. Furthermore, there is considerable danger in attempting to "run down" the owners of these primitive distilleries, for they are well armed and are attended by vicious dogs, who not only give timely warning of the approach of a stranger but "lay hold" of him as a common enemy.

This mountain section is sparsely settled, and the slopes are covered with forests of commercial timber. In some sections the forests are dense, yet the numerous lumber camps show that inroads are being made upon them. Millions of feet of logs are rafted yearly down the mountain streams to the Tennessee. The lumber is then shipped east, where it is manufactured into furniture and shipped south. Chattanooga, however, has within the past year erected a number of woodworking plants, which are shipping their products to southern points; also to the West Indies and South America.

These mountains are also rich in coal—the fires of the coke ovens, which are always burning, make the mountain scenery even more picturesque, especially at night. The coal diggers and the coke burners build their huts in this wilderness, which, when exhausted of its timber, is occupied by the farmer, who plants small grain and fruits, and thus this weird section becomes settled. The coal fields of the state, according to the figures of the Chattanooga chamber of commerce, cover an area of 5,000 square miles, and the production of 1900 was about 4,000,000 tons. There are about 100 mines being worked. The coke product is 500,000 tons. Copper, zinc and phosphates are also mined. There are large beds of phosphates in the district tributary to Chattanooga, which have been recently located by eastern capitalists. Rich marble deposits are being developed, also by northern capital. Some of the finest city residences in Tennessee, and best business blocks, were built of native marble. It has been demonstrated by capitalists that the opportunities for iron plants, pulp mills and textile mills are almost unlimited. The tobacco crop of 1900 was 60,000,000 pounds, and a larger area is being cultivated in the level section adjoining the Blue Grass region of Kentucky.

The manufacturing industries of Tennessee are manifold, and its products are more varied, perhaps, than those of any other state in the country. From the uplands flow pure, cold streams, fed from mountain springs, which form a drainage and natural irrigation system—as perfect as the most exacting farmer could wish—all flowing into the Tennessee river—the great natural highway of this "Gate City," or open door, connecting the south with the middle and the eastern states. Negro labor is largely employed in the logging and lumber industries, and in getting out bridge-timbers, telegraph poles, hoop-poles, etc. The colored man is reliable, and the "colored" camps are noted for the peace and good order that uniformly prevail, except when the peddler of "moonshine" invades these "log-towns.'" Negro labor is cheaper than white labor, and this is an important item to the large lumber corporations. There is ample room for schools in these timber districts, but neither the white nor the colored element care much whether or not the schoolmaster remains abroad indefinitely. However, when these mountains shall be denuded of their forests, and permanent settlers crowd out the "log" men, and perhaps the moonshiner, schools will necessarily come. The valleys and "coves" of this wild section will also ultimately be settled by a more thrifty people, when education will follow prosperity. This fertile country is undergoing a change for the better—new men with new ideas, and many with capital, are settling here. Capitalists, professional men and laborers have learned of the many advantages of this section, and as water seeks its level, naturally they are finding room for the employment of their labor and intelligence, and investment for their capital. "New Chattanooga" has been appropriately termed the manufacturing center of the new industrial south.

From a population of 5,000 just after the close of the civil war, from which period the city dates its metropolitan history, it now has a population of 60,000—including its suburbs. The immediate area of the city (within the influence of northern capital) has advanced almost proportionately. These suburban settlements and villages have sprung into existence within the past few years, through eastern capital, and a number of factories have here been established—where municipal taxes are lighter. Only about 25 per cent. of the population of Chattanooga is colored, and the negro element is rapidly decreasing—receding to a less progressive section. Within the last year the suburbs have expanded, and it is stated that eastern capitalists will soon invest $1,000,000 in the extension of electric lines to these industrial centers on the outskirts of the city.

While Chattanooga is historically known as a military strategic point, it is also an excellent commercial point and a natural highway on the line of travel. A century ago the Virginians and North Carolinians passed through this "gateway" seeking homes in Kentucky and the northwest. They floated down the rivers now known as the Tennessee and the Ohio and settled new sections. The river banks swarmed with hostile Indians, and their flatboats were frequently attacked and burned by the savages. Finally the whites made a settlement at this point, which served as a landing for the flatboats of emigrants, where they "tied up" at nights.

For many years the place was known as "The Landing," and, later, as "Ross' Landing," so called for John Ross, a Cherokee chief, who then lived about four miles from the present city of Chattanooga. He was educated, and it is handed down as a tradition that he translated the New Testament into Cherokee dialect. It is also a tradition that his cabin is still standing, and guides point it out to visitors—or, another cabin on the same spot. It is, however, true that Ross did establish a Christian mission here, and that, about 1820, there were several Indian missions on the eastern slopes of what is now called Missionary ridge. Though the population at that early period was not more than 500, this was an important trading point and "landing." It was also one of the roughest on the river—the robber and cut-throat element forming a large part of the flating population. These lived in flatboats, and committed depredations afloat or on shore, moving with the tide of immigration.

Finally the Indians were removed to Indian territory, when there was a general removal of the tribes westward, and in 1840 "Ross' Landing" was officially named "Chattanooga"—after a noted tribe.

Place of the Great Lakes in American Commerce

Some Comparative Figures That Show the Importance of These Inland Waters

ON. JAMES R. Mann, of Chicago, in making an appeal to the house of representatives for an appropriation for the improvement of the great lakes, presented some rather startling, though perfectly truthful, figures.

The nation, and especially the national lawmakers, have seemingly gotten into the habit of looking to our ocean ports for their figures of shipping. They know that ships come and go on the great lakes, but that these vessels represent the greatest marine shipping interests of the nation has evidently been beyond their belief.

Yet such is the case. New York is the only port in America that surpasses Chicago in point of entrance and clearage tonnage of marine shipping, and while New York shows the greatest tonnage by reason of it being the terminal of the great ocean liners, in the number of vessels entered and cleared the Chicago total is almost double that of New York—the figures being 17,553, with a tonnage of 14,186,190 for Chicago, and 8,304, with a tonnage of 15,203,756 for New York.

But there is no other port in America which touches, either in point of vessels entered and cleared or in point of tonnage, Chicago as a marine commercial center. To show this I quote directly from the speech of Mr. Mann, which gives every desirable figure:

SCENE IN BUFFALO HARBOR.
Steamer "Northwest" Leaving for Duluth.

"The total entrances of vessels engaged in the foreign trade at Boston for the year ending June 30, 1899, were 1,780, and the total clearances were 1,707, making a total of 3,487 vessels, with a tonnage of 4,002,543.

"The entrances at New York for the same period in the foreign trade were 4,250 and the clearances 4,054, or a total of 8,304, with a tonnage of 15,203,756.

"The entrances at Philiadelphia in the foreign trade for the same period were 1,028 and the clearances 1,088, or a total of 2,116 vessels, with a tonnage of 3,346,808.

"The entrances in the foreign trade at Charleston harbor for the same period were 109 and the clearances 80, or a total of 189 vessels, with a tonnage of 219,225.

"The entrances in the foreign trade at Savannah harbor for the same period were 320 and the clearances 321, or a total of 659 vessels, with a tonnage of 668,079.

"The entrances in the foreign trade for the same period at New Orleans were 1,066 and the clearances 1,022, or a total of 2,088 vessels, with a tonnage of 2,871,031.

"The entrances at Galveston harbor for the same period in the foreign trade were 514 and the clearances 563, or a total of 1,077 vessels, with a tonnage of 1,788,141.

"The total number of vessels engaged in foreign trade entering at all of the ports on our Pacific coast for the year ending June 30, 1899, was 3,007, and the number clearing was 3,092, or a total of 6,099, with an aggregate tonnage of 3,266,585.

"I have not the figures for the last year of the city of Buffalo, but for 1899 the total entrances and clearances for the Buffalo port were 10,417 vessels, with a tonnage of 10,481,043.

"The total entrances and clearances in the Chicago harbor district for the year 1900 were 17,553 vessels, with a tonnage of 14,186,190.

"Chicago and Buffalo do not monopolize the lake traffic. There are plenty of other ports—Milwaukee, Duluth, Cleveland, Ashtabula and many other places upon the great lakes—which are also of great importance."

In the ships that sail these great inland seas are carried the products of the western farms to the markets of the east and to those of Europe. They serve as a means of transportation for the metals mined in Michigan and Wisconsin to the factories of Ohio and Pennsylvania, or for the coal and manufactured products of the east to the consumer of the northwest. They form the strongest competitor of the railroads it is possible to get between the producers of the west and the markets of the east. As an instance of this Mr. Mann cites the fact that it cost 12 cents a bushel to transport grain from Chicago to New York by rail and but five cents a bushel to send it by water. What the rail rate would be if the railroads had not the marine competition to contend against it is scarcely possible to estimate.

To-day we are able to compete with the factories of England and all Europe in iron and steel products. This is true to such an extent that the nations of Europe are considering various methods of prevention, fearing that failure to restrict American trade in their markets will result in industrial disaster at home. One of the things that make such competition possible is the cheap transportation offered the crude ore to the place of manufacture. Ships sailing the great lakes carry this ore now, but if they did not, and it had to be carried by rail, the increased cost of transportation, whether for the crude ore or the manufactured product, would increase the selling price to such an extent as to make American competition in European markets practically impossible. It is probably a comparatively small difference, but it is a difference that gives employment to many thousands of American mechanics.

The same thing gives to the western farmer a better price for his wheat and other grain that is sold in the markets of the east or in Europe. It is the producer that invariably pays the freight, either directly or indirectly, and the great lakes offer to the western farmer a cheaper way of reaching his market than do the railroads.

To go back again to the speech of Mr. Mann, we find some more interesting figures that give a good idea of the importance of the great lakes to the commerce of the country. He says:

"The number of domestic steam vessels inspected for the year ended June 30 last was as follows:

"For the Pacific coast, 913 vessels, with a tonnage of 384,271.

"For the Atlantic coast, 3,666 vessels, with a tonnage of 988,820.

"For the western rivers, 985 vessels, with a tonnage of 143,958.

"For the gulf coast, 615 vessels, with a tonnage of 99,252.

"For the great lakes, 2,129 vessels, with a tonnage of 1,118,224.

"It will be noticed that while the number of vessels inspected on the great lakes is considerably less than the total inspected on the Atlantic and gulf coasts, yet their tonnage is greater than the combined tonnage of all the domestic vessels on the Atlantic and gulf coasts. This shows not only that the commerce of the great lakes is greater than the combined coastwise commerce of the Atlantic and gulf coasts, but that the average size of the vessels engaged in the lake commerce is at least twice as large as the average size of the vessels engaged in coastwise commerce on the Atlantic and gulf coasts.'

Such figures serve to give one a better idea of the importance of the great lakes and what they mean to the people of the central, western and northwestern states.

PREPARING TO MAKE SEWER BED CHANGES.

Dumont, wife of President Dumont, in which the sympathy of the Council was expressed for the bereaved family in their loss. The memorial was ordered spread on the minutes.

Mr. Lee moved that George E. Rogers be elected constable in place of a man of the name of Jacobs, who failed to quality. On a motion offered by Mr. Tolles, the check of A. Di Bendetto & Co., sewer contractors, was returned to them at their own request, as the firm had failed to make a full and complete bid.

Mr. Buckle offered a resolution that the fire and building committee be empowered to expend a sum not exceeding $150 for the purchase of a horse for the fire department. The resolution was adopted. Mr. Corlell stated, by way of explanation, that there is now one horse sick at headquarters and it had been necessary to hire another horse at $1 per day. He thought it wise to buy a new animal, then if the sick horse gets well he can be used in another part of the service. The department veterinary was unable to give much hope for the animal's recovery.

Mr. Tolles introduced an ordinance providing for the proposed improvement of the sewage beds, according to the specifications heretofore published. It awarded the contract to the lowest bidders, the Gleason-Kiely Contracting Company, of Syracuse, N. Y., whose figures were $37,187.57. Mr. Tolles explained that the Corporation Counsel had given instructions to have the ordinance read once for the benefit of the Council and then advertised, after which it is to be presented for adoption on first reading. This action was taken. After a motion was made that when the Council adjourn it be to meet Monday evening, March 18, Mr. Tolles moved that that date be fixed as the time to take action on the foregoing ordinance.

Mr. Tolles offered a resolution which provided for the disposal of the city steam roller by the street committee and the purchase of a new one at a net expense of $2,400. Another resolution by Mr. Tolles provided that the checks of all bidders on the sewage improvements, with the exception of the successful bidder, be returned to them. The Council then took a short recess to discuss street sprinkling.

When the Council reconvened Mr. VanHerwerden requested the chairman of the various committees to hand him their estimate for the year's appropriation for the several departments within the next ten days, so that the annual budget could be made up before the regular April meeting. The Council then adjourned.

CLAIMED PLAINFIELD AS HOME

DUNLAP M'ADAM IS HEARD FROM IN FLORIDA.

Said He Worked at Shipyards in Plainfield—Last Story Was That He Was Held Up And Robbed.

The St. Augustine, Fla., Evening Record, of March 1, contains an account of the finding on one of the main streets of that city, in an unconscious condition, a young man who gave the name of Dunlap McAdam and who on being taken to a hospital claimed to have been sandbagged and robbed of a valise containing two suits of clothing, a sum of money amounting to $39 33 and a steamship ticket to New York. On being interviewed by a reporter the lad claimed Plainfield, N J. as his home and said that he had been employed in the shipyards there. He explained his presence in St. Augustine by saying that he had heard so much of Florida and the oldest American city in particular and so he had decided to spend two weeks in sight-seeing. It was while he was strolling about one of the streets that a sudden blow from behind struck him down.

The hospital authorities found a contusion on the back of McAdam's head seemingly produced by some soft instrument.

McAdam's residence in this city, if it be the same man, was limited to a week's stay at Muhlenberg hospital where he was taken by the police. He was picked up at the North Avenue station by Patrolman Lunger who found him rolling about the platform in a fit. On being questioned by Chief Kiely he said that he was on his way from Australia to his home in Florida and that he had been ejected from a train, his funds having given out.

He was discharged from the hospital last week and on his departure several kind hearted citizens gave him a new suit of clothing and his fare to Florida. He claimed that his parents lived in Tampa.

During his detention at the hospital here, McAdam acted very queerly at times and by many it was believed that he was demented.

Story of Emperor William.

We hear a great deal about Emperor William of Germany that is not true, and the fact that the empire grows every year more prosperous under his rule may be taken as proof that he is by no means the conceited fellow he has been portrayed. "The kaiser," says an American correspondent, "is very fond of Americans. One day I was attending a function where the emperor and all the nobility were present. Poultney Bigelow, the American author, whom I know quite well, was also on the floor. The kaiser was standing erect in his box on one side of the hall, facing the empress with her ladies and friends on the other side. As Bigelow passed under the box the emperor suddenly leaned forward and called out, loud enough to be heard for a considerable distance: "Hello, Poultney!" Bigelow replied only with a stiff salute, for he is something of a diplomat, but there was nothing formal in the emperor's greeting.—Golden Day.

Queer Art Treasures in Persia.

Probably the queerest aggregation of treasure and trash is in the shah's palace in Teheran, Persia. Here, in the gallery of art, side by side, are hung a picture issued by the thread manufacturers whose trade mark, the initials "O. N. T.," have gone all over the world, and a beautiful painting by a well-known Italian artist, the gift of a sovereign. On a sideboard in the peacock throne room are exhibited a dozen nickel-plated knives, forks and spoons. In this room, on the right of the famous peacock throne, which was valued by the late Sir Richard Burton at $25,000,000, stands a splendidly carved mahogany table. On the table reposes, with an air of oriental elegance, an empty cognac bottle. No one knows what the bottle means or who put it there—that is, no one but the shah, and no one is asking him about it.—N. Y. Sun.

A Perfect Lady.

It was on a cable car, and two young women were talking at a lively rate. One of them said: "I never had a more pleasant evening. I liked Mrs. Blank so much. Indeed, I enojyed her company very much. She is a perfect lady, and knows what is due to her. She never took the trouble, like others, to set out a table with a lot of stuff on it, but she just had a tray and glasses and a pitcher, and the gentlemen of the company took the pitcher in turn and had it filled. Oh, she is a perfect lady and knows what is her due. When I have a home of my own I am going to do just the same. I like to see people know what is due to them."—N. Y. Herald.

Where Milk Is Banned.

Chinese law and custom forbid the drinking of cow's milk. Man should not rob animals of their own proper food, and of all animals the cow is the most valuable to man. The sellers of milk blacken their souls for gain, but those who drink milk do so in the foolish belief that it is good for them. Milk is the natural food of babes and of young animals, but when adults drink it do they not thereby endanger the life of the suckling calf and arouse bitter resentment in the souls of the calf and its mother?—Loo Chow Herald.

GREAT SUCCESS FOR THE GOSPEL CAMPAIGN

Four Evangelistic Meetings Were Held Yesterday and all Four Largely Attended.

FOUR MEETINGS TODAY.

AT EVENING SERVICES MANY SHOWED DESIRE TO WORK FOR CHRIST.

Evangelist Hall Spoke at First Baptist Church—City Judge Runyon Also Spoke—Rev. T. S. Henderson Also Conducted Services.

Never has Plainfield been so thoroughly stirred by an evangelistic movement as by the present gospel campaign which has ushered in the new century in all the large cities of the land. Last week the meetings began in this city and they have steadily awakened the religious fervor of the people. This week Evangelist William Phillips Hall and Rev. Theo. S. Henderson are in charge.

Two meetings were held yesterday afternoon and two more last evening. Meetings will be held in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church every afternoon, except Saturday, this week, preceded by a half hour prayer service, which will begin at 3 o'clock. A meeting for children will be held in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church this afternoon and at the First Baptist church tomorrow afternoon, beginning at 4 o'clock. Meetings will be held at the First Baptist church and Hope chapel every evening this week, except Saturday, beginning at 7:45 o'clock. Rev. T. S. Henderson will be in charge of the afternoon meeting at the Crescent Avenue church and the evening meeting at Hope chapel. F. H. Jacobs will conduct the children's service while Wm. Phillips Hall will speak at the evening service in the First Baptist church.

FIRST AFTERNOON SERVICE.

Rev. Mr. Henderson Spoke to Well Attended Meeting in Crescent Avenue Church.

The first of the series of afternoon meetings to be held this week in connection with the evangelistic services now being conducted by William Phillips Hall, was held yesterday afternoon in the Crescent Avenue church. That edifice was well filled with a congregation largely composed of women. Rev. Theodore S. Henderson was in charge of the service, and he was assisted by W. C. Weeden, the evangelistic singer, who conducted the song service and sang two solos. The regular service was held at 3:30 o'clock, but during the preceding half hour a prayer service was held seeking God's blessing on the meetings and work being done in this city.

Mr. Henderson took for his text a part of the forty-first verse of the Seventy-eighth Psalm: "They Limited the Holy One of Israel," and from these words he gave a profound, yet simple talk that held the closest attention of everyone present. In part he spoke as follows:

"Here we have a charge against God's own people, before whom He placed the highest ideals for Christian living. This people was stupid, stubborn, and they defeated God's very end in view. My text has a searching truth therein. Can it be that God can be limited, He who is all-wise: Is it possible that He, whose wisdom is unfailing, can be defeated? Can man, who is very weakness itself, limit God in His power?

"If God were nothing more than mere wisdom there would be a question of limiting His power. His love is a restraining but not a compelling love, and thus it is possible to hinder the divine plan. With every possibility there is also a responsibility We can limit the Holy One of Israel Truth is not a thing of convenience to be left at home when we go on our vacations, to be taken up again when we find the need of it.

"If you won't obey God's first precept, He won't give you the second. Plainfield is redeemed as far as God is able to provide for its redemption, but the city is not redeemed in fact. However, there is nothing lacking on the part of God in the redemption of the city and He will always do His GIFT TO THE HIGH SCHOOL.

VALUABLE COLLECTION OF MINERALS AND ORES WAS PRESENTED.

Given by Miss Ella Serrell to the Science Department of Plainfield High School.

A valuable collection of minerals and ores has recently come into the possession of the Plainfield High School as the gift of Miss Ella Serrell, of Plainfield avenue. This collection will form an addition to the hundreds of specimens of minerals and metals already enclosed in the High School cabinets.

Many of the original specimens were presented by Stephen A. Krom, of Madison avenue. The High School also owns a rare collection of stuffed birds which was gathered by A. J. Gavett, of West Fifth street, prior to the formation of the Audubon Society.

In the Miss Serrell collection are specimens of felspar, stilacite, coral, silver and gray copper, iron pyrites, spinal stone, conglomerate, smoky quartz, Cuban copper, galena, malachite, crustacean, opal fossil shell, radiated gypsum and weather limestone.

Among the curios is a decorated piece of lava from Vesuvius. Stones taken from the top of Mount Lafayette and from the White Mountains are in the collection as is also a piece of rock from Fort Ticonderoga. A large specimen of coquina and a piece of carbonate of lime formed as a deposit in a pipe of running water are two other interesting specimens of the collection.

WANT NEW SIDEWALKS.

Fanwood Council is Trying to Ascertain Public Sentiment in That Borough on The Subject.

(Special to The Daily Press.

Fanwood, March 6—The residents of the borough of Fanwood are still agitating the proposed plan to change the borough sidewalks from crushed stone, gravel and cinders to a more modern style, concrete. During the past week a circular has been sent to all the residents asking them to send to the Council their opinion of the proposed improvement. If enough answers favorable to the change are received the Council will recommend that the matter be made an issue at the spring election which is to be held March 12.

The plan proposed is to issue borough bonds of ten years, each year to cancel a certain amount by taxing each property owner per foot on the property benefited. The change is meeting with some objection as a number are of the opinion that the walks, many of which have only been recently improved, are good enough for the present.

DEMOCRATIC NOMINEES.

Democratic Primary Held at Dunellen Last Evening - R. J. Swackhamer For Mayor.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, March 6—The Democratic voters of the borough held their primaries in the town hall last evening for the purpose of preparing their tickets for the election to be held Tuesday. There was an extra good attendance, but with one exception the various nominations were made without opposition.

R. J. Smackhamer, the present Mayor, was nominated for re-election to that office without a dissenting vote as was also J. H. L Peters for assessor. For councilmen a number of names were mentioned among them being Wm. J. Winges, John Logan, Louis Schneider and J. F. G. Kenney. The latter two secured the vote. The remaining nomination, that of freeholder was given to P. C. Staats, who is serving in that capacity at present.

Resolutions of Sympathy Passed.

LEARNING HOW TO COOK.

SOMETHING ABOUT CULINARY DEPARTMENT OF BOROUGH SCHOOLS.

Department is Under Charge of Miss Taylor And is Well Equipped For Work.

Through the courtesy of the genial superintendent of the North Plainfield public schools a reporter for the Daily Press was permitted to inspect the public school's lately organized manual training department and especially to be present at a practical demonstration in the culinary art as taught in a thoroughly systematic and intelligent manner by the capable instructor, Miss Bessie Taylor, a graduate of Pratt Institute.

The pupils are given a knowledge step by step of every branch of cooking from the mere baking of ordinary prepared materials to turning out pastry fit for an epicure. The proper kneeding, raising and baking of bread and the art of making delicious rolls is a lesson upon which much time is spent. Salads and cold deserts such as gelatines come in for a full share of attention. The pupil is taught exactly how to warm over cooked material so that it may retain as far as possible its original flavor.

The teacher very kindly explained the fundamental principles, and the various sorts of cooking in a way that showed a complete mastery of the subject, but which, to a great extent, was too much for a reporter to digest.

The model kitchen, which serves as a labratory for future chefs of Plainfield homes, is well appointed in every detail. The range, itself, is of the most approved pattern and the additional cooking apparatus, which is an improvement on the ordinary gas stove, consists of a number of fine gas pipes percolated with small holes placed at regular distances and used as gas jets. These pipes run the full length of the tables, which are two in number, and are fixed at a distance a few inches from the top surface. The tables are covered with sheet iron upon which is overlaid handsome marble tiling.

In the room are to be found a pantry and all other accessories of a well ordered kitchen. The utensils used are serviceable, durable and numerous. In no sense is the pupil a "parlor cook," for one is taught to properly make a fire in the range, sweep the room, cleanse the pots and pans and to keep the kitchen in a tidy condition at at all times. The young girls "wash up" the rooms after the cooking lesson is finished and thereby a lesson is learned which counts for much in later years. At present the course is open only to pupils in the classes from the eighth grade up.

WIDENING GIRAUD AVENUE.

Property Owners Have Consented and Work Has Been Started By City Employes.

Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett having received permission from the owners, has put men at work widening Giraud avenue from West Front street to the brook, so that it will be of the same width as in North Plainfield.

Gravel from the cellar of Smalley Brothers' new building will be used to fill the street.

It is understood that the Freeholders will build a new bridge when the widening is completed.

New News Stand.

It is quite likely that the Union News Company will soon erect a new stand at the new railroad station. Under the present rule Alfred Lacey, the agent, is obliged to spend a great portion of the morning on that side of the track, and the arrangement is not a convenient one. Better facilities will undoubtedly be made at an early date.

PARK GOLF CLUB IN GOOD CONDITION.

Annual Reports Show All Bills Paid and Money in Treasury.

ANNUAL MEETING HELD.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS AT MEETING OF TRUSTEES.

C. W. McCutchen Was Again Chosen President—Will Have Green and Golf Committees in Coming Season.

There was a renewal of interest in golf last evening when the members of the Park Golf Club held their annual meeting at the Park Clubhouse on Washington avenue. What was particularly satisfactory was the fact that the income during the past year was large enough to meet every bill against the club and leave a small balance remaining. The prospects for a prosperous year are very bright, and the club was never in better condition than it is today.

The election of the trustees and the receiving of the annual report of the treasurer was all the business to be transacted. One charge was made in the board of trustees. Gifford W. Cooley, who was the efficient treasurer of the club last year, was unable to continue in that place owing to the pressure of other duties and his place on the Board was filled by Samuel Townsend. The election of trustees resulted as follows: Charles W. McCutchen, George T. Rogers, S. St. J. McCutchen, Henry A. McGee, W. J. Buttfield, Meredith Dryden, and Samuel Townsend.

Much interest was shown in the report of the retiring treasurer, Gifford W. Cooley. He reported that all the bills had been paid and that a small balance still remained in the treasury. Every cent owing the club had been collected. Of the money spent over $300 had been for improvements at the clubhouse. He was highly complimented on his careful and painstaking work and general regret was expressed that he felt it necessary to retire from that office.

A meeting of the board of trustees was held immediately at the close of the annual meeting and the following officers were elected: President, Charles W McCutchen; vice-president, George T. Rogers; secretary and treasurer, Meredith Dryden. It was decided to consolidate the offices of secretary and treasurer.

No committees were chosen and such action will be delayed until the return of the president, C W. McCutchen, who is now in Florida. The work which was done last year by the green committee will be divided this season between the green and golf committees. The latter will be a new one.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Given to Miss Catherine Webster by Thirty of Her Friends.

Thirty intimate friends of Miss Catherine Webster gave her a surprise last evening at her home on East Second street. The event was in honor of Miss Webster's birthday celebration, which takes place today. Miss Mary Terry, who lives with Miss Webster, arranged the affair, which was complete in every detail. The guests arrived at the house before the celebrant had the slightest intimation of the surprise.

The evening was passed in playing games and in having a good social time. During the evening refreshments were served.

Justice Huff's Court.

The contract case of V. Ameano against A Ameano was tried before Justice Huff yesterday afternoon. The plaintiff, who was suing for $50 promised him, secured a verdict of $11 and costs through his counsel, William Newcorn. Francis J. Blatz represented the defendant. It now appears that both plaintiff and defendant are dissatisfied, and there is likely to be an appeal on the part of one or the other.

To Swear in Recruits.

Lieut. John E Wernley, of Co. M, N. J. N. G., of Somerville, will be at Dr. W. Kempton Browning's home on East Fifth street, Friday evening from 8 to 9 o'clock to swear in anyone wishing to join Co. K, of this city. There are now fifty-seven members in the company and it is believed that twelve or fifteen men will be added before the charter list is closed.

To Locate on Madison Avenue.

Harvey C. Drake, the South Second street bicycle dealer, will occupy the double store at 115 Madison avenue, after April 1.

GETTING USED TO FENCE.

COMMUTERS ARE NOT MUCH WORRIED BY CHANGE AT STATION.

Some Forgot the Tunnel at First and So Missed Their Trains—Others Climbed Off Wrong Side.

With but few exceptions Plainfield's hundreds of commuters are rapidly becoming adapted to the various changes at the North Avenue station and in a short time matters will assume their old routine. To the occasional passenger the new order of things is taken as a matter of fact but to those who have climbed the steps of the old station or raced over the tracks from the south side year after year, it is of more than ordinary interest.

As was expected, the greatest obstacle so far has been the long iron fence between the east and west bound tracks which prevents the boarding of east bound trains from the north side. Many of the regulars who have been in the habit of leaping up the steps at the last minute and catching the rear of a train, absent mindedly attempted to do the same thing the past few mornings, only to find their progress effectually barred by the long row of iron pickets. By the time the long journey through the tunnel was made the train was in the vicinity of Netherwood.

The railway officials have noticed large numbers of prospective passengers crossing over the Watchung avenue bridge in order to reach the new station without going through the tunnel and in order to prevent this the fence will be extended across the bridge.

On returning home from New York the past two nights numerous passengers attempted to get off the train on the south side, bringing up with a jar against the fence, which in some instances proved a lasting reminder.

In most of the cases, however, the victims have taken the changes as a matter of fact and the little mistakes will soon be a thing of the past.

HOUSE ENTERED.

Mrs. George Thatcher Found On Her Return That Her House Had Been Ransacked.

Mrs. George Thatcher, of Seventh street and Central avenue, returned yesterday from an extended trip in the west, and found that during her absence her home had been entered and everything generally disarranged.

Mrs. Thatcher immediately notified Chief Kiely who commenced an investigation. So far as is known nothing is missing, and it is supposed that small boys had mischievously broken into the house.

Had No Place to Meet.

The members of Protective Conclave, No. 505, Improved Order of Heptasophs, were to have held their regular meeting last evening, but after waiting two hours for the warder, F. A. Weber, to appear and open the rooms, they decided to adjourn to some other evening. Mr. Weber left home for the lodge rooms, but his fellow members believe that he was called away unexpectedly on business.

The damage was trifling.

THE ALLEN-PANGBORN CASE.

TRIAL IN WILLIAMSPORT, PA., BEGAN YESTERDAY.

Testimony Given to Prove That S. Pangborn and W. C. Allen Were Same Man.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Williamsport, Pa., March 6—In the civil suit commenced here yesterday much corroborative evidence was produced to substantiate the allegation of Mrs. Louisa Perrine, of Plainfield, that Winfield Scott Allen, of this city, who died in 1888 possessed of a large estate, was her father, Stephen Pangborn.

S. P. Brown, of Dunellen, a nephew of Pangborn, testified that subsequent to the time Pangborn deserted his wife and changed his name the latter attended the witness's father's funeral and was in fear of being recognized by former acquaintences. Mrs. Emma J. Denton, of Philadelphia, a niece of Pangborn, swore that she had seen letters addressed by her father to him directed to "W. S. Allen, Williamsport, Pa."

A photograph of Allen was recognized as being that of Pangborn by Miss Harriet J Hoagland, of Bound Brook, and Mrs. H. C. Armstrong, of Morristown, N. J. Mrs. Armstrong's husband was the minister who performed the wedding ceremony between Pangborn and Mrs. Perrine's mother. The remarkable resemblance of Mrs Perrine to Stephen Pangborn was important testimony given by Captain James T. Ferry, of Bound Brook.

WAS HOMEWARD BOUND WHEN DEATH CAME.

Lieut. Walter E. Stewart Died in Public Square at San Francisco Yesterday.

RETURNING FROM MANILA.

INJURED BY FALL FROM HORSE NECESSITATING RETIREMENT.

Doctors Said That He Could Not Live in Climate of Philippines—Resigned His Commission—Was Expected Home When Sad News Came.

At the time that Lieut. Walter E. Stewart, Jr., was expected to arrive at his home in this city on his way from the Philippines, where he had been in the United States Army service, his family received a telegram announcing his death, which occurred yesterday morning in a public square in San Francisco. It is supposed that his death was caused by heart disease.

The sad news was received with universal sympathy for Lieut. Stewart was well known in this city and was very popular. At a late hour last night no further news concerning the circumstances of death had been received. Arrangements will be made at once to have the body brought to this city for interment.

Lieut. Stewart was the next youngest of five children, being 29 years of age. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Stewart, of West Seventh street. He was born in this city and attended the public schools. He entered Yale and was graduated from there in 1894, and from the New York Law School in 1896. He then practiced law in New York until he entered the regular army. He passed his examinations for service at Fortress Monroe in 1899 and received the appointment of second lieuetenant from President McKinley. He then was assigned to duty with the Third Infantry and he went direct to the Philippines, where headquarters were established near Manila.

Last fall he was detailed, with a number of other men, to superintend the landing of horses from a transport. While in the performance of duty he was thrown from a horse he was riding and landed among some rocks. His head was severely injured and he was obliged to enter the hospital. For days he was delirious, but under good treatment he recovered sufficiently to re-enter the service. This did not last long, however, before he was again taken ill and he was told by the army surgeons that he must return home if he wanted to live. He could not stand the Philippine climate.

Finally, Mr. Stewart resigned his commission which was accepted by Secretary of War Elihu Root and President McKinley, and it took effect January 31, when he received an honorable discharge. Soon afterward he sailed on the Transport Indiana for home.

February 28, Mr. Stewart sent a telegram to his brother, Percy Stewart, that he had arrived at San Francisco and was at the Palace Hotel. It was expected that he would leave very soon for home. As stated he was looked for last evening or today, and there was no intimation af anything being wrong until the telegram was received announcing his death.

Recently, when Co. K, N. J., N. G., was mustered in, it was announced that the position of captain would be left open until the arrival of Lieutenant Stewart in Plainfield, as it was intended to offer him the place. Of course, the members of the company knew nothing concerning Mr. Stewart's illness. Last Sunday Percy Stewart called on one of the officers of the company, explained the circumstances and said that his brother would not be able to accept the position.

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

Farm and village scenes all—farm and village ideas all. A simple, homely story of the loves and hates, the nobler and meaner natures, the comic and tragic occurrences, the joys and griefs, that help to make up the sum of human existence in rural communities as elsewhere. This is the foundation of "Dairy Farm" which will be seen at Music Hall tonight. The picture presented is of a village life in New York State, between the years of 1854 and 1856—a time remote enough to be picturesque. The anti slavery movement and free soil question were at this time agitating the minds of men, and the play dwells, without too much insistence, however, upon the passions and prejudices provoked by that controversy. The Christmas party, the old songs, the quaint costumes, the series of beautiful pictures, the careful developing of every detail, giving atmosphere and reality to the whole, creates a charm which cannot be described. To this, and the clean, sweet love story, may be attributed the great success of "The Dairy Farm" at the most popular of New York theatres.

* * * * *

Fun, pathos and excitement constitute the element introduced into a stage dramatization of Mark Twain's famous book of "Tom Sawyer" which will be given at Music Hall for the programme this coming Saturday. Mark Twain's name is legion to the young and old, and his Huckleberry Finn, Pudd'nhead Wilson, and others are well-known, but none have gained more prominence than "Tom Sawyer." It is especially intended for women and children and the book has been followed as closely as will admit for stage purposes. The principal scenes shown are the grave yard the court room and country grocery store. With specialties it makes an interesting two and a half hour entertainment. A special matinee intended for women and children will be given on Saturday when popular prices will prevail.

* * * * *

A favorite attraction is Starr & Nicolai's production of "On the Suwanee River," which comes to Music Hall Monday evening, March 11, and which, like the song, is announced "to live forever." It tells a simple story of southern life, depicting the hardship of a poor blind girl at the mercy of rascally relations, and protected by a faithful old colored mammy, "Aunt Lindy." The story is one of telling heart interest, yet brightened by plenty of comedy, which has been judiciously blended by the author. The scenes are laid in Florida, near the lazy stream from which the play has taken its name. True picturesqueness is obtained by the introduction of colored hands, in amusing and lively songs, jubilees and dances. The cast contains all the favorites, including Stella Mayhew as "Aunt Lindy," Willow Frances as the blind girl, and Earl Atkinson as the rascally "Judge Hawk."

—When you are bilious, use those famous little pills known as DeWitt's Little Early Risers to cleanse the liver and bowels. They never gripe. L. W. Randolph.

Preparing for Great Race.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad Company has completed arrangements with the rowing authorities of Pennsylvania, Cornell and Columbia Universities to repeat the perfect accommodations for collegiates and others who desire to view the contest between their crews on Decoration Day, May 30, as was done in May, 1899. The observation train was the best and largest ever seen at a boat race. "The course on Cayuga Lake is the most beautiful I ever saw," said Ellis Ward, Pennsy's great coach. The race was viewed by 40,000 people, and won by Cornell by half a length. Harvard may enter this contest. Other races are expected on the same course the same afternoon.

—Prof. Ivison, of Lonaconing, Md., suffered terribly from neuralgia of the stomach and indigestion for thirteen years and after the doctors failed to cure him they fed him on morphine. A friend advised the use of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure and after taking a few bottles of it he says: "It has cured me entirely, I can't say too much for Kodol Dyspepsia Cure." It digests what you eat. L. W. Randolph.

Built on Honor.

I take great pleasure in anouncing to my friends and the general public that I have had the good fortune to secure the sole agency for the world-renowned McPhail Pianos, of Boston, Mass. Built on honor and sold on merit for the past 63 years. A Piano excelled by none and equaled by few. I shall in the future carry a full line of these superb instruments, together with the celebrated Kimball, which I have so successfully handled in the past. Thanking you all for past patronage and wishing a continuance of the same, I beg to remain,

Very truly yours,

A WALL STREET FLURRY.

Assignment of J. E. Searles, Sugar and Cotton King, Announced.

NEW YORK, March 6.—Great excitement was caused in Wall street late yesterday by the announcement that John E. Searles, for years treasurer of the sugar trust and one of the financial powers of the street, had made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors. The cause of the assignment and the amount of his liabilities are not known.

Mr. Searles, though it is understood he is no longer actively connected with the sugar trust, is identified with many of the most important financial interests of the country.

Among the offices he holds, according to the corporation directory, are: President and director of the American Cotton company, director of the American Coffee company, trustee of the American Deposit and Loan company and the American Surety company, chairman and director of the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Railroad company, director of the Equitable Life Insurance company, vice president of the International Trust company and treasurer and director of the Terminal Warehouse company.

The assignment was made to Edward F. Dwight of Parker, Hughes & Dwight, 36 Broadway.

Cubans Discuss Platt Amendment.

HAVANA, March 6. — The Platt amendment regarding the future relations with the United States, which was forwarded by General Wood, was informally discussed yesterday afternoon by a large number of delegates. General Sanguily and Senor Aleman contended that the amendment had become law and that President McKinley could do nothing other than enforce it. They declared that the suggestions from the convention had been ignored, that the United States government evidently intended to do what it pleased with Cuba and that the only manly thing for delegates to do was to dissolve and to let the United States call another convention. Senor Juan Gualberto Gomez, although radically opposed to the amendment, said he did not believe it was the final decision of the United States regarding the future attitude of the government toward Cuba. He thought the convention should discuss the amendment and return it to General Wood with a careful opinion, as it was possible that President McKinley would call an extra session in the hope of bringing about a compromise. A majority of the delegates favor official action by the convention regarding the amendment, and this question will be decided today.

Western Jockey Club Meeting.

CHICAGO, March 6.—The stewards of the Western Jockey club at a meeting here yesterday adopted the rules which will govern the new turf body. The most important point is a declaration of policy toward race track owners who refuse to recognize the authority of the Western Jockey club. The stewards passed a rule barring from participation on any Western Jockey club track any one racing at unrecognized meetings, such as those held by all tracks west of the Alleghanies except California, where a license is not obtained from the stewards. The decree does not carry absolute "outlawry," because the persons so barred are privileged to race in the east or on the Pacific coast, but it was as far as the Western Jockey club could go under its present powers and shows that the stewards are determined to take a firm stand to obtain the control of racing in the west and will press their power to the utmost.

Nova Scotia's Finances.

HALIFAX, March 6.—Premier Murray delivered his budget speech in the Nova Scotia legislature yesterday. The provincial revenue for the past year was $1,014,000, which was $65,000 more than the estimates. Coal mines yielded $413,000 of this in royalties, $25,000 more than expected and $70,000 more than the year previous. Mr. Murray said the Dominion Coal company shipped 600,000 tons of coal from Cape Breton to Boston during 1900. The net debt of the province is $2,713,000. The estimated revenue for the ensuing 12 months is $949,000, but if the Dominion Coal company's new shaft is completed, enabling them to ship increased coal to United States and St. Lawrence ports, the revenue will pass high water mark.

LOUISVILLE, March 6.—Miss Cenzie May Scherer of Louisville on June 22, 1900, dropped from the steamer Hanover, bound for Bremen and seven days out from New York, a wine bottle containing her name and address. Miss Scherer returned to Louisville and yesterday received the following letter from Commander C. C. Todd: "The hydrographic office acknowledges with thanks the receipt of the bottle thrown over by you June 22, 1900, from the steamship Hanover, position not stated. It was found Dec. 31, 1900, in the vicinity of Plovan, department of Finistere, France. Your assistance in the work of investigating ocean currents is appreciated."

THE NEW CONGRESS.

Excitement In Senate Over a Proposition to Limit Debate.

MINORITY MEMBERS UP IN ARMS.

Floral Offerings Numerous—Retiring Members Cause Many Changes In Seating Arrangements—Where Some Senators Will Sit.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Quite unexpectedly a lively debate was precipitated yesterday at the first business session of the senate of the Fifty-seventh congress. Mr. Platt of Connecticut offered an amendment to the rules to limit debate in the senate. Its proponent had no intention to press discussion on it, but several senators expressed their views in no uncertain terms. Senator Mason of Illinois thought it did not go far enough and gave notice of an amendment under which, he said, the majority would not be under the control of the minority. Senators Wellington of Maryland and Bacon of Georgia denounced the effort to change the rules as unseemly, the former challenging the right of the senate to consider the proposition at this session.

Many of the new senators were recipients of beautiful floral offerings from their friends, several of the pieces on the Democratic side of the chamber being particularly notable.

Former Senator Peffer of Kansas was on the floor during the early part of the session and was cordially received by his former colleagues.

Some notable changes in the seating of senators in the chamber were incidental to the retirement to private life of an unusual number of the members of that body. Senators desiring particular seats according to the custom of the senate file with the sergeant-at-arms their applications in writing for the seat desired, and it is a case of first come first served when death or other cause compels its former occupant to vacate it.

The main aisle of the senate chamber is supposed to be the line of demarcation between the Republican and Democratic senators, but at present the preponderance of Republicans is so large that several Republicans occupy seats on the Democratic side. Among them are Senators Foraker of Ohio, Depew of New York, Kean of New Jersey and Beveridge of Indiana. The retirement of Senators Baker of Kansas, Carter of Montana, Chandler of New Hampshire, Pettigrew of South Dakota, Thurston of Nebraska and Wolcott of Colorado released six most desirable seats on the Republican side. Senator Nelson of Minnesota obtained that of Mr. Baker, Simon of Oregon that of Carter in the front row, Fairbanks of Indiana that of Chandler in the center of the front row, Burrows of Michigan that of Pettigrew in the very center of the Republican side, adjoining that of Senator Lodge; Foster of Washington that of Thurston, just to the left of the center, and Wellington of Maryland that of Wolcott, one of the most desirable seats in the chamber.

On the opposite side several good seats were vacated. Senator McComas of Maryland obtained the seat of Mr. Butler, the first one in the front row of the Democratic side; Blackburn of Kentucky takes his old seat in the second row on the main aisle, just back of McComas; Heitfeld of Idaho that of Caffery of Louisiana, diagonally back of Senator Blackburn; Culberson of Texas that of Lindsay of Kentucky in the center of the Democratic side and Taliaferro of Florida that of Sullivan of Mississippi, just back of Mr. Lindsay's old seat. Senator Dubois of Idaho, who has returned to the senate after a lapse of a few years, got the seat occupied by Mr. Kenney of Delaware in the rear row.

Wants Ashes Strewn Upon the Ocean.

NEW YORK, March 6.—The will of Louis Becker, who, after accumulating a fortune in the chemical business in Philadelphia, died in Brooklyn on Feb. 24, has been filed for probate. In his will he requests that his body be cremated and that his ashes be strewn upon the waves of the Atlantic ocean. The first request has already been complied with, and his twin brother, Alexander Becker of Garden street, Hoboken, N. J., is now making preparations for carrying out the other provision. Mr. Becker was born in Westphalia, Germany, 86 years ago. He was an enthusiastic advocate of cremation and was influential in securing the first crematory in Germany at Gotha.

Many Farmers Robbed.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., March 6.—The arrest of Frank Miller, a farmer, near Bloomingburg for robbery unearths extensive robberies from farmers at Florida and Edenville during the last few weeks. A large quantity of farm property has been recovered from the place occupied by Miller and his brother-in-law, Jack De Muth. The latter has escaped, and his wife is believed to have become insane.

Washington Hotel Fire.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—A fire broke out in the Arlington hotel yesterday afternoon caused by the crossing of an electric light wire. It originated in the cupola tower on the roof of the building and was soon extinguished. The damage, which was comparatively small, was confined to the tower and the apartment immediately below it.

UPROAR IN COMMONS

Mr. Balfour's Closure Ruling Caused a Storm.

IRISH MEMBERS CARRIED OUT BODILY

Nationalists Fought Frantically, but Were at Length Overpowered by Strong Force of Police—A Protection Project.

LONDON, March 6.—One of the stormiest scenes ever witnessed in the British house of commons occurred at an early hour this morning.

The trouble arose through Mr. Balfour closuring the whole education estimates without giving an opportunity to discuss the Irish votes.

After midnight Mr. Balfour applied the closure on the education estimates. The Nationalists shouted, "Gag, gag!" and refused to leave the house when the division was taken. The chairman twice asked them to retire to the division lobby, but they shouted, "Certainly not!" Mr. Flavin cried, "I protest against the way all Irish votes are closured."

The chairman then intimated that he must report the matter to the speaker. In the meantime the other members had returned from the lobbies amid some uproar, 30 or 40 Irishmen remaining in their seats.

The speaker having returned to the house, the chairman reported the matter to him, and the speaker asked if the Irish members still refused to obey the order, and there were cries of "Yes, yes!"

The speaker then named 16 recalcitrants, and Mr. Balfour moved their suspension. This was agreed to without a division.

The speaker ordered them to withdraw, but they refused amid great uproar. The speaker called upon the sergeant-at-arms to remove them. They shouted defiance. The deputy sergeant-at-arms advanced and asked them to leave. Still they refused. At this a number of officers and policemen entered to enforce removal.

The Nationalists fought and struggled frantically, but at length a superior force of police succeeded in dragging Mr. Crean out by the legs and arms and carrying him down the floor of the house, the Irishmen standing and wildly shouting, "Shame!" "Murderers!" and "South African brutality!"

The speaker then called upon Mr. McHugh to retire, but he defiantly refused, his companions shouting approval. A strong body of 20 policemen again stormed the Irish benches. Mr. McHugh fought, struggled and impeded them in every way. Angry shouts rent the air. The benches below the gangway on the opposition side were a mass of mad and struggling humanity. Several policemen were struck with fists. Free fights between the police and the members were fairly general.

As Mr. McHugh was being carried out—his underclothes showing where the outer garments had been torn away in the struggle—Mr. Flavin shouted from the back benches, "Nineteen policemen to remove one Irishman!" and cries of "Shame!" were heard from the opposition benches.

The police then returned and carried out each of the remaining recalcitrants in the same manner, although there was no further actual resistance. Six policemen sufficed for each member with the exception of Mr. Flavin, who is a big man and required eight. Many as they were being carried out waved their hands and shouted, "God save Ireland!"

Neither Mr. Dillon, Mr. John Redmond nor Mr. T. P. O'Connor was present, having already left the house. One or two constables were badly handled in the scuffle. The suspensions will last for one week.

The movement in favor of a duty on sugar is due, first, to the almost utter decay of England's refining industry; second, to the careful study of the success of American sugar under the present system, and, third, to the dire necessity of the government to raise funds by other means than increasing the already enormous direct taxation.

Inaugural Fireworks.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The inaugural display of fireworks postponed from Monday night on account of the inclement weather took place last night. The display was made from the grounds surrounding the Washington monument and was one of the finest pyrotechnic features ever attempted in the capital city. The tall and imposing shaft of the Washington monument formed a fitting background for the brilliant illumination.

Important Liquor Decision.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., March 6.—The supreme court has handed down an opinion declaring the beer inspection law enacted in 1899 constitutional. It is estimated that the law will raise $600,000 revenue annually. The opinion holds that the state has a right to enforce police regulations regarding the sale of intoxicating liquors and prevent the sale altogether if it so desires.

Earthquake In New Hampshire.

MANCHESTER, N. H., March 6.—Two distinct earthquake shocks were felt here shortly after 8 o'clock last evening. The shocks came within ten seconds of each other and frightened some of the inhabitants. Houses rocked, and the occupants ran into the streets in several cases. Bric-a-brac was knocked from mantels and crockery ware fell from supper tables.

Two Perish In a Fire.

NEW YORK, March 6.—Two men were burned to death in a fire which started this morning shortly after midnight in the stable and warehouse 226 Marion street, Brooklyn. Eighteen horses also perished, and the fire, besides gutting the building in which it started spread so rapidly that three frame cottages were very badly damaged.

Back Pay For Fighters.

ALBANY, March 6.—The assembly cities committee will report favorably the Bennett bill authorizing New York city to raise $15,000 with which to pay the salaries of those city employees who fought in the late war with Spain during the time they were absent from the city.

Russian Students Arrested.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 6.—The police prevented 200 university students from entering Kasan cathedral, where a service was being held in celebration of the anniversary of the emancipation of the serfs. The students demonstrated in protest and were eventually all arrested.

A DEADLY DUEL.

Russian Nobleman Killed an American on the Field of Honor.

PARIS, March 6.—John MacWilson Durant of New York, who has been living for the past two years in Paris with his mother at the Hotel Lafonde Tremoille, has been killed at Ostend in a duel with a Russian count.

The details obtainable are meager.

According to the best information obtainable, Mr. Durant had written letters to the wife of the Russian count. The latter's nephew came to Paris to settle the matter, where he met Mr. Durant in a restaurant, and a vicious fight resulted, in which Mr. Durant lost his front teeth. He struck the Russian with a heavy glass water bottle, and the latter died, but the doctor's certificate gave "congestion of the brain" as the cause of death. This occurred during January. Later the count took the matter up, sending his seconds to Mr. Durant.

The latter went to Ostend with his mother, who afterward departed for and is still at Glasgow.

A duel was arranged and was fought Sunday, probably with pistols. Durant was killed and the count was seriously wounded.

Durant Came From Albany.

ALBANY, March 6.—John Wilson Durant, whom cable dispatches relate was killed in a duel at Ostend, was an Albanian and comes of a prominent family. He was in Albany in December.

New Jersey Legislature.

TRENTON, March 6.—The senate had its closest vote of the session last night on Assemblyman Marks' bill to permit the North German Lloyd Steamship company to swing its ships in front of one of Hoboken's parks along the river front. The bill was advocated by Senator Hudspeth, who spoke of the great advantage this steamship company was to Hoboken in a commercial way. Senator Reed, the Republican leader, opposed the measure and said it was giving the company free the use of riprarian rights and that it was shutting off a river view from a public park. Upon a roll call there was one vote short of the necessary 11 to pass the bill. Several members refrained from voting. The absentees were called for, and for several minutes the names of those not voting were called and recalled until Senator Cornish voted yea, and the bill passed with a bare majority. A companion bill giving this steamship company power to vacate the river end of Third street in Hoboken was also opposed by Senator Reed, and only eight affirmative votes could be secured.

Judge Chambers Not Forgotten.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—It is understood that Mr. Chambers of Alabama, late chief justice of Samoa, is to be appointed a commissioner to adjust the claims of American citizens arising out of the war with Spain. Mr. Chambers, although appointed originally as a Democrat to his office in Samoa, conducted himself in the trying last days of the tripartite government with such stalwart Americanism as to earn the admiration of the authorities here. His relinquishment of the office of chief justice was made necessary by the understanding reached by the three powers that a complete change should be made in the officials in Samoa.

Hard Law For the "Jointists."

TOPEKA, March 6.—An ordinance has been adopted by the city council which it is believed will make it almost impossible for the "jointists" to do business in this city. The ordinance makes it unlawful to treat a friend to a drink of liquor in a private house. A man is declared to be guilty of violating the ordinance if he is found in a place where liquor is sold. The ordinance does not require that an actual sale shall be proved. Heavy fines and imprisonment of 30 to 100 days in jail are the penalties for violations of the ordinance.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., March 6.—A petition in bankruptcy was filed with Referee Strong by Luke Usher, a prominent Potsdam lumberman. The liabilities are $131,135.75 and the assets $250 worth of furniture, claimed to be exempt. Usher was president of the defunct National bank of Potsdam.

Business Crippled by Gas Failure.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., March 6.—The natural gas supply has failed here owing to a break in the pipe lines, which cannot be repaired for several days. POLICE TROUBLES IN MANILA.

Rumors of a Shake Up—Members of the Force Overzealous.

MANILA, March 6.—It is persistently rumored that Colonel Wilder, chief of the Manila police; Captain Gaines, in charge of the Manila secret service, and Lieutenant Gillespie will be ordered to rejoin their regiments. No orders to this effect have yet been issued. General Davis, provost marshal of Manila, denies having recommended these changes. The officers themselves assert the stories are circulated by persons interested in trading with the insurgents.

It is charged in certain quarters that the police are overzealous in making arrests of alleged insurgents under General MacArthur's proclamation. No notification has been given concerning the trial of Carman, Carranza and others who were arrested by the police on the charge of dealing with the insurgents, and the police have been ordered to refer all cases in which they shall subsequently obtain evidence to the provost general for report to the military governor for investigation before making arrests. In these cases no arrests have yet been ordered, although the investigations are being continued.

The commission has decided to double the appropriation of $1,000,000 for the improvement of Manila harbor, and it has passed a bill accepting the transfer of the Manila Public library.

MEIKLEJOHN'S SUCCESSOR.

William Cary Sanger to Be Assistant War Secretary.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The president has selected William Cary Sanger of New York for assistant secretary of war in succession to George D. Meiklejohn of Nebraska, who has held the office for the last four years.

Colonel Sanger, who, with his wife, formerly Miss Dodge, a daughter of General C. C. Dodge of New York, is now a guest at Secretary Root's home, has long been the choice of the secretary to serve as his assistant in disposing of the enormous and rapidly growing business of the war department, and his nomination would have gone to the senate some time ago had not the administration, which is most warmly disposed toward Mr. Meiklejohn, feared that the acceptance of his resignation might injure his prospects for one of the two vacant Nebraska senatorships for which he is now a leading candidate before the legislature at Lincoln.

It is thought now that the announcement need no longer be delayed on this account, for the interest of the administration in Mr. Meiklejohn's success has been fully demonstrated in the four months he has remained away from his office in Washington, and it is now the official conviction here that he is certain to win either the long or short term in the senate.

Noted Physician Dead.

PHILADELPHIA, March 6.—Dr. Richard James Dunglison, an eminent editor and author of many valuable medical works, is dead at his home here of dropsy and heart failure, superinduced by pneumonia. Dr. Dunglison was a son of Professor Robley Dunglison of Jefferson Medical college and studied medicine under his father's direction. He was graduated from Jefferson college in 1856, having previously received the degree of A. B. from the college department of the University of Pennsylvania. He was one of the originators of the Philadelphia Medical Times and was the author of Dunglison's Medical Dictionary and "Dunglison's History of Medicines."

British Steamer Stranded.

RALEIGH, March 6.—The British steamer Camperdown, bound for New York loaded with 20,000 sacks of sugar, is stranded on Cape Lookout shoals, seven miles from the beach. The captain of the life saving crew has made three unsuccessful attempts to board the vessel and render assistance, but owing to a strong head current, a high sea and southwest winds he has been unable to do so. During the first attempt he got close enough to communicate with those on board. The captain of the steamer asked that assistance be sent him, and the Merritt Wrecking company has been notified.

Hofmann's Playing Exceptional.

NEW YORK, March 6.—Paderewski, the musical fad of New York, bids fair to be dethroned by a young man who 15 years ago made his debut as an infant prodigy and was prevented from playing by the Gerry society. After an absence of three years abroad Mr. Josef Hofmann, the pianist, made his reappearance at Carnegie hall yesterday afternoon. His programme was the largest and broadest from a musical standpoint that has ever been presented to an American audience by any pianist.

Cars Icebound at Detroit.

DETROIT, March 6.—Owing to the unusual thickness and quantity of ice in the Detroit river the Canadian Pacific, Wabash and Michigan Central car ferries are unable to make the customary trips between Detroit and the Windsor (Canada) docks. The result is that more than 1,000 cars of east bound freight are tied up along those lines between Detroit and Chicago.

Young and Hare Leave Manila.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—General MacArthur has cabled the war department that the transport Logan sailed from Manila on the 1st inst. with Generals Young and Hare, 25 officers and 769 enlisted men of the Thirty-third volunteer infantry and 21 officers and 785 enlisted men of the Thirty-fourth volunteer infantry.

Gold In the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The amount of gross gold in the treasury is $489,412,158, the highest point ever reached in the history of the government. This amount includes the $150,000,000 held as a reserve, $276,019,989 held against gold certificates and $63,392,169 in the general fund.

Coal Barges Start South.

PITTSBURG, March 6.—The ice in the rivers thinned out sufficiently to let the River Coal company start a portion of its big accumulation of coal toward southern markets. Five tows went out carrying 1,500,000 bushels. Ten million bushels are expected to be shipped on the present rise.

Pingree In London.

LONDON, March 6.—Former Governor Pingree of Michigan spent half an hour last evening with Mr. Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, discussing the war in South Africa, whither Mr. Pingree will soon go on business.

GRAB GAME IN PEKING

China Protests Against Occupation of Public Buildings.

FOREIGNERS DEFILE SACRED PLACES

A Request to Cease Sending Out Expeditions Evasively Answered by Count Von Waldersee—Better Railway Service Promised.

PEKING, March 6.—The next general meeting of the ministers of the powers will consider the protests of the Chinese plenipotentiaries regarding the legation quarters now established in Chinese public buildings. The British and Russians have taken the board of works, board of revenue and board of ceremonials. The Italians have taken the emperor's personal temple of worship. Fire has destroyed the greater part of the Temple of a Thousand Years in the summer palace. Fortunately the effigy of Buddha, weighing 600 tons, was not injured.

The Japanese troops are preparing to leave in transport on their way to Taku. The river is now safely open, and there is no danger of another frost.

General Yin Tching, by order of Li Hung Chang, wrote to Count von Waldersee, making the following requests:

"If it be possible, let there be no more expeditions.

"Give permission to the Chinese troops to remain within ten miles of the allies for the purpose of preventing Boxers and robbers.

"Direct the allied troops, while searching for and punishing robbers and Boxers, to ask assistance of the Chinese officials.

"Prevent native Christians from making extortionate claims, which the missionaries often help to enforce."

To this communication Count von Waldersee sent the following reply:

"The headquarters staff of the allied army cannot enter into an agreement to undertake no more expeditions, but must reserve the right to act according to circumstances. If no general conditions, political or otherwise, arise, like the appearance of bands of robbers or the behavior of the Chinese regular troops, that would necessitate expeditions, Count von Waldersee is inclined to agree to the request of Li Hung Chang to have no more expeditions by the contingents under Count von Waldersee.

"The local authorities will be asked to ascertain the guilty so far as possible.

"Indemnities to native Christians or missionaries will be settled in future by the mutual agreement of the diplomats."

The daily committee meetings of the ministers of the powers deal with the legation quarters, the forms of assessing indemnities and questions of ceremony in connection with audiences of the emperor.

An improved railway service is promised within the next ten days.

Court May Never Return.

LONDON, March 6.—The Reuter Telegram company has received the following from Peking, dated March 5:

"Inquiry concerning the reports of Emperor Kwang Su's return elicited assurances from Chinese officials that he had not the remotest intention to leave Sianfu while the present situation continued and that if the powers persisted in fortifying the legation quarter it was extremely probable that the court would never return to Peking. The Chinese appeal regarding the latter question points out that if forts are constructed five of the six chief boards—namely, war, rites, civil appointments, works and revenue—will be swept away, as well as one of the most sacred temples in the empire, containing the ancestral tablets of the present dynasty. The ministers of the powers are still discussing this appeal and the question of defenses, but have arrived at no decision owing to the divergence of views."

Would Have Boiled Foreigners.

VICTORIA, B. C., March 6.—According to advices received by the steamer Empress of India a northern correspondent of the Hongkong Press states that it is reported from fairly reliable sources that documents have been found in Peking proving that the assailants of the legations during the recent siege had instructions not to kill the inmates, but to take as many as possible alive, as all prisoners were to be taken to the Temple of Heaven and there put through the process of being boiled.

A Jail Delivery.

CUMBERLAND, Md., March 6.—Nine men awaiting the action of the April grand jury broke out of the Cumberland jail yesterday morning and are still at large. They are John Wesley Osbourne, Charles Oberl, Daniel Crother and Walter Dreyer, four young bandits who figured in many hold ups and robberies here and charged with murderous assault on Officer Reuschlein; Frank Francis, burglary; Frank Young, Edward Jenks and James Heckman, all charged with larceny, and William Stanley. The last four are colored.

Revival of Catholicism.

ROME, March 6.—The recent revival of Catholic sentiment in Latin America is being taken advantage of by pontifical statesmen to form a union of the Catholic countries of the new world based on community of faith, but destined possibly to have political significance also. A symbol of this union is about to be erected in Rome in a church primarily intended to commemorate the recent Mexican pilgrimage, but to contain altars to the patron saints of each Central and South American state.

No Election In Montana.

HELENA, Mon., March 6.—The sessions of the Montana legislature will expire at midnight Thursday, and as yet there is no break in the senatorial deadlock. Thomas H. Carter received the solid Republican vote yesterday. H. L. Frank of Butte has the highest fusion vote, with W. G. Conrad of Great Falls second. Four or five others received a few votes each. The general opinion is that there will be no election.

Capital Fight Postponed.

PIERRE, S. D., March 6.—After an acrimonious debate in the senate the resolution to remove the state capital from Pierre to Mitchell was indefinitely postponed by a large vote.

General Daggett Retired.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—General Aaron S. Daggett, recently appointed brigadier general of the army, has been retired.

Constitutionality Questioned.

The constitutionality of the anti spring election law is questioned. Furthermore, the opponents of that measure are preparing to take steps to test its legality. The plan will be to secure, if possible, a writ of mandamus from the Supreme Court compelling the city clerks of the cities in question to proceed under the law in operation before the passage of the anti-spring election law.

The chief argument against its constitutionality is the fact that it provides for cities alone. This, it is claimed, is class legislation as it would be applicable to all the voters in the State.

There are thirty-two cities in New Jersey which are affected by the law. Morris, Somerset and Warren counties have no cities within their borders and are therefore not directly interested. In Union county, the cities are Elizabeth, Summit, Rahway and Plainfield. Middlesex includes only New Brunswick and Perth Amboy. The remainder of the thirty-two cities are distributed among the other counties of the State.

While Plainfield is not immediately interested in the constitutionality of the law as are cities like Newark and Camden, which, under the provisions of the old law, would have their charter elections in a few weeks, this law will undoubtedly prove a very important factor in elections of local officials should the courts hold that it is in accord with the provisions of the constitution.

Anyone, who has viewed Green brook from the new bridge which connects Madison avenue and Duer street and seen the wonderful collection which now disfigures the bed of that stream, will commend the Borough Board of Health on its determination to improve the appearance of the North Plainfield bank of the brook. The city authorities should take some similar action without delay.

Bound Brook is trying an experiment this year. Previously it has been the custom at borough elections there to nominate two independent tickets without reference to the regular party organizations. This year the Bound Brookites have retained their party organization from last November, and Republican and Democratic tickets will be in the field for next Tuesday's election.

A pure water supply is a most important requisite and no one blames the citizens of North Plainfield for objecting to impure water. It is a matter which should be looked after without delay and the officials of the Plainfield Water Supply Company should lose no time in remedying it.

The new fences at the North avenue station did not trouble the commuters so much after all. There were few indeed yesterday and today who forgot that the fences had been erected and that the tunnel was in operation.

The politicians of Dunellen are preparing for the election which occurs Tuesday. They elect a mayor this year and the Democrats have put up the present incumbent, R. J. Swackhamer.

Plainfield has been famous so long for its fine water that anything to injure the city's reputation in that way should receive instant attention.

The widening of Giraud avenue will be an improvement much appreciated by residents in that vicinity.

There is lots of political gossip in the borough these days.

FOR PURE WATER.

'Consumer" Wants Water Company to Supply Him With What He Is Paying For.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Will you permit me to enter a protest in the columns of your impartial and readable paper? All consumers of city water are compelled to pay six months in advance for water that is contaminated and is offensive to the smell when drawn or boiled. Does the company propose to refund to its consumers the mony paid in advance for pure wholesome water or pay the doctors' bills if contagious diseases are caused by its use?

I trust the Board of Health will compel the water company to supply what we pay for in advance, pure water. If they do not furnish it try a little shutting of business on the water company.

The moral and material effect of such support naturally leads to further effort and the mutual advantage of all parties. NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence.)

New Market March 6—Burglars visited the home of Frank Penrose Monday night, gaining an entrance through the window of the kitchen, which is a wing from the main part of the building. The door between the kitchen and the rest of the house was closed, consequently the burglars secured nothing but eatables. An attempt was also made to enter the home of Joseph Penrose, but without success.

The last reception of the Friendship dancing class was held last evening, at which a large number of young people were in attendance. All had an enjoyable time dancing until an early hour this morning.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence.)

Scotch Plains, March 6—Township Committeeman Theodore Bruchman was severely bitten on the arm Monday afternoon by a dog belonging to James Danitz. Mr. Bruchman was looking over some proposed improvements to the roadway near the Danitz house when the animal ran out and sprang upon him biting him quite badly on the arm. Mr. Bruchman went as soon as possible to Westfield, where he had the wound cauterized by a physician.

The Republican and Democratic primaries to nominate candidates for the election Tuesday will both be held Friday evening at 8 o'clock. The Republican voters will gather in Excelsior Hall while the Democrats will meet in the Bucket and Engine Company rooms. There promises to be several contests for places on the Republican ticket while the Democratic camp seems to be in perfect harmony, and there will probably be no contests at their primary.

The Board of Registry met in the town rooms from 1 to 9 o'clock Tuesday for the purpose of revising and correcting the registry list for the election Tuesday. Five new names were added to the list making the total registry for the township 318.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

(Special Correspondence.)

South Plainfield, March 6—Lewis Randolph wishes it to be positively and emphatically denied that he was married while at Trenton, as was stated in a last night's paper. Mr. Randolph has returned from a visit with friends in Trenton, but he returns a single man, and asserts that any rumors to the contrary are premature, to say the least.

All incoming and outgoing mails from the local post office are being weighed. The weights are sent to the government officials, who will use them in getting an average of the business done. It is in this way that the yearly contracts with the railroads are made.

BOUGHT BAILEY'S CLAIM.

So Ended an Interesting Case Which Has Been Before Court of Chancery.

An interesting case came to a conclusion at Chancery Chambers, at Newark, yesterday, when Vice chancellor Stevens signed an order dismissing the bill filed by William Brown, owner of the Rice farm, at Greenbrook, against Benjamin W. Bailey, who has been running the farm for him during the past year.

Brown wanted Bailey stopped from disposing of any of the produce on the farm, and claimed that everything belonged to him. Bailey did not agree to any such contention, and engaged Counsellor Angleman to look after his interests. Brown's lawyers were McGee & Bedle, of Jersey City.

After the first argument in the case several weeks ago, Brown concluded to buy up Bailey's claim and made an offer for it. Bailey refused the sum named, but said that $400 was the amount he would take. Brown finally accepted this, and yesterday the amount was paid over and the case dismissed.

Lockout Stopped School.

Owing to an accident to part of the heating apparatus at St. Mary's parochial school, the pupils have been enjoying an impromptu vacation since Friday afternoon. No sessions have been held since the break occurred, as on account of the labor troubles it was impossible to secure plumbers to make the repairs before Monday. The plumbers' lockout having since been raised men are now at work and it is expected that the pupils will be able to resume their studies tomorrow.

Will Buy New Books.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors, of the Public Library held last evening, it was decided to purchase $500 worth of new books. In addition to the payment of a number of bills the only other matter of importance was the acceptance of an invitation from the Board of Trustees of the Newark Library to be present at the opening of their new building, the president being empowered to appoint a representative.

Loans Upon Honor.

One of the most remarkable loan associations in the world is that founded by Mme. Jeanne Robin in the suburbs of Paris. Its object is to assist needy artists and writers by small loans of from five to twenty francs. Neither security nor interest is required, nor is any time of payment specified. In this paradise of the impecunious author the borrower simply signs the following paper: "I pledge my honor that I will pay back the sum of — francs." It is said that they who do not finally pay are very few.—N. Y. Herald.

More Presidents Than Kings.

There are over 60 "rulers" in the world, and it is surprising to find that the presidents outnumber the kings. There are 24 presidents, and only 20 kings. But the balance is more than made straight by the emperors, sultans, mikados, rajahs, khedives, ameers and other potentates who prefer their special title to that of king. Only one reigning monarch of the world, if we except her most important majesty of China, is a woman. This is Queen Wilhelmina.—St. James Gazette.

Hard Luck.

Towne—It worries me to have to go into a china store. I'm afraid of breaking something.

Browne—That's my case, too. I went into one to get a birthday present for my wife and broke something worth 20.

"That so? What was it?"

"A twenty-dollar bill."—Philadelphia Press.

A Serious Problem.

One of the great problems that confronts a woman is that she doesn't know if her husband will come home feeling poor, and scold because she has so much to eat, or feeling rich, and scold because there is so little.—Atchison Globe.

A Difference.

Brown—Now, I think a well behaved negro as good as a white man.

Casey—He may be good as a white mon, but, be the powers, he is not as good as an Irishman!—Indianapolis Press.

Beginning at the Top.

Many a successful man begins at the top of the ladder and goes down—when he has business in the cellar.—Chicago Daily News.

Frankly Admit Your Ignorance.

The man who frankly admits that he doesn't know prevents many useless arguments.—Chicago Daily News.

Censorship in China.

The censorship is a very real thing in China. There anyone who writes an immoral book is punished with 100 blows of the heavy bamboo and banishment for life. Anyone who reads it is also punished.—N. Y. Times.

Leprosy and Fish.

A lecturer at the London polyclinic declared at a recent meeting that cessation in the progress of leprosy could be attained if sufferers would abstain from eating fish.—N. Y. Times.

—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Currin have rented the house formerly occupied by George Taylor on Codington avenue, and will take possession about April 1.

A painter, aged twenty-eight years, living in Brooklyn, N. I doctored for three months but did not feel any better. A friend told me to try Ripans Tabules. I have used six cartons and feel fine. I used to drink heavily and smoked four packs of cigarettes a day and had the shakes so bad that I could not hold a glass, but now I feel like a man.

THE ATTRACTIVE HOME

WARMTH and richness should be the keynotes of the dining room. Of course it is usually darker in effect than the parlor, but it ought to be no less cheerful on that account. Early in the winter there was a prevailing fad which consisted in making all the furnishings of the dining room white. Woodwork, wall paper, carpet and even the frames of the pictures were a dazzling lily hue. This style first originated in Russia, and it is indeed suggestive of the frigid zone, with its accompaniment of icicles and polar bears. People who tried the white dining room fad soon grew tired of it.

Just at present the newest dining rooms are being fitted in Flemish oak, and it is very easy indeed to get an artistic effect with this wood. Quite the prettiest dining room I ever saw was in the country house of a friend of mine. The room was originally very commonplace looking. It was finished in ordinary oak of coarse grain and inferior quality. The only redeeming feature was a hard wood floor and a pretty fireplace. My friend first stained all the woodwork a dull black, so that it looked exactly like the more expensive Flemish oak. There was a quartered paneling extending four feet high around the room, and to match this heavy effect beams were laid across the ceiling and the intervening plastering painted red. The walls were also tinted red. A gay rug of mingled red and yellows covered the floor. On the mantel stood some pretty bits of Delft and a couple of old colonial silver candlesticks.

The windows were built like old fashioned casements, with diamond shaped panes of glass. The window seats were filled with velvet and leather cushions of different shades of red and yellow. There was a quaint cupboard with diamond shaped glass panels. This was sunk into the wall, and from its interior gleamed precious bits of old silver and china. Of course all the furniture was black to match the woodwork. The table was round and the chairs quaint and high backed, with seats of red burnt leather. A silver fern dish graced the center of the table, and in this grew scarlet geraniums, which completed beautifully the color scheme of the room. R. DE LA BAUME.

LENTEN DISHES

Fricassee of Eggs.—Set two ounces of butter in a stewpan and when dissolved add chopped parsley, a little finely minced onion, with pepper and salt to season. Stew this until the seasoning is cooked, then add a cupful of milk and a little flour to thicken the whole. Boil four eggs till hard, peel off the shells carefully and cut into slices; each egg should make four or five slices. Set the eggs into the sauce, let all come to the boil, and set in an entree dish at once.

Oyster Rolls.—Take some freshly baked muffins and cut a small slice from the top of each. Scoop out the insides, being very careful not to break the crust. Next cook a pint of oysters in their own liquor. Skim them out when their edges begin to curl and add to the liquor an equal amount of cream. Pour this mixture gradually into a paste made by cooking one tablespoonful of cornstarch in one tablespoonful of hot butter. Particular care must be taken to have this smooth. For seasoning add half a teaspoonful of celery salt, a dash of cayenne, a few grains of mace and a few drops of lemon juice. Chop the oysters into small bits, add them to the sauce and let the whole come to the boiling point. Fill the muffin shells and put on the crust covers. Pour the remainder of the sauce around the rolls and be sure to serve in hot plates.

The minutes of the previous meeting, reading of bills being omitted, were on motion approved as read.

PETITIONS, COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

From the Union County Trades Council, respectfully requesting that before contracts for new county building were awarded, a clause be inserted in the specifications that only union labor and none but American citizens shall be employed.

On motion of Freeholder Brucklacher, received and placed on file.

From the Union County Building Trades' Council, asking a favor to the mechanics of this county, that a clause be inserted in the different contracts for the new courthouse calling for the work to be done by union men.

On motion of Freeholder Westphal received and placed on file.

Freeholder Scudder presented the following:

Westfield, N. J., January 30, 1901.

M. M. Scudder, Esq., Westfield, N. J.:

Dear Sir—At a meeting of the Township Committee of Westfield, held Monday evening, January 28, 1901 the following resolution was adopted, and I would respectfully request that you present the same to the board.

"Resolved, That the Township Committee has heard with approval of the proposal that the Board of Freeholders consent to such change of grade on Central avenue as will enable the Central Railroad of New Jersey to tunnel under the railroad crossing, and the Township Committee requests that the Westfield Freeholder, the Hon. M. M. Scudder, assist in carrying out said proposal.

Very truly yours,
Charles D. Reese,
Township Clerk.

Freeholder King moved that the communication be received and referred to a special committ with power, which was a without dissent.

The Director appointed as the said committee, Freeholders Scudder, King, Robison, Ehrich and Woodruff

Freeholder King presented the following letter:

Summit N. J., January 14 1901.

Benjamin King, Esq., Chairman of the County Road Committee:

Dear Sir: I beg leave to notify you that the county road known as Springfield avenue, in the Borough of New Providence, has been torn up for a distance of about eighty feet, and a tile pipe laid therein for the purpose of draining the pond hole situated about fifty feet from the county road line. This has been done without any permit from your committee, and is a direct violation of the law. I hope your committee will look into this matter and protect the county's interest, and at the same time render me a great service, and protect me from further damage and injury, as I do not believe that your committee will grant special privileges to one party to the injury of another.

(Signed) Very truly,
W. F. Brower.

On motion of Freeholder Farrell, received and referred to the county road committee and county attorney.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

By the Committee on New Court House:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County:

Gentlemen—As supplemental to the report heretofore made by your committee to investigate and consider the advisability of building a new court house and buildings suitable and adequate for the accommodation of the courts and the county offices of Union county, your committee would report that they have further considered the matter and have personally inspected several modern court houses and public buildings at Dedham, Cambridge and other places in and about the vicinity of Boston, and have carefully considered the condition, situation and manner under which the public business of the County of Union is necessarily at present transacted by reason of the present inadequate, inconvenient and partially dilapidated condition of our present court house and public offices.

We would, therefore, recommend to the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union that they proceed to take such steps as may be necessary to the erecting and building of a court house and county offices for the County of Union suitable and adequate for the transaction of the public business, and while we would oppose all extravagant and useless expenditure of money, yet considering the financial condition of the County of Union, the present and constantly increasing public business made necessary by the rapid growth of our county, we would recommend the building of a good substantial modern building with proper and appropriate furnishings and equipments, and one of sufficient size, material and design as to answer the requirements of the County of Union for many years to come, and one which when completed would meet with the approval of the public and be a credit to the county and this board.

Very respectfully submitted,
John Farrell,
Benjamin King,
W. H. Swain,
Henry Krouse,
Jacob Brucklacher,
Committee.

Freeholder King moved that the report be received and spread on the minutes, which was duly seconded.

Freeholder Farrell stated briefly that the committee had given the matter very careful attention; they had thoroughly investigated the condition of the present county buildings, and had inquired as to the need of additional rooms in the near future to accommodate the increasing business in the county offices. It was the unanimous decision of the committee that the wisest and most economical course to pursue be to erect a new county building

Freeholder King's motion was then adopted without dissent.

NEW BUSINESS.

By Freeholder Miller:

"Resolved, That the committee on Elizabeth drawbridge be empowered to engage Mr. Charles Mox as bridgetender of Summer street bridge, for the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars annually."

Freeholder Farrell moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

By Freeholder Wahl:

"Resolved, That the bill of Thomas J Scott for $25 00 for printing minutes in the Passaic Valley News," be paid when properly audited by the committee."

Freeholder Robison moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was unanimously adopted

By Freeholder King:

Whereas, The commissioners heretofore appointed in the matter of the application of the Board of Chosen Freeholders for the appointment of commissioners to condemn lands belonging to Jonathan F. Glasby and others;

And whereas, they have completed their labors and filed their report, and among other matters contained in said report, they have made an award of one dollar to Ann Eliza Magie as by map number 26 in said report will more fully appear;

And whereas, there is a dwelling standing within the line of said street when widened as proposed on said premises;

And whereas, it is admitted by said commissioners that the making of the award of one dollar to said Eliza Magie was an oversight and mistake;

And whereas, it appears that it would cost in the neighborhood of five hundred dollars to remove said building and replace the same in equally as good condition outside of the lines of said street;

And whereas, the said Ann Eliza Magie agreed to accept the sum of four hundred and fifty dollars in full for damage to her said property and as compensation to her for the cost of removing and building from within the lines of said proposed street when widened; therefore, be it

Resolved, That E M Wood, County Collector of the County of Union, be and hereby is authorized and empowered to pay to the said Ann Eliza Magie the sum of four hundred and fifty dollars in full as compensation to her for the land taken and the cost of removing said building, and that said sum be paid by said county collector from the moneys received by him from the sale of buildings heretofore condemned and sold by this Board in the matter hereinabove referred to, he, the said County Collector taking full receipt and releases in the premises.

Freeholder Woodruff moved the adoption of the foregoing preamble and resolutions, and on roll call they were unanimously adopted.

By Freeholder Woodruff:

"Resolved, That a committee of five (5) be appointed, to be known as the Boulevard Committee, with power to advertise for bids for the grading, bridges and putting the same in shape."

After some discussion it was ordered on motion of Freeholder Farrell that the resolution be laid on the table.

By Freeholder Swain:

Whereas, The committee heretofore appointed by this Board for the purpose of investigating and considering the necessity and advisability of the building of a court house and buildings for use for county offices; and

Whereas, Said committee has reported to this Board recommending the advisability of the building and erecting of such court house and buildings.

Therefore, Be It Resolved, That we, the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union do hereby declare the present court house and buildings in use for county offices to be inadequate.

And Be It Resolved, That this Board proceed to the taking of such steps as may seem necessary and proper for the erection of a court house and buildings suitable for the use of the courts and the county officers, and the transaction of the public business of the county, and to furnish the same ready for occupancy and use by the courts and public officers.

Freeholder Krouse moved the adoption of the for going preamble and resolutions, and on roll-call they were unanimously adopted.

By Freeholder Farrell:

"Resolved, That the bill of C. H McKibbin for $276 35, made up of two items, viz: $104 for board and $172 35 for cigars, sandwiches, lemonade, etc., for keeping jury and constables in Doyle murder trial 3½ days, be referred to the county attorney and approval of the trial judge, Hon. B Van Syckel, and if approved by said judge the county collector be authorized to pay same"

Freeholder King moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was adopted, receiving 15 ayes, 1 nay, 2 absent.

The following bills properly audited and approved were read, and on roll-call unanimously ordered paid, viz:

CARROLL D. WRIGHT.

Reappointed by the President for the Post of United States Commissioner of Labor.

President McKinley has renominated Carroll D. Wright for the post of United States commissioner of labor. Mr. Wright has now held that very useful and very important office since 1885, and he was the first man to fill it after it was created in that year. Since then he has become known in all parts of the world as one of the foremost of statisticians, but he had previously made a reputation for great ability in this line of science.

Commissioner Wright's services to economical science are very great. Few statisticians have been careful as he to present bare facts, and to present them as fully as the statistician can. It was Mr. Wright who originated the famous and much misquoted saying: "Figures do not lie, but liars figure."

Beginning life as a country schoolmaster in New Hampshire, his native state, he went from pedagogy into law. He dropped his commentaries for the musket when the civil war came along, and fought for his country to the end of the struggle. Then he resumed his study of the law and was admitted to the bar.

In 1871 and 1872 Mr. Wright became a New Hampshire legislator, and was soon thereafter placed in charge of the state labor bureau. In 1880 he supervised the census of Massachusetts, and so thoroughly did he handle the work that his report attracted widespread attention. He has published numerous books, and some of them are standard.

Prominent Iowa Lawyer Is Seeking the Gubernatorial Nomination and Other Honors.

Albert B. Cummins, of Des Moines, Ia., has announced his candidacy for the republican nomination for governor of Iowa and those who are acquainted with his aspirations affirm that it is his desire to represent his state in the United States senate. Whether this may be so or not, it is regarded as likely that he will make a good fight for the gubernatorial honor and that he stands a very good chance in the race.

Mr. Cummins was born in 1850 and since 1887 he has been a prominent figure in politics. In that year he was selected on account of personal popularity to lead the anti-prohibition fight in Polk county. He did so, defeating the republican candidate for the legislature by a narrow margin. In the spring of 1892 he was made temporary chairman of the republican state convention and in 1894 was a candidate for the United States senatorship, but was defeated by Senator Gear. At St. Louis in 1896 he was given a position on the national committee, and his popularity has been noticeable in all his work in that connection. He is a speaker of much ability and is well informed on the political situation, especially on all subjects dealing with prohibition.

part.

"The church as well as Christians are limiting the power of God and yet they wonder why the Spirit of God does not work among them The important question is are you living to glorify God?' Won't you all this afternoon let God work in you with unlimited power."

At the conclusion of the sermon, Mr. Henderson asked those present who desired to give themselves entirely to Christ to raise their hands. A great many did, also a number indicated a desire to become Christians. Before the service closed Mr. Weeden sang a solo, after which the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards.

MEETING FOR CHILDREN.

Earnest But Simple Talk to The Little Folk by F. H. Jacobs Yesterday Afternoon.

The children of Plainfield were not left out of the plan for the evangelistic campaign, and yesterday afternoon the first meeting for boys and girls was held in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church, while the regular afternoon service conducted by Mr. Henderson was taking place in the larger auditorium.

A very large number of little folks were present, many of them under the charge of mother, Sunday-school teacher, or Junior Endeavor superintendent. F. H. Jacobs, who is the musical director at the evening meetings, had entire charge of this meeting, and made the hour a very enjoyable one to his audience. His subject was "How We Become Sinners."

The speaker endeavored to show how, by the every-day breaking of God's commandments, every soul has departed from holiness and must be, in the sight of God, a law breaker. Mr. Jacobs' talk consisted chiefly of a true story of a small boy who, on his way across one field to Sunday-school, broke five of the Ten Commandments before he reached there. The children in the audience were called upon to tell which of the commandments were the ones broken, and responded readily and logically. Mr. Jacobs placed on the edge of the table before him a row of ten vases, to represent the commandments, and, as it was proved that one of the latter was broken by the boy whose story he had told, the speaker took a small hammer and smashed the corresponding vase, showing in a striking manner that a sin once committed can never be undone.

At the conclusion of the address Mr. Jacobs called to him the five youngest children in the room and presented them with the five remaining vases.

The meeting for children this afternoon will be held in the Crescent Avenue chapel, but the one tomorrow will take place in the First Baptist church.

STRONG PLEA FOR CHRIST.

Evangelist Hall Addressed Large Congregation at First Baptist Church - Judge Runyon Spoke.

William Phillips Hall, the indefatigable lay evangelist, made his third appearance before a Plainfield congregation at the great gospel meeting held last evening and a climax of religious ecstasy was reached in the services when twenty-three persons arose, one by one, and surrendered themselves to Jesus and took the oath of allegience to the Lord of Hosts.

The interest of the vast congregation naturally centered on the evangelist, Mr. Hall, but mention should be made of the added strength given the meeting by the presence of the major part of the evangelical divines of the city. Noticable among them were Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, Rev Dr. W. C Snodgrass, Rev. J. W. Richardson, Rev. A. E. Main, Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, Rev. George W. Gardner, and Rev. J. O. McKelvey, and Rev. G. W. Smith, of the Elizabeth conference.

The untiring musical director, F. H. Jacobs, promptly at 7:30 o'clock tapped his baton for attention and the volunteer choir on the platform with the assistance of the congregation, as a chorus, commenced the first lines of "Happy in the Love of Jesus" Other selections from "Christian Songs" followed and during the enchanting rendition of the last and most beautiful of all—"The Heavenly Summerland" — Mr. Hall entered. Prayers were offered by Rev. Mr. Richardson and Rev. Dr. Smith.

After the formal announcements of the meetings, Mr. Hall arose and made a few remarks. He referred in beginning to the institution of the present universal gospel campaign which is reaching out everywhere for converts and is a rejuvenation of apostolic evangelism, both lay and ministerial, which is inspiring more earnest work than ever before attempted.

Mr. Hall paused in his discourse for a few moments to introduce, as a volunteer in the work, the popular young Plainfielder, City Judge W. N. Runyon.

In a short and earnest address Mr. Runyon said that he believed the spirit of God is working in this community and he besought all young men to pay no heed to scoffers, but to stand up and fearlessly give testimony. For, said he, in the words of the Saviour, blessed are they that are persecuted for righteousness sake for theirs is the Kingdom of Heaven.

Mr. Hall then began his address of the evening, basing his discourse principally on the 38th chapter Jeremiah, 20th verse: "Obey, I beseech thee the voice of the Lord, which I speak unto thee; so it shall be well unto thee and thy soul shall live," and referred to the 6th chap. John, 40th verse, and 5th chap. John, 41st verse.

When one prays, quoted Mr. Hall, he speaks to God and when he reads the Book, God speaks to him. God, said he, never makes a command without giving the power to execute that command. The moment one is willing to receive the Lord that moment will the Lord give him power. To illustrate the theme of obedience, Mr. Hall, told the story of Naaman.

The valorous captain general of the army of Syria, Naaman, after a triumphal return from a war with Israel, found himself covered with leprosy. Through a captive maid of Israel the Naaman learned of the presence of the prophet Elisha in Samaria and he immediately departed for that country in search of the healer. Naaman first went to the King of Israel, but Elisha hearing of this sent for the captain to come to him. When he had done so, Elisha ordered him to wash in the Jordan seven times and at this command Naaman was very angry. He was persuaded, however, to obey the order of the prophet, and from that his wonderful cure was effected. Henceforth Naaman followed God.

Naaman's fault was pride but when he bathed he went down like a true Baptist and came up like a shouting Methodist. He had found the power of God and by his obedience he was cleansed of his sins.

Nearly all present arose in response to a request of Mr Hall that every one who would follow God, stand up.

As heretofore the cards were distributed for signers. In the "after meeting" the choir sweetly and softly sang "Just As I Am" while one person after another stood up in affirmance of a pledge to accept God. Twenty-three, in all, presented themselves to the Lord. City Judge Runyon then offered prayer and the congregation enthusiastically sang "Nearer My God to Thee."

CAMPAIGN IN WEST END.

Rev. T. S. Henderson Opened Series of Meetings at Hope Chapel Last Evening.

With every seat occupied and with more than passing interest on the part of the large audience, the initial evangelistic meeting of the series to be given in the West End was held in Hope chapel last evening. The leader was, and will be for the remainder of the meetings, Rev. T. S. Henderson, whose inspiring addresses were listened to by hundreds each night last week at the First Baptist church. The effectiveness of the meeting was greatly augmented by the excellent singing of W. S. Weeden, whose numerous solos were a pleasing feature.

At the conclusion of the customary song service prayer was offered by Rev G. K Newell, after which Mr. Henderson announced his text as being found in the fourteenth chapter and ninth verse of the Gospel according to St. John, where in answer and part rebuke to Philip the Saviour replied: "Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known Me?"

Philip, being one of the disciples, had an excellent opportunity to become acquainted with the Saviour and profit by His teachings, yet he doubted His statements.

"We have a far better chance to know Jesus," said the speaker, "having the benefit of 1,870 yearr of criticism and comparison of His life, yet how many of us are really acquainted with Him tonight? If you do not love Christ, there is only one reason, you do not know Him because to know Him is to love Him. The Saviour's life from Bethlehem to the ascension on the Mount was one of sacrifice for us and His love has been offered freely ever since, yet we reject it and refuse to trust it seriously."

In conclusion the speaker said that now is the time to become acquainted with Jesus and in so doing gain His love. He ended with an appeal to his hearers to show their acceptance by signing pledge cards, and many of them responded. A solo by Mr. Weeden and the benediction by Rev John McMurray brought the meeting to a close.

Mr. Weeden afterward met a number of those who had assisted in the musical programme for the purpose of organizing a choir for the remainder of the meetings. There were numerous volunteers and with their assistance Mr. Weeden will hereafter make the singing a feature.

SPORTING.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

A feature of the coming Sportsman's Show, which opened at Madison Square Garden, New York, Saturday evening, was the drama of "Hiawatha," Longfellow's song of Minnehaha and the young chieftain of the Ojibways. The actors in the production are a band of Ojibway Indians, who are present at the show under the direction of L. O. Armstrong. The costumes were prepared for the first presentation of the drama. The stage at the Garden was the miniature island that rises from the waters of the lake. The Indians who have assumed the characters in "Hiawatha" at the Garden have been carefully drilled and rehearsed. They were eager to present this legend of their tribe in New York, and that their performance is a unique and interesting one can scarcely be doubted by those at all familiar with Indian character and Indian lore.

POOL

The last four games in the pool tourney at Krewson's parlors have resulted as follows: Sutterlein defeated Dowd, 75 to 53; Walsh won from Smith by forfeit 60 to 0; Ammons defeated Coombs, 55 to 43; Greader won from Beekman by forfeit, 75 to 0.

PERSONAL.

Constable Amos Moffett has almost entirely recovered from his recent illness and is regaining strength rapidly.

F. E. Whiteside, of the News reportorial staff, has been off duty for the past days, being confined to his home on Central avenue by illness.

The arrival of a young motorman at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Hipp, of West Fourth street, explains the presence of a broad smile on the former's face.

Was No Imposter.

Regarding the visit of the sewing machine repair man at the home of Mrs. Vito Feraro, of Somerset street, as was told in the Press' story of the suspect Boyd, it may be said that the visitor was J. C Smith, a reputable citizen of Somerville, and not any imposter using Smith's card and that he went there with only honest intentions.

A "Wake" to Be Remembered.

The greatest Kermesse is no more It died at November 12, midnight, while the cannon boomed dolorously from the Eiffel tower and the rain fell. It was a "wake" to be remembered. In six weeks, or months, there will be left only a few relics of the greatest show the world has yet seen. The Alexander III. bridge will remain, of course and the two art palaces. The smaller one, which belongs to the city, will be made the home of a permanent museum, and the large palace, owned by the state, will be used for the annual exposition of pictures, the horse show and various congresses.—Saturday Evening Post.

When Knighthood Is in Business.

The youth spread his cloak upon the highway, the queen passed dry-shod.

"Oh, thank you awfully," murmured the queen, and that was all.

But the youth did not despair, for he was a brave youth. Instead he went to work and perfected a process for pickling pigs' feet by machinery.

"I dub thee knight," the queen here upon hastened to exclaim, with every mark of distinguished consideration.

LUCKY LITTLE GIRL.

Will Inherit Millions by Just Being a Good Woman.

How Nicholas C. Creede, the Well-Known California Millionaire, Came to Leave His Fortune to Dorothy Basford.

Never did San Francisco mothers and sisters take keener interest in a child than they are now evincing in Dorothy Creede, the Titian haired five-year-old girl who made happy the last days of Nicholas C. Creede and to whom he bequeathed his millions of mining property, stocks and bands.

Romantic as it was for the hardy miner after many years of rough life to become attached to the one-year-old youngster he saw playing in a garden next to his home, those who knew him best thought it even more interesting that he should adopt the child and then should make her heir to his millions.

But this he did, and now comes the most extraordinary feature of the case. In his will, it has just become known, Creede imposed but one condition. That was that the entire property should go to Dorothy only "if she has led a proper and virtuous life."

This unique feature of Creede's will was brought to light by the institution of a suit for $250 a week by Mrs. Creede, widow of the millionaire miner. She had not lived happily with her husband, and some time during the year before he died he paid her $20,000 in relinquishment of all claims against him. She went to her home in Alabama, and the intention was that at the end of the year Creede should obtain a divorce on the ground of abandonment. He died within a year and the suit was never brought.

It was little Dorothy Basford, daughter of Mrs. Edith Scott Basford, who made bright and happy the last days of the Colorado miner. He first saw her through a window of his splendid home in Los Angeles. He wanted to adopt her, but her mother protested. When Mrs. Basford became dangerously ill, however, and her life was despaired of, she consented to the appointment of the wealthy miner as Dorothy's guardian. This was near the end of Creede's life. The guardian, instead of the mother, died. Mrs. Basford recovered, and, although she had trembled for the future of her little daughter because she could not obtain for her the best advantages, she now found that Dorothy had become an heiress to millions.

DOROTHY BASFORD CREEDE.
(Little Girl Who Will Inherit a Fortune of Many Millions.)

In his will Creede provided for the future comfort and training of the little one whose childish prattle had brightened his last days, and he directed that she be given the advantages of special tutors. His wishes have been the especial care of Dorothy's mother, and in the fortunate daughter are being developed those strong traits of character which the rough miner thought he saw in his little friend.

Dorothy Creede is in her fifth year now, and she must wait many years before she can come into possession of the $3,000,000 left to her by her guardian. Those who see her often, while mindful of her childish lack of appreciation of what the millionaire's generosity means to her, are confident that when she becomes 21 years old she will come into the property.

They have no fear that she will lose the Creede fortune because of the unique provision of the will which has recently become known.

Taught Him a Lesson.

A well-known admiral, who did notable service in the war with Spain, told a good story on himself when in town recently. He came to the city during the restoration of Independence hall for no other purpose than to secure one of the original bricks of the historic structure. One day he visited the hall and told the caretaker who he was and what he wanted. That official, willing to do a favor for such a distinguished person, wrapped up one of the bricks and handed it to the admiral, who was profuse in his thanks. Upon his arrival in Washington the admiral gave further evidence of his gratitude by writing a letter to Director Riter, expressing thanks to him. What was his surprise the next day to receive a call from the caretaker who had given him the brick, with the statement that if he did not bring it back to Philadelphia he would surely lose his job. Reluctantly the admiral returned the cherished brick. A short time after he received the identical brick, accompanied by a slip of paper, on which was written: "Silence is Golden."—Philadelphia Record.

BATTLING TO BRING SOULS TO CHRIST.

Four Meetings in The Gospel Campaign Were Held During Yesterday.

MANY ARE INTERESTED.

EVANGELIST HALL SPOKE TO LARGE CROWD AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

Talk to The Little Folk by F. H. Jacob—Good Attendance at Afternoon Meeting—Services to be Held To-night and Rest of The Series.

Increased interest and deeper spiritual feeling marks each day's progress in the gospel campaign. Four meetings were held yesterday, two in the afternoon and two in the evening, and all were well attended. William Phillips Hall, Rev. Theo. S. Henderson and F. H. Jacobs were in charge.

This afternoon will conclude the series of children's meetings which F. H. Jacobs has been conducting. The meeting for children this afternoon will be held in the First Baptist church and will begin at 4 o'clock. The afternoon meetings in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, under the charge of Rev. T. S. Henderson, will be held today and tomorrow and Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. They will begin with a half-hour prayer service, starting at 3 o'clock, and will be followed by an evangelistic service.

Evangelist Wm. Phillips Hall will continue the evening meetings at the First Baptist church tonight and tomorrow night and Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of next week. They begin at 7:45 o'clock. Rev. T. S. Henderson will conduct meetings at Hope Chapel tonight and tomorrow night. Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings the series of meetings in the West End will be held at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church. Sunday morning, Evangelist Hall will speak at Hope chapel.

MR. HENDERSON TALKED.

Addressed Afternoon Gospel Meeting in the Crescent Avenue Church Yesterday.

The second afternoon service in conjunction with the series of evangelistic meetings, was held yesterday in the Crescent Avenue church, and like the one of the preceding day, was well attended. The usual prayer and song service was held prior to the preaching, W. C. Weeden conducting the song service. Just before Mr. Henderson took charge, Mr. Weeden sang "The Inner Circle," as a solo. Mr. Henderson then announced his text, 1st Corinthians, 3d chapter and part of the 16th verse: 'Know ye not that ye are the Temple of God." In part he spoke as follows:

"In the present day there is a great deal of discussion as to what constitutes the essence of spirituality. Some people imagine that when they are very emotional they are in a high state of spirituality, and in services like these people are apt to deceive themselves. Whether you are spiritually deepened all depends upon your attitude towards God.

"There are two centres around which the life revolves. One is a Christ-centred life and the other a self-centred life. The central figure in our text today represents the corporate body of the church. The temple was looked upon by the Jews as a place for the highest demonstration of spirituality. Great emphasis was laid on the service of the Jew in respect to his offering of money. That was a test of his services and devotion to God. His portion was seven-thirtieths of his income. The question of 'Will a man rob God?' was put to the Jews, and the divine injunction was 'Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse.'

"Everyone that gives is not spiritual, but one cannot be spiritual unless they give to the Lord. You cannot be spiritual and be a mean person, although you frequently hear such things being reported. When there is repeated consecration to the Lord month after month there is something wrong. When a person thoroughly consecrates himself to God he gives up all. He may frequently reaffirm

NOISY IN MUSIC HALL.

Charles Leonard Was Locked Up and Found Guilty in Police Court This Morning.

Charles Leonard, a young man who has been an annoyance to Manager Edwards, of Music Hall, for some time past, was placed under arrest last evening at the instigation of Manager Edwards.

Leonard, it is alleged, was drunk and disorderly in the hall during the performance last evening and on being ejected became very profane in his speech.

This morning Mr. Edwards appeared against him before City Judge Runyon. The option of paying a fine of $5 or undergoing a sentence of twenty days was left to the selection of Leonard by His Honor.

WAS BURIED IN JERSEY.

REMAINS OF WIFE OF LIEUT. WYGANT INTERRED AT SCOTCH PLAINS.

Died at Manila Where Her Husband Was Quartered—Brought Home For Burial.

The remains of Elizabeth O. W. Wygant, wife of Lieut. Henry S. Wygant, U. S. A. arrived in Plainfield last evening on the 9:58 train from Washington. Mrs. Wygant died at Manila, December 9, of heart failure. Her husband was stationed there. The body was shipped on a transport January 23, at Manila and arrived in San Francisco last Saturday and in Plainfield last evening.

The remains were taken in charge by Undertaker George Cole, and the interment took place today noon in the Baptist church cemetery at Scotch Plains, Rev. Mr. Mulford, of All Saints P. E. church, officiating.

Mrs. Wygant was twenty-one years old and was the daughter of a prominent major in the regular army. Her husband is a nephew of Louis W. Miller, of Scotch Plains, and after the death of Mrs. Wygant it was arranged to bury her at Scotch Plains.

When Lieut. Wygant and his mother, who lives in New York, met last evening at the North Avenue station for the first time in seven years, there was a pathetic scene. Mother and son fondly embraced each other, and it was several minutes before either one could speak. It was the desire of Lieut. Wygant that his wife should be buried in her native State, rather than in Manila, where her remains would be so far away from her loved ones.

AFTER DELINQUENTS.

Geo. E. Rogers Will be Made Assistant to Tax Collector Smith and Will Do the Outside Work.

The appointment of George E. Rogers as a constable at the last meeting of the Common Council was for the purpose of using him as a collector of delinquent taxes and he will enter upon his duties in a short time. He will be an assistant to Collector Frank H. Smith. The latter is now preparing a list of those to be seen and Mr. Rogers will make a business of interviewing delinquent taxpayers. Of course, the delinquents will pay for the services given by Mr. Rogers, as it is for their benefit that he is appointed.

Men's Meeting at Y. M. C. A.

F. H. Jacobs will speak at the afternoon meeting at the Y. M. C. A. next Sunday. A special musical programme has been arranged by Prof. George Morris, who will lead the Southern Jubilee Singers. The service commences at 4:15 o'clock sharp. Cards of admission can be obtained at the Y. M. C. A. building.

Putting Up New Pillars.

W. M. Stillman is making some desirable improvements to his building on West Front street, the first floor of which is occupied by Mr. Weinberger, the clothier. New and staunch pillars are being erected to take the place of the supports that have been doing duty for many years.

Adjourned Meeting of Council.

There will be an important adjourned meeting of the Common Council, Monday evening, March 18, when the ordinance providing for sewage beds improvement will be introduced for adoption on its first reading.

Report of Great Council.

The members of Paughcaughnaughsinque Tribe, I. O. R. M., met last evening and received the report from the Great Council recently held. A warrant for $100 was ordered drawn in favor of Mrs. Connolly, widow of a former member of the tribe.

To Select Meeting Place.

An important meeting of Freedom Castle, Knights of the Golden Eagle, will be held Tuesday evening in Washington Hall to decide about a place of permanent meeting.

NO MORE ELECTION BILLS THIS TERM.

Little Likelihood of Mr. Meeker Introducing Addition to His Anti-Spring Election Law.

BOTH HOUSES IN SESSION.

SENATE PASSED AMENDMENT PROVIDING FOR BIENNIAL SESSION.

Senator Cross Opposed It—Little Done at Yesterday's Session—A Few Bills Were Passed—Senate Also Passed Senator Stokes' Amendment.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, March 7.—Assemblyman Meeker did not introduce his proposed general anti-spring election bill yesterday. The opposition to it is so strong that there is little likelihood of the measure coming up this session.

The two houses of the Legislature held unimportant sessions yesterday morning. Senator Stokes introduced a bill to authorize the use of voting machines and a bill amending the law regulating corporations. The list named permits corporations having preferred stock to pay premiums on common stock semi-annually or quarterly, as they prefer.

At the afternoon session of the Senate Mr. Johnson's concurrent resolution providing for biennial sessions of the Legislature was passed—14 to 7. The negative votes were cast by Senators Cross, Hand and Reed, Republicans, and Cornish, Gebhardt, Hudspeth and Martin, Democrats.

The Senate passed Senator Stokes' concurrent resolution apportioning the number of assemblymen in the different counties. The only changes made from the present apportionment is to take one assemblyman each from Hunterdon and Warren counties and to give an additional member each to Hudson and Passaic counties.

The House passed Mr. Garrison's bill to tax personal property where it is situated instead of at the place of residence of the owner.

NO SENTENCE.

City Judge Runyon Took Same View as Defendant's Counsel and Dismissed Case.

This morning the adjourned hearing in the assault case against Amos Blasier, of West Front street, took place before City Judge Runyon. Henry D. Thompson, the alleged victim of the assault, failed as he did at the previous hearing to produce any evidence to substantiate his version of the affair, while Blasier's story was supported by a crowd of witnesses.

Robert M. Clark asked for the dismissal of the charge because at the most only a technical assault was alleged and had not been proven. City Judge Runyon took the same view of the matter and dismissed the proceedings.

M'ALL AUXILIARY.

Annual Meeting Held Yesterday And Officers Elected.

The annual meeting of the McAll Auxiliary was held at the Public Library yesterday, when officers for the ensuing year were chosen as follows: President, Mrs. Frederic G. Mead; secretary, Mrs. Charles S. Lee; treasurer, Mrs. John Gray Foster; vice presidents, Mrs. A. C. Baldwin and Mrs. Isaac L. Miller, Crescent Avenue church; Mrs. F. O. Herring and Miss Florence Tweedy, Grace P. E. church; Mrs. W. B. Wadsworth, Congregational church; Mrs. Cornelius Schenck, Trinity Reformed church; Mrs. Theophilus Bond, First Presbyterian church; Mrs. I. N. VanSyckel, Seventh-Day Baptist church; secretary of literature, Mrs. William M. Stillman.

The report of the treasurer was very encouraging and showed that during the year $860.42 had been received for carrying on the excellent work of the auxiliary. Every department reported progress and the new year starts under most favorable auspices.

The Sign of the Cross.

The next entertainment of the Y. M. C. A. course, March 18, will be Miss Gay Zenola McClaran's monologue interpretation of "The Sign of the Cross." Miss May Vincent Whitney will render a number of selections on the piano during the entertainment.

Library Circulation Increasing.

The circulation of books at the Free Public Library shows a steady increase. During the past month 579 more volumes were circulated than in February, 1900. The total number for the short month of February was 3,830.

MISS BATES HERE.

Former Fanwood Young Woman Played Leading Role in "The Dairy Farm" at Music Hall Last Night.

There was a pleasant surprise in store for those who attended the performance of "The Dairy Farm" at Music Hall last evening. One of the principal parts in the cast, that of "Minty," was taken by Miss Lulu Bates, for many years a resident of Fanwood. Miss Bates lived with her parents and attended the Seminary in this city until four years ago, when the family moved to New York. Miss Bates then entered a dramatic school and went on the stage two years ago.

"The Dairy Farm" was one of the best and most wholesome productions that has been seen on the local stage. The scenery was all new and a number of fine effects were produced. A large and competent cast gave the story of rural life in central New York in a very satisfactory manner.

Miss Bates was particularly good in her part and entered with spirit into the character of the wild but merry daughter of the old peddler. She seemed perfectly natural and was bright and attractive whenever she appeared. Miss Bates has the prospect of a bright career before her.

STRUCK BY ENGINE.

Mrs. O'Brien Had Narrow Escape From Death at Somerville Station Yesterday.

(Special to the Daily Press.)

Somerville, March 7.—Mrs. O'Brien, aged about 70, had a narrow escape from death at the Somerville station of the Central Railroad yesterday morning.

She was crossing the tracks to take a train for Cranford to see her son, who is sick, when a westbound passenger train came in, which struck her and dragged her about 100 feet, her clothing having caught in the engine pilot.

Reed Stryker, of this place, a Rutgers student, made a brave effort to save the elderly woman. He dashed in front of the engine and endeavored to pull her from the tracks, but she slipped from his grasp. He just barely escaped himself. The injured woman was picked up and carried to the station and subsequently removed to her home. An arm was broken, a leg fractured and she was badly bruised.

Mrs. O'Brien's husband was killed a few years ago by the cars about 500 feet east of where she was struck.

Entertained Friends.

Mrs. I. H. Boehm, of Somerset street, entertained twenty-five friends in a very pleasant manner at her home last evening. With the aid of dancing, games and other amusements the hours passed very quickly. A feature of the occasion was a number of well rendered vocal solos by Mrs. Case, Miss Daisy Snyder, David Mack, Joseph Connors and Albert Fitch. Supper was served at midnight and the guests left for their respective homes at 2 o'clock.

Burning Rags Caused Smoke.

WERE PANGBORN AND ALLEN SAME MAN?

Jury Will Probably Decide The Question in Williamsport Today.

THE TESTIMONY COMPLETED

ONLY SUMMING UP AND CHARGING THE JURY TODAY.

Mrs. Lewis Perrine, of This City, Was The Chief Witness in The Case—Defence Was Completed Yesterday.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Williamsport, Pa., March 7.—A decision is hoped for today in the case on trial here to settle the alleged dual identity of W. S. Allen, who is claimed to be Stephen Pangborn, once of Plainfield, N. J.

The testimony was concluded yesterday and the counsel began the summing up this morning. The case is expected to go to the jury today and both sides are hoping for a speedy verdict.

The second chapter in the case was related in court by witnesses yesterday. The principal witness was Mrs. Louisa Perrine, of Plainfield, N. J., who is plaintiff in the case, suing to recover the Allen estate on the claim that Allen and Pangborn were one and the same man.

She told how her father, partially disguised, came to Plainfield when she was a small girl. He accosted her while she was wading alone in a brook near her home, gave her 50 cents and begged that she go with him. On another occasion subsequent to this she was in a candy store in Plainfield when a stranger came in. The man proved to be her father.

The owner of the store, who was acquainted with the family history, told the stranger that the girl was his—"Allen's"—own child. To this the stranger replied: "My God, is that my child, and in such a destitute condition." He again pleaded with her to go with him, but she refused. An interesting thing about Mrs. Perrine is her striking likeness to the late W. S. Allen.

Mrs. Perrine herself has quite an unusual history, as related by herself. She said she was married to Mr. Perrine about twenty years ago, and that three years later he was sent to the penitentiary for a period of ten years. Two years later she was informed that she was free to marry again, as her husband's imprisonment nullified the marriage. Then she wedded Louis M. Miller. Two years ago she was informed by a lawyer that her marriage to Miller was illegal and she left him, assuming the name of Perrine again. Perrine died a year ago.

The defense in the case concluded its evidence in the afternoon. The bulk of testimony offered was to prove the legality of the marriage of W. S. Allen to Miss Sarah Harmon, the woman who survived him and who bore him four children.

JOLLY PARTY AT WEDDING.

ROUSING SEND-OFF FOR COUPLE MARRIED LAST EVENING.

Mrs. A. E. Waldron Wedded to Ernest Hanssler, of Brooklyn, at Home of Bride's Brother.

The marriage of Mrs. Anna E. Waldron, of this city, to Ernest Hanssler, of Brooklyn, took place last evening at the residence of the bride's brother, David Clark, 719 South avenue, in the presence of a large company of relatives and friends, among whom were a number of members of Star of Plainfield Lodge, Shepherds of Bethlehem, and Mizpah Lodge, No. 1, U. O. of I. O. L., of which the bride is a member.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, pastor of the First M. E. church. The present included handsome tokens of appreciation from relatives and friends. Congratulations were offered and supper served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Hanssler left for a wedding trip. They will reside in Brooklyn, where the groom is employed as a machinist.

The couple went to the Netherwood station and their friends gave them a royal sendoff with a shower of rice. Mr. Hanssler formerly resided in Plainfield, where he has many friends. His wife was the widow of a soldier of the Civil War, and she too is well-known by a large circle of acquaintances.

Regarding Municipal Ownership.

James E. Martine has received a letter from the Mayor of Madison, N. J., stating that the municipal system of water supply and the municipal electric light plant is a decided success both in point of service and revenue to that city. Light is furnished to consumers at 10 cents per 1,000 Watts. At this figure the city pays all running expenses and lays up a large and handsome net revenue. Street lights of 32 candle-power are furnished the city free. In Plainfield the price charged for light is 18 cents per 1,000 Watts.

Divided Fair Profits.

A joint meeting of the companies of the North Plainfield fire department was held last evening in the Warren Engine house. The report of the committee of the firemen's fair was read and adopted. The net proceeds of the affair, $920.40, were divided according to the agreement, Warren Engine Company receiving a certified check for $613.60, and the West End Hose Company a certified check for $306.80.

HOW PROSPERITY HAS COME TO A. O. U. W.

Summary of Annual Reports to be Presented to Grand Lodge of the Order.

IT HAS BEEN GROWING.

WORDS OF PRAISE FOR V. W. NASH, OF THIS CITY.

Was Supervising Deputy of a District in This State—Kind Words Also for J. W. A. Bauersachs, of Columbia Lodge—The Report.

The reports of Grand Master Workman Lambert of other officers of the Grand Lodge, A. O. U. W., of New Jersey, have been sent to the various representatives in the State. There is much of interest to Workmen in the reports presented.

Grand Master Workman Lambert says that he is disappointed in the growth of the order in the State for the past year. He expected that two thousand members would be added to the membership, but the growth will reach not much over one half of that number. His solution is that no five or ten lodges can do the work that rightly belongs to the whole jurisdiction. Continuing the Grand Master says:

"For the measure of success I have had, I feel indebted to the brethren and lodges that have so splendidly stood by me and held up my hands. I would especially commend Brother V. W. Nash, supervising deputy, for his earnestness and zeal. He did not spare himself, but in season and out of season, in heat and in cold, he never flagged. The distance was never too far or the lodge too small or results so discouraging, but that Brother Nash found the way to their lodge room. Every month he submitted to me a list of from eight to fifteen lodges he would visit."

Brother J. W. A. Bauersachs, of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, is also commended for his excellent work. From April 1 to January 1, nine months, there were initiated 740 candidates, a net gain of 293, because the suspensions were 447. The Grand Master recommends some legislation at the next annual session that will make a desirable change in the plan of assessment. He also recommends that the Grand Recorder's office be moved from Camden to Trenton.

The report of Supervising Deputy V. W. Nash shows that he had charge of the lodges located in Bergen, Essex, Hudson, Middlesex, Monmouth, Passaic, Union and Warren counties. He made seventy-two visitations. Mr. Nash recommends a change in the manner of a bonuses given for new members, and believes that it should not be made paid until a member has belonged to the order for at least three months.

The reports of the Grand Recorder and Grand Receiver are encouraging and in the way of receipts and expenditures there appears a wise and judicious management of affairs. One important matter that will come before the order at the annual meeting to be held at Trenton, March 14, will be that of assessment. A classified assessment is considered favorably, while others prefer the level assessment. At any rate something is considered necessary to establish a more uniform plan so that young men may be attracted to the order.

Gave Shakespeare.

Pupils of the preparatory High School class of the Plainfield public schools yesterday morning recited the court scene in "The Merchant of Venice." The principal parts were taken by Harry Thompson, "Bassonio"; Thomas DeMeza, "Antonio"; Miss Serrell, "Portia"; Miss Forbes, "Shylock," and Miss Cuming, "Nerissa."

Notable Death Masks.

There are three notable death masks on exhibition in the show window at J. Hervey Doane's jewelry store on Park avenue. One is that of Napoleon I., another of Clotilda, wife of Clovis, date 405, and the other is that of Lincoln. They are all the property of Col. Julian Scott, and they are prized very highly by him.

Surprised on Birthday.

George B. Vanderhoof, of West End Park, celebrated the anniversary of his birthday last Tuesday, and in the evening he was surprised by a number of his friends, who called to congratulate him. A very pleasant evening was passed by all.

Lenten Service.

Rev. Dr. Fenton, of Metuchen, will deliver the sermon this evening at the Church of the Holy Cross. Service at 8 o'clock.

FOR ENDEAVORERS.

Interesting Side of the Work Being Carried on by Young Christians.

(Conducted by Press Department Union County C. E. Union.)

An important meeting of the executive committee of the Union County Christian Endeavor Union will be held this evening, in the First Baptist church, Westfield. After the business session a conference on Bible study, led by W. A. Dempsey, county superintendent of that department, will be held. All Endeavorers are invited, whether they are members of the executive committee or not.

Howard E. Young, the wideawake secretary of the Morris County district, issues, with the aid of a mimeograph, a neat little C. E. bulletin called the News Budget.

The Record of Christian Work introduces in its March issue a department devoted to the Christian Endeavor topics for the month. The articles, written by I. E. Moulton, are in a very helpful vein, and will doubtless be much appreciated by the many Christian Endeavor subscribers of the magazine. There are now very few of the prominent religious periodicals which do not contain articles on the uniform topics.

The Christian Endeavor Society at the training college at Malua, Samoa the first in the South Pacific, was established July 10 1890 Since its organization 380 members have joined it, and 35 of these have been or are still missionaries in New Guinea. Thirty others are missionaries in the Tokelau, Ellice and Gilbert Islands There are at present 79 active members in the society at Malua. One of the tutors of the college is president and two of the assistants are secretaries. The corresponding members of the society number at least 250 Malua is the parent of six other societies in the island of Upolu, of two societies in the Tokelau group of islands, of five in the Ellice group and of three in the Gilbert group.

Probably the most important action taken at the business session of the United Society of Christian Endeavor held during the recent celebration at Portland, Me., was the resolution to have international conventions biennially hereafter. In recent years the several State unions have become so aggressive and have planned and held such remarkable conventions that the yearly international gathering does not seem so necessary as in the earlier years of the movement. Besides, it is believed that this plan will enable the weaker states to make a stronger effort in behalf of their yearly conventions and thus strengthen the work in the local and county unions.

A Welsh Baptist minister who heard Secretary Baer deliver an address at Clarksburg, W. Va., became so enthusiastic over the matter that he wrote letters to his children in Wales As a result they have organized a society in Blaenavon and are having excellent meetings.

The first native Filipino Christian Endeavor society has been organized in Manila. The exercises were in Spanish and Tagalog. It is predicted by those best fitted to judge that as soon as the society is understood it will become very popular with the Filipinos, as they have an inherent talent for organization. There is prospect of another society soon at Iloilo, and a pledge is being prepared in the Visayan language.

Secretary Baer has just returned from Cincinnati and reports preparations for the international convention well in hand. All the large halls have been engaged and the local Endeavorers are full of enthusiasm. The convention opens on Saturday, July 6

An Endeavor society has been formed in the Home for the Blind, at Belfast, Ireland.

Endeavor Day was celebrated throughout the world with keener interest than usual this year, in view of the fact that it was the twentieth anniversary of the movement. In New York city a whole week's meetings were held under the leadership of Dr Chapman, London and Liverpool held great simultaneous meetings in which Endeavorers were foremost. Chihuahua, Mexico, had a rousing "Decision Day" rally. In nearly every city, town and village of America special services were held and thousands of Christian Endeavor sermons were preached. Through the efforts to make the day a time of decision for Christ many will be added to the societies and churches of the land.

BIENNIAL SESSIONS FAVORED.

The New Jersey Senate Votes For a Change.

TRENTON, March 7.—The debate of the session occurred yesterday afternoon in the senate. The subject under discussion was Senator Johnson's concurrent resolution providing for a constitutional amendment favoring biennial sessions of the legislature. Mr. Johnson explained first that the resolution would have to be adopted by two succeeding legislatures and receive an affirmative vote of the people before it could be operative. He said there were but five states in the Union holding annual sessions of their legislatures and that New York, one of the five, was about to provide for biennial sessions. The introduction of biennial sessions in this state, he said, would meet a popular demand and prove a matter of economy to the state and to the different municipalities.

Senator Reed, the Republican leader, opposed the resolution and said there was no demand for it except from corporations.

President Pitney left the chair to advocate the resolution, which, he said, was very meritorious. Personal experience had demonstrated to him that there was not sufficient work to keep the legislature engaged in annual sessions.

The resolution was finally passed by a vote of 14 to 7. The seven negative votes were cast by Cross, Hand and Reed, Republicans, and Cornish, Gebhardt, Hudspeth and Martin, Democrats.

Secret Service Prisoner in Irons.

NEW YORK, March 7.—On board the steamer Hohenzollern, which arrived and anchored at quarantine last night from Genoa, Naples and Gibraltar, is W. O. Dupuy, an officer of the United States secret service, with a prisoner in irons. The prisoner is Lois Darrell, formerly sergeant in Troop G, Seventh United States cavalry, who is charged with murdering and robbing his comrade at Pinar del Rio, Cuba, in June last. Darrell, after the crime, succeeded in escaping to New Orleans, where he embarked for South Africa. Officer Dupuy arrested his man at Beira, Africa, but was obliged to go to Lisbon in order to obtain a requisition for his extradition. The papers were finally received at Beira on Jan. 29, and Officer Dupuy started for New York with his prisoner. A reward of $2,000 will be paid Officer Dupuy when he arrives at Havana, where the prisoner will be turned over to the United States authorities.

United Mine Workers to Meet.

HAZLETON, Pa., March 7.—The United Mine Workers of the three anthracite districts will meet in convention here next Tuesday. This meeting is to be followed, it is understood, by a joint conference on Friday between the operators and the representatives of the union for the purpose of agreeing on a wage scale for the ensuing year and the remedying of some minor grievances. It is the general opinion here that the big coal companies will be represented at this meeting and that a satisfactory agreement will be reached, thereby averting all danger of another general strike. President Mitchell will arrive on Monday night.

Cut His Young Wife's Throat.

BOSTON, March 7.—Thomas J. Burns, despondent, as he says, over his inability to obtain steady employment, killed his young wife, Hannah, to whom he had been married less than two months, by cutting her throat with a razor at her mother's home in South Boston yesterday afternoon. Twenty minutes later Burns was in custody. Burns is 24 years of age, and his wife was one year younger. Burns was married Jan. 20 to Miss Hannah Dooley, an employee of the marking room of one of the large department stores, where Burns himself had been employed until he lost his position something over a year ago.

Committed Suicide In His Cell.

LANCASTER, Pa., March 7.—William L. Mott, who was awaiting trial for the murder of two women last October at Columbia, committed suicide in his cell in the county jail. Mott's cell was shared by James Moore, a horse thief. The latter was taken into the book binding department to do some work, leaving Mott alone. The murderer unscrewed an iron bar from his seat and inserted it in an opening in the wall. To this he fastened a rope and strangled himself to death. Mott was 29 years old, and his home was in Norfolk, where his wife and several children and his mother reside.

A Horrible Accident.

LONDON, March 7.—The Moscow correspondent of The Daily Mail says: "During the recent heavy snowstorms 50 men were sent to clear the snow out of a railway cutting near Wolovo, on the Riazan-Ural line. They were just leaving the cutting when a train came down at full speed and crushed 30 men into shapeless masses, their clothing clogging the axles and stopping the train. Inquiry shows that the engine driver and all the guards were drunk."

Durant's Death a Fake.

PARIS, March 7.—The report that Mr. John Wilson Durant of Albany, who had been living during the last two years in Paris with his mother at the Hotel Lafonde Tremoille, had been killed at Ostend in a duel with a Russian count was an invention of his own. Mr. Durant is still alive.

MORGAN IS DEFIANT.

Canal Must Be Built Without English Restraint.

ABROGATE CLAYTON-BULWER TREATY

United States Will Resist to the Bitter End Any Attempt Made Against Her Sovereignty by Great Britain.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—In the senate yesterday Mr. Morgan (Dem.) of Alabama called attention to the rule of the senate which required morning business to be called for in regular order. The vice president assented and called for morning business, beginning with the presentation of petitions and closing with the resolutions laid over from the preceding day. Under this latter head the resolution offered on Tuesday by Mr. Morgan declaring that "the treaty known as the Clayton-Bulwer treaty between Great Britain and the United States is abrogated" was taken up, and Mr. Morgan proceeded to address the senate.

Speaking of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, Mr. Morgan said that it had died at the hands of the administration and of its professed friends, especially the late Senator Davis of Minnesota, who refused to call it up in executive session, causing the time for the exchange of its ratifications to expire and thereby killing it.

Speaking of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, Mr. Morgan said:

"We will make no compromise with

SENATOR MORGAN.

Great Britain on that subject. We will make no concession to Great Britain in relation to the Clayton-Bulwer treaty. All that we will do with it, and some of our people are even opposed to that, is that we shall take it up and declare that it is abrogated.

"If the vote on my resolution can be taken today, it will inform the president of the United States that he has not got a two-thirds majority in this senate to pass any compromise he may make with Great Britain. And if Great Britain is still looking for delay she will not get it, or if she has a determination to pick a quarrel with us about it she will find that the United States can muster at least half the number of men who voted for president in the last election—fighting men. And she will find when that war terminates that the steel band which binds the throne in London with Australia and India and passes through Canada will be rent in twain, and with it down will go the empire.

"She will find that her possessions in the Caribbean sea have lapsed; she will find that she has overtaxed our patience. She has started with a new king and with a new career that will break up the empire and reduce him to the sovereignty of his own island. Does Great Britain suppose that she can escape from the terrors of the existing situation and the prospective situation everywhere and that she can find a favorable time to show her military power against the United States?"

Mr. Morgan went on to say that he would not boast of the power of the United States in money, in men, in valor, but he was conscious of them, and he gloried in that consciousness, because he knew that when the supreme moment came and when any power in the world undertook to bridle the United States with restraints on her sovereignty such as were contained in the Clayton-Bulwer treaty resistance to the bitter end would be the decree of the American people.

"And that resistance," he exclaimed, "will be the wiping out of any government on earth that undertakes the job. There never will be a concession made in regard to the Clayton-Bulwer treaty by the American senate or by the American people but one, and that is to decree its death."

London Papers Silent.

LONDON, March 7.—Not one of the London morning papers contains a word of comment upon the speech of Mr. Morgan in the United States senate yesterday when discussing his resolution declaring the Clayton-Bulwer treaty abrogated.

Played While Hall Burned.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 7.—Trinity hall, one of Harvard's finest dormitories, was gutted by fire last night. The estimated loss is not less than $20,000. The blaze started from the upsetting of a lamp on the third floor, which set fire to a pair of lace curtains in the room of D. C. Barnes of Cambridge. Fanned by a strong breeze, it soon swept through the building, and when the firemen reached the spot the flames were almost beyond control. During the most exciting period of the fire, while furniture moving was in progress on the ground floor, some student sat at a piano, with water half way to his knees and smoke hiding his identity, and played "Fair Harvard" without a break.

Signor Marconi's Trip.

LONDON, March 7.—Signor Marconi, who was interviewed before he left Liverpool yesterday regarding his journey, said it had nothing to do with any attempt to establish wireless telegraphy across the Atlantic. He admitted, however, that he expected to meet officials of the equipment bureau of the United States navy and that the meeting would perhaps result in some experiments on an American warship.

WONDERS OF AFRICA

Explorer Cherry Tells of Marvelous Resources.

GREAT DISCOVERIES IN THE INTERIOR

Many Spots Almost Entirely Uninhabited, Yet Rich In Vegetables and Minerals—New Peoples Found.

CHICAGO, March 7.—William Stamps Cherry, the African explorer, who recently returned to this country, last night, with the aid of a stereopticon, entertained the members of the Chicago Press club. He made public for the first time many of his discoveries and spoke interestingly of his many adventures in central Africa. The stereopticon slides were made from hundreds of photographs which the explorer obtained while traveling in the interior and which gave authentic pictures of African life. Mr. Cherry told of his exploration of the immense Kotto region and the finding of three new native tribes, the N'Gozzias, the Breeas and Lindas, in this hitherto inaccessible country; his discoveries in natural history, including two new species of antelope and one of small elephants having no tusks. He gave a graphic description of his life among the different cannibal tribes and said his observations and studies of their arts and customs to the minutest details will answer many questions regarding their past history and present life.

He also spoke of the importance of impressing upon the American people the great future of this immense unknown country, which in spots is entirely uninhabited, but yet abounds in wonderful resources. On this latter subject Mr. Cherry said:

"I have found wild coffee that is pronounced first class in flavor and which can be gathered by tons; also a wild vanila and a species of wild olive. The forests are immense and represent the finest timber in the world. They are full of unknown nuts and wild fruits peculiar in shape and flavor, but many of them pleasant to the taste and which will become well known and useful in civilized countries.

"Most of the land over which I traveled is very fertile and is watered by creeks and rivers so numerous that it is unnecessary to carry water for drinking purposes. The banks of the rivers and creeks are generally fringed by heavy wood. The rubber vine, which grows here in its greatest luxuriance, will furnish one of the most profitable commercial products of this whole region. Bananas, pineapples, oranges, lemons and all tropical fruits grow in such abundance that there is little use for a native to work more than an hour a day. Rice, corn, sweet potatoes and peanuts are some of the foods that are frequently found and which grow like weeds, with but little attention. The manioc and yam and a great many other fruits, vegetables and grains unknown to the people of the temperate zone grow there abundantly. Tobacco and sugar cane flourish as in their native soil. The natural advantages of the United States were far less helpful to our forefathers than the foods of Africa offer to the pioneer of the future.

"The geographical position is the finest of any country, and the railroads of the future will open up this vast region to commerce and immigration, and I look forward to the time when the cities of Africa situated on the banks of some of these beautiful rivers, with their myriads of islands and dashing cataracts, will be the most picturesque of the world."

Missouri to Spend a Million.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., March 7.—The bill appropriating $1,000,000 for a state exhibit at the St. Louis world's fair was sent to engrossment by the house yesterday. The vote was practically unanimous. A bill was passed providing for a freight schedule commission, to be composed of the railroad and warehouse commissioners and two other members to be selected by the governor. The commission is to make for each railroad corporation a schedule of maximum rates for the transportation of goods in less than carload lots. These rates are to be published and enforced by the commission.

Some Russian Taffy.

SHANGHAI, March 7.—The Chinese government has circulated among the provincial authorities a Russian dispatch setting forth the long friendship of Russia and China, between whom no religious troubles have ever arisen, and pointing out that "the present war is due to missionary excesses" and that no missionaries have been sent from Russia. Russia, according to the dispatch, promises to aid China and to restore Manchuria before long. Li Hung Chang publishes the foregoing with a view to enlisting provincial sympathies on the side of Russia.

Serious Trade Outlook Abroad.

LONDON, March 7.—The Daily Mail publishes dispatches from Vienna, Berlin and Rome, all of which dwell upon the serious trade outlook in Austria, Germany and Italy. The Vienna correspondent declares that there is an alarming increase in the number of the unemployed in all the larger cities of Austria-Hungary and that disturbances and conflicts with the police are matters of everyday occurrence. Similar scenes are frequent in many towns of Italy.

British Punish Marauding Emirs.

LONDON, March 7.—Intelligence just received from northern Nigeria, bringing events there up to Jan. 31, describes the operations of a British expedition of 300 against the marauding emirs of Bida and Kontagora. Both capital towns were burned by the British. Two hundred slave women belonging to the emir of Bida were released by 36 men under the command of two officers, who successfully engaged 1,000 armed natives.

Duke Sued For Breach of Promise.

LIVERPOOL, March 7.—The Duke of Manchester and his wife, formerly Miss Zimmerman of Cincinnati, arrived here from New York yesterday. The duke was welcomed on his arrival with a writ in a breach of promise suit brought by Miss Portia Knight of Marlborough Mansions, Westminster.

New Line to England Opened.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, March 7.—The Port Morant, the pioneer steamer of the Imperial Direct West India Mail service, the new line between Kingston and Bristol, England, sailed last evening for Bristol with 20,000 bunches of bananas for experiment in England.

GREENE'S REMAINS FOUND.

Colonel Gardiner Finds Casket Lost For a Hundred Years.

NEW YORK, March 7.—Colonel Asa Bird Gardiner, who is president of the "Society of the Cincinnati In the State of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations," has telegraphed from Savannah to George W. Olney of this city, secretary of the Rhode Island society, that he has found the remains of General Nathanael Greene, lost for 100 years. The body and that of General Greene's son, George Washington Greene, a protege of Lafayette, have been placed in hermetically sealed metal boxes and deposited in the vaults of the Southern bank of the state of Georgia to await final disposition. General Greene was the first president of the Rhode Island Society of the Cincinnati.

At the close of the Revolution, in recognition of his services in the south, the confiscated estate of the Tory governor Graham, Mulberry Grove, near Savannah, was given to General Greene. He died there in 1786, at the age of 44 years, and was buried in what had been the Graham family vault in the cemetery which is now the site of Colonial park, Savannah.

The skull found could be none other than Greene's. It was immense in size, as was the old general's head. There are the colonial brass buttons and other unmistakable relics and the silver plate on the casket, upon which could be deciphered the name of the hero. This will be brought to New York by Colonel Gardiner and submitted to experts with the purpose of restoring it.

Maryland Legislature.

ANNAPOLIS, March 7.—The Democratic members of the state senate, together with former Senator Gorman and the other leaders of the party in the state, made yesterday what appears to have been a false move in the political game going on here, and the Republicans claim to have had the best of the day's skirmishing. The mistake appears to have been made in the senate, where the Democrats, owing to the absence of Senators Moore and Claggett, failed of a majority, there being but 13 senators out of the 26 present when that body was called to order. Instead of proceeding under the old organization and adjourning from day to day or forcing the attendance of the Republicans, who were in the building and purposely absenting themselves from the senate chamber, the Democrats proceeded, without the presence of a quorum, to re-elect the old officers. Then they sent the sergeant-at-arms after the Republicans, who declined to recognize his authority on the ground that he had not been legally elected.

Woman Has Many Offers.

HACKENSACK, N. J., March 7.—The postoffice at Oradell has never handled so much mail in a year as it did during the past three days. This is wholly due to a two line personal in a Sunday newspaper inviting all men matrimonially inclined to address Box No. 1, that village. The advertiser described herself as aged 35 and with means. Letters poured in with every mail, filling the sacks and overtaxing the facilities of the postoffice, which are somewhat limited. Postmaster Landmann had to neglect his store to attend to the increased mail, and he thought seriously of notifying the department at Washington of a possible swindling scheme until his attention was drawn to the advertisement.

The Duke of Cornwall's Visit.

LONDON, March 7.—The official programme of the Duke of Cornwall and York's colonial visits gives his arrival at Halifax for Sept. 15. He will leave Halifax Sept. 17, arriving at Quebec Sept. 20 and leaving there Oct. 17. He will arrive at St. John's Oct. 22 and leave there Oct. 25 and arrive at Portsmouth Nov. 1. The present intention of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York appears to be to go to Vancouver overland between Sept. 20 and Oct. 17, possibly passing through the United States on a part of their return journey.

Watch Your Kidneys!

They are Filters For the Blood. Impure Blood Causes Disease.

Few people understand the important part performed by the kidneys in nitering the blood. As the blood in its circulation through the body passes through the kidneys, its impurity is left in the kidneys, which in turn empties the secretions into the bladder in the form of urine.

If the kidneys are clocked and filtration of the blood from poisonous or diseased germs is prevented thereby, the result is one or all of the following: Sleeplessness, Nervous Prostration, Weak Back, Pains in the Back and Loins, Scalding Dark and Cloudy Urine, Dizziness, Rheumatism, Diabetes, Congestion of the Kidneys, Bright's Disease and Inflammation of the Bladder.

Unhealthy Kidneys Must Be Treated

A medicine is needed that will properly promote the filtration of the blood and check the over-secretion of urine.

A CASE OF IT.

Many More Like It In Plainfield.

The following case is but one of many similar occurring daily in Plainfield. It is an easy matter to verify its correctness. Surely you cannot ask for better proof than such conclusive evidence.

Mrs. W. W. Mills, of No. 86 Summit avenue, says: "I suffered at times with a severe pain across the small of my back and in my hips. If I did any lifting or stooping my back became lame and sore and though I used plasters they only helped me for the time being. I was feeling very badly when I had my attention called to Doan's Kidney Pills. They were so highly recommended for troubles like mine that I got a box at L. W. Randolph's drug store. I felt their good effects in a few days. When I had finished the treatment my back was better and stronger and I had much more energy to attend household duties."

TAFT MAKES REPORT.

Philippine Commissioner Tells of Progress Toward Peace.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Secretary of War Root has received the following cablegram from Judge Taft, president of the Philippine commission:

"On the eve of the president's second administration we wish to convey to him assurance of great progress made toward peace. Since Jan. 1 1,127 firearms have been captured and 1,368 surrendered. Captures and surrenders both due to cooperation of natives. Since November 5,000 bolomen have surrendered in Ilocos, 1,000 in Albay and Camarines and 60,000 residents of Panay have taken oath of allegiance.

"Offensive attacks by insurgents are now of rarest occurrence. Delgado, insurgent leader of Panay, with 350 men and rifles, and Angeles and Simon Techon, with 200 from Bulacan, have surrendered. Lacuna, Mascado, Pablo Techon, Sandico and other leaders have made overtures for surrender, but the condition of immunity from prosecution for alleged complicity in assassination, not conceded, has delayed consummation.

"Federal party, avowed and direct outgrowth of the election, has spread with wonderful rapidity in all parts of the archipelago and is active and urgent in advocacy of peace and presenting the advantages of civil liberty under American sovereignty.

"The commission has in the last three weeks organized five provincial governments, Pampanga, Pangasian, Tarlac, Bulacan and Bataan. The last two are Tagalog provinces. The commission attended each provincial capital in a body, met by appointment presidentes, councilors and principal men of the towns, explained the provisions of the general provincial act and special bill for particular province and invited discussion by the natives present of both bills. The conventions thus held were very satisfactory.

"In compliance with urgent native invitations the commission will leave March 11 for the south to organize the provinces of Tayabas, Romblon, Iloilo, Capiz, Zamboanga and such others as are ready. Returning, we shall organize Bambales, Union, Cagayan and Ilocos Norte. The military governor has recommended the organization of Batangas, Cavite, Laguna and Nueva Ecija, but shall delay action as to these until return from northern and southern trips."

Cabinet Officers Sworn.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The president called the members of the cabinet together for a special meeting yesterday morning at 11 o'clock. The object of the meeting was to have them sworn in for the new term of four years, each member of the old cabinet having been renominated by the president and confirmed by the senate. Chief Justice Fuller of the United States supreme court arrived at the White House at 11 o'clock and within the next half hour all the cabinet members had taken the oath of the office, which is similar in form to the oath used in swearing in members of the United States senate. The oath was taken by affirmation—that is, by holding up the right hand and not by laying the hand on the Bible. No executive business was considered except some minor appointments, and the cabinet adjourned soon after 12 o'clock. Attorney General Griggs said he hoped to leave Washington shortly before April 1, upon the qualification of his successor.

State Constabulary Bill.

ALBANY, March 7.—An evening paper printed a synopsis of what purports to be a new constabulary bill drawn by Justice W. N. Cohen of New York city. It relates that the bill is 45 pages long and then gives the provisions of it. Inquiry shows that the purported new bill is an exact duplicate of the bill introduced on Feb. 6 by Senator Raines. The latter is 45 pages long and provides for the same officers, same salaries and same process of transfer of the police forces to state care. The alleged bill is undoubtedly the Raines bill, and there is a general idea that so far Senator Raines' bill is the only one in existence.

Alaska's Population.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The total population of Alaska in 1900 as shown by the returns of the twelfth census is 63,592 as against 32,052 for 1890. This is an increase in ten years of 31,540, or 98.4 per cent. There are two cities in the territory which have a population of over 2,000—namely, Nome City, 12,488, and Skaguay, 3,117.

Eastern Swimmers Win.

CHICAGO, March 7.—The Brookline Swimming club of Brookline, Mass., won another victory in the water polo championship tournament at the Sportsmen's show in the Coliseum. Their opponents, the St. Louis Turners of St. Louis, were outplayed at every point and were unable to secure a single goal. The score at the end of the contest stood 6 to 0 in favor of Brookline.

Mining Town Burned.

DUBOIS, Pa., March 7.—The major portion of Sherwood, a small mining town about eight miles from this place, has been destroyed by fire. The fire started in a block of six tenement houses, which burned so rapidly that the inmates barely escaped with their lives. The property loss will be considerable. The town was comprised of about 30 houses.

Two Children Cremated.

MARION, Ind., March 7.—The 18-month-old son and the 3-year-old daughter of Mrs. Perry Peele, a widow, were burned to death and the home of the family was totally destroyed at Matthews yesterday. The mother went to a neighbor's house for a few minutes and left the children alone. Before the fire was discovered the entire house was in flames.

Had Dug Five Thousand Graves.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., March 7.—John Donahue, for 18 years sexton of Brookside cemetery, was found dead in bed yesterday. He was 70 years old. He dug the first grave in the cemetery and had dug 5,000 graves during the time he was sexton.

Montana Deadlock Unbroken.

HELENA, Mon., March 7.—Although the session of the legislature will end today, the deadlock over the United States senatorship remained unbroken yesterday. The vote was: Carter, 32; Frank, 30; Corad, 12; Maginnis, 8; Cooper, 8; Toole, 1.

Test Record Broken.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 7.—C. G. Herbert, a first year student in the Harvard Law school, has broken the intercollegiate strength test record. His total was 1,869 kilograms, which beats by 60 all previous records.

PEACE NEGOTIATIONS

Kitchener, Milner and Botha In Conference.

TERMS A MATTER OF CONJECTURE.

English War Office Professes to Be Ignorant of Any Movement to End the War In South Africa.

LONDON, March 7.—Private information received in London this morning confirms the rumors of negotiations between Lord Kitchener, Sir Alfred Milner and Commandant General Botha. Nothing is known as to the actual presence of the Boer commander in chief at Pretoria, and no London paper publishes a statement that he is there, but it is reasonably certain that General Botha is in either personal or very close touch with Lord Kitchener.

Today Sir Henry Campbell Bannerman will endeavor to extract some information from the government on the subject in the house of commons.

It is said that Sir Alfred Milner has gone to Pretoria with the object of assisting Lord Kitchener in these negotiations, the length of which appears to be due to General Botha's desire to consult with Acting President Schalkburger at Pietersburg and to make terms applying to the whole Boer forces, but militating against this is Lord Kitchener's doubt as to General Botha's ability to control General De Wet and other leaders as well as the internal opposition General Botha is encountering. One of the best informed South African authorities said last evening:

"We have little doubt that General Botha will surrender. The question now is as to what forces he can bring with him. We have private information tending to show that Lord Kitchener and Sir Alfred Milner have decided to accept his surrender on the basis that he is merely an individual commander rather than commander in chief of the enemy's forces.

"General De Wet and General Delarey as well as the other leaders will probably have to be dealt with individually on similar terms. If the negotiations with General Botha reach a successful termination, it will be, to use an expressive Americanism, just 'one of the bunch.'"

It is also understood that Dr. Leyds was recently negotiating to secure peace terms, but when it was discovered that he was merely acting a farce, not being in communication with General Botha or able to live up to the tentative suggestions made, the British government, having learned his views, quickly ended the proceedings, especially when it was found that Lord Kitchener was treating with General Botha, while Dr. Leyds was unable to speak authoritatively for the forces in the field.

Curiously enough, the war office seems genuinely without definite information regarding the exact status of affairs. The great financial firms whose interests in South Africa are almost equal to those of the government believe from their private advices that the present situation is likely to result in the surrender of General Botha and the forces under his immediate command, while the other Boer units will remain in the field.

No Cuban Uprising.

HAVANA, March 7.—An investigation into the report circulated in the United States by a news agency that the United States secret service officials here had been informed that plans are on foot for a Cuban uprising and that disorder is only avoided now by the efforts of leaders to hold the revolutionary element in check elicited the following statement from Senor Gonzales de Quesada, who was the special commissioner of Cuba at Washington and who was said in the dispatch referred to to have confirmed the statements made: "I have not made any statements regarding an uprising. If any persons are interested in fomenting an uprising here, they are not the Cubans who are in favor of independence, but parties desirous of seeing Cuba crushed forever. What we have to contend against now is American public opinion. There is no prospect of fighting here."

Montana Ex-convict Captured.

HELENA, Mon., March 7.—James McArthur, ex-convict, wanted for killing Captain Dotson 20 miles west of Helena on Feb. 15, has been captured in Ravalli county, in the western part of the state, after a memorable chase by the nerviest officers in Montana. This may clear up one of the blackest of crimes, a case of parricide. It is claimed that McArthur killed Dotson at the instance of the latter's son, who is serving a 99 years' sentence in the penitentiary.

Aimed at Emperor William.

BREMEN, March 7.—While Emperor William was driving from the Rathskeller to the railway station here yesterday, a workman named Dietrich Weiland threw a piece of iron into his majesty's carriage. He was immediately arrested. The emperor is said to have been slightly injured in the cheek, but he continued his journey without interruption. Weiland, who is an epileptic, gives confusive answers to the police regarding his motives.

Blizzards Still Rage.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., March 7.—A severe blizzard is prevailing along the Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburg railroad between this city and Rome. Trains are stalled in drifts. The storm reached Watertown at noon yesterday and is the worst blizzard of the season. Country roads are impassable. Street car traffic is almost at a standstill. It was almost impossible to see 50 feet in the blinding storm.

Decapitated by a Locomotive.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., March 7.—Oliver Laubach, 25 years of age, son of Superintendent Laubach of the Bethlehem Electric Light company, was decapitated by the Bethlehem Steel company's shifting engine as he was leaving the works to take the time of the crew of the locomotive which ran him down.

The Marseilles Strike.

MARSEILLES, March 7.—Bands of the striking dock laborers yesterday attempted to prevent the crews of some steamers from discharging cargoes. They were dispersed by the police. Mail steamers are leaving with passengers, but without cargoes.

Regulating Automobiles.

The automobile is no longer a curiosity in this part of the country. It is fast becoming a very important means of transportation and promises to play a still more important part in the rapid transit question in the near future. Now that the automobile is coming into general use, it is necessary to arrange for its proper control So the Common Council has had a draft of an ordinance prepared which regulates the speed of the horseless vehicles and also provides that they shall carry lamps of proper brilliancy at night and warning signals which may be heard some distance away.

This action on the part of the Plainfield Council seems very appropriate An ordinance, similar in most of its provisions, was introducted into the Elizabeth Council sometime ago and will soon come up for action at a meeting of the Council of that city. The other important difference between the two ordinances is that the one in Elizabeth limits the fine for its violation to $5. while the limit here is placed at $20.

While some of these vehicles, propelled by either electricity or gasoline engine, manage to make no end of noise, the more modern ones are being built so that almost all of the noise is eliminated. They then become as difficult to hear when they approach as the bicycles. Every fairminded person acknowledges the need of a bell on a bicycle and so it is but fair to have similar warning signals on the automobiles. The same reason applies to the need of a lamp at night.

There is no doubt but that the ordinance, which was introduced by Councilman Gloak, will be passed. There appears nothing unreasonable about it. Particularly is a limit to the rate of speed important as some of the drivers of these motor carriages are inclined at times to forget the necessity of moving slowly through a city street and thereby endanger the lives of many people.

Under the provisions of this ordinance, the proposed line of automobile stages will probably be run through the residental parts of the city. There is already an application before the Council asking for a license to conduct such a system.

Experience in past years has shown that the fight at the local elections in the borough is rather a question of policy of the borough administration than a mere political battle, Republicans against Democrats. Were it otherwise, the Republicans would have an easy victory. As it is, the North Plainfield Democrats are working and hoping for the election of several of their candidates at least. There will be undoubtedly considerable scratching of tickets on both sides as the popularity of the various candidates is bound to make some difference with their vote.

That newspaper advertising will not only increase trade in an established business, but will even create a demand for new articles, has been proved by the success of a chocolate manufacturing firm. Before this firm began business the article as they offer it was unknown to the public. The present value of the firm's plant has been placed at more than one million dollars by the Massachusetts Courts; and the proprietors affirm that this entire value was created by advertising, chiefly in the newspapers.—Philadelphia Record.

Early in the year the reports presented at the annual meeting of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club showed that club to be in a thriving condition. Now the Park Golf Club, at its annual meeting, is shown to be in a successful state, meeting all its obligations and with bright prospects for the future. It speaks well for Plainfield's interest in the game of golf when two such strong organizations should exist here. It also shows that golf is more than a passing fad.

Of the city ordinances, the one relating to the street railway and its rights and privileges is without doubt one of those most often consulted these days by the public at large. It would seem, therefore, that a compilation of city ordinances, if printed, should contain that ordinance, even if it is rather long

So many of the cooking schools lack all real practicability that the Board of Education of North Plainfield is to be congratulated in having one where the young women of the borough may learn something of the culinary art that will really be of assistance to them in future years.

The people of Plainfield should not forget that Muhlenberg Hospital still exists and is going on the same as ever although a site for its new buildings has not yet been definitely chosen. Contributions of any kind will be gratefully received at the Hospital these days.

Master and journeymen plumbers acted for the best interests of the city when they found a common basis on which they could work. Strikes and lockouts cannot help but indirectly injure the advancement and welfare of the city.

When the spring freshets bring renewed life to Green brook, the bed of that stream should be clear of debris and rubbish. The borough has set the proper example. It is now the duty of the city to do likewise.

An election of local officers will be held in all the townships and boroughs of New Jersey Tuesday. The anti spring election law applied to cities alone and will not affect these elections.

It is too bad that interest in the Plainfield Speedway Association should depart so quickly. The movement, as planned, was a worthy one and deserved success.

Still the Gospel campaign continues, each day increasing the interest shown in the meetings now being conducted.

An occasional cold wave swoops down on Jersey to remind Jerseyites that winter is not yet over.

If people are interested in their health and the welfare of their children they will use no other beverage. I have used them all but GRAIN-O I have found superior to any, for the reason that it is solid grain.

Our Store - "The People's Store.

We insist that the interests of merchant and patrons are identical. The merchant, to be successful, must study carefully the wants of his customers, and conscientiously endeavor to offer only what is new, reliable, desirable and correct in style and price. The moral and material effect of such support naturally leads to further effort and the mutual advantage of all parties. DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence.)

Dunellen, March 7—This evening the Republican voters of the borough will meet in the borough hall and name their nominees for the coming election. A large attendance is looked for and it is expected the primary will be practically one of perfect harmony. So far as is known there is no particular aspirant for the head of the ticket, the several whose names have been mentioned for it having declined to run. The remainder of the ticket has already been arranged with one exception, that of assessor, for which two names have been mentioned. The principal fight in the campaign will be over this office and that of freeholder.

William Doty, a former resident of the borough, but who has been living at North Branch for some time past, disposed of his farming utensils by auction at that place yesterday, and will shortly return to Dunellen. He will take up his residence in the house now occupied by P. C. Staats.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence.)

New Market, March 7—A large number of voters were in attendance at the Republican primary which was held yesterday afternoon. Daniel Whitlock was made chairman and Thomas Brantingham secretary. Luther Boice and Albert Boice were nominated surveyors of the highways, R. L. Pierce as constable and Nelson M. Giles as town committeeman. No one could be found in the Republican ranks who would take the office of justice of the peace and C. E Kelley, a Democrat, was nominated, but he declined the honor. A nominating committee, consisting of Charles Day. Arthur Tappen and M. J. Whitford, was appointed to fill vacancies. It was voted to appropriate $5,000 for roads and $1,000 for poor.

At the last meeting of the School Board it was voted to appropriate $3,500 for general expenses, $350 for books and $400 for transportation. The Board has in mind to do away with the schools at Randolphville, Fieldville and Raritan Landing and transport the pupils to the nearest school.

The result of the first day's sale, while good, was not what it should have been, but the committee expect a much larger sale this afternoon and evening. The sale closes tonight.

LITERARY.

The March issue of McClure's Magazine is one of notable value, a value at once timely and permanent. The leading feature is a character study of Edward VII, written by the man in America most competent for the task, George W. Smalley, the correspondent of the London Times. Theodore Roosevelt, the Vice-President, contributes an article of great interest to this number, in which he describes clearly the personalities of some who have labored with success in New York city for "Reform Through Social Work." Among the other contents this month are: "What We Know About Mars," by Edward S. Holden, formerly director of the Lick Observatory; "Billy's Tearless Woe," a story written and illustrated by Frederic Remington. Among the artists represented are F. V. DuMond, Frederic Remington, J. Lockwood Kipling, Orson Lowell, George Varian, Ellen Bernard Thompson and W. J. Glackens.

The March number of Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly will be very generally regarded as the best issue in the history of the magazine. A striking article, "Farther North Than Nansen," gives the first adequate account that has appeared on this side of the water of the heroic dash for the pole which has placed the name of Abruzzi at the head of the list of Arctic explorers. "The Road to Frontenac," the serial story for 1901, begins in the March number. Those who read "The Short Line War" need no introduction to Samuel Merwin, but in the present story his theme goes back to the times when England and France were preparing to do battle for this continent. Other features of the March number are "The Wrecking Train," that finished product of modern railway organization, and "The History of Matthew Stanley Quay." Nor does the number neglect fiction. "The Barber-Surgeon" is a story by Quiller-Couch, which plainly shows why "Q" is recognized as heir to the mantle of R. L. Stevenson. S. A. Nelson contributes another of his illuminating stories of Wall street life, and Miss Thomson the pathetic story of "An Explorer."

A Horrible Outbreak

"Of large sores on my little daughter's head developed into a case of scald head" writes C. D. Isbill, of Morgantown, Tenn., but Bucklen's Arnica Salve competely cured her. It's a guaranteed cure for Eczema, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pimples, Sores, Ulcers and Piles. Only 25 cents at L. W. Randolph's.

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

Mark Twain's popular work, "Tom Sawyer," in dramatic form, is the attraction at Music Hall, Saturday afternoon and night. The thread of the story begins with the grave yard scene which is very realistic and forms one dramatic plot of the play. Tom Sawyer and his chum, Huckleberry Finn, having resolved to steal away from home at midnight and with a dead cat, and a bottle of stump water, they propose to hunt a new made grave, and thereby solve the problem of curing warts. The arrival of a band of body snatchers forces the lads to to seek a hiding place, where they are unwilling witnesses to a murder which is placed on the wrong person, whom Tom, by his evidence, is the means of having acquitted. The court room, grocery store and judge's home are interesting scenes. A special matinee, which is intended for women and children will be given on Saturday afternoon when popular prices will prevail.

* * * * *

"On the Suwanee River," a pretty, richly-colored dramatic story, is announced for appearance at Music Hall Monday night. It affords opportunity for picturesque scenic effect, which has been utilized to the fullest extent by its managers, with the natural result of a play possessing all the elements of not only popular but lasting success. It is one that is always welcome, for its story of love and intrigue, the ultimate triumph of virtue, all prettily told in a scenic environment of the sunny south, together with the colored singers, their songs, dances and antics, will ever make it a favorite visitor. The company contains Stella Mayhew in her famous characterization of "Aunt Lindy" and the "Clover Leaf" quartette.

* * * * *

Those who enjoy the correct and and skillful offering of an entertainment of magic, mirth and mystery, should visit Music Hall Wednesday night, next week, when the Great Herrmann appears at that place of amusement Mr. Herrmann promises some startling illusions for the present engagement. He is the most able trickster on the stage, and his entertainment possesses the double quality of being at once amusing and mystifying.

Sachsen.

Dresden. Eine hier abgehaltene, von etwa 3000 Personen besuchte Versammlung, in welcher der Burenkommandant Jooste und ein gewisser Schwarze aus Heidelberg sprachen, nahm eine Resolution an, den Reichskanzler zu ersuchen, bei den europäischen Mächten dahin seinen Einfluß geltend zu machen, daß der blutige südafrikanische Krieg bald beendigt werde. —Der unlängst verstorbene Sekretär Karl Felix Meyer vom städtischen Leihhause hat, wie sich jetzt herausgestellt, mit großem Raffinement unter verschiedenen Verwaltungen Unterschlagungen begangen, deren Höhe 30,000 Mark betragen.

Chemnitz. Vor Kurzem starb der Schuldirektor Alexander Kühn, der Begründer des Haushaltungs- und Kochkunstunterrichts an unseren Volksschulen.

Leipzig. Der auf dem Bayerischen Bahnhofe beschäftigte, 41jährige Hilfsfeuermann Friedrich Hermann Gehrmann war auf dem Heimwege begriffen und benützte zur Abkürzung des Weges den Bahnkörper. Dabei wurde der Mann von der Maschine eines ausfahrenden Zuges erfaßt und überfahren, so daß der Tod auf der Stelle eintrat.

Leutzsch. Das hiesige Volksbrausebad, das zugleich auch die Einrichtung von Wannenbädern besitzt, konnte jüngst auf einen einjährigen Betrieb zurückblicken. Das Bad wurde in dieser Zeit von circa 10,000 Personen besucht.

Liebenwerda. Der als Kutscher bei der Grube „Luise" bei Domsdorf beschäftigte Franz Krüger holte von einem Felde Sand nach dem Schachte. Dabei kam er mit dem zweispännigen Fuhrwerke dem vom früheren Bergwerksbetriebe unterminirten Boden zu nahe. Plötzlich brach die Erddecke ein; Pferde, Wagen und Kutscher stürzten in die Tiefe und wurden sofort von Sandmassen bedeckt, so daß Alles erstickte.

Oelsnitz. Bei starkem Schneesturm verirrte sich der Landwirth Rietschel und konnte schließlich vor Ermattung nicht weiter. Am nächsten Morgen fand man ihn dann erfroren auf.

Plauen. Die Stickereiindustrie ist jetzt wieder im Aufblühen begriffen. Die voigtländischen Stickereiorte sind in der letzten Zeit mit großen Aufträgen aus England, Frankreich und Amerika bedacht worden.

Thüringische Staaten.

Weimar. Aus Anlaß seines Regierungsantrittes hat der neue Großherzog von Sachsen-Weimar, Wilhelm Ernst, eine Amnestie erlassen. Die Amnestie erstreckt sich auf Staatsverbrecher, welche wegen Beleidigung des Landesfürsten, und Duellanten, welche wegen Betheiligung an einem Zweikampfe zu Gefängnißstrafen verurtheilt sind.

Greiz. In dem letzthin geschlossenen Landtag für Reuß ä. L. konnte den Abgeordneten die erfreuliche Mittheilung gemacht werden, daß das Land, das bekanntlich keine Schulden hat, über ein mobiles Vermögen von circa 1,500,000 Mark verfügt.

Rudolstadt. Ein Verein zur Errichtung eines Knabenhortes, welchem von Seiten der Regierung und der Stadt die Wege geebnet wurden, hat sich hier gegründet. Ein Mädchenhort ist schon durch die Fürsorge des evangelischen Frauenbundes in's Leben getreten.

Freie Städte.

Hamburg. Die Erzeugnisse der deutsch-ostafrikanischen Kolonien nehmen mit der fortschreitenden Entwickelung der Bodenkultur beständig an Mannigfaltigkeit und Güte zu. So ist die letzte Ernte des Usambara-Kaffees wieder größer und viel besser als im vorhergehenden Jahre. Der jüngsthin hier eingetroffene Dampfer „Admiral" brachte eine bedeutende Partie Usambara-Kaffee, der von vorzüglichster Beschaffenheit, rein und aromatisch im Geschmack und den besten fremden Kaffeesorten ebenbürtig ist.—Der dieser Tage von Buenos Ayres im hiesigen Hafen angekommene britische Dampfer „Lizzie" wurde von der Hafensanitätsbehörde unter Beobachtung gestellt, weil während der Fahrt auf dem Schiffe ein Todesfall vorkam, der anscheinend durch Pest veranlaßt wurde.—Gestorben sind dahier Eduard Bohlen, Generalkonsul des Kongostaates und Mitinhaber der Firma C. Woermann und der Woermann-Linie, sowie der Kapitän Pietsch von der Hamburg-Amerika-Linie.

Bremen. Die Bürgerschaft bewilligte 1,900,000 Mark für die Fundamentirung eines zweiten Freihafenbassins. Die Gesammtkosten des neuen Hafenbassins werden auf 35,000,000 Mark geschätzt.

Bremerhaven. Bei der Untersuchung über den Hobokener Lloyd-Dockbrand vor dem Seeamt in Bremerhaven erklärte, wie nachträglich bekannt wurde, der Direktor des Bremer Lloyd, Christian Leist, daß die Kosten für Reparatur der „Saale" 1,500,000 Mark, die der „Bremen" 1,700,000 Mark und die der „Main" 2,700,000 Mark betragen.

CHAIRMAN GOT RATTLED

Consequently Mr. Bryan's Introduction Did Not Prove the Advertisement He Expected.

Long before William J. Bryan obtained national prominence his reputation as an orator was quite extensive. Shortly after he had arrived in Lincoln and begun the practice of law it got noised about that he was a good speaker, and he was somewhat in demand at meetings in the small places.

One night he was asked to speak at a schoolhouse 15 miles from Lincoln. He drove over. The night was bitterly cold and Bryan hastened to the big stove when he got into the room.

"MISTHER O'BRIEN WILL SHPAKE."

While he was thawing out, a little, weazened Irishman came up to him and introduced himself as the chairman of the meeting.

"Now, I'll tell you what I want you to do," said Mr. Bryan to the chairman after they had exchanged greetings. "I have driven 15 miles to talk for your people. Of course I do not expect any fee, but when you introduce me I wish you would say: 'Ladies and gentlemen, you will now be addressed by W. J. Bryan, the rising young orator of Lincoln.' I think the little advertisement I shall get is no more than my due."

The chairman agreed and they rehearsed the introduction several times until the chairman was sure he had it letter perfect. Then the meeting was called to order. When Bryan's turn came the chairman rose, started to speak, stopped, started again and then looked at Bryan in a helpless sort of way. "Go on," whispered Bryan.

The chairman took a long breath and blurted out: "Ladies and gentlemen, Misthur O'Brien will shpake."

BABY SAVED FIVE LIVES.

Remarkable Courage and Judgment Displayed by Six-Year-Old Maggie Bradley.

Little Maggie Bradley, of Philadelphia, who is not yet six years old, saved five lives the other night by her prompt and intelligent action. She woke up in the night feeling sick and weak, and tried to rouse her mother, who was sleeping with her. Her mother slept on, however, and the little one had no better success with her father, or with the three other people who were sleeping in the house. She had recently been taken to the funeral of a relative, and she made up her mind that all the people whom she could not wake up were dead. Then, with what appears to be a most remarkable display of courage and good judgment on the part of such a child, she opened the front door and ran out to find a policeman.

"There are five people dead over to my house," she said to him, and the policeman asked her to lead him to the place. As soon as he entered the door he smelled gas. The doors and windows were thrown open and physicians were called. At last all the people who had been overcome were brought back to consciousness. A broken gas main in the street was responsible for their condition.

Tit for Tat.

Here is a good story they are telling in Europe about the German emperor: The kaiser, at a recent review in Berlin, reprimanded old Gen. von Meerscheidt for losing his mind at a critical moment. "If your majesty thinks that I am getting too old, I beg of you to allow me to resign." "No, no," replied the kaiser, "you are too young to resign. Indeed, if your blood didn't course through your veins quite so fast you would be a more useful army leader." On the evening of that day the kaiser and the general met at a court ball. The general was talking to some young ladies. "Ah, Meerscheidt," cried William, "that is right; get ready to marry. Take a young wife, then that excitable temperament of yours will soon vanish." The general bowed low as he retorted: "I beg to be excused, your majesty! A young emperor and a young wife would be more than I could possibly stand."—Philadelphia Telegram.

Women In Journalism

THEIR PRESENT CONDITION—HOW THEY MIGHT IMPROVE IT.

THERE are more women in newspaper work in New York than there were 20 years ago—say three now where there were two then. On the face of it this looks like real progress and victory for the feminine sex in journalism.

But let us see. Suppose we compare the work the few women in journalism did a generation ago with the work of the many today. Some 50 years ago Margaret Fuller was writing editorials for the New York Tribune. Twenty to 30 years ago the most brilliant and popular writing on the editorial page of the same paper was from the pen of Lucia Gilbert Calhoun. Mildy Morgan was famous in this country and in Europe as the live stock reporter of both The Tribune and Times. She was said to be the best judge of the weight of a live beef in this country. A woman was doing dramatic reporting and criticism on The Herald. Lucy C. Benedict was agricultural editor of The Weekly World, and Jennie June Croly was on its Sunday staff. Today, so far as my knowledge goes, there is not a woman doing work anything like so important on one of the papers named, and there is not a woman employed even as contributor to the large type, unsigned editorial page of a great daily in New York or in the United States with the one exception of Mrs. Margaret Sullivan in Chicago.

"NO FEMININE CONTRIBUTIONS."

This is worse than Russia, a leading journal of which country maintains a lady as its representative in the United States to record for it the great movements in American politics and in economic and social questions. This editor in despotic Russia has faith in woman's brains, which your American newspaper proprietor affects to despise.

If more women are in newspaper work now in New York than there were 20 years ago, it is only because the padded, many paged papers of our large cities are loaded with trivialities which would have been despised and rejected of an old fashioned editor. These trivialities are always furnished by the girl reporter and are now about all she has to do, which is a sorry thing to say, but fact.

There may be a woman who is so called editor of the woman's page of a New York paper, but she is invariably tied down under the thumb of some man managing editor. If into the material for the woman's page there creep anything that really interests thinking women, it is blue penciled, and the girl reporter is told to be "less serious." The woman's page does not at all represent what women think or want, but what a young man of infinite self confidence thinks they ought to think and want. He is usually a young man, energetic, but imperfectly educated, who has fought his way to this place and won it by the invaluable quality of push. Occasionally he is one who has little respect for women even morally and sometimes none at all for them intellectually. Of course there are noble exceptions, but of such type are many of the male editors that dictate what shall not go on the woman's page.

What may the girl reporter furnish? She may write in toadyish measure the doings of millionaire social life. She may report in faintly sarcastic strain a very little concerning the meetings of women's clubs. If by chance women's clubs quarrel, she may pull this fact out at great length and do the heavy sarcastic on it as showing what weak vessels women are, unless it be a quarrel among millionaire ladies; then it must scarce be hinted at. "Wrinkles" is one of those undying, perennial themes of thrilling interest which will always catch the man editor's eye, and any rule, however bogus, for removing facial wrinkles is tolerably sure to find place. "Tiny tots" is another catchword for the masculine mind, and a paragraph or more labeled "Tiny Tots" is dead sure to go in. In her despairing soul the girl reporter sighs, "Oh, master, give us rest from wrinkles and tiny tots!" But he never lets up.

As a consequence of writing only this small, fool stuff, the woman reporter gets very small pay on a large daily, unless indeed she make special name for herself by sheer force of talent and hard work. This about five women have been able to do in New York city and consequently get comparatively good salaries, but even they must continue usually along the same fossil groove of feminine looks, fashions or silly love matters.

One New York editor tells women in insulting terms that no feminine contributions will, under any circumstances, be accepted in his journal, this curmudgeon either not knowing or not choosing to remember that not long ago a lady abroad wrote for his daily a reading advertisement describing the great Paris telescope in thoroughly technical and scientific terms and did it so satisfactorily that the paper, not the lady, received $1,000 for it. Another New York editor informed a young lady that "women are out of style in journalism."

The story of woman in American journalism is like the story of a boom city in the west, a bubble and a burst. What is to be done? Well, after a spell of stagnation the boom city pulls itself together and at length spreads itself in a fine, healthy, gradual growth to proportions quite as magnificent as the visions of its most gorgeous dreamers, but this happens usually long after the dreamers are dead, beggared in their efforts to inflate the boom city.

Woman in journalism will go forward again, next time to stay in the front rank.

Here are suggestions to talented girls ambitious to use the brains they know they have and to do important, responsible work in journalism. It is practically hopeless just now—their obtaining anything worth while in the great cities. Let them go into the journals in the small cities. There, where the pressure of aspirants and the bigotry of men are not so great, they may obtain reporting really worth while. Public meetings, the sessions of boards and commissions, county, educational and municipal, are assemblies which a young woman may report without violating even conventional propriety. The woman reporter has much more scope and liberty in the small city than in the large one. The craft jealousy of men is not so powerful. Movements for the sanitation, beautifying and moral elevation of a town should not only be reported by women, but primarily undertaken by them. From responsible reporting the next step will be the writing of lively and good tempered local editorial.

If women intend to get permanent place in journalism, now is their time to make the fight. Let them become members of the editorial staff, and next, stockholders, managers and proprietors of newspapers in the smaller cities. That they are just as capable as men in most journalistic fields, and more capable than those in certain ones, is not denied. The point is this, and bear it in mind—men are going to crowd women out of the newspaper domain in order to get it for themselves. The way to prevent it is for women to become the editors, managers and owners of journals and the employers of writers of their own sex in the smaller cities. This will pave the way for what has already become a fixed fact in Paris—the establishment of a woman's daily newspaper, with every employee, from the office girl to the editor in chief, a woman. Women now are excellent operators on typesetting machines and members of the printers' unions. A clean, handsome daily conducted by women in New York, devoted to general news matters and current questions, with a pretty office and a millionaire woman's money behind it, would be a "go," even after the novelty had worn off, or I miss my guess.

AS IT MAY BE.

MISS WIDEAWAKE.

In all ill matched marriages the fault is less the woman's than the man's, as the choice depended on her the least.—Mme. de Rieux.

EXCELS IN BEAUTY.

THE PAN-AMERICAN EXPOSITION CITY OF PALACES.

A Harmony of Architectural, Sculptural, Horticultural, Floral, Electrical and Color Effects—Progress of a Century to Be Illustrated.

The Pan-American may not be as big as some former expositions, but it will be more beautiful than any of them. The Exposition site is a commanding one, containing 350 acres adjoining Buffalo's lovely and expansive Delaware Park. In selecting the Spanish Renaissance style of architecture as a basis for the Exposition architects to work upon, the managers paid a compliment to the Latin-American countries and at the same time provided for an effect of surpassing grandeur. The style has been somewhat modernized in its treatment, with the result of enhanced beauty. Color is judiciously applied to relieve the staff covered structures of the blank monotony which has characterized former exposition cities. It is rich, charming, restful to the eye—the very perfection of color decoration of buildings. The prismatic splendor has evoked the term "Rainbow City" for the ensemble of Exposition palaces. Sculpture will add to the attractiveness. Majestic statues and costly groups will adorn domes and towers and guard the entrances to buildings. There will be more than 125 groups of statuary in the Exposition City, the work of the best sculptors of the country, under the direction of Karl Bitter.

The court settings will be superb. The principal courts are the Court of Fountains and Plaza, which form a north and south perpendicular and connect with a transverse court called the Esplanade.

Surrounding the main group of buildings and bordered with a double row of trees and grassy banks is a broad and stately canal more than a mile long.

In perfect harmony with the grandeur and beauty of the buildings and courts will be the horticultural and floral embellishments of the grounds.

Rising high above all the other structures on the Exposition grounds the Electric Tower is the first object to arrest the attention of visitors. It is 391 feet high. The base is 80 feet square to a height of 200 feet. This base is flanked on the east and west sides by colonnades 75 feet in height, semicircular in form, which curve toward the south, forming a clasp setting for the great basin of the Electrical Fountains. From the fountains to the Goddess of Light at the apex the Tower will be one mass of quiet beauty by day and of fiery, sparkling grandeur by night. Elevators will take visitors to the restaurants upon the colonnade, where they will have a commanding view of the broad and beautiful Court of Fountains.

The electrical display will be far superior to any yet attempted.

These are the principal features which will excel all former attempts of the kind and serve to make the Pan-American Exposition City the most beautiful spectacle ever prepared by the genius of man for a similar enterprise.

MINES BUILDING.

The Pan-American Exposition concerns itself with the progress of the countries of the western hemisphere and the new possessions of the United States. To show the achievements during the century just closed and make for more rapid progress in the future is the chief purpose. In order to realize the ideal in mind the various countries must be drawn into closer relations commercially and socially. The golden opportunity comes with this Exposition when the representative men of all the countries in question will be gathered together and the diversified resources of the continent displayed. Such an international congress of peoples, exhibits and ideas must needs develop much of good for the inhabitants of the continent and posterity. It offers the chance for better acquaintance, the acquirement of new and useful knowledge, a comprehension of each other's opportunities and necessities, the settlement of questions which have too long retarded international trade in Pan-America and the laying of a strong and enduring foundation for an intercourse which will be mutually beneficial.

There are more than 40,000,000 people living within a night's ride of the Pan-American Exposition, and a great attendance, possibly exceeding that at the Columbian Exposition, is confidently expected. The hopes of the managers are for more than 25,000,000 paid admissions.

ELBERT L. LEWIS.

EXPOSITION MUSIC.

One of the Great Features of the Pan-American.

Music will have special attention at the Pan-American Exposition. Musical instruments have become quite as much the products of American genius as that of any other country in the world. In recent times marked progress has been made—all to be shown in a most interesting way to the millions who may find themselves in Buffalo this year. The exhibits of a musical character will be in the Liberal Arts division.

The Temple of Music will be the place for the holding of concerts, etc. It will be one of the most artistic buildings on the grounds, containing one of the largest and finest church organs in the world. Many of the most famous bands of both the new and old worlds will give concerts in the Temple of Music and from various bandstands in the Plaza, Esplanade and other parts of the grounds. Among them will be Sousa's famous band and the Mexican government mounted band.

FIGURES OF CHILDREN FOR TEMPLE OF MUSIC.

In the Music Temple there will be two organ recitals each day by prominent exponents of this branch of the musical art and concerts by the leading instrumental organizations of the United States and Europe every day during the progress of the Exposition.

The great organ will be equipped with all the latest improvements known to expert organ builders. It will have four manuals, about 50 speaking stops and will be voiced on three different wind pressures. The action will be the most complete style of tubular pneumatics. Of the four manuals, the great and swell organ will each have 14 stops. The choir organ will have 11, the solo organ 4 and the pedal organ 10 stops. The couplers, pedal movements and adjustable combinations will be of the most modern type. The case will be of Gothic design.

The principal national holidays will be observed with musical festivals, in which school children will participate. There will be a grand jubilee chorus of thousands of young voices in the spacious Stadium.

Church Fairs Interested.

They are talking about the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo even at the church fairs in distant portions of the United States. A Methodist church in Anderson, Ind., held a fair recently and advertised a long list of Midway attractions, purporting to have been secured in advance from the great Midway of the Pan-American Exposition. It made the following announcement:

"The K. G. E. Buffalo club has been organized for the purpose of running a through train (first class) to the Pan-American Exposition in October, 1901. The club has been authorized by the Pan-American Exposition to do special advertising for the Exposition in this locality and has secured some of their finest advertising matter. Don't fail to see our fine display of Pan-American advertising."

Every progressive agriculturist will want to see the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo next summer. The opportunity to get new and valuable ideas of farming is one that no tiller of the soil can well afford to miss. The display in the Department of Agriculture will surpass any ever seen at any previous exposition.

Mines and mining will be represented at the Pan-American Exposition in a manner intended to illustrate the importance and great progress of this industry. Modern improvements in metallurgy and the science of mining have advanced so rapidly and have attained such proportions that the task is not an easy one.

AN INDIAN FUNERAL.

Solemn Ceremony Conducted with Dignity and Decorum.

The Wake That Preceded It Was Also Impressive and Significant — Body Was Covered with a Heavy Stone Mound.

[Special Cahuilla (Cal.) Letter.]

CAHUILLA is one of the tiny Indian settlements in southern California, where the natives never came under the direct control of the Spanish padres who established the California missions. They are an independent, sturdy lot of people, inhabiting a reservation on which not a tenth part of the same number of white people could manage to subsist. Yet they are hard-working and non-complaining, as a rule, and they resent the idea that they are unable to care for themselves and need the assistance of the whites.

I have visited them several times, and always with great interest. On my last visit I learned that a woman had just died, and that the wake would be held that night and the funeral on the morrow. Accordingly I arranged with my friends to visit the home of the deceased. It was a solemn ceremony and I shall not soon forget the impression made upon me. The following is the account I wrote in my notebook early the following day:

We walked two miles from the camp to the house, in the dark. The same solemn, silent stars that looked down upon the tragedy at Calvary gazed upon the sad scene that met our eyes as we reached the home of the dead woman. The house was perched high on a hill dotted over with innumerable large granite bowlders. It was dark and we stumbled on our way, hearing now and again a low, subdued wail. A camp fire, with men sitting around it, led us to the spot. In the rear, where it was dark, half a dozen or more young men were sitting and standing, smoking, chatting, laughing and acting as young hoodlums of any race or color do anywhere. As we stepped into the house by the rear door we saw by the dim light of two candles in the front room that in this small lean-to a sister and child of the dead woman were stretched out on the bare ground by the side of the cook stove.

The poor creature was utterly exhausted with her care of the dead woman, and now nature had kindly thrown the oblivion of sleep over her from which we hoped she would not awake until morning. Other mourners were squatted in this small room. Standing at the doorway of the main room—a rude lumber shack—and gazing in, we saw the corpse, dressed in black, stretched out on a tiny raised platform on the right. Two lighted candles were at its head. Seated around on the bare ground, which was the only floor of the room, were a number of mourners, mostly women. Two men, acting as funeral director and priest, sat at the foot of the body and occasionally sang in minor, dolorous strains some hymn or prayer. Parallel with the corpse lay an old woman so utterly exhausted that she was sound asleep. She had been on her knees when she fell asleep, and had rolled over partially on her back. Her face was turned up and so full of woe and misery, even in her sleep, that one's heart bled for her.

We stood and waited. For half an hour there was dead silence, broken only by the chatter of the boys and barking of the dogs without. Then the Indian priest stood up and prayed rapidly, but quietly, for a few minutes. Again silence reigned supreme, to be broken after a long lapse by his starting the hymn of prayer to Our Lady of Guadaloupe. He sang sweetly and in good tune, but on a pitch much too low.

In a sweet, gentle manner the women joined in this chorus, which was many, many times repeated. Then another silence. Soon the priest and another man knelt and read an invocation to the saints, in which, after mentioning the name of the saint, all those present repeated, "Ora pro nobis." The candles were then placed in a new position at the head of the corpse, and most of the women moved outside, where a camp fire had been built by the side of the house. Some of the women had children in their arms, who were fretful and peevish at being disturbed.

The chorus they had joined in singing was somewhat as follows:

Some had dogs which snarled at everyone else's movements and now and again rushed into the dark to bark and growl viciously at some unknown foe. And there, in the weird darkness, made all the more real and intense by the blaze which now and again rose from the camp fire, the mourners sat out the night. Once in awhile they would throw their shawls or a white cloth over their heads and, swaying to and fro, would wail, and moan, and sob, or yield to the frenzy of their grief and yell in a piercing and blood-curdling manner.

THE ACTING PRIEST.

THE GRAVEYARD OF THE CAHUILLA INDIANS.

A little distance from the camp fire a ramada—a shack of tree trunks and branches—had been constructed, in which was a table covered with refreshments—biscuits, coffee and acorn mush. Now and again a man or woman went for a small refreshment and then resumed his or her place.

Before five o'clock next morning the corpse was placed in a box neatly covered with black cloth, and brought in a wagon to the church. The women sat on the right hand side, on the rude benches, silent, subdued and sorrow stricken, but only a few men came in and sat on the other side. These, except the priest and another, remained but a short time. After an hour or more of this silent waiting the priest read a short service and the coffin was placed in the wagon. Quite an excitement was caused by the frightening of one of the horses in the wagon, who fell down in his frantic struggles to get away. After the scared creature was quieted the rude procession marched over to the graveyard, where a service was conducted as decorously as in any city. As soon, however, as the body was lowered in the grave every woman arose and threw upon the coffin a handful of dirt and then, throwing her apron over her head, yielded to an abandon of grief and despair that was heart-breaking. The wails were piercing. As the priest and captain threw the dirt into the grave the chief mourners continued their weeping and wailing by the side of the grave, but those who had dead buried elsewhere in the graveyard went each to the grave most precious to her, and, removing the weeds, smoothing down the unsodded soil, wailed and cried to her heart's content.

ONE OF THE CHIEF MOURNERS.

Soon after the grave was filled and covered with the usual shaped mound one by one the mourners departed to their homes—the relatives going last, bearing their sorrow from henceforth bravely, silently and apparently with stoicism, but, nevertheless, with a keenness of feeling as deep and as sincere as that shown by any civilized person who has placed his beloved dust in the earth.

BATTLING TO BRING SOULS TO CHRIST.

his devotion and vows, but not consecrate. It is not an easy thing to make an unconditional surrender to God without reservation, and this brings to mind the great question, 'Is your life clean? Are you living before God as you should?'

"The words of old 'Purge me with hysop and I shall be clean' comes to us today with a double meaning. While God has not called everyone to some special service, he has called all to shine for Him. A great lesson is to be found in the candle which, when lighted, sheds a light in a circle. It may be a small circle or a large one, and so with Christians, it is a small or large circle of influence that they possess. Do your friends or acquaintances know Jesus any better because of your influence? The divine words are 'Let your light so shine that others seeing your good works may glorify your Father which is in Heaven,' and 'God so loved the world that He gave His only begotton Son that all who should believe in Him should not perish but have everlasting life.'

"You cannot get into the Holy of Holies until you give yourself unreservedly to God and his service, and may each one today do this for Christ's sake. Then all shall dwell in the inner-circle and enjoy a sweet communion with God."

At the close of the service Mr. Weeden sang "In the Secret Presence," and the benedicition was pronounced by Rev. A E. Main.

SPOKE TO YOUNG FOLKS.

F. H. Jacobs Conducted Meeting for the Children Yesterday Afternoon.

The extreme cold of the afternoon did not prevent a very large number of boys and girls from coming together at the hour for the children's meeting, conducted by F. H. Jacobs, in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church at 4 o'clock. The meeting was not less entertaining and helpful than the one on the previous day, and the considerable number of adults who accompanied the little folks were quite as much interested as the younger auditors.

The subject of the afternoon was "How Jesus Took Our Place," and the doctrine of the atonement was explained clearly and helpfully in a way which the youngest child present could understand. The subject was illustrated by a story of a schoolboy who was about to suffer a well deserved punishment, when a friend voluntarily took his place.

The work of the Holy Spirit in showing a person that there is sin in his heart, and then helping him to make it clean, was illustrated in an impressive manner by the speaker. He produced two glasses, apparently alike filled with water, one representing a pure heart, and the other one in which its owner acknowledged no sinfulness, but which had never been cleansed by the Spirit. The second glass really contained a solution of bichloride of mercury. Into the glasses Mr. Jacobs poured what he called a "poison finder," iodide of potassium. The pure water remained the same, but a red precipitate immediately dyed the poisoned glass. As a greater quantity was added, however, the color gradually faded out, and the poisonous quality of the mixture was eradicated. "So," said the speaker, "the Holy Spirit first shows us the sin in hearts, and then helps us to get rid of it."

At the close of the service, Mr. Jacobs asked all the children who had given themselves to the Saviour to rise, and a large number did so. He then asked all to stand who would like, from that time, to belong to Him, and try to do His will; and there was very encouraging response. Mr. Jacobs reminded his hearers, before dismissing them, that the meeting this afternoon would be held in the First Baptist church.

PROMISE TO SERVE CHRIST.

Many Impressed by Evangelist Hall's Earnest Appeal at Last Night's Meeting.

The evangelistic services conducted by William Phillips Hall last evening in the First Baptist church, resulted in the enlistment of at least twenty recruits who promise to serve hereafter in the army of God. The wonderful success attained by Mr. Hall is unprecedented in the local history of Gospel meetings and the results of last evening's meeting was no exception to what Mr. Hall has accomplished during the brief period in which he has spent his noble efforts to save souls in this community.

The preliminary sacred musical service was in charge of W. S Weeden, who succeeded in bringing out the full musical strength of the congregation. The hymns sung were such as are familiar and dear to the majority of church members. "Come to Me" was one that was sung in such a soulful manner as would captivate the most hardened sinner.

At the close of the festival of sacred song, prayers were offered by Rev. Dr. W. R Richards and by Rev. John L. Clark, the secretary of the New York Executive Committee of the Twentieth Century National Gospel Campaign Association. Announcement of the various services to be held during the remainder of the week was made by Dr. Richards, and the ushers gathered the offerings while the choir and congregation sang "Face to Face."

Mr. Hall took the opportunity to explain how truly happy one feels when, through the power given by God, he is permitted to help save souls. True joy is to be found in leading some one to Christ, said he, and if one wants to realize God's love for him he need only to go out and do His work.

Mr. Weeden rendered in a clear and mellow voice a pleasing solo, and after a short prayer Mr. Hall proceeded at once to make the principal address of the evening.

The lay evangelist selected for his subject a part of the 15 verse, 10 chapter, 2 Kings:—"And he saluted him and said unto him is thine heart right, as my heart is with thy heart?" Drawing his audience's attention to the interrogatory form of his subject, he added that the paramount question is the spiritual life. Some, said he, have no appreciation of the fact that there exists a life beyond the grave and to them this question is directed. The message as to the condition of the heart is a personal one from God and when it speaks of the heart it means the inner man—to the real self.

The heart is made right by seeking God and this gift can not be purchased. The condition of some is like a malarial swamp from which emanates death.

The great mistake made very often is in a person's believing that he is all right spiritually, for it matters not what one thinks about himself, it is what God knows him to be that counts. If you look into the mirror of God's word you will find yourself the ugliest of creatures. The quarantine is out for those whose hearts are not right in the sight of God. One needs to be transformed and regenerated in order to obtain life everlasting. In concluding Mr. Hall begged the unrepented to seek God before the close of the service.

A short period of silent prayer followed Mr. Hall's address and then all Christians who would surrender to Jesus stood up at the request of the evangelist.

When the call was made for all who desire henceforth to be Christians to arise, twenty persons made a silent acknowledgment of surrendering to God by standing up. As heretofore the cards were then passed around and after that feature of the service was ended all Christians were again asked to signify their belief by standing Benediction was pronounced by Dr. Richards.

At the short "after service" held for those who experienced a change of heart, Mr. Hall made a few appropriate remarks and Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes led in prayer. Among the clergymen present at the services were: Rev Dr. D. J. Yerkes, Rev. George W Gardner, Rev George W. Smith, Rev. J. O McKelvey, Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D, Rev. Dr. W. R Richards Rev. J. W. Richardson, and Rev. John L. Clark, of New York.

WORKING IN THE WEST END.

Large Meeting in Hope Chapel Last Evening Was Led By F. H. Jacobs.

Owing to the fact that Rev. Theodore S Henderson was called back to Brooklyn last evening, F H Jacobs conducted the evangelistic service at Hope Memorial chapel. The chapel was filled with an interested audience, and the discourse by Mr. Jacobs was very helpful. After he conducted a song service and sang a solo, Mr. Jacobs talked from the text, "I am the door; by Me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture."

The speaker said: "when a man is cast out for Jesus' sake you can make up your mind that Christ is very near to him. Christ gives the most tender teaching to His children; so simple and impressive. I think that sometimes we mystify by attempting to explain that which explains itself. A child can understand the door, but it is oftentimes our unwillingness to enter through the door. 'He that entereth not into the sheep fold by the door, the same is a thief and a robber.' There are many ways that people are trying to enter the kingdom of Heaven, but if we would be saved we must enter by the door. We must come through Jesus Christ, whose shed blood atones for sin.

"A conscience is all right in its original state, but it can be marvelously warped out of shape. Some people think they they can do most anything, their conscience are so elastic. The soul before God is priceless. The latter part of our text says 'He shall be saved.' There is no hope-so about it. The door is wide open for you and men. Won't you enter tonight and be saved."

The service closed in the usual way, several persons signifying a desire to become Christians. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. John McMurray.

A Musical Typewriter.

One of the most interesting of recent inventions is the musical typewriter. It does not play music, but writes it, the keyboard being an arrangement of musical characters instead of ordinary letters. The mechanism is in most respects similar to that of the everyday typewriter.

The sheet of paper on which the music is to be written is printed beforehand with the lines of the staff, and, by pressing one of the buttons, the musical character desired may be made to assume its place on the line wanted, so as to stand for the proper note or other mark. Full notes, half notes, quarter notes, eighth notes and sixteenth notes appear on the keys, as well as the signs for sharps and flats.

In writing music, the operator first prints the clef mark, and then the arrangement of sharps and flats which indicates the key in which the piece is written. Chords are formed by putting the component notes together, one after another, but in a vertical line on the staff. It is all very simple, but, as may easily be realized, this kind of typewriter requires special expertness and a good deal of practice. It is likely to be of more value in copying than in actual composing.—Saturday Evening Post.

How the Supreme Court Votes.

Some future Saturday the nine blackrobed judges will descend by private elevator to their consultation room, observing with scrupulous care the seniority of members, even to the order of the entrance into the room, and begin balloting on the Porto Rican cases. In the consultation-room much of the dignity observed elsewhere is eliminated. The stately black robes are removed and the justices sit about a long table, the chief justice, Mr. Melville Fuller, at the head and the junior justice, Mr. McKenna, at the foot.

Justice McKenna will cast the first ballot to settle those eventful cases. It is one of the traditions of the court that the balloting must be in inverse order of seniority, the chief justice balloting last. Justice Harlan is the senior member of the high tribunal, from the point of service, but the chief justice rates him.—Joe Mitchell Chapple, in the National Magazine.

The Peanut as a Civilizer.

The peanut seems to be playing the part of "civilizer" in some of the foreign possessions in tropical Africa. Traders give a negro a bushel of nuts for seed on condition that he returns four bushels from his crop, and since the yield in good years is twentyfold the black man generally has a surplus which he can sell at the rate of a shilling a bushel. From a single station in Senegambia there were shipped in 1898, 29,000 tons. Small boys and scientists have long been in agreement touching the value of the peanut; now statesmen also will have to do it honor, since it seems likely to lead the native African into the paths of agriculture.—Youth's Companion.

Nature's Parks in Africa.

In central Africa are found districts which impress the beholder with the belief that the hand of man has shaped their features, although there is now no population capable of producing such effects. These districts, near Lake Tanganyika, are called "park lands," and their origin was recently explained before the Linnean society in London, by Mr. Moore, as being due to the spread of vegetation over a light surface soil gradually deposited above the salt steppes left by former lakes. In some places these districts are covered with natural plantations that have a "quite homelike look."

Lord Bute's Gorgeous Home.

For 20 years the great house of Lord Bute, on Bute island, has been in process of construction, and is not finished yet, the chapel remaining to be completed. The entrance hall alone, with its great marble columns and floor, walls and ceiling in marble of every variety and hue, will have cost $500,000.—N. Y. Journal.

CLIMAX OF GOSPEL CAMPAIGN AT HAND.

Increased Earnestness and Interest Marks the Meetings as They Continue.

MEETINGS OF YESTERDAY.

MANY MADE PUBLIC ACKNOWLEDGEMENT OF THEIR NEW CAREER.

Meetings Will End With Day of Prayer Tuesday—Schedule of Services Up to That Time—Wonderful Results of Meetings.

Every day sees the people of Plainfield more thoroughly stirred by the Gospel campaign now in progress. As the time comes for the close of this series of evangelistic meetings, the interest is deepened and broadened. One change in the original plan for the meetings has been made necessary. They will close Tuesday with a day of prayer, instead of Wednesday. This change has been made necessary as Evangelist William Phillips Hall has to leave Wednesday for the south, with his child, who is very ill. Instead, meetings will be held tomorrow evening. Four meetings were held yesterday and all showed great interest on the part of old and young, while many were led to take an active stand for Christ.

This afternoon will see the last of the afternoon meetings at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, under the charge of Rev. T. S. Henderson. It begins at 3 o'clock. Tonight Evangelist Hall will speak at the First Baptist church as usual and Rev. T. S. Henderson will conduct the meeting at Hope chapel. Tomorrow evening Evangelist Hall will be at the First Baptist church.

The local pastors will preach in their own churches Sunday morning except that the congregations of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church and Hope chapel will unite in the latter sanctuary and will be addressed by Evangelist Hall. Admission to this meeting will be strictly by ticket and tickets will be distributed only among the two congregations. All the local Sunday-schools will assemble at their usual meeting places in the afternoon at the regular time and then march to the First Baptist church where Mr. Hall will address a Sunday school meeting at 3 o'clock. The public will not be admitted until the members of all the Sunday-schools are seated so there will be little or no room left. This meeting will not include the primary departments. F. H. Jacobs will address the men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. at 4 o'clock.

A service for men only will be held in the First Baptist church Sunday evening. It will begin at 7 o'clock. Mr. Hall will speak. Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards will address a meeting for women in the First M. E. church, beginning at the same hour. Charles L. Lewis will lead the singing. A general overflow meeting will be held in Vincent chapel at which the speaker will be Rev. J. W. Richardson. A meeting will be held at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, the speaker at which will be announced tomorrow.

Monday afternoon will see a children's meeting at Monroe Avenue M. E. church at 4 o'clock. Rev. T. S. Henderson will speak. In the evening Mr. Hall will talk at the First Baptist church, and Rev. Mr. Henderson at Monroe Avenue church.

A day of prayer will be observed Tuesday and many of the local merchants have agreed to close their stores part of the day. Rev. Mr. Henderson will speak at a morning meeting in the First Baptist church. It will begin at 10:30 o'clock. Mr. Hall will speak at meetings at 3 and 7:45 o'clock in the same church. Rev. Mr. Henderson will conduct an overflow meeting in the First M. E. church at 7:45 o'clock. These meetings will positively end the series of special meetings given under the auspices of the Minister's Association.

ATTENDANCE IS INCREASING.

Afternoon Meetings at the Crescent Avenue Church Largely Attended This Week.

There was an increased attendance at the evangelistic service held in the Crescent Avenue church yesterday afternoon, every seat being occupied. Rev. Theodore S. Henderson was in charge and was assisted by W. C. Weeden, the singing evangelist. Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass assisted at the opening by offering a prayer.

Mr. Henderson spoke concerning the Christ-centred life and used for his text the words of Paul as found in the second chapter of Galatians and a part of the twentieth verse. He laid great stress on the personal pronoun I, and said that with Paul it was a question of "I or Christ" and he chose Christ, placing all his affections on Him. Mr. Henderson also spoke of the fact that Paul had such a conception of Christ that he reflected His image and glory.

The speaker said the circumference was the outer life, where a great many people are living. He said that there is no self-love in Christ and there was no self love in Paul after he met Christ. "How is it with you?" Mr. Henderson asked his hearers, "Is it Christ or I?" Paul said, "If meat make my brother to offend I will eat no meat while the world stands." "This should be our position. It is not a question of your conscience as to whether you should do this or that, but your fellow-man's conscience. That is the Pauline doctrine of living for Christ."

Mr. Henderson said that it is a sin to brood over and nurse sorrow. There was a woman member of his church who, on every clear Sunday, went to the cemetery and brooded over the grave of her husband, when she should have been in her seat at church, where her husband would have her. He thought that Paul's great strength lay in the fact that he sought first the Kingdom of God, and this he believed was everyone's duty.

At the close of the service, Mr. Weeden sang a solo very effectively.

MANY ACCEPTED CHRIST.

Very Impressive Meeting Held in First Baptist Church Led by Evangelist Hall.

The impressive scene last evening at the First Baptist church when Wm. Phillips Hall, the evangelist, was addressing the assembled congregation, which, with bated breath and absorbing mind, was drinking in every syllable uttered by him, would lead one bereft of hearing to believe that a patriotic populace had gathered to welcome some hero home. Indeed the large percentage of the vast audience were present for the purpose of extending a welcome home to a Christian life, to heroes who had the courage to renounce the devil and become children of God.

Through the power exerted in the eloquent and forcible appeal made by Mr. Hall, at least, twenty-five of his hearers stood up in token of a vow to lead a new life according to the commandments of God.

Exactly at 7:30 o'clock the services were commenced by the singing of "There's a wideness." The stirring music to which this hymn is set served to enthuse the congregation, and as they sang in turn "Pass Me Not," "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," "Doing His Will," and several other hymns precious to Christian workers, the spiritual fire seemed to blaze within them.

At the conclusion of the special musical programme, Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck prayed that God's richest blessing be sent to the meeting and that those present be made right in the heart, regenerated in the Spirit and be made new creatures in the sight of God. Rev. Charles E. Herring followed Dr. Schenck in invoking the blessing of God, and F. H. Jacobs then rendered a solo, "Impatient Heart Be Still."

Mr. Hall chose as the topic of his discourse Hosea, 12th verse of the 10th chapter: "Sow to yourselves in righteousness, reap in mercy; break up your fallow ground; for it is time to seek the Lord, till He come and rain righteousness for you.'

The evangelist took occasion to say that the published report of Wednesday evening's meeting stated that the success of the present evangelistic services "is unprecedented in the local history of Gospel meetings." This he believed to be true and also that God is pouring out His flesh here in Plainfield. There are people here thinking who never thought before.

He dwelt upon the thought that "it is time to seek the Lord," and said that it is one's duty to seek God because he is commanded so to do, and God's commandments are the rules of all true righteousness and morality. Again man should seek God because he, with his unregenerated soul, is the enemy of the Divine Ruler.

Likewise the Heavenly Father should be sought because one is commanded to first seek "the Kingdom of God and his righteousness and all things shall come after" and also because one is told to seek "the Lord while he may be found; call upon him

WASN'T THE TRUTH.

So City Judge Runyon Changed His Mind and Imposed Fine on the Prisoner.

Samuel Rosen, a wandering vendor of fancy trinkets, was taken in custody yesterday for violation of the peddling ordinance. City Judge Runyon, taking into consideration the apparent respectability of the man and his plea of ignorance of wrong doing, mercifully suspended sentence at the hearing this morning.

As the man was about to depart he hurled a charge against the attaches of the headquarters that he had been without anything to eat since his incarceration. Rosen, on being questioned by the court, admitted the falsity of the statement. City Judge Runyon withdrew his former decision and imposed a fine of $5 on the prevaricating peddler.

POPE EXTENDS JUBILEE.

NOW EXTENDED TO PARISHERS ALL OVER THE WORLD.

Bishops and Priests are Allowed to Grant Indulgences and Blessings Usually Reserved to Pope Alone.

The faithful of the Roman Catholics in Plainfield and North Plainfield are now taking advantage of the Pope's extension of the jubilee. Last year, being the close of the nineteenth century, the Holy Father proclaimed that all who during the year would journey to Rome and perform their devotions, praying specifically for the Pope's intention, should be granted certain indulgences. The Pope's intention, it is explained, means peace between kings and other temporal rulers, as well as peace between individuals. His intention also includes the conversion of the heathen.

The original purpose was to confine the jubilee to the limits of the Holy City and the devotions were restricted to certain special specified churches.

At the beginning of the present year the Pope issued a letter to the bishops and priests throughout the world announcing that the jubilee would be extended both as to time and place. Under the decree, Roman Catholics can render their devotions in the vicinity in which they reside and the bishops and priests are empowered to grant indulgences, favors and blessings usually reserved solely to the pontiff himself.

The period commenced February 24 and closes at the expiration of six months. The supplicant must pray for the Pope's intention four times a day in the parish church and this devotion must be made for fifteen days. In large cities the prayer must be said in four different churches, but here one is allowed to confine his devotions to either St. Joseph's or St. Mary's.

There appears to be somewhat of a rush at present among the communicants in the two local parishes to commence their jubilee prayers early, and yesterday particularly numbers of people were observed moving to and fro at St. Joseph's in particular.

M. E. CONFERENCE.

Newark Conference Will Be Held at Hoboken Beginning April 10.

The annual conference of the Newark Methodist Episcopal Conference will be held in the First M. E. church, Hoboken, April 10, and a programme of unusual interest has been arranged. Bishop S. D. Foss, of Philadelphia, will preside, and the Presiding Elder will be Rev. J. R. Wright, of Jersey City.

Among the prominent speakers at the conference will be Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, D. D., Rev. Dr. Burrell and Rev. S. Parks Cadman, of New York, and Mrs. D. D. Gamewell, wife of the hero of the Pekin siege, and many others. On account of this being the first conference of the century great effort will be made to emphasize the work of the Twentieth Century Forward Movement. The conference will extend from April 10 to 14.

Students on Trip of Inspection.

Twenty students of the senior class of Stevens Institute including Nathan E. Lewis, of West Eighth street, have returned from a trip through New York State and Pennsylvania, visiting various shops and works last week, while the remaining twenty students were making short trips to nearby places. The long distance trip was in charge of Prof. E. J. Denton, of mechanical engineering, and Prof. Albert Gang, of the electric course. The students have been visiting locomotive works, electric plants, the Carnegie Steel Works, etc.

The officials of the Central Railroad Company will probably meet in Plainfield soon to formally accept the new railroad station, recently completed.

WILL NOT SPRINKLE STREETS THIS YEAR.

Members of Council Decided Adversely on Project When It Was Before a Caucus.

COUNSEL MARSH'S OPINION

SAID CONTRACT COULD NOT BE MADE FOR OVER A YEAR.

Difficult to Secure a Contractor Who Would Be Willing to Make Necessary Investment For Only a Year—Matter Laid Over.

Ever since the experiment of street sprinkling by the borough authorities in North Plainfield was started a year ago, the city authorities have been considering the advisibility of taking similar action in this city. While the members of the Councilmanic street committee are known to favor the plan, it will not be generally tried in Plainfield this year.

The subject was brought up for informal consideration at a caucus of the members of the Council, held during a recess of the Council on the occasion of the last meeting Monday evening. The advisability of introducing street sprinkling under the charge of the street department was then discussed.

The plan favored by the members of the street committee was to award the contract for sprinkling all the macadamized streets to some local contractor and the city to meet the cost instead of doing the work directly. At the request of Mr. Tolles, chairman of the street committee, an opinion on the subject was presented by Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh.

This opinion from Mr. Marsh was received that day. He stated that the Council has no right to make a contract for a longer time than one year, and under these circumstances no one would want to make an outlay of much money for watering carts, horses, etc., if he was to have the contract for one year only. He thought that the city would not feel like expending the necessary amount of money for wagons, horses, etc., and besides there was a question as to whether it would be legal.

However, the city owns two sprinkling carts and when possible these will probably be used for watering several of the most important streets in the business part of the city. It is a possibility that a law may be enacted giving the city the privilege of letting out a contract for that work for more than one year. There may be other cities that would like to receive the benefits of such a law and its enactment would give the necessary relief.

If the city should do the sprinkling it is claimed that it would not cost the taxpayers as much as under the present system. Now a person pays from 10 to 25 cents and even more each week to have the street sprinkled in front of his property. Under the proposed change, it is said the increase in tax would be a trifle and would hardly be felt by the citizens.

Association Adopted Amendment.

A meeting of the Athletic Association of the Plainfield High School was held this morning with the president, Lawrence L. Tweedy, in the chair. A proposed amendment to the constitution relating to school colors and insignia was submitted by the Board of Directors. The amendment was adopted section by section without opposition before the adjournment of the meeting.

Will Practice Osteopathy.

Dr. George DeWitt Herring, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., has taken a suite of rooms in the Babcock building and will begin practicing in this city as an osteopathic physician. Osteopathy is a new science which treats without drugs except in surgical cases, while chronic diseases are made a specialty.

Eighteen in Hospital.

There are eighteen patients at Muhlenberg Hospital and all are on the way to recovery. Two or three will be discharged this week. Patrolman Andrew Saffron is greatly improved and will probably leave the first of next week.

To Start Clothing Store.

Preger Brother, of 710 Broadway, New York, have leased 207 West Front street, and will open as a branch of the New York business a clothing store. Mr. Lunger, of York, Pa., will have charge of their business here.

Estimating Expenses.

The members of the Common Council will probably make the yearly appropriations at the regular April meeting. The various committees are now estimating their expenses for the coming year.

MUCH SICKNESS.

Lots of Work Among Poor and Needy of the City for the King's Daughters' Nurse.

The regular meeting of the executive committee of the City Union King's Daughters was held yesterday at the Y. M. C. A. building. Miss Sadie Hayes, Mrs. Frank Jones and Mrs. Howard A. Pope were appointed as a nominating committee to select officers to be elected at the annual meeting to be held in May, following the regular monthly meeting.

A report was received from the city nurse, showing that she is making on an average of thirty-five visits a week. There is a great deal of sickness among the poor and needy, demanding much attention from the city nurse. The treasurer reported a balance of about $340. This comprised about all of the business of importance considered at the meeting.

AGED ENGINEER PASSED AWAY.

ISAAC LARUE DIED AT HIS HOME ON EAST NINTH STREET.

Was Steamboat Engineer and Worked Long Time For Commodore Vanderbilt.

Isaac LaRue, aged 87 years, died yesterday afternoon at his home, 245 East Ninth street, after a long illness. He had not been a resident of Plainfield very long and was consequently not so well known here, although in Middlesex county he was known by most everyone.

Mr. LaRue was born between Old Bridge and South River and at an early age he sought the occupation of a steamboat engineer. He was engaged for many years in running a steamboat between New Brunswick and New York for the late Commodore Vanderbilt, and it is said that on more than one occasion the Commodore assisted in filing for Mr. LaRue. After a long service as a steamboat engineer he engaged in railroading and for nearly forty years was an engineer on the Pennsylvania Railroad. He was not only one of the oldest steamboat engineers, but a railroad engineer as well. It was a year ago last January that he retired under the company's pension system, and since then has lived a quiet and easy life.

In connection with Mr. LaRue's early career as a steamboat engineer he introduced the now generally-used sign on the smokestacks on boats. In the case of the Pennsylvania Railroad they adopted the well known symbol of the keystone, and other companies have adopted similar signs. Mr. LaRue's idea was to distinguish boats so that people living near his home could tell his boat readily when it was approaching either New Brunswick or New York. Mr. LaRue lived in New Brunswick about fifty years. Last September he and his family moved to this city. His death is the first to occur in a family of seven.

Besides a wife Mr. LaRue is survived by five sons and two daughters. The sons are Ira L. LaRue, of the firm of LaRue & Cuming, Wm. C. LaRue and James F. LaRue, of this city; George W. LaRue, a railroad engineer, who lives in New Mexico; Edward M. LaRue, of Beaver Falls, Pa. The daughters are the Misses Julia and Margaret LaRue, who live in this city.

WOMEN IN CAMPAIGN.

Will Have a Ticket at The Coming School Meeting in Cranford Township.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Cranford, March 8.—What two women of this town want to be members of the Cranford Board of Education is a secret and cannot be learned, although many of the voters of the township have signed an agreement to vote for them at the coming school election, March 19.

The movement is said to have been started by the Wednesday Morning Club, which has taken hand in politics before and successfully. During the past week the women of this club have been circulating the following petition which they have asked the men of the town to sign:

To the Voters of Cranford:

In view of the fact that all of our teachers but one are women, and at least one-half of the pupils are girls, and realizing that women know the needs of children better than men, and have more time to devote to the inspection of the schools;

We, the undersigned residents of Cranford, believing it to be for the best interests of the schools, ask you to co-operate with us at the coming election of school officers to secure at that time the election of two women to serve on the School Board.

REDISTRICTING BILL READY.

INTRODUCED INTO SENATE BY SENATOR REED YESTERDAY.

Was Referred to Judiciary Committee—Will Come Up for Consideration Next Week.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, March 8.—The bill providing for the lines of the ten Congress districts in New Jersey was introduced in the Senate yesterday afternoon by Mr. Reed, but will not be considered until next week. Besides providing for the new districts the bill specifies the division of Hudson and Essex counties into two districts each.

The bill was referred to the judiciary committee.

A resolution introduced by Mr. Reed in the Senate provides that the Board of Riparian Commissioners be requested to certify to the Senate an estimate of the value of the riparian rights of the State which would be lost or diminished should the lands mentioned in the Palisades Park bill be acquired by the Palisades Park commissioners, and thus withdrawn from use for commercial purposes.

Mr. Hudspeth asked whether a resolution which he introduced earlier in the session did not cover the same ground, to which Mr. Reed replied that it was too general. Mr. Hudspeth protested because his bill had not been brought up for consideration.

In the House the Hoboken dock bill permitting the North German Lloyd Steamship Company to moor its vessels in front of Washington Park, Hoboken, was passed with the Senate amendments, as was Mr. Bacheller's bill providing for a withdrawal value for building and loan association shares.

Both houses adjourned for the week.

THREE OFFICERS RESIGNED.

Stormy Session of Reform Club Was Held Last Evening.

President Michael Armstrong and Vice Presidents John Manly and Charles Rice, of the Plainfield Reform Club, a local temperance organization, resigned their offices last evening after one of the stormiest sessions in the club's history.

The action of all three officials was the culmination of a series of differences between them and other club workers and, in their opinion, was to be settled only by permanently retiring. The rest of the club members objected strongly to their resigning. A meeting will be held this evening and the vacancies will be filled.

MAY CHANGE VACATION.

North Plainfield Teachers Want Easter Vacation in Third Week in April.

It has not been definitely settled whether the Easter vacation of the North Plainfield schools will be observed during the second or third week in April. The School Board had decided on the second week, but as a number of the teachers are anxious to join Honeyman's trip to Washington which will probably take place in the third week, the School Board is likely to change the time of vacation to conform with their desire.

Many Visited Schools.

There has been a hearty response on the part of citizens of North Plainfield to the invitation extended by Superintendent Wightman to visit the schools this week. Yesterday over fifty parents and friends of the pupils examined the interesting exhibits of school work which at present adorn the walls of the Somerset street school.

Rare Musical Treat.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Bentley, of East Sixth street, entertained Elinor Ellsworth Smith, a finished pupil of Madame Marchesi, and Mabel Searles-Ketchum, the pianist, at dinner, Wednesday. A few friends were invited in the evening, who enjoyed a rare musical treat.

Improving Entrance to Music Hall.

Manager Maze Edwards, of Music Hall, has been having the front entrance to the hall thoroughly cleaned and the bill boards have been changed to conform with the improvements made at M. Weinberger's store adjoining.

Five Days in Jail.

JURY GAVE VERDICT FOR MRS. PERRINE.

Decision Reached in the Famous Pangborn-Allen Will Case at Williamsport, Pa.

JURY WAS OUT SIX HOURS.

IF NOT SET ASIDE VERDICT GIVES MRS. PERRINE MUCH PROPERTY.

Result is a Great Victory For Isaac P. Runyon, Who Started Suit Three Years Ago—Many Williamsport People Affected.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Williamsport, Pa., March 8.—After being out six hours, the jury in the Pangborn-Allen case brought in a verdict yesterday afternoon in favor of Mrs. Louisa Perrine, of Plainfield. If this verdict is not set aside by future legal proceedings it will give Mrs. Perrine possession of property in this city valued at $100,000.

The contention in this most interesting case of ejectment on the ground that property owned by the late Stephen Pangborn and W. S. Allen, who, it is alleged, are one and the same person, is that it was illegally disposed of by the alleged heirs of the deceased, and that if it can be proved that Mrs. Perrine is the rightful daughter of the deceased by the first marriage, she is entitled to property left by him. The case was tried in the Common Pleas Court of Lycoming county court before a jury of twelve men. It is probable that the case will be appealed.

In the victory won yesterday for the plaintiff, Isaac P. Runyon, formerly of the firm of Pope & Runyon, but now of the firm of Bruce & Runyon, deserves great credit. For three years past he has worked hard and faithfully to obtain yesterday's result. He was the originator of the case, being the one to inform Mrs. Perrine of the family affairs, of which she knew very little. The firm of Pope & Runyon took the case up. They employed the law firm of McCormick & McCormick, of Williamsport, Pa., who stand very high in their profession, to look after the Pennsylvania end of the case.

James O. Clark, a New York lawyer residing at Westfield, a man of means, was interested and associated in the contest for the plaintiff. With this combination no stone was left unturned in fighting the case to a successful ending. The opinion of several prominent lawyers seems to be that even if an appeal is taken the plaintiff will eventually win.

The Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company is interested to a large extent, while many merchants represent the other half of the defence. All of the Plainfield witnesses who went to Williamsport, returned home last evening.

FUNERAL OF WM. T. NEWMAN.

Services Were Held From Warren Chapel Yesterday Afternoon.

The funeral services of William T. Newman were held yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in Warren chapel and were conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. O. McKelvey. The members of the Warren Engine company turned out in a body to pay their last respects to Mr. Newman's memory and there were also delegations present at the services from Franklin Council, No. 41, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, and from Unity Lodge, Knights of Pythias.

The chapel building was crowded to the doors with sorrowing relatives and friends who sincerely mourn the loss of one of the borough's most exemplary citizens. The handsome floral tributes completely covered the casket.

At the conclusion of the church service the ritual of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics was performed by Councilor Henry Kliner, Jr. Short prayers were said by Rev. Mr. McKelvey at the side of the grave in Chatham street cemetery.

The pall bearers were David Bodine and Raymond Schenck, of the Warren Engine Company; Ephraim Compton and William R. Kriney, of the Jr. O. U. A. M., and Frank Putnam and Samuel Humpston, of the Knights of Pythias.

Attended Children's Service.

The children of the Washingtonville public school attended the evangelistic services at the First Baptist church yesterday afternoon. The pupils were brought over in one of William Hand and Son's commodious stages.

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

It is presumed that all who have read the works of the famous humorist, Mark Twain, are more or less familiar with "Tom Sawyer," one of the very best of the famous author's creations. This story in dramatic form will be presented at Music Hall tomorrow afternoon and night and will be found to be highly interesting. The real plot of the story shows how one Indian Joe, assisted by an unscrupulus doctor and a sot, named Lasher Stubbs, attempt to steal a body. They quarrel over some trival affair and the doctor is killed, for which crime Lasher Stubbs is arrested Through the testimony of Tom, he is acquitted and the crime placed where it rightfully belongs. The pranks of Master Tom and Huckleberry Finn, the grave yard scene, the grocery story and court scenes, are very realistic and the comedy is replete with many novelties in the way of songs, dances, and clean wholesome specialties, which will please all. Special accommodations for women and children at the matinee tomorrow afternoon.

"On the Suwanee River" comes to Music Hall Monday evening endorsed as a play that families may be taken to with the assurance that its theme and treatment cannot but appeal to one's great emotions. The story and treatment is the old one of mortgaged estates, intrigue and eventual clearing away of a villanious atmosphere before the sunshine of honesty and morality. There is a pathetic love story, a rich vein of humor, and permeating all is the distinct southern flavor of the sunny climes in which the play revolves. A careful scenic investiture has been provided; and taken as a whole, 'On the Suwanee River," must prove an addition to the "home plays" of the stage. Stella Mayhew will be seen in her really fine impersonation of Aunt Lindy, assisted by the Clover Leaf Quartette.

A sensation, something that creates more than a passing comment, is what the public is continually hankering after. Herrmann the Great, who appears at Music Hall next Wednesday night, has created more than the nine days wonder in his new sensational trick of magic, "Cremation," in which realism is exemplified to a striking degree in the burning of a young lady alive upon the stage. It is the most talked about bit of black art which has seen the light of day in many years.

The cast given below is one of the best ever before seen. Special scenery of great beauty, and all the other environments, such as a pack of Siberian blood hounds, 200 jubilee chorus singers, buck and wing dancers, and a mammoth cake walk, make it one of the greatest "Uncle Tom" productions ever seen. The cast includes: Wilton Lackaye as Uncle Tom; Odell Williams as Phineas Fletcher; Theodore Roberts as Simon Legree; L. R. Stockwell as Marks; William Harcourt as Geo. Harris; Mabel Amber as Eliza; Annie Yeamans as Aunt Ophelia, and Maud Raymond as Topsy.

THE KAISER'S WOUND.

The Cut In His Cheek Not Considered Serious.

BERLIN, March 8.—At the opening of the Prussian chamber of deputies, the lower house of the diet, yesterday the president announced to the deputies that he had received a message from Chancellor von Bulow stating that the emperor had been wounded by a lad.

The wound, the message said, was inconsiderable, but the emperor would be obliged to remain in bed for several days.

It is officially stated that the wound in the emperor's face is four centimeters long. The flesh is cut through to the cheekbone, and the skin along the edges of the wound is much torn. The emperor has no fever and does not complain even of a headache. The wound was closed by bandaging without sewing.

A somewhat similar attempt was made at Breslau two years ago on the opening of the canal, when an old woman threw a stone at the kaiser.

During the examination of Weiland at Bremen he had several epileptic fits.

Weiland's examination proved that he was not responsible for his actions. He said he did not feel well Wednesday and feared an epileptic attack. While he was waiting for the arrival of the emperor the sound of a fountain playing in a courtyard, mingling with the voices of the crowd, caused him to imagine that he was sailing a ship, his former vocation having been that of ship's captain. Under this delusion his excitement increased, and he attempted to heave a lead and three pieces of iron. Then he lost consciousness. The missile was a fishplate weighing 550 grams.

GENERAL HARRISON ILL.

An Attack of the Grip Which Does Not Yield to Treatment.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 8.—General Benjamin Harrison is very sick at his residence on North Delaware street, but it is impossible to learn his true condition, as his physician refuses to discuss his case without permission from his family, and this was refused by Mrs. Harrison last evening. She said that the general is suffering from the grip, but his condition was not considered alarming. When asked if the patient was suffering from any complications of the disease and particularly as to bronchial affection, Dr. Henry Jameson, who was with General Harrison for more than an hour last evening, refused to answer.

Mr. Harrison took a severe cold more than a week ago and placed himself under the care of his physician. The ailment did not yield readily to treatment, and he has been confined to his home since. Instead of improving he has grown worse within the last three days, suffering from a pronounced case of the grip and has been confined to his bed.

Friends who have called upon him within the last two days have not been admitted to his room, and there is a fear that he is worse than the public is permitted to know.

The lack of positive information has caused alarm outside of the family.

Columbia Outargued Cornell.

NEW YORK, March 8.—The annual debate between Columbia and Cornell universities at the Lenox lyceum last night was won by Columbia, and there was no end of rejoicing among the winners and their friends because of Cornell's victory last year on the occasion of the first debate between the two colleges. The question was the advisability of retaining and enforcing that portion of the fourteenth amendment making representation proportionate to the number of voters in states where the suffrage has been restricted.

Big Job For the Hens.

KANSAS CITY, March 8.—H. M. Slayton of Manchester, N. H., capped the climax of a meeting of the Oklahoma and Kansas Produce Dealers association here by giving an order to be filled by all members of the organization jointly for 200 carloads of eggs. The shipments are to be made a train at a time. The order means that the hens of Oklahoma and Kansas have ahead of them the task of laying 28,800,000 eggs this spring.

Seal Hunting Season Near.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., March 8.—A sealing fleet of 20 steamers will sail tomorrow morning for the annual seal hunt along the Labrador coast. Governor McCallum, who will leave in a few days to assume the administration of Natal, made a farewell address to the crews, about 2,000 men being present.

No Choice in Montana.

HELENA, Mon., March 8.—The legislature has adjourned until 11 o'clock without electing a senator. Seven ballots were taken last night. The last ballot stood: Carter (Rep.), 32; H. L. Frank (fusion), 29; John Maginnis (fusion), 24; Walter Cooper, 5; W. G. Conrad, 1, and Frank C. Higgins, 1.

LITTLE FAITH IN STORIES OF PEACE

Kitchener Tells of Heavy Fighting. Boers Under Delarey Attack Litchtenburg—Re-enforcements Being Sent Forward.

LONDON, March 8.—Whatever negotiations are proceeding in Pretoria—and Mr. Kruger declares that they can only be for an armistice—the government evidently has no idea of slackening re-enforcements. The war office issued a detailed statement last evening of transports that are to sail for South Africa within the coming week with 12,000 troops.

The casualty list reveals the fact that two officers were killed at Litchtenburg March 3. Lord Kitchener's telegram, "Am sending re-enforcements," was dated March 6.

Evidently, therefore, the fighting continued for some days, and further advices are awaited with anxiety.

According to The Daily Mail's dispatches General De Wet and Mr. Steyn have separated, the former being at Petrusberg, west of Bloemfontein, and the latter at Smithfield.

The war office has received the following dispatch from General Kitchener, dated at Pretoria, March 6:

"Litchtenburg is being attacked by Delarey, and fighting has been going on all day. We have had a major and a lieutenant killed. The Litchtenburg garrison consists of 200 yeomanry and 300 Northumberland fusiliers, with two guns. I am sending re-enforcements."

Lord Roberts, presiding at a meeting of the Army Temperance society, contrasted the moderation of the British soldiers in South Africa with previous campaigns. He said it was true they had not had many opportunities to drink, but at Bloemfontein, Johannesburg and Pretoria, where they did have such opportunity, they were remarkably well behaved, and he had never heard a single complaint of a soldier being rude or improperly behaved toward Boer women. The latter and their children fearlessly went upon the streets and the children constantly played and talked with the British soldiers.

New Jersey Legislature.

TRENTON, March 8.—The house cleared up its calendar by the passage of a number of bills and then adjourned for the week. Among the bills passed were these: Senate bill making 200,000 the maximum population for second class counties and the senate bill making 150,000 the maximum population for second class cities. These bills were passed for the purpose of continuing Paterson as a second class city and Passaic as a second class county. They had both been elevated to the first class by the recent federal census. Another bill passed was the house bill making it compulsory to have fire drills in public schools with 50 or more pupils. The senate committee on Hudspeth's bill allowing the abandonment of the Morris and Essex canal and the sale of the waterway and land for railroad or other purposes heard the advocates of the bill. William H. Corbin, counsel for the Lehigh Valley Railroad company, which owns the canal, stated to the committee that the canal has been operated at a loss for some years past and that the company was anxious to get rid of its franchise.

Dead Marines to Have Monument.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Chief Yeoman Joseph H. Weir, U. S. N., treasurer and secretary of the minstrel troupe of the United States battleship Oregon, has forwarded to the navy department a draft for $220, which amount represents the proceeds of a public entertainment given at Shanghai Dec. 30, 1900, for the purpose of raising a fund to erect a monument to mark the resting place of four marines, Harry Fisher, Robert E. Thomas, Albert Turner and Charles Burlin King, who left the battleship Oregon for duty at Peking and there lost their lives. This money will be held in trust by the paymaster of the marine corps until the remains of the above mentioned marines are brought to this country and buried. It will then be used in erecting a suitable monument over their graves.

Who Will Build the Ships.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The secretary of the navy has rearranged the names of battleships and armored cruisers now under construction, so as to provide that the Newport News company shall build the battleship West Virginia and the armored cruiser Maryland and also the battleship Virginia. The Bath company will construct the Georgia and the Cramps the Pennsylvania and Colorado. The protected cruiser St. Louis will be built by Nofie & Levy of Philadelphia and the Charleston at Newport News.

Priest Shoots Himself.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 8.—Despondent over his recent discharge from the Duluth diocese, Rev. Francis Budzyoski, a Roman Catholic priest, shot himself in the heart in a local hotel and died before aid could reach him. He fired two shots at himself while two bellboys stood outside the door waiting for him. He had on his person a letter from Bishop McGolrick dispensing with his services. Two other letters were found, one addressed to a brother in Elmira, N. Y., and the other to a waitress in a local restaurant.

Letter From Washington Found.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., March 8.—An autograph letter of George Washington, dated 1766, was found among some waste paper stock at the Bryant paper mill. It was written to Captain James J. Jamieson, a New York merchant, asking for boat freight rates on a quantity of flour. Two copies of The Federal Gazette and Baltimore Advertiser over 100 years old and an autograph letter of Robert Morris of Philadelphia, dated 1793, were also found. The waste paper came from Philadelphia.

Boxers Going to Bermuda.

BOSTON, March 8.—The Post says that prominent sporting men of Boston have selected Bermuda as the Mecca of boxers and that a clubhouse will be opened there to be managed by John L. Sullivan. Two athletic managers have gone to Bermuda to arrange matches between "Kid" McCoy and Tommy Ryan for an $8,000 purse as the first big event on the island.

LAWS FOR HAWAII.

Some Remarkable Proceedings In Island Legislation.

MANY RADICAL MEASURES PROPOSED

Half the Members of the Legislature Cannot Speak the English Language—Speaker's Chair Is the Former Throne.

HONOLULU, via San Francisco, March 8.—With both houses in control of the independent home rule party and containing a majority of native Hawaiians, the legislature has already been the scene of some remarkable proceedings, and the end of the session promises to see many very radical measures adopted, among those to which the controlling party is committed being a liquor dispensary law, a taxation system that will be a combination of single tax and income tax doctrines, an election law based on proportionate representation and a law excluding from the territory all persons who may arrive here afflicted with consumption or leprosy.

The question of languages is another source of trouble. The organic act says that all proceedings of the legislature shall be conducted in the English language. Half of the members cannot speak English, and Hawaiian interpreters have been employed in both houses. It is the opinion of some lawyers that this will invalidate all proceedings, and this matter will come before the courts when some laws have been passed. Chief Justice Frear and Governor Dole, who were members of the commission that adopted the rule in question, have expressed the opinion that it intended to provide that no language but English should be spoken. The independents claim that laws and resolutions shall be in English. Every measure and every speech is being given in both English and Hawaiian.

The house meets in the throneroom of the old palace building, now occupied by government officers. The speaker's chair is the former throne of Hawaiian monarchs.

The steamship Zealandia has arrived here with 769 Porto Ricans from Port Los Angeles. Three of the immigrants died on the way. The immigrants are being sent in steamers to various plantations. It is reported that the Zealandia is to make several trips as a carrier of Porto Ricans and that at least 5,000 more will be brought here by her in the near future.

Annual meetings of several sugar plantations have been held here this week. The managers report large crops and good prospects for the coming years. Most of them report having had some difficulty on account of the scarcity of labor.

Maryland Democrats Get a Quorum.

ANNAPOLIS, March 8.—All the interest in the second day of the special session of the Maryland general assembly was centered in the senate chamber yesterday. In the house the proceedings were perfunctory and brief, but in the senate a hot debate took place, and the Democrats receded to some extent from the position occupied by them on Wednesday. In the first place, Senator Moore, whose absence caused so much trouble and uneasiness, put in an appearance in the morning, giving the Democrats the much needed quorum. As soon as the senate met a resolution was introduced and passed reaffirming and re-enacting everything that was done Wednesday, when there were but 13 members, one short of a majority, present. Then the senate took up the objectionable rule adopted on Wednesday, by the provisions of which each senator is allowed to speak but once upon any measure, and so amended it as to allow them to speak as often as they like if all others desiring to do so have spoken to the question.

The Platte River Rampant.

PLATTSMOUTH, Neb., March 8.—The Platte river is a swirling flood of rapidly rising backwater. An ice gorge which formed in the Missouri river has choked the mouth of the Platte, causing that stream to overflow its banks and spread its heaped up burden of grinding ice over the lowlands on either side. A section of the old main line of the Burlington road between Oreapolis and Cedar Creek has been washed out, stopping all traffic by way of that line. Both the Burlington and the Missouri Pacific roads have a bridge across the Platte at this point and the latter is suffering severely from the huge gorge. All traffic over the Burlington between this point and Schuyler and Lincoln is being carried on by way of Omaha.

The President's Guests.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—President and Mrs. McKinley have been entertaining two guests at the White House during the past week whose names have heretofore not been published in the list of White House guests. One is Jack Adams, who runs the president's farm near Canton, and the other his friend, Mr. Alexander, a tinsmith from Minerva, Columbiana county, O., and they have been having a fine time and are still at it.

General Weyler's Plans.

MADRID, March 8.—General Weyler, minister of war in the new cabinet, asserts that he will use all his energy in the reorganization of the army in order to render it useful for service in all circumstances. He does not yet know whether he will maintain as a whole the reforms proposed by his predecessor. General Linares has been appointed a captain general.

Negro's Fiendish Crime.

CORSICANA, Tex., March 8.—Mrs. Conway Younger, a farmer's wife, was brutally assaulted and finally murdered by a negro. A posse of 200 men, headed by Younger, are by the aid of bloodhounds following the trail of the murderer, who doubtless will meet a terrible death at the hands of the pursuers.

Adopts Anti-Christian Science Law.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 8.—The Indiana legislature has passed a bill requiring all persons practicing medicine or the art of healing to take examinations and be licensed. This is aimed at the Christian Scientists and will drive them out of business.

Postmasters Appointed.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The following fourth class postmasters have been appointed: Connecticut—Ellington, M. H. Mandell. New Jersey—Fairlawn, L. A. Gumaer; Sweetmans, Geneva Nevison. New York—Joy, Oscar Malcomb.

ADDICKS SEEMS BEATEN.

Delaware Legislature Closes Today. Deadlock Unbroken.

DOVER, Del., March 8.—That J. Edward Addicks is hopelessly beaten is conceded by many of his stanch supporters in the fight for two United States senatorships. When the hour of balloting arrived yesterday, the excitement among the legislators was intense. The expected break of Flinn and Chandler did not take place, and the Addicks leaders showed their disappointment.

The Vote—Long term: Addicks, 16; Kenney, 23; Du Pont, 10. Short term: Saulsbury, 22; Addicks, 22; Richards, 7. But one vote was taken.

Only one more day of the present session remains, and it looks to many politicians as if Delaware would be unrepresented in the United States senate.

J. E. ADDICKS.

A strong lobby from all over the state is here working for anything to beat Addicks. His offer to deal with Senator Kenney has been spurned.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Weyler raised state of siege at Madrid.

Silver Republicans of Idaho formally disbanded.

Harry Trent of London committed suicide in Chicago.

Secretary Long awarded contracts for 13 warships which, when completed, will almost double our navy's offensive strength.

The Southwest Prosperous.

KANSAS CITY, March 8.—George J. Gould, on his trip of inspection of his railway properties, has left with his party for Coffeyville, Kan. Talking to a newspaper man of his trip through Texas, Mr. Gould said: "I was amazed at the many changes which have taken place in the southwest since my visit to that part of the country nearly three years ago. The prosperity of the southwest is marvelous, and I believe that the same statement will apply to the west generally. On every hand I saw the material proofs of prosperity—not booms, but the solid, substantial prosperity that lasts. The banks in even the small towns in Texas and other southwestern states are filled with money. Cotton at 10 cents and high prices for cotton seed, the other good crops and the great values of all products tell the story."

Killed by Falling Elevator.

MOLINE, Ills., March 8.—Two men were killed and seven injured yesterday by the fall of an elevator in the works of the Moline Plow company. The accident occurred while the men were going to work. Twenty-five workmen crowded upon the 9 by 12 foot platform. The elevator ascended a few feet, when a drum gear gave way, letting the cage fall from the first story to the basement. The iron counterbalance weights shot up to the top of the shaft, and four of them, each weighing 100 pounds, became disengaged by collision with the framework of the shaft and crashed down four stories upon the masses of men below.

New Railway In California.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 8.—The Southern Pacific announces that its new coast line between this city and Los Angeles will be opened on March 31. The road, which is 481 miles long, passes nearly all the important missions in the state, and for 100 miles passes over the cliffs skirting the Pacific ocean.

Senator Grady Ill.

ALBANY, March 8.—Senator Thomas F. Grady is confined in his room at the Hotel Ten Eyck suffering from a severe attack of the grip. He was resting comfortably last night. It was feared that pneumonia might set in, but he will probably not be stricken with it.

Many Lives Lost In Prussian Mine.

GELSENKIRCHEN, Prussia, March 8.—Ten persons were killed and many injured by an explosion of fire damp in the Consolidation mine. It is feared that others are entombed. The adjoining shaft collapsed, and at present it is impossible to reach them.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., March 8.—Many Russian Jews are flocking to the towns of Thompson and Fallsburg, in Sullivan county, where they are purchasing farms and planning to erect large boarding houses for people of their own nationality.

THE INDEMNITY QUESTION.

Ministers' Committee Fixes Rules For Future Guidance.

PEKING, March 8.—The ministers' committee has completed its report, and the general principle to be adopted in the case of private indemnities is based upon laws in harmony with the Roman and English systems. This decision was not reached without considerable discussion, some believing that the claims of men of good reputation should be paid in full without further consideration. On the other hand, a case was mentioned where a man of high repute claims $10,000 each for his own, his wife's and his daughter's nerves and $20,000 for property destroyed, whereas it is known that the latter estimate is more than thrice the value of all.

The negotiations, Mr. Rockhill says are going on well, and he sees no reason why they should not be completed in two months with the exception of the commercial treaties, which will probably take a long time.

General Chaffee replied to the copy of General Yin Tchang's letter sent him by Count von Waldersee that he had given instructions to the American troops when any detachments were sent against robbers and Boxers to obtain to the fullest extent possible the assistance of Chinese officials in making arrests and punishing the guilty.

Regarding indemnity for losses sustained by missionaries and native Christians General Chaffee pointed out that his sentiments were well known to the American missionaries, that he was opposed to extortion in every form, that he favored strict justice in every case and that therefore he would agree quickly to his excellency's proposition that the indemnities Sir Robert Hart had mentioned should be settled by the diplomats.

Count von Waldersee will leave soon for Tsin-tau, the trip possibly extending to Shanghai. He says he expects to return to Peking temporarily.

Fifty Chinese Slain.

BERLIN, March 8.—The war office has received the following from Count von Waldersee, dated Peking, March 6:

"A company of the Third East Asiatics, under Captain Knoerzer, came into contact yesterday southwest of Man-sheng with 400 Chinese regulars who had apparently been separated from their main body. The Chinese were scattered and 50 of them killed. Two of their banners were taken. A small detachment was sent from Tien-tsin to Thsang March 3 to suppress brigandage. Three companies of infantry, a squadron of cavalry and a battery, all under Lieutenant Colonel Arnstedt, left for Yung-tsing March 5, with the same object."

CLAIMED TO BE AN EARL.

Death of Young Man In Pittsburg Reveals a Strange Case.

PITTSBURG, March 8.—The Leader in its night edition says:

"Cecil Sherbrooke Beaumont Howland, whose private papers show that he believed himself to be the Earl of Wargrave and a Knight of the Garter of Britain's court, lies dead in the Allegheny General hospital, known as plain C. B. Howland. The dead nobleman was employed as a superintendent of one of the departments of the Pressed Steel Car company at McKee's Rocks. He boarded at the Sauers hotel, Federal street, Allegheny, for the past year, but had not told any one of his position in England. He was taken sick two weeks ago with typhoid fever and was taken to the Allegheny General hospital. He rapidly grew worse, and his friends in New York were advised of his critical condition. He began to sink rapidly and died yesterday.

"Howland came to Pittsburg about a year ago and some time later revisited England, but until his death the motive of the visit was not ascertained.

"In the letters left in the possession of Mr. Sauers are many going to prove the legality of the claims of the dead man to an earl's degree. Among the letters were several from A. J. Harrison of 32 Broadway, New York, who claims to be a brother of the dead man.

"Another letter from the legal firm of Beresford, Gray & Seymour of London notifies Howland of his succession to the title and estates of his uncle, Edward, earl of Wargrave. The writer addressed the Pittsburger as 'my lord' and hoped that he would shortly return to England to enter on possession of his estates. In the letter from the brother occurs the sentence, 'I think you ought to go elsewhere and use your own name.'"

Earl of Wargrave a Myth.

NEW YORK, March 8.—In regard to the Pittsburg dispatch concerning the death of the alleged Earl of Wargrave a careful search shows there is no Earl of Wargrave. The London postoffice directory shows that there is no such firm as Beresford, Gray & Seymour either among the solicitors or barristers. There is an Ambrose I. Harrison at 32 Broadway. A call at his Brooklyn residence showed that he was absent from the city, but his wife declares the family never heard of the Earl of Wargrave, and she was very positive that the Pittsburg man was not Mr. Harrison's brother.

Water Famine Threatened.

NEW YORK, March 8.—New York city, particularly in the Bronx and Brooklyn, is threatened with a water famine such as has never before been experienced in the history of the city. This is according to Chief Engineer Birdsall of the department of water supply, and he says that unless there is a considerable rainfall within the next few days there is bound to be much suffering. "There is only enough water available for a three days' supply in the Bronx," said Mr. Birdsall, "and I can see no prospect of immediate relief. The conditions there are certainly alarming."

Plague Spreading In Cape Town.

NEGROES UNDERGOING SERVITUDE

Many Prominent Men In Anderson County Guilty—Grand Jury's Presentment Reveals Pitiful Details.

COLUMBIA, S. C., March 8.—The grand jury of Anderson county has made its report to Judge W. C. Benet and declared that a practical enslavement of negroes has been conducted in that county. The presentment was prepared by a special committee which visited the convict stockade camps in Anderson county and found confined therein negroes guiltless of any felony, but undergoing a term of servitude under voluntary contracts which they had signed in partial ignorance.

The charge of false imprisonment was made against J. S. Fowler, P. B. Allen and W. Q. Hammond, three of the largest planters and most influential men in Anderson county. The grand jury declared that these men, who employ convicts from the state, were also keeping confined in their stockades negroes who for some petty cause had been sent there for breach of contract, although convicted before no officer of the law.

The presentment of the grand jury put an end to this practice, which is conducted in no other county in the state. It has been known in Anderson county for a long time that such a system was being carried on, and the people of that county are glad that it has been done away with.

No prosecutions have yet been made, but the solicitor, Mr. J. E. Boggs, will hand out indictments for the June term of court.

The negroes in the county are under the impression that all labor contracts now in existence are practically nullified by the action of the court, and Judge Benet stated emphatically that all illegal contracts would be declared void, but there are just contracts which the court will enforce. Nevertheless there is a general state of demoralization just at the time when crops are being planted.

Judge Benet's charge to the grand jury after it had rendered its finding contained a severe denunciation of certain newspapers which had sent special correspondents to South Carolina and claimed to have made an exposure. He stated that the people of Anderson county are responsible for uprooting this practice. He complimented the grand jury for not having read the newspapers while making its investigation.

He stated that there is no need of interference by federal courts. He said the testimony of negroes is valid evidence in the state courts. "There is no politics, no party or race issue at stake," said the judge, adding: "It is the righting of a grievous wrong, and the court protests against the idea of outside interference. The evil will be stamped out, for public sentiment at home is against it."

He declared that the legislature has already taken steps to do so and will abolish the system of hiring convicts to private parties, and there can then be no opportunity to confine freedmen.

Judge Benet declared that the presentment brought pitiful details. It told of illegal arrests and imprisonment, of cruel whipping, of prolonged imprisonment without even the farce of a trial, of kidnaping negroes from other counties and even from Georgia, of fear to give testimony, refusal to testify and of poor negroes professing to be satisfied and contented. In concluding he said that Anderson county would thank the grand jury for having relieved her of this shameful burden and saved her good name from the stigma that a few of her misguided citizens placed upon it.

The death of Will Hull, a poor negro who had been seized on a trumped up charge and illegally committed to the stockade, led to the investigation. Hull protested against his incarceration. He asked for a fair trial, and his reward was a blow from a club. In attempting to escape he was shot.

Governor Yates Called Home.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., March 8.—Governor Richard Yates has been called back from Washington by the serious illness of his mother, widow of the famous old war governor of Illinois, who is now at Jacksonville, Ills. Governor Yates left Washington on a special train, having been urged to lose no time in reaching his mother's bedside. Grave fears are felt for her recovery, as she is 70 years of age. The governor's contemplated trip to Thomasville, Ga., has been abandoned.

Floods In Hungary.

LONDON, March 8.—The Vienna correspondent of The Daily Express says: "Several Hungarian villages have been isolated by the floods. All along the banks of the Danube and its tributaries great damage has been done. The lower quarter of Budapest is flooded to a depth of five feet. The bitter cold is driving wolves from the Carpathian mountains to the villages below. They have killed 12 people during the last four weeks."

Grover Cleveland Goes Shooting.

PRINCETON, March 8.—Ex-President Grover Cleveland and Professor Paul Vandyke have left Princeton for the south, where they will spend a few days shooting ducks along the coast of North Carolina. Their first stop will be at Norfolk, from which place they will go by boat along the coast in search of the birds. Both were well equipped with hunting paraphernalia.

The New Bulgarian Cabinet.

SOFIA, March 8.—Prince Ferdinand, in the course of his speech at the opening of the sobranje, said the new cabinet would devote itself to terminating the financial crisis and to endeavoring to strengthen the ties uniting Bulgaria with her liberator, Russia, as well as to developing close relations with other powers, notably with neighboring states.

Railway Extension Begun.

TOLEDO, March 8.—Work was begun yesterday on the extension of the Wabash railway from Toledo to Montpelier, O., a 40 mile line for which $3,000,000 construction and $3,000,000 equipment bonds have been issued. The Congressional Districts.

The Republican leaders in the New Jersey Legislature have finally settled upon a plan for the reapportionment of the Congressional districts. A bill providing for the change was introduced into the Senate yesterday by Senator Reed. It will be acted upon next week and will probably be passed.

When it was known that the old Eighth Congressional district would be entirely changed, the people of Union county were hoping that a more rational district would be formed. Two plans were suggested either of which seemed a fair division of counties. One was to unite Union, Somerset and Morris counties and the other to form a district of Union, Somerset and Middlesex counties. But these did no suit the Republican leaders.

Under the provisions of Mr. Reed's redistricting bill, Union county is made part of the Fifth district. The other two counties in the district are Morris and Warren. The district is now a belt which extends from the Jersey coast right across the State to the Pennsylvania boundary. It is not a logical division and the three counties included have very few interests in common. It seems too bad that the Republican leaders could not have adjusted affairs so that Union and Somerset counties, such near and intimate neighbors, could be included in the same district.

Of course, nobody expected the Republicans to divide the State otherwise than to make it possible for them to win as many of the new districts as possible. This new Fifth district will not be an easy battleground for them, however. Warren is the strongest Democratic county in the State while Morris is of doubtful political complexion. Union is naturally Republican but a heavy majority will have to be rolled up there if the Democratic vote in Warren is to be overcome.

One of the most significant things about the redistricting is that Congressman Charles N. Fowler is practically left without any important rival for the Republican nomination in the new district. He undoubtedly favored this arrangement, as it has been common talk at Trenton and all through the State that Governor Voorhees would approve of no plan which did not care for the interests of his friend, Mr. Fowler.

The fruit growers and curers of California remarks the Philadelphia Record have for years spent large sums of money in distributing circulars and posters and in sending decorated cars of fruit over the railway lines. Evidently the results of these methods of advertising have not been wholly satisfactory, since a meeting of the California Cured Fruit Association at San Jose, February 21, resolved to authorize a committee to advertise the fruit exclusively in the leading newspapers of the country.

Dr. W. H. Murray has been reelected to the presidency of the Board of Health of this city. Dr. Murray has been very earnest in his efforts to advance the sanitary condition of the city and he has spared no effort in the work. While he has been criticized by some it was a difference of opinion as to methods and not regarding his inefficiency and integrity as a public official which are questioned by no thinking citizen.

It would have been well if the Plainfield Board of Health had considered at its last meeting the necessity of cleaning out the bed of Green brook The law of the State does not permit private individuals to make a dumping ground of any stream. The borough authorities have already acted, and it is now the duty of the proper officials on this side of the brook to co-operate with them.

Under the State law which permits women to take part in school meetings in New Jersey, the good women of Cranford are again planning to take an active part in the election of school trustees in that township They have not announced their candidates as yet, but have already secured the votes of many to support whatever ticket they may put up

The action of Tax Collector F. H. Smith in taking active measures to secure the payment of delinquent taxes is a proper one. It is but fair to those who do pay their taxes that the delinquents should be brought to time.

People are wondering whether the fight against the anti-spring election law will be successful. After so much legal talent in the Republican party passed upon it, it would seem that it ought not to have any legal defects.

Trenton has been experimenting with permanent pavements and the present verdict seems to be against fire brick pavements. It is said that while very satisfactory at first, they will not last

The Democrats of North Plainfield have been outspoken in their disapproval of the so-called Democratic pamphlet and its low attacks on the Republican candidates.

The general impression seems to prevail at Trenton that Senator Reed's measure abolishing the poll tax will not be passed by the Legislature at this session at least.

The report of the Plainfield Public Library shows that the people of this city are appreciating its value more and more as time goes on.

The Mayor of Madison is evidently a strong advocate of municipal ownership and he has the advantage of speaking from experience.

The battle to win souls for Christ continues and every day shows an increase in the grand results of the Gospel campaign.

The election in North Plainfield is now only a few days away and both sides are preparing for the struggle.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May Be Of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

Assemblyman Meeker's friends ought to be glad that the end of the session is in sight. Should it continue another month or two there is danger that Mr. Meeker's fate would be that of the frog in the fable, which tried to increase its proportions to those of an ox.—Newark News.

Gentlemen:—I must say in regard to GRAIN-O that there is nothing better or healthier. We have used it for years. My brother was a great coffee drinker. He was taken sick and the doctor said coffee was the cause of it, and told us to use GRAIN-O. We got a package but did not like it at first, but now would not be without it. My brother has been well ever since we started to use it.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence.)

Dunellen, March 8.—Before a very gratifying attendance in the Methodist church last evening, Prof. Frank L. Greene, of Brooklyn, delivered his postponed lecture, "The Boy, the Cigarette and the Future." The talk was very interesting, and as the subject implies it pertained to the disastrous effect the deadly cubes have upon the youth of today, rendering them unfit for responsible positions in after life and in many instances bringing them to an untimely end. The lecture was the fifth in the Board of Education series which will probably conclude with one more.

Now that both the local political parties have completed their tickets for the coming election, active campaigning has already commenced and until next Tuesday button hole parties will be a feature of the streets. As has already been stated the interest centres in the nominees for assessor and freeholder, and the outcome is awaited with no small degree of expectancy.

As soon as the weather permits it is the expectation of Albert Rogetti to re-open the old Dunellen brick works and for that purpose the necessary supply of wood is being carted to the premises.

The Dunellen Gun Club will meet Saturday for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year.

Charles Tilton has rented the Brennan house on Madison avenue and will take possession shortly.

Charles Milliken has secured a lucrative position with the Central as a sign painter and letterer.

The annual election for three members of the Board of Education will be held on March 19.

Rogers; surveyors of highways, Lewis Harris and Conrad Egel; commissioner of appeal, Benj Leteon; justice of the peace, N. B Giles; constable, William Riley. C. E. Kelley, DeWitt Giles and J. J. Fields were appointed a committee to fill vancancies. It was voted to raise $5 000 for roads and $1,200 for the support of the poor.

The Endeavor Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church will hold a social at the residence of Mrs. Albert Ayers tomorrow evening.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence.)

Scotch Plains, March 8.—There will probably be but one ticket in the field at the borough election Tuesday. The real fight will be at the primary to be held in the fire house this evening. Acting Mayor Alfred McKeown, who has filled the mayor's chair for several months, will be a candidate of one of the factions while it is said that he will meet with strong opposition from those who are opposed to the present administration. No visible candidate has been brought forward but it is promised that a "dark horse" will be brought forward. There will also be some contest for places as Councilmen on the ticket.

The Republican and Democratic primaries will both be held this evening. The Republican voters will meet in Excelsior Hall while the Democratic voters will assemble in Bucket and Engine Company rooms. The offices for which nomination will be made are; One township committman for three years, one constable for three years, two surveyors of highway and several pound keepers. The Democratic ticket will probably be headed by the retiring member of the committee, Theodore Bruckman. The Republican primary promises to show up several warm contests for places on the ticket.

The rummage sale which has been held in Marsh's store for the benefit of the Public Library came to close last night. The support given to the affair by the public has been encouraging to the house committee and while those in charge were unable to make a complete clean-up sale, still the amount realized by their efforts will be of material help to the treasury of the Library Association.

August Scheelen, of Fanwood, who attended the inauguration at Washington Monday, had a narrow escape from being the victim of a railroad accident on his return trip. The train came into collision, shortly after leaving Washington, with a freight train Mr. Sheelen was quite badly shaken up, but escaped with only a small cut upon the arm. He considers his escape very fortunate.

Rev. G. M. Shott will lead the weekly prayer meeting in the parlors of the Baptist church this evening. Mr. Shott extends a most cordial invitation to all to attend the meeting.

A number of the members of the Junior and Senior Epworth Leagues of the Methodist church attended the evangelistic meetings being held in Plainfield last evening.

There is no long waiting for help if Ripans Tabules are taken for dyspepsia and headache. Relief comes quickly. One Tabule (about the size of a small button) will relieve distress in the stomach within fifteen minutes and the headache will shortly disappear. There was an industrious, hard-working woman of Cooperstown, N. Y., some sixty years of age, who for a long time had suffered greatly from dyspepsia and dreadful headaches. Her stomach tormented her so that she could hardly work at all, and, although she had tried all sorts of things, she got no relief. A friend sent her some Ripans Tabules and she felt better as soon as she took the first one. She felt more like working. "I have continued with the Tabules ever since," she says, "and they always help me."

WANTED—A case of bad health that RIPANS will not benefit. They bring health, prolong life, relieve pain and promote good RIPANS is the product of years of study, and recent improvements in the manufacture of RIPANS, make them the most effective medicine known. The five-cent package is now offered in response to the demand for a cheaper medicine. It is sufficient for a household for various emergencies, for nearly a year. Ask druggist for the 5 cent package. Or the 12 cents will be mailed to any address by addressing the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

some dealers have about our stock being just the same. We know it isn't. Beef, Veal, Lamb or Pork which has been carefully raised and fed will taste better and give more nourishment than "wild" meats. SUMMER GOWNS.

A Few Hints For the Clever Woman Who Makes Her Dresses at Home.

Just now the question of how to make up the cotton and other wash goods into pretty and dainty summer dresses is an important one, so it will not be amiss to devote this letter to discussing this question. In the first place, the thin goods require a special treatment and must be made with a view to the fact that they are to be laundered. This means that there must not be too much fussy trimming upon them. Lace when it is used will be of a solid and substantial quality or else it must be lightly sewed on, so that it can be easily removed when the gown is washed. Simplicity is the keynote, and the very prettiest of all these cotton frocks are made with a plain skirt, with only one ruffle or three or four tucks around the bottom. A few may have overskirts, but they are not to be desired from any point of view. So, then, the skirts are to be cut plain for the most part, and the waists are to be as devoid of trimming as possible, and this will allow the wearer the privilege of having no end of dainty neckwear all covered with lace and decorated with the wee bows of ribbon so dear to the heart of womankind.

FOR A YOUNG GIRL

The present outlook is that very many of the summer waists of wash dresses will be made with a surplice front. This fancy has been growing for some time, and now I think it will be one of the features of summer dressmaking. This does away with the high collar and will make the wearers much more comfortable in warm weather. Another new plan is to have the waist made all of one piece of cloth. Two holes are cut out for the sleeves, and the rest is shirred to fit, both around the neck and waist. The lower part is shirred from three to four inches and must be adjusted on the waist of the wearer, so that it becomes virtually a belt. I have seen two model dresses, and they were all in one from the neck to the feet, but this is apt to give the waist an undue fullness. This plan—that is to say, the shirred waist—is very pretty and youthful and works well with the soft zephyrs and ginghams and also with the delicate soft wools and silks. Stiff goods would not look well at all.

The white dotted swisses and other muslins are made more elaborately, and here one can use all the lace one likes, as lace is the proper complement of white dresses. For all plain surfaced goods tucks are as much liked as ever, and some of them have the tucks all hemstitched. In one large manufacturing house I saw numbers of dresses for young girls in course of construction and noted one extremely dainty model. The dress was of light tan albatross, and there were three narrow ruffles scarcely gathered, and they were in three shades of tan, the darkest being at the bottom, and above them was a cluster of narrow tucks, five in all. On each side of the skirt at the hips were two clusters of narrow tucks, only these were perpendicular, and between them were fancy applications of Arab lace. The waist was open in surplice fashion, and at the top and on the collar of the vest there were tucks, while the rest of the waist was made of tucks and insertion of Arab lace. The sleeves had tucks at the top. This design could be made in any of the light cotton goods.

The old fashioned French waist is one of the favorites this season and is especially valuable, as it lends itself to so many different ways of trimming. Made with a postiche collar it can be transformed into a V shape in a moment, and cut with the lower part a little longer than the back and sides it can be made into a blouse at will. This presupposes that it is made separate from the skirt. But the most of the distinctively summer wash dresses have skirt and waist fastened together, and the skirt opens at the left side. Belts of many kinds are shown, nearly all with a direct reference to the cotton dresses.

WAIST TRIMMED WITH ARABIAN LACE.

Chambray for everyday hard wear suits bids fair to be even more popular than it was last year. In the illustration will be found a blouse of frosty blue chambray, worn with a skirt of a far darker shade of the same stuff. The skirt is laid in three clusters of plaits, each having four, and a deep hem. The blouse waist is trimmed with heavy Arab lace. This particular lace is much liked, and it is very durable; but, knowing the Arabs a little, I may be excused if I say the lace has a dingy color inseparable to the people of that race. To sum up, it may be understood that all wash dresses are to be as plain as possible, and only those which are not expected to go to the laundry are much trimmed.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning March 10—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—A castaway.—I Cor. ix, 24-27. (A temperance meeting.)

In these verses Paul likens the Christian life to a race and to a boxing contest. To the residents of Corinth these allusions would have particular force They were prominent features in the isthmian games which were celebrated near Corinth and which were of the greatest interest to all its inhabitants. The isthmian games were the chief glory of Corinth and at the time when Paul wrote had even thrown the Olympic games into the shade.

These illustrations gave the apostles a splendid text upon which to preach a sermon on the subject of temperance, not sobriety (temperance in drink), but temperance in all things. One of the chief requisites of success in these athletic contests was temperance in all things. "Every man that strives for the mastery (that strives to win in a contest) is temperate in all things." The contestants in these Grecian games were required to be temperate. They had to develop great powers of endurance, and this could only be done by long training and self denial. They had to be "pure, sober and enduring to obey orders, to eat sparely and simply and to bear effort and fatigue for ten months in advance." Temperance is also required in the Christian race and in the fight of faith, and if the athlete was willing to endure so much, to practice such self denial for the fading crown of isthmian pine, how much more willing we should be to deny ourselves, to be temperate in all things, that we may win an incorruptible crown—a crown of righteousness, a crown of eternal life.

Temperance in all things requires that the body must be in subjection to the mind and that the mind must be in subjection to Christ. The body was never intended to be the master of the mind, but its servant—the instrument by which the desires of the mind were to be carried into effect. In intemperance the body is master and not servant; its desires and appetites are supreme. But for spiritual discipline the mind must be in subjection to Christ. If the mind be governed by Christ, and the body by the mind, we have true Christian temperance and self control. It requires a serious and continuous effort upon our part to bring about such a blessed and desirable condition. Paul's self denial was a real one and not a shadow. He had a definite goal before him and not an uncertainty and that he might win it he put forth a serious effort. It was no "shadow fight" in which he engaged. It was not a beating of the air, but a bruising of himself. By great self denial he kept his body under and brought it into subjection. And thus only can we become temperate in all things.

The disastrous results of intemperance should inspire us to temperance. By intemperance the contestant lost a fading crown; by it the Christian would lose an immortal crown! "I keep under my body and bring it into subjection, lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be a cast away." It was only by fulfilling certain requirements that an applicant could enter the games. If he failed, he was rejected; he was a castaway. Paul displays here an anxiety lest having trained others to meet these requirements he should fail in them and be rejected. Such a thought is sufficient to cause anxiety. "Hell after preaching" is an awful thought. And the possibility of losing such a crown should inspire all men to any endeavor, to any self denial, that it may not be lost.

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Let the temperance committee arrange a temperance programme.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. i, 1-6; Prov. xx, 1; xxiii, 1-3; 29-32; Dan. i, 1-17; Math. xvi, 24-27; I Cor. vi, 9-10; Gal. v, 19-26; Titus i, 7-9; ii, 1, 2; I Pet. v, 1-9.

Trust In the Universal Power.

The equanimity of existence, the trust in the everlasting goodness of the universal life movement, breathes at all time unqualified thanksgiving to the Power that moves the spheres and appoints His time for the exaltation of those He chooses for that end and the downfall of those He would bring low. It is immaterial to the religious man whether in the material world there is exaltation or downfall. The evenness of his trust when his spirit is at peace with himself is sufficient cause for continuous thanksgiving. His way is the way of the Lord, and, though death be in its path, that death is exaltation and that path is the path that induces thanksgiving.—American Hebrew.

Truth.

The intellectual apprehension of truths is comparatively easy and comparatively profitless. Satan doubtless knows more of them than any of us. The spiritual apprehension of them is a hard thing. That cannot be taught by man. It belongs to the inner individuality and to the grace of God. It is intellectual still, but it is intellect interpenetrated with spirit, and unless it is interpenetrated with spirit it is but a dead thing.—Churchman.

A Cure For Worry.

The best cure for worry is a belief in God's decrees. If we are God's workmanship and were created for a purpose, why permit every little mishap to imbitter our lives? Our disappointments are his realizations.—Presbyterian Journal.

Duty Well Done.

This is the preparation for a good old age: Duty well done, for its own sake, for God's sake and for the sake of the commonwealth of man. When a man works only for himself, he gets neither rest here nor reward hereafter.—Robert Collyer.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning March 10, "A Castaway"—Text, I Cor. ix, 24-27.

"I keep my body under and bring it into subjection."

The people of Corinth were noted for their self indulgence and were so given to immoral practices that their shameful habits had passed into a proverb. To "Corinthianize" was to corrupt. Paul's work was to Christianize them. This meant to purify and make morally clean. It meant higher ideals of life and action and happiness through self control, which is far higher and more satisfying than and indulgence of bodily appetite and passion can be.

He often refers in his letters to the practices of the athletic games so noted on the isthmus of Corinth, which occurred every two years. He compares the Christian life to these contests which were so prominent and important in all the thought and life of his times. The prize in the isthmian games was only a wreath of the native pine leaves, but it carried with it great honors and was held in such high estimation that no hardship in training and no exertion in the contest was shunned by the young men of Greece to gain it.

Paul says we are contending for a better prize, a crown that will not wither. We are not uncertain of the goal. All who run here have a chance to win. Only one could be victorious there.

He had acted as a herald in announcing the names of the runners and calling them into the course where eternal life was the prize to be gained.

Having so done, he was careful to so fit himself that he would not be rejected as a contestant. He has power and the right to do many things which he does not do because he is keeping his eye fixed on the Christian goal. He has preached to others that they should be pure in the midst of all the prevalent corruption. To enforce it he remains unmarried, though he has the right to marry, as other apostles had. He is urging all the gentile churches to contribute money for the poor at Jerusalem. To enforce it he earns his own living, though he has the right to claim support from the churches he has established and serves. Though a free man, he becomes a servant to all that he may win some to Christ. He makes all his powers of body obey the direction of the spirit and does not let the appetites of the body bring his soul into slavery. Like a boxer, he strikes between the eyes in his blows at evil passions and wastes no strength in beating the air.

This is a lesson in self control, temperance.

There is the greatest need now to listen to this master trainer. Let him coach us for our race. Our young men and women particularly should heed his directions and warnings. Intemperance is deadly and yet most alluring. Impurity is fearfully prevalent in city and country, and few voices dare speak out. The consumption of tobacco increases among the young of both sexes and is scarcely less deadly than alcohol.

Who shall win in this contest, the flesh or the spirit? Who rules you, bodily appetites or the love of Christ? You have started in the Christian race. How are you running? Throw off the weights and run lightly and foot free.

"So run that ye may obtain." Get there!

Perry Hall.

ceeded, if any equaled, Perry Hall in comfort and cordiality of entertainment. This was the home of Henry Dorsey Gough, Esq. It was situated 12 miles from Baltimore in the midst of an estate of 3,000 acres. Both Mr. Dorsey Gough and his wife were converted under the preaching of Asbury and were ever his firm friends.

Dec. 17, 1784, Whatcoat, Vasey and Dr. Coke from England and William Black from Nova Scotia gathered here to consult with Asbury about the organization of the new denomination of American Methodists, which was accomplished in Baltimore on Christmas day of the same year. Dr. Coke speaks of Perry Hall at this time as "the most elegant house in this state."

The estate has passed into another family, and no descendants of the Gough name remain. The house still stands, and in October last a large company of Methodists made a pilgrimage to it.

Saved to the Uttermost.

Saved to the uttermost: I am the Lord's;
Jesus, my Saviour, salvation affords;
Gives me His spirit a witness within,
Whispering of pardon and saving from sin.

Saved to the uttermost; Jesus is near;
Keeping me safely, He casteth out fear.
Trusting His promises, how I am blest!
Leaning upon Him, how sweet is my rest!

Saved to the uttermost; this I can say,
"Once all was darkness, but now it is day."
Beautiful visions of glory I see,
Jesus in brightness revealed unto me.

Saved to the uttermost; cheerfully sing
Loud hallelujahs to Jesus, my King.
Ransomed and pardoned, redeemed by his blood,
Cleansed from unrighteousness, glory to God!

New Battleship "Maine" a Big Fighting Machine

It Is a Worthy Successor of the Ill-Fated Ship Destroyed at Havana Three Years Ago

THE new U. S. S. "Maine," the namesake of the good ship destroyed in Havana harbor February 15, 1898, when the lives of 254 American seamen were sacrificed by treachery, will be a worthy marine monument to the victims whose death, if not the direct cause, was certainly the signal for the late war with Spain.

On the publication of the following electrifying dispatch the wrath of the American people which had lain smouldering since the "Americus affair" in 1873, when Captain Frye and 53 of the ship's crew were summarily condemned and shot at Santiago de Cuba, and 102 were saved from a similar fate by Commander Lorrain, of the British sloop of war "Niobe," only by the threat of bombarding the town if butchery was continued, broke forth in clamor for retribution:

"Havana, Feb. 15, 1898.

"Secretary of the Navy, Washington, D. C.—Maine blown up in the Havana harbor at 9:40 to-night and destroyed. Many wounded and doubtless more killed or drowned. Wounded and others on board Spanish man of war and Ward Line steamers. Send lighthouse tenders from Key West for crew and few pieces of equipment above. No one has clothing other than that upon him. Public opinion should be suspended until further report. All officials believed to be saved. Jenkins and Merritt not yet accounted for. Many Spanish officers, including representatives of Gen. Blanco, now with me to express sympathy. "SIGSBEE."

The keel of the new ship was laid two years ago on the first anniversary of the catastrophe in the presence of many distinguished officials of the United States and foreign governments, and it is intended to have the launch witnessed by Captain Sigsbee, General Lee and friends of the old ship's crew and survivors.

The destroyed vessel was a second-class battleship built at Brooklyn in 1890 after plans loaned by the British government and in appearance resembled H. M. S. "Colossus." The one to replace her will be vastly superior in size, speed and power. Their comparative measurements are as follows:

	New Maine.	Old Maine.
Displacement	12,500 tons	6,682 tons
Length	388 feet	324 feet
Beams	72.25 feet	57 feet
Draught	23.6 feet	22 feet
Horse power	16,000	9,290
Speed	18 knots	17 knots
Coal b'nker capacity	2,000 tons	822 tons
Complement of men	600	410

Cost for each vessel, including hulls, machinery and hull armor: New, $3,000,000; old, $2,500,000.

The new ship will embody all improvements suggested by lessons learned at the battles of the Yalu river (Sept. 17, 1894, Chino-Japanese war), Manila and Santiago, in which were emphasized the value of light rapid-fire guns, absence of wood work, protection to fire extinguishing apparatus and particularly torpedoes, which, in the old style of above-water tubes were a greater menace to the vessels so equipped than to the enemy. Admiral Farragut's faith in heavy well served gunfire instead of excessive protection in shape of armor, shields, etc., has been adopted by the designers, although the safety of the ship in action has not been neglected inasmuch that her plans provide for maximum weight of "Kruppized" plates over vitals and all parts where vulnerability would be dangerous. Though in general following the lines of the earlier and well known battleships the new vessel will have several readily apparent differences. She is high forward and low aft, and will have three smoke pipes ranged in a fore and aft direction. As far as possible wood will be eliminated from the construction of the Maine. Everything will be sacrificed to avoid the stifling smoke from burning pine and oak, which proved so disastrous to the Spanish fleet at Santiago.

The turrets will be moved by electricity, and the ammunition will be hoisted from below and rammed into guns by electricity. Her big guns will be slightly longer than those on the other battleships, and all of her guns, excepting those of the main battery, will be of the rapid-fire order. Each of her two turrets will contain two high power 12 inch guns, which, using smokeless powder, will have a muzzle velocity of 3,000 feet per second. They will also each carry sixteen six inch rapid-fire guns and a large number of six-pounder, one-pounder and machine guns. One improvement to which Chief Constructor Philip Hichborn, U. S. N., attaches much importance will be the installation of under-water torpedo tubes. There will be two submerged tubes in a single compartment fitted up for the storage of eight seven foot torpedoes, and appliances for handling and operating them.

The turrets are called "Hichborn Balanced" after their inventor, whose resourceful brain is responsible for most of the successful development of the new navy which has done so much to inspire respect for the flag among maritime powers.

Chief Constructor Hichborn is a Charlestown yankee, born in 1839, and counts among his distinguished ancestors Deborah Hichborn, mother of Paul Revere. He was graduated from the Boston high school after receiving by direction of the navy department a course of special instruction in ship construction, design and calculation in connection with five years shipright apprenticeship at the Boston navy yard. His stormy voyage of 150 days from his home to California in 1860 showed the practical necessities of seaman life which has been of great value since. From a small position in the construction department at Mare Island, in two years he rose to be master shipwright, an achievement at 23 years of age of which he might well be proud.

Entering the navy in 1869 as assistant constructor he frequently assumed entire charge of the yard, and in 1875 became full constructor in competitive examination. His life from that time became one of strict attention to duty in the improvement of naval ships, varied only by an extended trip to Europe to study the progress of other nations in this direction, and when appointed chief constructor July 13, 1893, his ambition seemed to be realized. His reappointment for another term September 7, 1897, was a further gratification, and now that he is a rear admiral in recognition of service during the late war his career in the service will be a well rounded story of a life's success by his honorable retirement.

when he is near." What is most needed, said Mr. Hall, is not the conviction to seek God but it is the moral courage to give one's soul to Christ.

As at the previous meetings, nearly the entire congregation arose when those who would follow Jesus were asked to stand up.

All who desired to become followers of Christ and likewise all who desired to work in the service of God, as well as those who had a friend to save, were requested to remain for the "after meeting."

"Lord, I'm Coming Home," was sweetly rendered as an introduction to the "after meeting" and, at the conclusion of a prayer by Rev. C. L. Goodrich, Rev. Drs. D. J. Yerkes and W. R. Richards delivered appropriate and helpful remarks. The fruit borne of the evening's meeting was shown when twenty-five persons stood up as a mute declaration of their purpose to become soldiers of Christ.

Closing prayers were said by Rev. G. W. Gardner and Rev. A. E. Main, and the congregation was dismissed after singing "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow."

CANDLE TALK BY MR. JACOBS.

Concluding Meeting of Series Held For The Little Folk This Week.

A pretty sight was witnessed in the First Baptist church at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when about six hundred children came together to attend the last of the series of three meetings for boys and girls, conducted by F. H. Jacobs. The meetings have been very popular with the little folks and have all been well attended, but this one was by far the largest, and was greatly enjoyed by the youthful audience.

The meeting opened with a bright song service, conducted by Mr. Jacobs, the children singing well-known hymns with much spirit and enjoyment. Then, after a brief prayer, the address of the afternoon began. "How We May Shine for Jesus; a Candle Sermon," was the subject.

"Ye are the light of the world" might have been called the text of the talk, Mr. Jacobs describing the Christian life as the shining of a light. That a person of one sex, age, race or education could shine as truly as another was illustrated by the speaker with a number of candles of different shapes and colors, all of which were equally useful.

The Christian who thinks he can shine as well standing alone as if he were in the church was represented by the speaker by a candle which stood upright and burning on the table as long as it had no temptation to fall, but which at the first shake toppled over. When placed in a candlestick, the place intended for a candle to shine in, it could not be upset.

The Christian who thinks he can be just as good if he keeps his Christianity a secret was represented by a lighted candle placed, as described in the New Testament, under a bushel. When the measure was removed, the candle had ceased to shine; its light had gone out.

Mr. Jacobs went on to say that a person who is truly shining for Christ will try to bring the True Light to others also. He represented a Sunday-school teacher by a tall lighted candle, and as he told how the teacher gradually gathered together a class he grouped round the first candle a number of small ones, one of which soon had a light of its own. The adventures of this boy were then narrated; how he fell in with evil companions and yielded to the temptation to use bad language, so that his influence for good was gone; his light went out. True repentance, however, relighted it.

In closing his talk, Mr. Jacobs begged all the boys and girls to endeavor to truly shine for their Saviour, and in case they had never tried to follow Him, to begin then. He gave every child present a card stating that the receiver desired to be Jesus' boy or girl and do His will, and having a place for the name. A dozen or more of the youngest children present also received for souvenirs the small candles Mr. Jacobs had used in his talk.

NO ONE CAN BE NEUTRAL.

Rev. Mr. Henderson Presented Important Facts to a Large Meeting at Hope Chapel.

The attendance at Hope Memorial chapel last evening was the largest thus far in the series of evangelistic services being held there, and there was an increased interest. Rev. Mr. Henderson was again in charge and W. C. Weeden, the singer, assisted him.

Mr. Henderson took for his text "Who Is On the Lord's Side?" and from these words he delivered a powerful discourse. The speaker said that no one could be neutral on this question. "He that is not with Me is against Me; He that gathereth not with Me scattereth," are the words of Christ.

"It does not matter about your side," said Mr. Henderson, but if you are on the Lord's side you are safe. A Christian is one who accepts Jesus Christ as a personal Saviour from sin then acknowledges Him as the Lord of his daily life."

"There is no other side to be considered but the Lord's side. It is manly and womanly to be on that side. I have never heard but one reason why a person should not be on the Lord's side, that was that a person was not manly enough. Some people think religion is all right for women and children, and this thought prevails among young men who are just passing over 'fool's hill.' In reply to a remark that it does not take much of a man to be a Christian, Dr. Chapman said 'It just takes all the man there is to be a Christian.'" The reason we are living today in a civilized country, enjoying free schools, churches, etc., is because Christ has made it possible. If the churches should be wiped out of Plainfield there is not one of you would want to live here."

Mr. Henderson then went on to say that the Lord's side is the approved side, and the Lord needs all the help He can get to bring the world to Christ. He warned everyone against putting a stumbling block in the way of anyone coming to Christ, especially children. The speaker then asked those present if they were helping to bring others to Christ. If they were not he urged them to put forth every effort in that direction. After the sermon Mr. Henderson gave the invitation and a number decided for Christ.

SPORTING.

GOLF.

Nearly every enthusiastic golfer throughout the State is commencing to speculate on the probable links for the next championship tournament of the New Jersey State Golf Association. Last season the first tournament conducted under the auspices of this body was held over the links of the Essex County Country Club. There was a large field of starters, and the event attracted considerable prominence throughout the East. Archie Graham, of Paterson, won out in the final round, defeating James A. Tyng, the Baltusrol crack.

A prominent official of the State Golf Association says that while nothing definite has been decided upon regarding the selection of a championship links, he rather thought Baltusrol would be the final choice. Of course, it all rests with the officials of the latter organization, and one thing is certain, that should Baltusrol express a willingness to handle the 1901 championship tournament of the New Jersey State Golf Association, the latter would be only too pleased.

When all the proposed improvements have been made to Baltusrol, the latter will equal almost any course in the country. The matter will not be definitely decided before the meeting of the association, which will be held in New York March 15.

THE CANDIDATES OF BOTH PARTIES AT COMING ELECTION IN THE BOROUGH.

Republicans and Democrats Are Ready For the Voters of North Plainfield to Decide Which Party Shall Be In Control of Borough Affairs This Year.

REPUBLICANS CONFIDENT.

SOMETHING ABOUT THE PRINCIPAL REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES.

Republican Leaders Say Present Administration Will Be Endorsed And Mayor Smalley Re-elected—Other Candidates Who Are Running.

While confident of electing their entire ticket at the borough election in North Plainfield Tuesday, the Republicans of the borough are not taking any chances but are preparing for an energetic fight. It is a question as to whether or not the present administration will be endorsed. The party leaders are confident it will and expect to elect the entire ticket by varying majorities.

Newton B. Smalley, to whom the Republicans have given a renomination for the mayoralty, was born January 6, 1860, on a farm near Liberty Corner and is the son of William L. Smalley, Sr., of Craig place He attended the Plainfield public schools and has in years past been engaged in various successful business enterprises.

Some years ago, in partnership with A. I. Smalley, he engaged in quarrying stone on the mountain. At different places in Plainfield and in the borough from time to time he has been engaged in the meat business, of which he has a thorough knowledge.

Twelve years ago he accepted the nomination for the Council and was elected by a large majority. On account of the pressure of his personal affairs Mr. Smalley resigned before the expiration of his term. Since then he has held no other political office until 1898, when he consented to run for mayor. His opponent in the campaign was Colonel John F. Wilson and the battle was hard fought. Mayor Smalley came out victorious by a majority of 13 votes.

Some years ago he married Fredenica Becker, daughter of John Becker, and is the father of three children. Mr. Smalley is endowed with political sagacity to a remarkable degree and his personal magnetism has drawn to him a host of political and personal friends who are bending their energies to re-elect the present Mayor.

Horace J. Martin, the opponent of Elston M. French for the assessorship, was born in Plainfield, March 14, 1859. His early education was received in the local schools. Mr. Martin is an active spirit in religious and fire department affairs. He was made foreman of No. 2 fire company in 1885, and five years later became first chief of the North Plainfield Fire Department

As a member of the Official Board of Trinity Reformed church he has accomplished much work. At one time Mr. Martin was the president of the Union County Endeavorers. For eight consecutive years he was the secretary of the U. S. Grant Republican Club and declined a renomination for the office in the organization last fall but still retains the position of director of the Glee Club. He is a genial and substantial citizen of the borough.

George F. Brown, the candidate for collector of taxes, is a native of New York city, and received his education in Dr. Pingry's school in Elizabeth. Learning his present trade with his father he settled in the borough and started in the wall paper business. For some time he was purser on board a steamer plying between this country and Brazil.

Mr. Brown is an officer of the First Baptist church and is assistant superintendent of the Sunday school. He is now serving a term as collector and has given great satisfaction in that capacity to the property owners.

Andrew Lutkins, candidate for freeholder, was born in Bergen county in 1847 and for thirty-two years past has resided in this vicinity. By trade Mr. Lutkins is a butcher. He has served two terms as a freeholder. Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., knows him as an active member of that organization. Mr. Lutkins is extremely popular in the borough.

Joseph P. Northrop, candidate for the Council, is the junior member of the law firm of Wallace, Edwards & Bumpstead, of Jersey City, and for a number of years was corporation counsel for the city of Bayonne. He is the receiver of the Lincoln Realty Company and for some years past has re-

DEMOCRATS ARE HOPEFUL.

SHORT SKETCHES OF THE MEN ON THE DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

Hiram A. Woodruff, Candidate for Mayor, Is a New Comer in Politics—Something About the Other Candidates Who Are Well-known Boroughites.

While the Democrats do not expect to sweep North Plainfield at the borough election Tuesday, they are very hopeful of putting up a stiff contest and electing several candidates at least. Their strongest fight will be for the mayoralty and assessorship, in which the Democratic leaders are inclined to believe they will win.

Hiram A. Woodruff, of Westervelt avenue, who is the party's candidate for mayor, comes from old colonial stock. He was born in Jersey City in 1866, and for the past decade has been a resident and property owner in the borough. Mr. Woodruff is a New York custom house broker and until accepting this nomination he has never been actively identified with political work. He is a member of Anchor Lodge, F and A. M., of the Sons of the American Revolution and of the Royal Arcanum. A host of personal friends are depended upon to secure Mr. Woodruff's election, and should he be successful the borough will have a mayor who is the soul of honor, integrity and ability.

Elston M. French, the candidate for assessor, is well and favorably known by the majority of residents of the borough. He was born in the old homestead on Somerset street, exactly 32 years ago. After graduating from the North Plainfield High School, Mr. French took a post graduate course in the same institution.

At the beginning of his successful business career, he was manager of the City Mills and while thus engaged he started in the real estate business. Mr. French now has a large and lucrative real estate and insurance business with headquarters on North avenue. He was selected as the treasurer of the first Board of Trade in Plainfield. The Park Club, the Park Golf Club and the Sons of the American Revolution are three organizations in which Mr. French is a prominent member. As a real estate operator, he has improved a large tract of ground in the west end of the city and the houses built on the portions already disposed of by Mr. French, have added considerable tax valuation to the city.

Three years ago he was a candidate for the assessorship and in that exciting campaign was the only Democrat on the ticket elected and he received over 200 majority. At the expiration of the first year of his service the Borough Council, then entirely Republican, complimented Mr. French for submitting the best regulated set of assessor's books that had ever been presented to them.

At the present time the candidate is chairman of the County Board of Assessors and has successfully held that position for the past two years. Claims are freely made by the boroughites in general that Mr. French's chances of election are excellent. He is well qualified for the position and if elected will no doubt continue to render the good service to the borough which he has in the past.

The nominee for collector is William J. Conroy, of Linden avenue. Mr. Conroy has for many years owned and conducted a prosperous business in carriage building on Somerset street. He hails from Hunterdon county and has passed at least four decades of life's span. Mr. Conroy is an active member of Grace M. E. church and is highly respected in the community.

John H. VanWinkle, Jr., one of the councilmanic nominees, was born in the borough and is a graduate of the High School. After finishing his English education, Mr. VanWinkle studied law under the preceptorship of his father and at the New York University Law School and is now engaged in active practice. He is bright and active.

David A. Mills, the running mate of Mr. VanWinkle, resides at 104 Summit avenue and is a carpenter by trade. He owns considerable property in the second district and is in every way qualified for the office of councilman.

Jacob Voehl, Sr., of Somerset street is out for freeholder. He came here years ago and during a long and happy life built up a big trade in the bakery business. Mr. Voehl owns extensive property in the borough and if elected would fill the office satisfactorily.

David D. Smalley, the candidate for justice, is a former member of the Legislature and he has resided in this vicinity all his life.

Leander W. Hammond, of Manning avenue, is a candidate for the five years' term as justice of the peace. He is a carpenter and an inventor of numerous patented mechanical devices.

TURNED ON TOO SOON.

Accident Disabled Hose at Westfield Fire And Allowed Building to Burn to the Ground.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, March 9—A careless fireman turned on the water pressure before the members of Bucket and Engine Company had unrolled their hose at a fire here late yesterday afternoon, the hose bursting, the reel being twisted out of shape and being made useless. As a result the large stable at the corner of Central avenue and Aldrich street, owned by Wm. Doying, was burned to the ground.

The horses were out of the building, but several carriages, several sets of harness and a large quantity of feed and hay were consumed by the flames. The loss is about $2,000 on building and contents. It is not known how the fire started.

Westfield Will Have to Win Two Games From Roselle in Order to Capture The Daily Press Trophy This Season.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, March 9.—A large crowd of spectators lined the bowling alleys at the Westfield Club last evening to witness the series of games in The Daily Press Bowling League between the home team, leaders in the race for the Daily Press trophy, and the Cranford Casino team, second in the race.

The first game started on time, the visitors taking the lead in the first frame but losing it in the second. The home team gained a little each frame and won out by 62 pins.

In the second game the Westfield bowlers again took the lead and held it throughout, doing as they pleased with the bowlers from Cranford. The score was 848 to 745

The visitors pulled more together in the third game, while the home boys missed the easy spares when they were fortunate enough not to get splits. It was a steady game each frame for the Cranfordites who won by 50 pins.

The scores are given below:

WESTFIELD.

EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS.

REV. GILBERT L. HARNEY WILL BEGIN SERVICES TOMORROW.

Is an Evangelist of the Disciples of Christ—Meetings to be Held at Reform Hall.

Rev. Gilbert L. Harney, of Maine, evangelist of the Disciples of Christ, is in Plainfield for the purpose of conducting special evangelistic services. Reform Hall has been secured, and these services will begin tomorrow.

Mr. Harney regrets that the time at his disposal requires the immediate beginning of this work, instead of waiting for the close of the union evangelistic meetings now going on. He is in thorough sympathy with the meetings, as the Disciples thoroughly believe in Christian union and assist in every effort to promote it. He will earnestly urge those who may attend his services to attend the others at every opportunity, and will do so himself. Until the union meetings close there will be nothing but a one-hour service Sunday morning and each evening at Reform Hall.

Mr. Harvey is not connected with any church now organized in this city nor working under the auspices of any. His object is to do a special work.

Subjects of tomorrow's sermons at Reform hall: Morning, 10:30—"Christ and Him Crucified." Evening, 7:30—"All Things for Christ."

There will be no meeting in the hall Tuesday evening, all going to the closing services

IN THE NAVY.

Maze Edwards Received Interesting Letter From His Son, Now at Manila.

Manager Maze Edwards, of Music Hall, has just received a letter from his son, Robert Maze Edwards, who is a first-class apprentice on the U. S. Wilmington, which recently arrived at Manila, after a long and extended cruise. This is the boat that made the 1,800 mile cruise up the Amazon River, which was the longest distance ever travelled by any boat. The Wilmington is generally known among Uncle Sam's navy boys as the "rolling mill" as she is so susceptible to heavy seas. However, she has been very successful in her trips and is now stationed at Cavite for repairs, etc.

Mr. Edwards entered the Navy two years ago last month, the day after the destruction of the Maine in the Havana harbor. He has been very successful, being promoted from an ordinary apprentice to a first-class one. The letter which his father received was written Januray 30. He says that there is a fine Navy Yard at Manila and every convenience is to be found there. He also refers to the fact that there are 60 000 soldiers and 1,900 marines scattered throughout that section fighting for Uncle Sam. Mr. Edwards also forwarded a copy of the Manila Times, an up-to-date newspaper that is filled with live news from all parts of the country. Mr. Edwards has yet two years to serve before completing his time, and he likes the service so well that he has no desire to leave the Navy.

Mammoth Sunday-School Rally Will Be Held in First Baptist Church Tomorrow Afternoon — More Services Monday—Tuesday the Last Day.

The Gospel campaign in Plainfield is being conducted with a vigor and earnestness that long ago began to show wonderful results. The whole city is stirred. Each day shows greater crowds present at the meetings. And now the very climax of the campaign is at hand.

There will be a meeting in the First Baptist church this evening addressed by William Phillips Hall, and an overflow meeting in the First M E church if necessary. Rev. T. S. Henderson will speak at Hope chapel.

A service at Hope chapel will be addressed by Evangelist Hall tomorrow morning.

In the afternoon, there will be a grand Sunday-school rally at the First Baptist church, beginning at 3 o'clock The various Sunday schools will meet in their own rooms at 2:30 o'clock and march to the First Baptist church. The public will be admitted to the church until all the Sunday schools are seated.

Four services are planned for the evening all to begin at 7 o'clock. Evangelist Hall will speak to men only in the First Baptist church. A service for women will be held in the First M. E. church at which Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards will speak. A general overflow meeting in Vincent chapel will be in charge of Rev. J. W. Richardson, and W. N. Runyon will have charge of the singing. Tuesday's meetings will bring the series of evangelistic meetings, under the auspices of the Minister's Association, to a close.

OF YESTERDAY'S MEETINGS.

THREE LARGELY ATTENDED SERVICES WERE HELD YESTERDAY.

Rev. Mr. Henderson Roused Many at Afternoon Services Held in Crescent Avenue Church—Impressive Meetings Were Held Elsewhere.

Three services in the gospel campaign were held yesterday, one in the afternoon and two in the evening. Even greater interest than at previous meetings was manifested. All were largely attended.

A very large congregation gathered in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church in the afternoon, to attend the service conducted by Rev. Theodore S. Henderson, and the meeting was one of unusual impressiveness.

Prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, and W. S. Weeden sang "Thou Thinkest, Lord, of Me." Mr. Henderson then announced as his text the last clause of Matthew 3:10; "He shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire."

Mr. Henderson said that the two baptisms might be considered to be one; that what fire accomplishes in the material world is accomplished in the human soul by the work of the Holy Spirit. He then went on to tell in what ways the work of the Spirit resembles that of fire

First, the two were alike in their searching power. Nothing, the speaker said, can be hidden away so securely that the fire cannot find it; and if a heart is truly opened to the Spirit there is no fault so secret that He cannot discover it. Mr. Henderson asked his hearers if they were willing to submit their lives, their secret faults, their deepest motives, their prayer life, their church work, to the Spirit, and let Him show them their true selves?

The fire not only searches, the speaker went on to say, but it also purifies; and when the Spirit shows the inmost hearts it is in order that He may refine away the dross and bring forth the gold bright and shining, so that the Refiner may see His own image in it.

That fire also warms and melts, was the next point of the address. Mr. Henderson described the work of the Spirit in making pliable the hard hearts of men, in melting away unkindness and hard feeling, and creating a warm spiritual atmosphere. He went on to say that another action of fire is that of illumination; and that the soul where the Holy Spirit dwells is illuminated within so that the light can be seen without, and those around can see that that man has been with

ATTRACTIONS AT MUSIC HALL.

TWO GOOD PERFORMANCES AT THE LOCAL THEATRE NEXT WEEK.

"Tom Sawyer" Will Be Given There This Evening — Other Plays Booked For The Future.

As announced in these columns Thursday, "The Dairy Farm," presented at Music Hall Wednesday night, was one of the best and most wholesome productions that has ever been seen on the local stage. There was a good sized audience present, which doubtless would have been largely augmented but for the Lenten season, and it may be, the evangelistic services which now occupy so much attention. The presentation of the play merited an overflowing house and judged from dramatic standpoint, ranks superior to the "Old Homestead," and all other rural plays. It was splendidly acted, magnificently mounted and highly applauded by all present.

Mark Twain's famous story of "Tom Sawyer," dramatized by Martin J. Dixon and performed by him in all the principal cities, will be the attration tonight. The cast of characters include well known metropolitan people. The play is very interesting in every detail, and is replete with novelties, songs and dances.

Next week will witness the presentation of two fine performances, "On The Suwanee River," Monday and the Great Herrmann, magician extraordinary, Wednesday.

Stephen C. Foster's beautiful song, "The Old Folks at Home," or as it is better known "The Suwanee River," has long been one which arousees the pathetic side of almost every nature. There is in its quaint melody and mournful words a life picture of the sunny south of which so many in the north know little. The late William E. Sterling, the author of "On the Suwanee River," now in its fourth season, has taken as the locality of his new play the region about the little village of Suwanee, on the banks of the famous old stream, and he presents the story of the family of Clayton, one of the first settlers in Florida. It is not claimed that the developments of the play are entirely new, nor that the story possesses any great amount of originality in its telling.

Mr. Sterling has simply written a story of the south, true in character and placed it in this little-known region, depending on the strength of his play and its romantic surroundings to win public approval. Reports of this new attraction are favorable, and in it is promised a "home play" which will prove attractive and interesting to the best class of theatre-goers. The story has been thoroughly illustrated with beautiful scenery painted from nature in the region of the action of the play. The principals of the cast are Stella Mayhew, as "Aunt Lindy," Willow Frances, as "Dora the blind girl," Kate Weston Cherry, Lew A Warner, Fred Truesdell, Allan H. Bailey, Earl Atkinson, Harrison Stedman and the Clover Leaf Quartette.

"Herrmann the Great" is the most expert conjurer the world has ever known. His sleight of hand, or palming, borders on the marvelous. For his engagement on Wednesday night an entirely new and novel programme of magic and mystery has been arranged. There will be magic never before seen in this city and so marvelous and grand that only he, the master "Herrmann" himself, would attempt. Several sensational illusions are also on the programme, which are unexplainable. "Cremation," Herrmann's latest offering, which he brought over from Paris with him the past summer, is the most startling feat of black art ever seen in this country. It shows the burning alive of a beautiful young woman so realistically as to deceive the most captious of critics and the keenest of vision.

The five famous Nosses, May, Bertha, Ferdinand, Lottie and Frank, three women and two men, are a special feature of the entertainment given by "Herrmann the Great" the present season. They give the most novel, entertaining and artistic musical act on the American stage and as part of the Herrmann entertainment are most acceptable to the select clientele of that famous artist.

The Primrose & Dockstaders Minstrels, because of opportunity to play an engagement of two weeks in one of the principal cities, cancelled the contract made with Manager Mazo Edwards for their appearance here Friday, so there will be no minstrel performance until April 23 when the Vogel and Arthur Deming Company will make their annual appearance.

Some good attractions are booked for weeks of March 18 and 25. Commencing Monday, April 1, the Little Irene Myers Repertoire Company will inaugurate a season of popular plays at popular prices.

Former Sheriff W. T. Kirk, of West Seventh street, is sojourning in Florida.

Edward M. LaRue, of Beaver Falls, Pa., has been in Plainfield for a few days, being called here on account of the death of his father, Isaac LaRue.

SENATOR MAGEE DEAD.

Had Been Ill Two Years—Prominent In Pennsylvania Politics.

HARRISBURG, March 9.—Senator Christopher Lyman Magee of Pittsburg, editor, statesman, philanthropist and financier, died last evening after an illness of more than two years. His death was unexpected, as it was generally believed by his friends that he was improving in health. His condition took a turn for the worse on Thursday night, and the members of his family were hurriedly summoned to Harrisburg. He gradually grew weaker during the night, and yesterday his end was peaceful and calm.

His remains will be taken to Pittsburg today on a special car.

Senator Magee was seized with a complication of diseases during the last session of the legislature and was almost constantly under the care of a physician until he passed away. During most of the time he was at the Stratford hotel, Philadelphia. He leased a residence in Harrisburg for the legislative session and came here the day previous to the organization. He took his seat on the opening day of the session and only once afterward appeared in the senate. That was the day on which the ballot for United States senator was taken.

A writ for a special election to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Magee's death will be issued by Lieutenant Governor Gobin after the funeral.

Mr. Magee was born in Pittsburg in 1848. Through the death of his father when the boy was 15 years of age he was obliged to go to work to help support his mother and three younger children. After a period as office boy he obtained a clerkship and in 1869 was made cashier in the city treasury and in 1871 was elected city treasurer and was re-elected in 1874. He was elected state senator in 1892 and was twice re-elected. He was a director in numerous Pittsburg banks, trust companies and insurance companies and at the time of his death was the principal owner of the Pittsburg Times.

MENELEK ENGLAND'S ALLY.

He Will Furnish 2,000 Men For Expedition Against the Mad Mullah.

LONDON, March 9.—It is authoritatively stated that in the forthcoming operations of the British in northern Somaliland against the Mad Mullah they will be assisted by the active co-operation of Negus Menelek's army.

Two special service officers, Major Handbury Tracey and Captain R. P. Cobbold, have left London for Adisababa for the purpose of accompanying the Abyssinian army and advising Ras Makonnen, one of King Menelek's principal chiefs.

King Menelek will place 2,000 men in the field, and they will advance simultaneously with the British from the base at Berbera.

New Army Growing.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The adjutant general's office reports that satisfactory progress is making in the recruitment of the five infantry regiments authorized by congress. In addition to the recruits recently assigned to the Twenty-eighth infantry there are now nearly 600 infantry recruits at the Presidio, San Francisco. Both battalions of the Tenth infantry now under orders for service in the Philippines have been filled to the maximum of 50 men to each company. An order has been issued by the war department assigning the 600 unattached recruits at the Presidio to the First battalion of the Thirtieth infantry. This assignment practically completes the organization of the first battalion of each of the five new regiments of infantry. All these troops are destined to early service in the Philippines, supplying in part the vacancies in General MacArthur's army resulting from the homecoming of the volunteers for discharge.

An Opal For the King.

LONDON, March 9.—Mr. Maurice Lyons, a lawyer of Queensland, intends to give King Edward what is believed to be the largest and finest opal in the world. In the opinion of London lapidaries its only rival in size and beauty is one possessed by Emperor Francis Joseph. The Lyons gem was shown privately in the office of Sir Horace Tozer, agent general of Queensland, to the other Australian agents general. It is oval in shape, two inches long and an inch and a half deep and weighs 250 carats. When found in Queensland, it was an inch longer, but it was broken in the process of removal. It is estimated to be worth upward of £50,000, and Mr. Lyons desires that it should be set in the king's regalia of the Australian federation.

CUBAN TOBACCO FREE

President Orders Export Tax Abolished.

WILL LESSEN REVENUES $1,000,000.

Original Order Fixed a Duty of 50 Per Cent — Removal Was In Response to a Recommendation of the Cuban Commission.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The president yesterday issued an executive order abolishing the Cuban export duty on tobacco from April 1 next. This action was taken on the earnest recommendation of the Cuban economic commission which recently visited Washington, indorsed by General Wood. A previous order had been issued fixing an export duty of 50 per cent on Cuban tobacco from April 1. This action removes the export duty entirely.

General Wood's approval of the abolition of this export duty is practically an expression of his belief that the Cuban revenues from other sources are sufficient for the needs of the insular government. The original idea was that the tobacco tax was necessary to fully meet the financial requirements of the government.

The abolition of duty affects cigars and cigarettes as well as tobacco in leaf, filler or cut, all of the various classes of tobacco, raw and manufactured, having heretofore been subject to various rates of duty. That on cigars has been $1.35 per 1,000; on cigarettes in boxes, 90 cents per 1,000; cut tobacco, $3.75 per 100 kilos; leaf or filler tobacco, $6.35 per 100 kilos, except that harvested in the province of Santiago de Cuba and exported through the custom houses at Santiago, Gibara or Manzanillo, which paid $2.20 per 100 kilos. All of these duties are abolished under the order of yesterday.

It is estimated by the war department officials that the abrogation of the tobacco duties will cause a loss of revenue of about $800,000 to $1,000,000 per year. But it is said that this loss will be more than offset by the encouragement given to the planters in Cuba to increase their production. The extent of the trade affected by the order is very large, the tobacco exports amounting to about $20,000,000 a year. Of this by far the larger part came to the United States. The total value of unmanufactured tobacco exported within the seven months ended July 31 last was $5,020,000, and of this the export to the United States amounted to $4,875,000.

In the same period the export of Cuban cigars was largest to Great Britain, the United States coming second. The total value of the cigar exports for the seven months was $6,030,000.

A Steel Rail Competitor.

PITTSBURG, March 9.—If plans that are now being prepared are carried to completion, The Leader says, the Republic Iron and Steel company, known as the combine of the bar iron mills, will become a formidable competitor of the steel rail pool, the strongest of the iron and steel associations and the firms that it contains. The western company is preparing to throw down the gauntlet to the great combine, the United States Steel corporation, which will produce over 80 per cent of the steel rails made in the United States. The consulting engineers of the Republic Iron and Steel company are preparing the plans for converting blooming and rail mills that will have a capacity of 600 tons daily. It is proposed to build this mill at the Hazelton furnace near Youngstown, O., which was purchased when the consolidation was formed and which has been closed for some time. The plant also includes the old Andrews mill, which has also been closed. The company contemplates building a steel rail mill that will be modern in every particular, it is said, and will be a formidable rival to the other concerns.

Senate May Adjourn Today.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The Republican senatorial conference yesterday decided not to reorganize the committees at this session. This means an early adjournment of the senate, possibly today. The conference was without exciting incident, although many speeches were made. Two resolutions were considered, and both were voted down. The first was offered by Senator Mason and provided for the immediate reorganization of the committees. Senator Foraker presented the second. It provided for the appointment of a committee to consider the basis of a reorganization and report at the beginning of the session of congress commencing next December.

Sprague's Case Hopeless.

BOSTON, March 9.—It was learned yesterday that little hope for his recovery is held out by the family physician of former Congressman Charles F. Sprague of Brookline, who has been admitted to the McLean asylum at Waverly. For three years the patient has had symptoms of chronic nervous disease, but it was not until last summer that alarming conditions were noted. A trip to Europe followed, and one specialist after another was tried, with no beneficial result. Not until last week, however, was it apparent that the case was most serious, and the family physician determined to place Mr. Sprague in an institution.

Trojans Ordered From Their Homes.

TROY, N. Y., March 9.—The New York Central and Hudson River Railroad company has notified the occupants of some 25 houses in the mill district to vacate the premises, as it intends to construct a branch track and switches on the land. The residents there have been in possession for 20 years or more, and it is said they will contest any action for ejectment. The railroad company's claim to the land is based on the title of the old Troy and Greenbush Railroad company.

Three Men Hanged.

OPELOUSAS, La., March 9.—Nathan Simpson, Willie Payne and Stanley Gordon, two mulattoes and one negro, were legally executed by the sheriff in the jail yard here in the presence of the requisite number of witnesses. Each of the condemned men acknowledged the crime for which he had been convicted.

Severe Storm In Austria.

VIENNA, March 9.—A heavy snowstorm worked havoc among the telephone and telegraph wires in Vienna. All communications were interrupted for 24 hours. There were many street accidents during the day, and several horses were killed.

WILL REFORM ARMY.

England to Put Her Forces In Fighting Trim.

UNDER COMPETENT OFFICERS ONLY.

Troops For Home Defense to Consist of 680,000 Men — Kitchener Grants a Seven Days' Armistice to General Botha.

LONDON, March 9.—England's shame over the revelations of the incompetency of her military organization has spurred the government to a drastic reform by which the nobody sons of peers will be ousted from the high military posts which they disgrace.

The plan of army reorganization was announced in the commons yesterday by the Right Hon. W. St. John Brodrick, secretary of state for war. It is proposed, he said, to reorganize the army into six corps, each of which will be commanded only by officers who are competent to lead it in war. Only officers certified to be competent for this by the military authorities will be appointed to high posts.

Mr. Brodrick proposes to arm the volunteer and militia artillery with field and position guns of modern pattern, to raise five more Indian battalions for garrison duty and to transfer the garrisoning of coaling stations to the admiralty. He will not increase the pay of the soldiers, but will devote more time to maneuvers and less to barrack square drills.

Under the new scheme the army for home defense will consist of 155,000 regulars, 100,000 reserves, 150,000 militia, 25,000 yeomanry and 250,000 volunteers.

On the advice of Lord Roberts commanders of army corps will be appointed for three years only, instead of five, so that he may be able to replace them if they prove inefficient.

Mr. Brodrick emphasized the determination of the war office that only officers proved fit to command in wartime should have these appointments.

Judging from the editorials this morning the country will view the reforms with the greatest satisfaction. The general belief is that they are so thorough and farreaching as to betray the hand of Lord Roberts rather than Mr. Brodrick's.

"The negotiations between Lord Kitchener and General Botha are in abeyance," says the Pretoria correspondent of The Times, wiring Wednesday, "pending an answer from the British government."

The Daily Chronicle, referring to the armistice at Pretoria, says:

"We learn that the untiring agent in bringing about the negotiations was Mrs. Botha, who was deeply affected by the hopeless plight of the Boers and did her utmost to induce her husband to accept the British terms.

"The meeting of Feb. 27 was limited to General Botha's request to know Lord Kitchener's terms. Lord Kitchener replied that a general amnesty would be granted to all who surrender as well as to all prisoners except those Cape Dutch who, being British subjects, had actively fomented Boer resistance. General De Wet and Mr. Steyn were, however, expressly excluded from the amnesty.

"Lord Kitchener further promised that if peace were concluded the government would assist in rebuilding the farmhouses and other buildings destroyed under military exigencies, would reinstate the lawful owners and would help them stock their farms. Those guilty of acts of treachery would be excluded from these benefits.

"General Botha appeared satisfied with the conditions, and, the armistice being arranged, he proceeded to consult his officers, a vast majority of whom accepted the terms.

"De Wet and Steyn both remained irreconcilable. They declined any terms, De Wet adding that on his part the war had become one of revenge, and he intended to do all the mischief he could.

"It is probable that the original armistice of a week has been extended. It is believed that the remainder of General Botha's officers have now been won around and that he is likely to make formal submission to Lord Kitchener March 11, when his force will surrender to General French.

"According to our information Lord Kitchener's dispositions made the speedy capture of General Botha's forces quite certain. General Botha frankly accepted the situation and was treated by Lord Kitchener at both interviews with the greatest consideration."

A Truce With Botha.

LOURENCO MARQUES, March 9.—News has reached here to the effect that Lord Kitchener has granted Commandant General Louis Botha a seven days' armistice to enable the Boer commander to confer with the other Boer generals regarding the question of surrender.

De Wet Still Free.

PRETORIA, March 9.—Colonel Plumer is still pursuing General De Wet, who has passed through Fauresmith, in the southwestern portion of the Orange River Colony. The Boer commander had only 300 men and two Cape carts. Each man was leading three horses.

British Scouts Captured.

CAPE TOWN, March 9.—Three hundred Boers surrounded 50 of Driscoll's scouts March 2 at a kraal near Doorn Berg. The scouts held out for a day and night before relief reached them. The Boers captured 17.

Servant Heir to Fortune.

NEW YORK, March 9.—Mrs. Mary Carroll, who is employed as a servant in a private house in South, N. Y., has been informed that she is heir to a fortune of $50,000, left to her by the late Mrs. David B. Wheeler of New Haven, whose nearest blood relative she is. Mrs. Carroll is said never to have seen her wealthy relative. The estate has been partially settled, and the $50,000 will be paid to Mrs. Carroll in May.

Released and Rearrested.

GALVESTON, March 9.—The grand jury refused to find a true bill against Choynski and Johnson, the imprisoned prizefighters. They were released and immediately rearrested on a new warrant. A habeas corpus writ was applied for late last night.

The Ophir Nearly Ready.

LONDON, March 9.—The reconstruction of the interior of the steamer Ophir of the Orient line, which is being converted into a royal yacht for the forthcoming tour of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York, is now nearly completed.

BUSINESS BRISK.

Building Materials In Great Demand. A Boom In Steel and Iron.

NEW YORK, March 9.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Little change was developed this week in the condition of general business. Ground recently gained seemed to be held without difficulty, with a good distribution of merchandise by jobbers in most directions and with entire absence of speculative activity. There have been further declines in cotton, which does not help the goods market, still the most backward and disappointing of all the great industries. But in mechanical lines the progress being made is noteworthy.

Building materials, including lumber, are in especially urgent demand, and dealers who can deliver stock have no difficulty in securing advanced prices. In this, unlike most other lines of business, the east leads the country, and just at this season it is of particular significance. Collections are reported good all through the west and are better than usual at the south.

Conditions in iron and steel begin to assume an appearance similar to that of 1899. Prices have moved upward rapidly since the turn was made, and bids at current rates for distant delivery are often refused. Manufacturers are unanimous in reporting a great demand for domestic consumption, while export contracts for finished forms are still taken in competition with declining foreign markets.

Wheat is in abundant supply, with quotations well above last year's, owing to reports that the Hessian fly promises to be unusually troublesome, while weather conditions are also threatening. Atlantic exports of wheat, flour included, were 2,447,990 bushels for the week against 1,681,895 a year ago, while corn exports were 3,357,438 bushels against 2,183,218 in 1900. Heavy supplies of coffee at last prevailed over manipulation and prices declined.

Failures for the week were 208 in the United States against 205 last year, and 26 in Canada against 33 last year.

BIG RAILWAY DEAL.

Chesapeake and Ohio to Become Part of Pennsylvania System.

NEW YORK, March 9.—Final details are now practically completed for the actual annexation of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad to the Pennsylvania system. The Pennsylvania's controlling financiers joined William K. Vanderbilt and J. P. Morgan about a year ago in the purchase of a majority of the Chesapeake and Ohio's capital stock, this being one of the earliest moves toward the development of the community of interest policy among important American railroads. The proportion taken by the Pennsylvania was largest, amounting by mutual agreement to control. During recent months this interest has been extended, till now, directly and indirectly, the Pennsylvania owns the independent working majority.

Now comes the step originally planned. The Pennsylvania is to take over the Chesapeake and Ohio and make it an integral part of its vast system by the execution of a lease for 999 years. There is to be a Pennsylvania guarantee of dividends to Chesapeake and Ohio stockholders of 3 per cent at the start, with additional disbursements "as earned."

The Bulgarian Crisis.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, March 9.—Increasing apprehension is felt in Bulgaria at the concentration of Turkish troops on the Macedonian frontier. It is known that large quantities of arms and ammunition have been secretly imported into the vilayets of Kossovo, Uskuv and Monastir. Two Russian officers who have recently toured in northern Macedonia incognito left last evening for St. Petersburg. The Bulgarian government has received sharp reminders from three of the great powers that it will be held responsible for the preservation of order in the border districts. Great anxiety exists in Albania, which is in a state of unusual ferment.

Schreiber Traced to California.

NEW YORK, March 9.—William Schreiber, the young bank clerk who plundered the Elizabethport bank last August of $109,000, has been traced to Los Angeles, where he cashed three United States 4 per cent bonds which were part of his plunder. The bonds were of the issue of 1895 and were for $1,000 each. They had been placed in the bank for safe keeping by the administrators of the estate of the late Peter F. Wyckoff of Elizabethport. The bank is now being sued for the value of these bonds. Except that he cashed the bonds in Los Angeles nothing further has been learned of the missing clerk.

No State Police Bill.

ALBANY, March 9.—The political wind blowing about the state police bill has shifted rapidly. Only two days ago prominent Republican members of the legislature expressed the opinion that such an act would be passed. More doubts begin to spring up as to the constitutionality of a state police act, and it seems certain that no such act will be passed. There was a rumor here yesterday that Senator Platt had sent out invitations to prominent Republicans to attend a conference in New York today upon the state police bill, but this rumor could not be confirmed here.

Havana Strike Settled.

HAVANA, March 9.—The strike has been settled, the stevedores, lightermen and cartmen returning to work. The steevdores agreed to compromise on $2.50 American money for day work and $4 for night work. The Ward line agreed to send home the American longshoremen and to discharge the nonunionists.

FIRE INSURANCE.

Annual Statement of Superintendent Hendricks of New York.

ALBANY, March 9.—Superintendent Francis Hendricks of the state department of insurance in his annual report to the legislature on the condition of fire and marine insurance companies operating in this state says that "the fire insurance corporations reporting for the year 1900 have had a more prosperous year than they had for the year ending Dec. 31, 1899. It is true that the losses incurred in 1900 exceeded those of 1899. On the other hand there was an increased volume of business and a decidedly increased premium collection. The increased amount of losses is not of such startling character as shown in the report of last year. Still the loss ratio is such as to indicate the necessity of greater care in the selection and inspection of risks by the insurance corporations and the adoption by municipalities of better building laws and the enforcement of every safeguard for the prevention of fire.

"The aggregate assets of the fire and fire and marine insurance companies are $312,580,551.55, classified as follows: New York joint stock companies, $91,851,548.89; joint stock companies of other states, $141,422,596.29; foreign fire insurance companies, United States branches, $77,722,724.21; New York mutuals, $831,352.25; mutuals of other states, $752,329.91. Compared with 1899, these figures show an aggregate increase of $5,763,487.91.

"The receipts for the past year aggregate $158,934,378.70. The net excess of receipts over disbursements is $3,130,868.45. Eighty-four companies received $6,812,439.07 more than they disbursed, and 83 companies disbursed $3,681,570.62 more than they received.

"The gross disbursements were $155,803,510.25, or $4,324,663.59 more than was reported in 1899."

HARRISON VERY ILL.

Condition of the Ex-President Quite Alarming.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 9.—Ex-President Benjamin Harrison is a very sick man, and his closest friends are alarmed. His condition is more serious than is generally believed. However, Dr. Henry Jameson, the family physician, who has sole charge of the case, said last night there was no immediate danger; in fact, he was not at all alarmed, he said, as to the outcome. Asked if the age of General Harrison would not weigh very much against his recovery, the doctor said such would naturally be the case to a certain extent, but he declined to discuss the matter further than to say that he was not at all alarmed over the condition of his patient.

General Harrison is troubled with a complication of grip and intercostal neuralgia, and there is some fear that this will develop into pneumonia. The disease in itself is not necessarily of an alarming character, but when the age of General Harrison is taken into consideration with the diminution of his recuperative powers his present illness is being viewed with much anxiety.

Mr. Harrison suffers much pain. The large muscles of the chest are much affected. The most favorable symptom is the absence of fever, and still another circumstance in favor of the general is that his sleep as yet has not been impaired.

Emperor William's Condition.

BERLIN, March 9.—Emperor William has received congratulations on his escape from more serious injury from nearly every European potentate, including the king of Denmark, the queen of the Netherlands, the king of the Belgians, the king of Roumania, the queen regent of Spain, the king of Italy, Emperor Francis Joseph, President Loubet and the pope. Hundreds of congratulatory dispatches have come from England, including King Edward's, while a message from President McKinley was worded in particularly cordial terms. The emperor does not allow any one to see him except his physician. The whole right side of the face and neck is bandaged, leaving free only the left eye and cheek.

Scale Deadlock Continues.

ALTOONA, Pa., March 9.—Two secret sessions on the part of the miners, two joint conferences and a meeting of the joint scale committee at night briefly sums up yesterday's doings between the miners and operators. The deadlock on the scale is still on. After last night's failure to agree the scale was referred back to the miners and discussed in secret session this morning. A joint conference with operators followed. In an endeavor to have the miners' scale accepted the real position of each side was shown. The operators had nothing further to ask than a reduction on the strength of a falling market.

A Countess Accused of Arson.

BERLIN, March 9.—The trial of Countess von Schlieben, a well known writer on woman's rights, who was arrested on a charge of arson in July of last year, but discharged and rearrested in December, has begun. She is accused of having set fire to her own villa, and the evidence against her, especially as bearing upon her attempts to obtain insurance for thrice the value of the property, was quite strong. The most important witness for the prosecution, however, a servant named Krause, has mysteriously disappeared.

A Memorial to Victoria.

CAIRO, March 9.—Lord Cromer, British diplomatic agent in Egypt, and Mr. John G. Long, United States consul general in Cairo, jointly presided yesterday at an Anglo-American meeting to consider a memorial to Queen Victoria. Both delivered addresses advocating the founding of an Anglo-American hospital, a suggestion which was approved by the meeting. Sir Ernest Cassel subscribed £1,000 to the memorial fund, and the subscriptions altogether aggregated £10,000.

Will Refurnish the House.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Representatives Cannon, Dalzell and Richardson, the committee appointed to make arrangements for refurnishing the house of representatives, had a meeting yesterday to discuss the details of the improvements. Many changes in the matter of committee rooms are to be made, and entire new furniture for the house is to be supplied.

Killed on the New Bridge.

NEW YORK, March 9.—Frank Aberton, a painter, employed on the new East river bridge, was thrown 150 feet to the ground yesterday afternoon by the breaking of one of the supporting ropes attached to the scaffold upon which he and two others were working. He was instantly killed.

RUSSIA DISTRUSTED.

Serious Crisis In Far Eastern Affairs.

SECRET NEGOTIATIONS BEING HELD.

England and America May Unite to Thwart the Czar's Veiled Attempt to Appropriate Manchuria.

LONDON, March 9.—A crisis has arisen in far eastern affairs which, in the opinion of the British government, is graver almost than the troubles which originally turned the eyes of the world toward the orient. In this crisis secret negotiations are going on between the United States and Great Britain with a view to thwarting what both governments appear to consider a determined attempt on the part of Russia to plant herself permanently in one of the richest tracts of the Chinese empire.

The conference held Wednesday between United States Embassador Choate and Lord Lansdowne, the foreign secretary, had nothing to do with the Nicaraguan canal affair. To quote from a British official, "The Nicaragua controversy is a minor matter compared with the present situation." What Mr. Choate did was to receive from Lord Lansdowne an important message declaring that Great Britain was not satisfied with Russia's declaration regarding Manchuria as delivered to Sir Charles Stewart Scott, British embassador at St. Petersburg, by Count Lamsdorf and asking the United States if they were prepared to take joint action of such a decisive nature that Russia would have no alternative but to recede from her position.

Almost simultaneously, it is understood, the United States government instructed the various embassadors to take similar steps.

The answer of Secretary Hay has apparently not yet been received in London, although the fact that almost concurrent instructions were issued from Washington is taken here to be a sufficient guarantee that Russia's action in Manchuria will not be tolerated in the United States.

Japan is relied upon to take a line in harmony with the United States and Great Britain.

Germany, in spite of the Anglo-German compact, is regarded as rather doubtful owing to Emperor William's friendship for the czar. France of course will side with her ally.

The significance of the present phase can only be appreciated by those cognizant of the lethargic attitude of the British government hitherto regarding Russian action in China. Within the last few days all this has changed. What a week or two ago was pronounced only in line with Russia's usual policy is now termed "a grave and serious state of affairs."

Lord Lansdowne is using every effort to bring the powers into line in order to present to Russia such a menacing front that, without any ambiguity regarding temporary or other occupation, she may give up all designs upon Manchuria.

What prompts the British foreign office to take such an alarmist view of circumstances usually looked upon as fatalistic sequences is the apprehension that Russia, having held her own in spite of the protest of the ministers of the powers to the Chinese government and having put herself on record in the reply to Sir Charles Scott as determined on at least a temporary occupation of Manchuria, will refuse to back down.

That she must do so Lord Lansdowne considers vital, both for the future of China and for the continued existence of the concert of powers.

A feeling pervades inner circles here that if Count Lamsdorf's explanation is accepted by the powers Russia will be accorded a free hand to take all she pleases and the door will be opened to any other power aggressive enough to step in and annex Chinese provinces under the pretext of temporary occupation.

Liu Kun Yi, the viceroy of Nankin, has appealed to Great Britain, Japan and the United States, according to the Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Express, to assist China to resist Russia's designs in Manchuria.

"Emperor Kwang Su opposes the Russo-Chinese agreement as to Manchuria," says the Peking correspondent of The Daily Express, "and has instructed Li Hung Chang to refer Russia to the other powers."

Position of the United States.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Just to what extent our government has expressed itself to the other powers regarding the attitude of Russia in respect to the occupation of Manchuria and what if anything has been received from the British foreign office would not be divulged by the officials here last night. Our government deems it inexpedient for the Chinese to make any independent arrangement with any foreign power while the peace negotiations are in progress at Peking. An identical note conveying these sentiments has been sent by the United States to each of the powers interested in the settlement of the conditions growing out of the Boxer troubles.

Russia's Statements Mistrusted.

BERLIN, March 9.—The German press believes that Russia's assurances regarding Manchuria to Sir Charles Stewart Scott, British embassador in St. Petersburg, are insincere and intended to blind the world. The National Zeitung frankly asserts that this is their object.

Rochester School Case Decided.

ALBANY, March 9.—Superintendent Charles R. Skinner of the state department of public instruction decided that the board of education of Rochester may determine the hours for instruction in the public schools under its charge and that in prescribing half day sessions the compulsory education law in general and the charter of Rochester in particular are not violated. The decision is rendered in a proceeding instituted against the board of education of that city by Frank Doebler and others.

Governor Toole Vetoes the Bill.

HELENA, Mon., March 9.—Governor Toole has vetoed senate bill No. 87, known as the biased judge bill, over which the Clark and Heinze forces battled so desperately on the closing days of the session. The Amalgamated Copper company is said to be behind the bill. The supreme court refuses to entertain the petitions for Attorney John B. Wellcome's reinstatement, holding that he should petition in person. This he will probably do at once.

The Borough Election.

The election of a mayor, assessor, collector, two councilmen and sundry other local officials will take place in North Plainfield Tuesday. Both Republicans and Democrats have tickets in the field and there is every prospect of an exciting election. The hottest fight will centre about the mayoralty and the assessorship. It is there that the Democrats have the greatest hopes of victory.

It is the policy of The Daily Press to publish fair and impartial accounts of all happenings in city and borough. Its course in this campaign does not differ from that of the past. Both sides will be given a fair and equal show, and the situation will be described in a perfectly impartial manner. When the election takes place, The Daily Press will give its readers a clear and concise statement of it with the complete returns.

This election hinges chiefly on the question of the endorsement of the present borough administration. The Republican ticket, headed by Mayor N. B. Smalley, will, if elected, undoubtedly conduct the borough affairs on the same lines as at present. Its election would be understood to mean an endorsement of the present policy. The Democrats claim that the citizens are not satisfied and will show by their ballots Tuesday that such is the case. Of course, the personality of the candidates is bound to affect their support more or less. The result will be awaited with much interest by both sides.

An organization in England is known as "Scapa," the word being made up of the initial letters of the words "Society for Checking Abuses of Public Advertising," relates the Philadelphia Record. The members of the association are opposed to the placing of glaring business announcements on picturesque rocks, along rustic roadways, on 'buses and on huge billboards. They declare that the newspaper is the proper place for advertisements, since the latter are intended to convey information of a news character. Moreover, they say, better results can be achieved by newspaper advertisements than by objectionable signs and posters.

Although the city authorities will not take charge of the street sprinkling this year, it is very probable that the next year will see some suitable arrangements made whereby that work can be done under municipal control. The members of the street committee of the Council favor it and the plan will undoubtedly meet with the approbation of a majority of the tax payers of the city.

The master machanics of the city have formed a permanent organization which will undoubtedly be of much benefit in avoiding any future labor troubles. L. B. Woolston, who is at the head of it, has had experience of that nature and will undoubtedly be as successful a president of that organization as he is of the Board of Trade.

When the next Congressional conventions are held, the Plainfield delegates of both parties are likely to have to travel some distance to reach the meeting place. Either Morris or Warren county is rather difficult of access from this county.

Many citizens of the borough have taken advantage of Superintendent Wightman's invitation and visited the public schools of North Plainfield. They have learned that the borough possesses an excellent system of schools.

The false statement, made in the so-called Democratic campaign document, regarding the record of Andrew Lutkins in the Board of Freeholders, has been denied by Mr. Lutkins and the counsel of the Board now adds his testimony as to the falsity of the report.

It is to be regretted when an organization which aims to do good to mankind has its influence weakened through internal dissentions.

City Judge Runyon made it plain to an offender in the city court that it is the course of wisdom to tell only the the truth when in court.

The next three days will see the Gospel campaign in its greatest activity.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May Be Of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

Senator Cross is to be credited with having amended the Potter Congressional redistricting plan in such a way as to put Union county in a district which may continue to elect Republican Congressmen. But Union and Morris counties will have to keep right up to the standard. With such a strong Democratic county as Warren to take care of, no slumping or staying at home will be in order.—Elizabeth Journal.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short and Cossipy Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

Readers of Ernest Seton Thompson who have followed with bated breath the fate of Lobo, the king wolf of Currumpaw, will be interested to know that Blanca, the mate of the king wolf, stands guard in the hall of Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph's home on East Front street. After her capture and death in 1891 the skin, nearly white, was stuffed and sent to Mr. Randolph, on whose ranch in New Mexico she was killed.

Few who look on the stupendous engineering work of the new East river bridge, appreciate the important part played in the construction by not only little New Jersey, but by Plainfield itself. The monster cables for this structure and also those of the Brooklyn bridge were made at the Roebling works in Trenton, while the huge saddles which hold them in place, received their finishing touches at the Pond Tool Works in this city. The average weight of the latter is from twenty five to fifty tons.

Strikes a Rich Find.

"I was troubled for several years with chronic indigestion and nervous debility," writes F. J. Green, of Lancaster, N. H. "No remedy helped me until I began using Electric Bitters, which did me more good than all the medicines I ever used. They have also kept my wife in excellent health for years. She says Electric Bitters are just splendid for female troubles; that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak, run down women. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by L. W. Randolph.

Democratic Meeting.

The Democrats of North Plainfield will assemble this evening at the headquarters of the Democratic Club in the Eggerding building on Somerset street for the purpose of making final arrangements for the election. The various candidates will attend. Andrew E. Kenney will act as chairman of the meeting.

Delightful Luncheon.

Mrs. S. St. John McCutchen, of Myrtle avenue, gave a delightful luncheon Thursday to a small company of intimate friends. The affair was marked by a number of pleasant features.

To Assist at Mass Meeting.

W. C. Weeden, the evangelistic singer, who has been assisting in the special services in this city, will take part in a mass meeting to be held at Trenton tomorrow afternoon.

Dear Sirs:—Some days since a package of your GRAIN-O preparation was left at my office. We have always used the best Java and Mocha in our family, but I am free to say I like the GRAIN-O as well as the best coffee I ever drank. Respectfully yours, Republicans of Fanwood Township Contested for Nominations for Tuesday's Election.

THE CANDIDATES NAMED.

W. R. BUCKLEY CHOSEN FOR THE TOWNSHIP COMMITTEE.

Three Men Wanted Nomination for Constable Which Usually Goes Begging — Another Fight for Surveyors of Highway.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, March 9—One of the hottest Republican primaries held in the township in a number of years, took place in the rooms of Excelsior Hook and Ladder Company last evening, when the Republican voters met to nominate candidates for their ticket for the election to be held Tuesday.

Freeholder John Robison called the meeting to order and was unanimously elected chairman. Town Clerk Edward L. Hand was made secretary of the meeting. The first place on the ticket was for a Town Committeeman for a term of three years. A warm contest had been waged for the place. W. R. Buckley and Wm. B. Noble were both named and seventy-seven votes were cast, of which Buckley received forty-eight, Noble twenty-four and five blanks. Mr. Noble immediately arose and moved to make the nomination of W. R. Buckley unanimous, which was carried and the meeting began to look very harmonious.

But the next place, that of constable, proved to be the most stubborn contest of the evening. In years gone by it has been almost impossible at times to have this place filled, as no one wanted it. Last night's primary found three candidates in the field, the present incumbent, William H. Trayno, ex-Constable Robert Walpole and John Edwards. Eighty-two votes were cast for the much coveted place of which Walpole received thirty-five, Trayno, twenty-five, and Edwards, twenty-two.

The chair ruled that as Mr. Walpole had not received a majority of the votes over his competitors it would be necessary to take another ballot. This started a great deal of discussion and Messrs. Traynor and Edwards offered to withdraw and thus make the vote a unanimous one. When the motion was put there was several objections heard so it was finally decided to take another ballot. This resulted in the place going to Walpole by a vote of 40, Trayno 23, Edwards 10.

Overseer of poor came next without contest, August Kiemser receiving the nomination. Henry Cook and Augustus D. Osborn were then unanimously placed upon the ticket as commissioners of appeal, the former for two years and the latter three years.

Surveyor of highways furnished another contest, three candidates being named for the two places on the ticket. A ballot was taken and Andrew Schoffer and Thomas S. Whitenack were elected. The place of justice of the peace was the only place on the ticket that no one wanted so this was left blank.

The ticket finally being named the next in order was the appropriations. This part of the evening's programme proved to be a stumbling block, as there was considerable opposition to the sums recommended by the Town ship Committee in their annual report. It was finally agreed to place the following sums upon the ticket: Roads, $2,000; sidewalks, $250; fire department, $100; poor, $350; police, $100. This finished the business of the meeting and the meeting adjourned very harmoniously for one that had been so warm while it lasted.

ABOUT YESTERDAY'S EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS.

Jesus. The Spirit also sheds a light on the path of the Christian, so that he may be sure of always being guided aright.

Mr. Henderson also dwelt on the irrepressible power of fire, which, when once it has a start, laughs at human impotence. The power of the Spirit, however, he went on to say, was not a destructive power, but a constructive one, only tearing down in order to built up. While power belongs to God, the speaker continued, it is communicated to men by the Holy Spirit. The way to get it is to let God get you; get entire possession of you and use you.

That fire always kindles fire, was the last thought of the address. Mr. Henderson told how the fire of Christianity spread from the Man of Galilee, first through a handful of fishermen, through Palestine, the Roman Empire, and now the whole civilized world. In closing, he urged his hearers to be fires for God; to kindle the torches of their lives at the altar of Christ and then go to their homes, their places of business through the world, kindling the sacred fire in other hearts and lives.

Mr. Weeden sang "Holy Spirit, Dwell With Me," then the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Dr. William R. Richards.

With an earnestness that was intense and a convincing argument that was far-reaching, William Phillips Hall, the evangelist, continued his labors at the First Baptist church in the evening. Again that large edifice was seated to its capacity and many were obliged to stand. The deep working of the Spirit of God was strongly evidenced and before the services closed fully thirty persons gave their hearts to Christ and determined to try and live for Him. The decisions were made in a quiet and calm manner, and void of any sensational features.

The usual song service was conducted by F. H Jacobs, who also rendered effective solos. There were fervent prayers offered by Rev. E. M Bodman and Rev. Dr. Richards, after which Mr. Hall took charge and spoke for a short time on the subject of "How to be saved."

"If a man should write a book on how to get rich," continued Mr. Hall, "he might make a fortune, but I am going to talk to you about a book that is of vast more importance. The entire weal and possession of this world can not out weigh the value of one immortal soul."

Mr. Hall then briefly outlined the experience of Paul and Silas as found in the book of Acts. He told how they fell asleep and Paul had a vision. In this vision they heard that important call "Come over into Macedonia and help us." Mr. Hall told of their work there, what was accomplished there and how a church was formed at once.

"I believe," said Mr Hall, "that as soon as a person accepts Christ he should unite with His church." Continuing his story Mr. Hall told how Lydia invited Paul and Silas to her home and while there Paul drove the evil spirit from a girl there. For this both Paul and Silas were arrested, and haled to court, where they were stripped of their garments and lashed until the blood ran from their backs. They were then placed in an inner prison and their feet placed in stocks. This did not discourage them, for that very night thay sang praises to God and worshipped Him. About midnight the Lord sent one of His angels and caused an earthquake to shake the city and the jail. Their shackles were loosed and the people were greatly frightened. The jailer came running to the prisoners, fearful lest they had escaped. When he found them he cried out: "Sirs, what shall I do to be saved?" The reply came back, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved." "Praise the Lord," exclaimed Mr. Hall, "that incident has been the means of saving thousands of souls."

"I believe," he declared, "that we should have a deeper conviction of sin. It is only necessary to feel your sinfulness and a need of a Saviour. 'He that believeth on the Son of God has everlasting life.' I beg of you take your first steps for Heaven tonight."

At the close Mr. Hall gave the usual invitation and thirty persons decided for Christ. The service closed after the benediction was pronounced by Rev E M. Bodman

For the first time since the dedication of Hope Memorial chapel over a year ago, the edifice was entirely inadequate to seat the throng which poured through its doors for the evening meeting there. To properly accommodate all, it was necessary to open the partition doors between the old and new chapels and even the former contained as many persons as is seen at an ordinary meeting.

Not only was the meeting remarkable in point of attendance but also in the unusual number of people who, at the close of Mr. Henderson's stirring address and in answer to his appeal, rose to their feet and by so doing acknowledged their acceptance of Christ. The gratifying response on the part of the congregation proves that interest has greatly increased since the West End campaign was inaugurated nearly a week ago.

In the preliminary song service, Mr. Weeden's singing was as usual greatly enjoyed. At its conclusion Mr. Henderson arose and announced his text as being found in Luke 9:61. "Lord, I will follow Thee, but—" and his discourse dealt mainly with the last word.

"It is only a word of three letters," said Mr. Henderson, "yet it is enough to keep a man in this world from Christ; it is a small word, yet it has great force in human character and salvation. It is an excuse, not a hindrance which keeps a man from professing his faith. An excuse is generally a lie while the hindrance is either in the heart or imagination.

"A man when asked why he does not come to Jesus, replies 'I would but there is sin in my heart.' This is the only one real fundamental reason which keeps him from Christ and when this is obliterated there is no barrier between him and the Saviour's love. Again a man replies, 'I would follow the Lord but it is too much of a struggle.' It costs something to be a Christian. It cost Christ His life and while it does not cost us money many would buy their way to Heaven, yet it does require courage, nerve, will power and manhood. It cost you something but you dont know what you get.

"Others reply 'Lord, I will follow Thee, but I'm fearful of failure.' It is not a question of your holding out, God's holding out and by depending on God one minute at a time success will crown your efforts.

"'I would follow Thee Lord, but—I haven't the right feeling.' Your feelings will never save you, but Christ will. Then when all other excuses fail a man replies, 'I will follow the Lord, but—not now.' That is the greatest difficulty of all to contend with, and the one most commonly employed by those seeking to evade Christ's love, but instead of using it everyone should say, 'I will follow Thee now O Lord,' for now is the accepted time."

While the congregation remained with heads bowed, the pledge cards were passed, and after their return all united in singing "Just As I Am Without One Plea," after which the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis.

Bound Brook, March 9—Mrs. Catherine Lane Fisher, an old and well-known resident of this place, died Thursday afternoon at the home of her son, Dr. C. R. P. Fisher. Death was due to old age, she being in her eighty-fifth year.

The deceased is survived by two sons and four daughters, one of the latter being Mrs. B. K. Burke, of Evona avenue, Plainfield.

For destruction and complete riddance of Cock Roaches, Beetles, Wood and Water Bugs, Bed Bugs, Ants, Rats, Mice, etc., "Rough on Rats," though poisonous, if used with care is most effective. In fact it is the only thing that will permanently annihilate Bed Bugs and Cock Roaches. As an exterminator of Rats and Mice, "Rough on Rats" is the old reliable that never fails nor disappoints. They "don't die in the house." Is sold all around the world. Is used by all civilized nations of the earth. To Liberate Game.

Warden Charles Dodd, of Elizabeth, brought to this city yesterday two dozen fine quail for the Clark and Fanwood Game Protective Association. They will be liberated on the association's preserves by John L. Darby, of Alton. The birds, which are very plump and healthy, were secured through the influence of Senator Cross from the State authorities.

"Ticket" Meeting.

At the morning service in Hope chapel tomorrow, which will be addressed by Mr. Hall, admittance will be by ticket only until 10:30 o'clock, after which admission will be general. This is done in order to accommodate as far as possible all those living in the West End who have been unable to attend the services in the First Baptist church during the past week.

Change in Meeting Hour.

The Sunday schools of the Congregational and Park avenue Baptist churches will meet tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock instead of at 2:45 o'clock as usual.

LINCOLN MONUMENT.

Tomb Which Will Contain Remains of the Great President to Be Dedicated Memorial Day.

Workmen are putting the finishing touches on the exterior of the reconstructed national Lincoln monument in Oak Ridge cemetery at Springfield, Ill. When the interior work is completed the remains of the martyr president will be taken from the temporary vault where they now repose and placed in a sarcophagus inside the monument. The remains of Mrs. Lincoln and the children also will be removed into the monument, and the tomb will be formally dedicated on Memorial day. With the exception that the new shaft is 21 feet 9 inches higher than the old, the reconstructed monument is a practical duplicate of the original. The tomb proper is in the north end of the monument. Six crypts are arranged side by side, where the five members of the Lincoln family who have already died were formerly placed. In the center crypt were the remains of the president. On the left of this were the remains of his wife, and on the right those of his two sons and one grandson, Edward, William Wallace and Thomas, or "Tad." The unoccupied crypt was for Col. Robert T. Lincoln. As soon as the bodies are transferred the temporary vault will be removed and the stone used in its construction will be sent to Lincoln, Neb., where it will be used in the erection of a monument for some of Lincoln's relatives.

QUEEN OF ANARCHISTS.

Louise Michel, Leader of the Great Strike of Working Milliners in Paris, France.

Louise Michel, who is at the head of the great milliners' strike in Paris, is now in her seventieth year, but age has not deprived her of her wonderful power of oratory or dampened her enthusiasm for what she conceives to be the "good of the masses." She is now endeavoring to enlist the sympathy of the wealthy ladies of Paris for the striking men and women, who demand fair pay and an eight-hour day. The famous revolutionist and anarchist has her permanent residence in London. In her girlhood, when she was surrounded by the luxuries of wealth, she disclosed marked talents for music and poetry, and Victor Hugo tried to persuade her to adopt one of these arts as a profession. In 1870, at which time she was conducting a school in Paris, she joined the commune and was made prisoner. She defended herself brilliantly, but was sentenced to transportation for life. Pardoned in 1880, she returned to Paris, and at once resumed her communist agitation. She was imprisoned in 1883 and again in 1886. She then removed to London, and has been a prominent figure in the anarchist meetings in the parks and at Trafalgar square. She is the visible head of the large group of London anarchists.

New Cure for Consumption.

Prof. Weinzirl, of the University of New Mexico, conducting experiments under the authority of the university biological department, has evolved what he pronounces a complete cure for consumption. By careful testing, he announces, he has determined that the transitory effects upon the blood corpuscles of a person passing from a lower to a higher altitude are renewed by frequent changes of altitude. By occasional visits to the sea level, he says, the system can be reinvigorated, even when the effects of the higher altitude have been worn off.

The Book Output of 1900.

Last year the total number of new books published in the United States reached 6,356, or 653 more than in any previous year. There were 662 new editions of old fiction and 616 new novels, showing a decided reaction toward novels of established reputation. A special feature of the year was the reissue of celebrated books in fine and carefully edited editions.

LATELY I had the pleasure of meeting that grand old American, Elizabeth Cady Stanton. What pleases me most about her is the eternal youthfulness and enthusiasm of her mind. Age has not stiffened her thought into conservatism or checked its forward leaping radicalism. She is the old eagle of the woman movement—bright, fearless and free. Her quick glancing gray eye has the shine of health and vigor, her hands are fair and shapely as a girl's, though Mrs. Stanton is 85 years old. She takes keen interest in the crusade against vice in New York city. All that men try to do to suppress it is only patchwork, she declares. The only remedy is the elevation of woman by giving her equal citizen's rights with man. So long as the mothers of the race are degraded legally by being deprived of their rights just so long will the moral degradation of woman continue. With the ballot in their hands women can help themselves and their sister women, says Mrs. Stanton. Her dearest wish now is to see all her speeches and essays published in book form before she closes her eyes on earthly scenes. There are many of these, and they reflect the history of this country in reform movements from the beginning of the antislavery agitation down to the present attempted purification of New York city.

Women, the race impulse is pushing you on to a greater, broader life! Go forward easily and willingly! Hold not backward, to be shoved rudely before the throng or trodden underfoot!

Considering the frequency with which awful crimes against women have been committed recently, it looks as if a respectable man would feel like apologizing to women for the existence of his sex.

A Chinese husband in New York lately stopped work and informed his wife that he would toil no more, but that hereafter she should support him. Who shall say the Chinaman is incapable of civilization, even the highest, such as British dukes and French counts have attained to?

An Englishman who writes a poem on the death of Queen Victoria exclaims: "O mother queen! God's honored guest!" This is toadyism gone off its head so far that it touches the verge of blasphemy. In the world of reality to which she has gone Queen Victoria is no more than a beggar woman. There is one thought which no doubt has haunted many minds since the great queen's death. For 64 years she was surrounded with all the pomp and splendid circumstance that can environ royalty. Men and women, soldier, tradesman, lackey, society woman, poet, painter and actor bowed to her behest and were made or unmade by her nod. She was deferred to and waited on as if she had been a demigoddess, this good, strong woman. How does it seem to her now to be stripped of all her state and appear only her plain self, alone, without even a menial attendant?

Having paid all his debts and recouped himself for his losses of six years ago, Mark Twain has returned to his native land and is interesting himself warmly in movements for the progress of the race. Wherever that picturesque white head appears something is sure to be heard on the side of human rights and gentler, broader, kindlier modes of thought. In an address before a Hebrew technical school for girls he said recently: "I should like to see the time come when women would help to make the laws. I should like to see that whiplash, the ballot, in the hands of woman. If I should live 25 years longer—and there is no reason why I shouldn't—I think I'll see women handle the ballot."

In New York city is a burial and cremation company that has trained and employs only women to embalm the bodies of children and of persons of their own sex. These women embalmers are eminently successful.

A New Jersey farm woman was in her kitchen baking bread. Three tramps suddenly opened the door and impudently demanded food. She was a woman of spirit and declined to have hoboes order her to cook for them. Then one of them drew from his pocket a rope and said they would tie her and help themselves. She ran to her dining room, snatched up an old musket, pointed it toward them and bade them get out. They did, fairly tumbling over one another. A woman of courage can always protect herself.

The first woman to hold the office of commissioner of a court of claims was Mrs. Kate Pier of Milwaukee. A girl of 20, Grace Kennedy, has been appointed to the same office in Santa Fe. Miss Kennedy is highly educated and got several lucrative previous appointments through being an accomplished stenographer and typewriter. Two Ohio girls, Misses Ringold and Dash, are also filling an office seldom before held by women. Judge Hollister of Cincinnati has made them receivers for a business firm.

HARD LUCK STORIES.

Told by Men Who Have Claims Against the Government.

Hundreds Invade Washington Every Season, But Few Go Away with Money in Their Inside Pockets.

[Special Washington Letter.]

CLAIMANTS for justice before congress usually have a hard row to hoe. The congress bends its best energies upon national affairs, so that individuals have a hard time in their endeavors to attract attention to themselves and their claims. It is the same old story, year after year.

Some of the claimants, in fact a majority of them, deserve the legislation which they vainly seek through the passing years. But there are many who come here as freaks seeking to tap the treasury till with very slender foundation for their pretenses of a claim upon the blindfolded goddess.

The man who was arrested because he looked as much like John H. Surratt as a twin brother, and who appealed to congress for $100,000 damages, after five years of patient waiting, gave up his fight.

The story is a strange one. In June, 1865, John George Ryan, then living in Memphis, Tenn., but now residing in Chicago, was arrested by a provost marshal and conveyed as a prisoner to the old Capitol prison in this city "under strong guard and with hands and feet heavily chained." Then he was taken to a prison in Vicksburg, where "heavy balls and chains were cold-welded on his legs and he was stapled down to the floor of a solitary cell." He had no idea why he was arrested, although while coming through Harrisburg, on his way to Washington, his guard showed him a paper in which the arrest of Surratt was announced with great headlines. One of the experiences of the eventful journey was thus graphically and even spasmodically described in Mr. Ryan's petition:

At Baltimore a very large crowd had gathered at the depot, and many members of it used very vulgar language to your petitioner.

And cursed.

And threatened him savagely, and no doubt would have

Fatally assaulted him if it were not for the presence of his escort and the friendly action of some of the bystanders.

The situation being so serious,

And feeling that his life would be attempted, your petitioner shouted

That he was not the person that the papers said he was,

But was John G. Ryan, a confederate soldier on parole.

In a style, which is thus a combination of Victor Hugo and Walt Whitman, Mr. Ryan relates the incidents of his arrest and imprisonment, even to his desperate encounter with a rat in the midnight watches of his solitary confinement. It was not until 1885 that he learned, through an official letter from Secretary Endicott, that he had been arrested because he was believed to have been John H. Surratt. Three years later, through Senator Farwell, he presented his petition for damages, with the almost pathetic assertion that he would have done so sooner but for his belief that congress would promptly do him justice whenever he brought the facts to public attention.

That man was an atom in the ocean of claimants. No one gave him sympathy, and few gave him attention. He is merely mentioned as a sample of a class. The writer, like all others who have become accustomed to these cases, does not even give Ryan's memory a moment of pathos or regret. Thus, you see, the people here become unconsciously hardened on these subjects. Any senator would willingly give any claimant a five-dollar bill rather than give the time to listen to his tale of woe. Any ordinary newspaper man would cheerfully give a quarter to a tramp rather than listen to the story of a claimant. They are all so earnest, and each one believes that the government is willing to do him justice. That is true, too. But the government never hears his story.

There's the rub. The government is so complex, and the innocent, earnest claimant is so ignorant. This is truthfully said of hundreds of claimants who are men and women of education and refinement. For, when it comes to tackling the government, right here in its home, the claimant is ignorant, densely ignorant. This is a rule to which there seems to be no exception. The reason of it is that every claimant is human and natural; while the average politician is inhumanly unnaturally selfish, and has no time to look after the interests of others, except when doing so benefits the politician. And the aggregate politician is our government.

"The easiest way is the best way," is the motto and maxim of all politicians. Therefore, when they are cornered by a claimant, they sit and listen to the tale of woe, just as they have listened to scores of others. They are seldom cornered. Occasionally a claimant comes here with a letter of introduction to a congressman from a county chairman or other prominent politician. He gets an audience on that letter. The congressman receives him politely, listens with interest to his story, tells the claimant that he has a good case and that he will help him.

The claimant goes to his boarding house and tells his acquaintances there that he has the support of Congressman So-and-So, and is bound to win. He goes often to see the congressman, but always is informed that "he has just gone to the white house," or somewhere else. He writes letters to the congressman, and receives letters in reply, stating that the bill is introduced, and he is "doing everything possible with the committee." The claimant shows these letters to the landlady, and she trusts him for his board. But the truth is that, after introducing a bill for the claimant, the congressman does nothing more in the matter. He is too busy to waste any time on the human being who is so thoroughly trusting him and praying for his success in pushing the claim. He is looking after his valuable friends; those who can help him to reelection. At the adjournment of congress the claimant is broken-hearted—and the landlady who has given him room and board gets nothing in return for her kindness.

"YOU SEE HOW DIRTY I LOOK?"

"I could write many interesting chapters for you," says an old claimant here, whom the writer knew in the days of his prosperity. He has a just claim of $50,000 against the government, and has been here five years urging his claim. He says: "You know that in 1890 I lived at the best hotels. I had a valuable work, and you know all about it. I sold it to the government, instead of issuing it in book form, as I had intended. I took receipts for the manuscripts. I have the receipts yet. The following congress made no appropriation, but I was told it was an oversight. I did not stand in immediate need of money, and let it go. But in 1894, during the hard times, I lost my business, and the following year I came here to get my money. I have been here ever since. Fortunately for me, an old hotel keeper who knows me to be honest, and believes that I will some day get my money, has kept me and treated me well. But I am promising to pay him double rates, when I get my money. In spite of the fact that I am thus much luckier than other claimants, I am obliged to ask old friends for dollars and half dollars to pay for my washing. I am receiving loans from old friends to buy shirts and other necessary articles of clothing. If I get my money, as now seems likely, I must pay out about $20,000 for debts which I have incurred. How the other claimants get along is a mystery to me; but I suppose that He who cares for sparrows also cares for honest claimants who come here seeking justice."

These are the words of a man who has been substantially prosperous in business. His word used to be good for thousands of dollars in St. Louis and New Orleans business circles. And yet, when he came here for his money, he was as ignorant and innocent as a "Ruben" who buys gold bricks. He soon found that a congressman is not the government, and that instead of being a welcome guest in the congressional parties, which congregate socially in the evenings, he was a nobody, and wholly unwelcome. That was because he had but one topic of conversation, which was his "claim;" and that is a topic which congressmen do not like to hear discussed. After telling me his story, which has been often repeated, he said: "Can you let me have half a dollar? I need a haircut and shave. You see how dirty I look." He got it. And yet there was a time when he was worth upwards of $200,000.

There are exceptions to all rules, of course; and there is an exception to the statement that all politicians are selfish, and inhumanly so. There are senators and representatives who spend a great deal of money in charity to just such people. But they are so few, so very few, that claimants who read this letter may take it for granted that the rule will hold good, so that if they have any idea of coming to Washington to press their claims, they should abandon that idea at once. If letters and home influences are not strong enough to spur the congressmen to earnest efforts the claimant might better remain at home among friends. Coming to Washington would do no good.

SMITH D. FRY.

The Coinage of Pennies.

Pennies do not consist of copper alone, there being in them two per cent. of tin and three per cent. of zinc to 95 of copper. They cost the government about 42 cents a pound exclusive of stamping, and there are 148 in a pound, so that the government makes a fair profit on every pound minted, since while they are redeemable in gold, but few are ever presented. At present they are all coined in Philadelphia by law, because there was formerly no demand for them at all in the southwest and in the far west. A bill is now before congress permitting their coinage in other mints.

The Inventors of England's Effective Ordnance

A Yankee and a Welshman Who Have Contributed Much to the Success of English Arms

HIRAM STEVENS MAXIM, a New England Yankee, born at Sangerville, Me., February 5, 1840, and Rt. Hon. William George Armstrong, a Welshman, born at Newcastle-on-Tyne, November 26, 1810, have together given to England the greater part of her effective ordnance for army and navy.

Every army corps in the English service is to-day equipped with a supply of deadly Maxim guns, they are found in the fighting tops of every English warship, and practically every one of England's batteries of artillery and every English warship carries Armstrong guns. As an effective fighting combination these two have but few equals.

William George Armstrong died but a few weeks befor the sovereign whose soldiers and sailors he had provided with effective weapons for many years, and among the last acts of that sovereign was the bestowal of knighthood upon the New England Yankee who has contributed to the success of English arms in recent years.

The patriotic Amreican can never fully appreciate the motive that takes an American born citizen to England to dispose of his ordnance inventions. But this government offers but few inducements to this class of inventors. In times past our army and our need of war munitions have been too small to make the devotion of a lifetime to their construction and improvement profitable. It was for this reason, more than for a lack of patriotism, that

SIR HIRAM STEVENS MAXIM. THE LATE LORD ARMSTRONG.

Hiram Stevens Maxim went to England in 1881. To him England is indebted for many things. He gave her the first automatic gun placed in a trunnioned cylinder having hydraulic cylinder and spring to take up the recoil and return the gun to its firing position. He also gave her the first practical application of electricity to the training of large guns, and first gave to the world the powerful explosive, cordite.

His rapid-fire guns of small caliber have probably added more to English success in South Africa than any other weapon with which England's troops have been supplied. Every regiment in the field is supplied with them, they have played a prominent part in every battle, have been the principal feature of equipment for every armored train, of which we have heard so much, and have been feared more by the Boers than any other feature of the English armament.

His boyhood was spent in Sangerville, Me., where he obtained a common school education, supplemented later by a scientific knowledge obtained by study and attending lectures. His father apprenticed him to a coach builder, and he served an apprenticeship of four years, only to give it up at the end of that time for more congenial employment in various iron works. While in this country he patented many contrivances for both war and peace, but believing that his greatest possibilities lay in his ordnance patents, he went to England to cultivate a larger field for them. In addition to the knighthood bestowed by Queen Victoria he is a chevalier of the Legion of Honor of France, and a member of the great scientific societies of this country and Europe.

Among the most notable of his many inventions fitted for the pursuits of peace may be mentioned the incandescent electric light, self-regulating electrical current machines, and a new process for the cheap and chemically pure manufacture of phosphate anhydrate. Much of his energy of recent years has been turned to the problem of aerial navigation, and it has been freely prophesied that if the problem is solved within the next few years it will be by Hiram Maxim.

The other great producer of English ordnance stores who died so recently has equally as interesting a history. The father of William George Armstrong desired him to enter the profession of law, and articled him to a solicitor in Newcastle, and later he became a partner in this law business.

But his tastes lay in another direction, for from his boyhood he had been fond of scientific pursuits. Early in life he began his investigations into electricity, and invented the hydro-electric machine, which is one of the most powerful means we possess of developing frictional electricity. But he had previously turned his attention to hydraulics, a branch of science in which he was extremely successful, and for which he become only less famous than for his inventions in gunnery. In 1846 he invented an improved hydraulic engine, and five years later the hydraulic crane, thus discovering the present system of transmitting and utilizing hydraulic power. Mr. Armstrong also extended the application of hydraulic power to hoists, bridges, turntables, capstans, machinery for opening and closing dock gates, and the like. About the year 1850, Mr. Armstrong, whose time was then entirely allotted to scientific pursuits, founded the works at Elswick for the development of his patents and inventions. He was assisted in his enterprise by a few personal friends, and built his factory, which afterwards became famous as the birthplace of the Armstrong gun, at Elswick on the Tyne, a short distance above Newcastle. There he began to make machinery, chiefly hydraulic cranes, bridges and engines, and though the fame of the works chiefly rested in after years on his great guns, it was in the earlier branch of his business that he achieved his greatest commercial successes. At the time of the Crimean war his reputation was so great that he was requested by the English war office to make an explosive apparatus to blow up the ships which had been sunk in the harbor of Sebastopol, and his studies in this subject led him to think of making some improvements in cannon. When the Crimean war broke out the largest gun in the English service was the 68-pounder; few of these guns weighing more than 95 hundredweight. At 400 yards' range these guns could just pierce an iron plate 4½ inches thick, but, in a short time, the attention of inventors like Armstrong and Whitworth having been attracted to the subject, an enormous improvement was made in the science of gunnery. It was in 1854 that the first Armstrong gun was built at Elswick, on the principle of coiling one wrought-iron tube over another until a sufficient thickness was attained, special attention being paid to the strengthening of the breech. The old service 32-pounder weighed 57 hundredweight, took a charge of ten pounds of powder, and had a range of about 3,000 yards, whereas Mr. Armstrong's 32-pounder only weighed 26 hundredweight, fired a five-pound charge of powder, and had a range of 9,000 yards. The superiority of the invention was so apparent that in 1858 the English rifled cannon committee adopted the weapon, and within three years some 3,000 Armstrong guns were introduced into the service. With great generosity, Mr. Armstrong presented his patents to the nation, and, in return, was made a C. B. and knighted in 1859, besides being appointed engineer of rifled ordnance to the war department. Sir William Armstrong retired from this post in order to undertake the management at Elswick, and when the firm was turned into a limited company he became the chairman. In 1863 the British association visited Newcastle, Sir William being president, and on that occasion he delivered his address on the coal supply of Great Britain, pointing out that the amount of coal obtained was lessening rapidly and that there was every sign that it would one day become exhausted.

A prophecy of which England is thinking much more to-day than she did when it was made more than a third of a century ago.

Public schools in Tennessee were open 96 days last year, and the average cost of tuition per pupil per month was $1.07.

HUNDREDS THRONGED TO HEAR THE WORD; MANY PROMISED TO ACCEPT CHRIST.

Many Stirring Services Marked The Third Sunday Of The Gospel Campaign In This City Yesterday.

GRAND RALLY OF THE LOCAL SUNDAY-SCHOOLS.

MEETINGS UNDER CHARGE OF EVANGELIST HALL AND LOCAL PASTORS.

Special Service For Men Only Held In First Baptist Church Last Evening—Other Evening Services—Mr. Hall Will Be Here Today And Tomorrow.

Cloudy skies and even rain failed to effect the success of yesterday's meetings in the Gospel campaign. Hundreds of people thronged the churches where the special services were held and all displayed great earnestness and interest in the efforts to save souls for Christ. The day saw even greater activity than had been seen previously in the campaign. Today and tomorrow will bring the meetings to a close.

Today's services will consist of a children's meeting at 3:30 o'clock inthe Monroe Avenue church, led by Rev. T. S. Henderson, another meeting in the same church at 7:45 o'clock, addressed by Rev. Mr. Henderson, and a service at the First Baptist church with Evangelist Hall in charge.

Tuesday will be the day of prayer. Rev. Mr. Henderson will conduct a morning services at 10:30 o'clock in the First Baptist church. A prayer service will be held in the same church at 3 o'clock to be followed at 3:30 by a meeting addressed by Mr. Hall. He will also speak at an evening meeting in that church at 7:45 o'clock, while Rev. T. S. Henderson will be in charge of overflow meetings at the First M. E. church. Some of the stores will close from 10 until 1 o'clock and others at noon for the rest of the day.

SATURDAY EVENING'S SERVICE.

As it had been decided to close the meetings one day earlier than was at first expected, a meeting was held in the First Baptist church Saturday evening under the charge of Evangelist William Phillips Hall. The auditorium was well filled when the opening song service was concluded. Prayers were offered by Rev. Dr. George W. Smith and Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D.

Mr. Hall took his text from a portion of Luke xviii: 9. "And He spake this parable." The speaker took the story of the Pharisee who thanked God he was not like other men. It was this very class of men, he explained, who were in grave danger although they did not know it. Many people were deceiving themselves, trusting in their own strength instead of placing confidence in the Lord. No one would get to Heaven, he declared, on a ladder built only of good deeds. Heaven must be in the heart as well. He entreated those in the congregation who were so self confident to carefully examine their own hearts and see the need of a Saviour to aid them to their Heavenly home. While F. H. Jacobs sang "Come, Sinner, Come," the pledge cards were passed and a number were signed.

AT HOPE CHAPEL.

Evangelist William Phillips Hall conducted the meeting held in Hope Memorial chapel yesterday morning. Mr. Hall was assisted by F. H. Jacobs, the evangelistic singer, and a very impressive part of the service was the solo, "My Ain Countree," sung by Mr. Jacobs.

Mr. Hall took for his text those familiar words in John iii:16: "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten son, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish but have everlasting life." He then subdivided his text under three heads "Love of God the Father," "Love of the Son" and "Love of the Holy Spirit." Upon each of these he spoke earnestly. He described graphically the scene of great prosperity and then gave the other scene of great adversity. In the latter scene he pictured men dying of thirst for the Living Water of Life. He spoke of men dying in sin, and pointedly remarked that one sin, however small, ejected into a life is the seed of death to the soul unless there is repentance and forgiveness of God. He appealed to all to see the venom of sin before it is too late. At the close of the service the customary invitation was given and a great many took a stand for Christ.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL RALLY.

"Onward Christian Soldiers" was the majestic hymn which began the monster evangelistic meeting of Sunday-school children in the First Baptist church yesterday afternoon. Wm. Phillips Hall had charge of the services and assisting him were the pastors and Sunday-school superintendents of the evangelical churches. No more inspiring sight could be imagined than the scene the services presented. The body of the church and the huge galleries as well were crowded with scholars, young and old, all anxious to hear the successful evangelist, whose fame as an eloquent and fearless advocate of Christ is well established in the Christian world.

The members of the Seventh-Day Baptist school came first as an advance guard of the young Christian soldiers and almost at their heels followed the pupils of Warren chapel. Then others came thick and fast and it seemed no time at all before the word was passed out to those still in front of the edifice that no more could be accommodated within.

In order that none be disappointed, an overflow meeting was arranged in the First M. E. church and to that house of God many of the Sunday-schools hastened.

After the echoes of "Onward, Christian Soldiers," had died out, the special choir, which occupied the temporary large platform in the front of the church, sang "Rescue the Perishing," and the young people joined in the singing. Frederick H. Andrews, superintendent of Warren chapel Sunday school, invoked the blessing of God, and F. H. Jacobs, sang a sacred solo. Ecclesiastes xii: 1, "Remember now thy Creator in the day of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh, when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them," was the text from which Mr. Hall drew many lessons for the young folk.

He first pictured the life of luxury which the great King Solomon lived and how after tasting of all the pleasures of the world, in his old age he was unhappy. Solomon then wrote those words which should be today a rule for all young people. Mr. Hall said that to be successful in life one must make a partnership with Jesus and this he implored should be done in the days of one's youth.

The evangelist related the experiences of many who had been successful as he, himself has been, in business. All success can be attributed, to doing one's level best and placing himself under the protection of the Saviour. The noblest, greatest and manliest act a person can do is to fearlessly stand up for Christ, said he, and he then, at the conclusion of a short prayer, requested all Christians to stand up in recognition of their belief.

Then those who desired to seek God were asked to arise while Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes offered a fervent prayer. The meeting closed with the doxology.

At the short "after meeting" the musical programme was under the supervision of David E. Titsworth of DANTE'S PICTURE OF HELL.

DR. GRIGGS LECTURED ON THAT PART OF THE DIVINE COMEDY.

Third of Series of Lectures on "Dante" Given at Vincent Chapel Saturday Afternoon.

Dr. Edward H. Griggs, of Brooklyn, delivered the third of his series of lectures on "Dante," in Vincent chapel Saturday afternoon. As on the previous occasions his discourse was fraught with intensely interesting descriptions of the literature of that great philosophical poet of the dark ages, of whose works the Doctor is an universally recognized scholar of no mean degree.

"Hell" was the particular part of "The Divine Comedy," upon which the lecturer confined himself to the discussion and in the course of the lecture he dwelt upon the scene in hell as vividly pictured by the Florentine poet. Professor Griggs said that Dante's effort is always to find the divine harmony in the universe and this was the purpose of his life's work. Everywhere he emphasized the fact that sin is death and that every free individual must choose between moral retrogression or eternal life. Existence means a struggle and one who does not struggle towards God must degenerate. If the appetite supplants reason, moral as well as physical decay is the inevitable result. The punishment in hell for sin is being in that abode just what you have been in this world.

In defense of Dante's apparent vulgarity in his expressions, the lecturer declared that the language was used in a high sense in which art and truth comingled.

Dr. Griggs described Dante's conception of hell and of the ten circles in which dwelt those who had been consigned to eternal punishment for sins in the flesh. He recited how Dante and Virgil went down into hell and faced the trees that confronted them representing the souls of suicides.

The ten circles of hell, in each of which were various classes of sinners, were minutely detailed.

Beginning with the first group, which were not in hell-proper but in a black air or limbo and in which were little children unconscious of wrong-doing, the lecturer depicted the groups contained in the entire ten circles. Those guilty of incontinuity, violence, fraud, avarice, treason and other base sins were described as was also the several sub-divisions of each of the cardinal mortal sins.

The subscribers to these instructive lectures have already been amply repaid for the trifling outlay to hear Dr. Griggs, and it is fair to say that even those who had considerable knowledge of the poet's works have had new ideas and avenues of thought opened to them of which they never dreamt of before.

Will Postpone Meetings.

The meetings begun yesterday in Reform Hall, by Rev. Gilbert L. Harney, of Maine, will be postponed until Wednesday evening, Mr. Harney believes that more good will be done by permitting his congregation to attend and participate in the union services until then. The special services will then be renewed. Much has already been accomplished, and all are invited to be present Wednesday evening at 7:30.

Arrested in Westfield.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, March 11—Harry Barton and William Alberts, two young men from Plainfield, were arrested at this place last evening on a charge of disorderly conduct at the trolley office and for assault. They were haled before Justice Collins. The fine of the court was $25 each or thirty days in the county jail. Barton was unable to pay his fine and was committed. Alberts was more successful. He paid his fine and was released.

Their Fault.

Despite the fact that an iron fence has been erected between the tracks at the North Avenue station, there are some people who persist in crossing the tracks and slipping through the gate. If perchance they should be injured by a passing train they would probably feel like suing the railroad company, when the entire blame would be on them.

Rice Out at Saginaw.

Warren H. Rice, formerly of Plainfield, is now with the Wm. Barle Dry Goods Company, at Saginaw, Mich., and the company will have a grand opening of their new store March 18, 19, 20.

To Continue Specials Tomorrow.

Owing to the stormy weather on Saturday and Monday, Woodhull & Martin will continue their basement specials all day Tuesday.

LOST HER POSITION; THEN KILLED HERSELF

Unknown Suicide in Jersey City Identified by The Plainfield Police Saturday.

BOUGHT SHOES HERE.

THAT WAS CLUE WHICH LED TO DISCOVERY OF WHO SHE WAS.

Was a Member of "The Dairy Farm" Company But Was Discharged Here For Intoxication—Remained Here Two Days—Name Was Kate Burns.

The police department of this city has established the fact that the woman who committed suicide by inhaling gas at Lubben's Hotel in Jersey City, some time between Friday evening and Saturday afternoon, was a member of "The Dairy Farm" company which played in Music Hall Wednesday.

To the management of the theatrical troupe she was known as Miss Kate Burns and she so registered at the Hotel Imperial on North avenue. Miss Burns together with another woman, occupied room 6 to the annex of the hotel. She was in an intoxicated condition that evening and did not appear at the performance.

Before the company left this city Thursday morning Miss Burns was discharged from her position which was that of wardrobe woman. She also played a minor role. All Thursday she remained in bed and during the course of the day destroyed a package of photographs which were in a small valise belonging to her.

Friday she breakfasted at the hotel and seemed to be particularly anxious to leave for New York on the earliest train. This was the last heard from her in this city until word was received of her self-destruction in Jersey City.

It was through the clue furnished by the Jersey City police, that the woman wore a pair of laced shoes containing the trademark of A. Willett & Sons, of Park avenue, that the woman's identity was discovered by the local police.

Herbert Willett had a clear recollection of the woman having purchased the shoes and stated that she also left a pair of shoes for repairing. She gave the name of "Miss Burns' and requested that the shoes be sent to Music Hall.

The description furnished of "Mrs. Moore" tallied precisely with Mr. Willett's recollection of "Miss Burns" and there is no doubt that they are one and the same woman.

J. H. Wallick, the proprietor of "The Dairy Farm" company, which is now filling an engagement in Washington, D. C., says the woman was known to him as Miss Kate Burns and that her sister, Miss Ada Holland, is now starring with Rogers Brothers.

BURGLAR WORKS.

Visited Residences in the Vicinity of Avon Park Friday With Some Success.

A very audacious burglar plied his vocation with considerable success Friday night, entering three houses in the vicinity of Avon Park and escaping from all without detection.

The man first made his appearance at the home of E. P. Kellogg on Park avenue near Evans' woods, shortly after 10 o'clock, when he was discovered peering through a window by Mr. Kellogg's daughter, Mrs. Raymond Randolph. He immediately fled but returned shortly after and made a second attempt and was chased away.

He then went to the Sprague residence on the Stelle farm and entering by means of a skeleton key, appropriated a number of articles to the value of $100. Following this the home of John I. Holly was visited and a quantity of silverware and an overcoat were taken.

The thief was afterward traced to a point near the golf grounds where he put on a pair of pointed shoes having walked the distance intervening in his stocking feet.

Statement From F. K. Clark.

In a lengthy communication to The Press, Frederick K. Clark, of Scotch Plains, calls attention to the falsity of the reports to the effect that he has been receiving large sums from the township for the hire of his team, and also that the horses were incapable of performing a full day's work or of hauling an ordinary load. He claims to have received only what he was entitled to and that the township was defrauded in no manner whatever.

MACHINISTS TO ORGANIZE.

PRELIMINARY MEETING WAS HELD HERE SATURDAY NIGHT.

Will Form Local Lodge of International Association of Machinists—Another Meeting Saturday Night.

In answer to a call about two hundred macninists met in Washington Hall Saturday evening for the purpose of considering the advisability of joining the International Association of Machinists and forming a local lodge. The association was represented by H. E. Williams, of Newark, J. B. Wilson and Harry Smith, of New York, both business agents; C. W. Booth, treasurer of district 15, and C. F. Marshall, a member of the Governing Board, of the same district, of Brooklyn.

These men explained the objects of the association, stating that there are 450 lodges, with a membership of 60 000 in the United States, Canada, Mexico, Cape Breton, N. S., and other places. It was said that the association is intended for competent machinists and it is the purpose to protect the interests of such, to advance morally, physically and financially the interests of each member.

It is expected to inaugurate the nine-hour working rule on May 20 next, among such manufactures that do not now observe this rule. The association was organized thirteen years ago at Atlanta, Ga., by five men. It is opposed to strikes and the rule is that all grievances that cannot be settled by the local lodge must be sent to the headquarters of the association on appeal for settlement. It is then considered and a vote is taken as to whether a strike shall be ordered, after all fair and honorable means are exhausted.

One feature objected to by some of those present was the fact that the rule of the association is that a machinist must serve four years to be entitled to full membership. This would work a hardship among men employed in shops where three years is the required time. Just how this objection will be overcome remains to be seen.

About thirty men signed the charter Saturday evening, and at the meeting next Saturday evening an organization will be perfected and officers elected.

ON THE EVE OF BOROUGH ELECTION DAY BOTH PARTIES ARE READY FOR THE FIGHT.

Battle of The Ballots Will Centre About The Contests For The Mayoralty And Assessorship.

POLITICAL RALLIES HELD SATURDAY NIGHT.

ISSUES OF THE CAMPAIGN ARE FAIRLY AND IMPARTIALLY STATED.

Just What Claims Two Parties Are Making To Win Votes For Their Tickets—Polls Open At Six o'Clock And Close At Seven—Beware Of Strange Tales.

The closing hours of the borough campaign in North Plainfield have arrived and the struggle at the polls now confronts the two political bodies. The period for electioneering while short has nevertheless been filled with no little interest. The small margin by which the Republicans obtained control of the borough two years ago has spurred the Democracy on with a renewed effort to reclaim the mayoralty and the minor offices. It will be recalled that the present incumbent of the mayor's chair defeated his opponent by a baker's dozen of votes and though the administration is inclined to believe that the past two years has witnessed the strenghthening of its hold on the people yet it is leaving no stone unturned to prevent the happening of the unexpected.

The fight still centres on the mayoralty and assessorship. The Republicans are endeavoring to win back the latter, while their opponents, feeling sanguine over the outcome of the assorship contest are particularly anxious to possess once again the executiveship of the borough.

Elston M. French, the present assessor, was seated three years ago by a majority of two hundred, and the Republicans being cognizant of the fact that his popularity and the knowledge of his unquestioned ability have not waved one bit since then, are putting forth their best efforts to oust him tomorrow.

From what can be gathered in political circles there appears to be little chance for the Democrats to overthrow the rival party is so far as the the other elective officers are concerned. This, of course, is but the consensus of the public opinion as expressed today but it should be remembered that there is always the possibility of an unlooked-for landslide.

Today the political office seekers are practically resting on their oars. Saturday night the climax of the campaign was reached when the two parties held their final council of war in halls side by side on Somerset street. The Democratic workers, in pursuance of a call, gathered at the club headquarters in the Eggerding building and the Republicans met at the U. S. Grant Club room in Spencer's hall.

At both meetings the respective candidates were in attendance. The Democrats held an informal meeting for the purpose of making final arrangements and giving the necessary instructions to the challengers.

A good sized crowd was present and it seemed to be in high spirits. Some of the more enthusiastic predicted a clean sweep for tomorrow but the more sober minded confined their claims to the mayoralty and assessorship.

The Republican meeting was in the shape of a jolly combination of a rally, musicale and smoker. Mayor N. B. Smalley acted as chairman and as funmaker for the occasion.

Speeches were made by Charles L. Nichols, candidate for Borough Council; Horace J. Martin, candidate for assessor, and by Mayor Newton B. Smalley, candidate for re-election to his present position. Andrew Lutkins good naturedly remarked that there was no necessity for his getting on the stump as he felt he would be elected anyhow. The U. S. Grant Glee Club rendered some melodious tunes which had a good effect on the meeting. The meeting adjourned while all standing sung "America."

After the close of the entertainment a short session of the executive committee was held for the purpose of discussing matters peculiarly pertinent to the candidates alone.

The issues of the campaign are few. It falls upon the Democrats to produce reasons why the present administration should be withdrawn from power. The chief question is the tax rate. The Democrats demand a more economical government. They declare that, although the present ad-

Fought for Drink.

The curse of liquor was the cause of Harry Hoverlock's incarceration in the lockup Saturday night. Hoverlock, while in a stupor that evening in Blatz's saloon, became disorderly on being refused drink and had to be handed over to the patrolman. This morning at the hearing he appeared to be much mortified over his wrongful actions and City Judge Bunyon, savoring justice with mercy, suspended sentence.

Owing to an unavoidable delay, the cut did not arrive in time for publication Saturday when a sketch of Mr. French's career was published.

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

Down South when the papers announce the appearance of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company they usually preface the announcement with something like this: "That Libel of the South," or something equally effective for the Southerner does not like to see himself so distorted and abused that he is no longer recognizable. "On the Suwanee River," which comes to Music Hall tonight, is a play that contains more in it than its title might at first glance lead a person to suppose. It is thoroughly southern in its actions and scenery, and the latter is entitled to considerable commendation. The plot revolves around a murder and an attempt to defraud a blind girl. Scheming relatives and guardians endeavor to marry the afflicted girl to a wretched old miser under the pretense that he is the son of a southern planter. All the wicked schemes are foiled and the story winds up happily for all who are deserving. The company producing "On the Suwanee River" is a good one. Stella Mayhew as "Aunt Lindy" portrays the character of the old southern aunty to perfection. Every action has that naturalness that comes to those to the manner born. Her presence is always the signal for a smile, and her good-natured and sarcastic sallies always bring forth laughter. Others in the cast are Willow Francis, Kate Weston Cherry, Lew A. Warner, Allen H. Bailey, Earl Atkinson, Fred Truesdell, Harrison Stedman and the Clover Leaf Quartette.

The great and only Herrmann comes to Music Hall Wednesday night in his magnificent exhibition of magic. The critical theatregoers of the United States have long since endorsed the marvelous work of the Great Herrmann and it is safe to say that as an entertainer in magic, occult phenomena and sensational illusions his standard is absolutely secure as being the foremost purveyor of this style of entertainment on the American stage. Novelties in magic are as essential to success as in the field of the drama and it is probably to this one fact that that Herrmann always presents something new and startling, something that starts the tongues to wagging in the cities he visits, as well as to the marvelous exterity with which these feats are performed that much of his phenomenal success is due.

Theatre-goers who attend the F. F. Proctor continuous performance theatres in New York city are kept in touch with the best form of amusement in the world. While Proctor prices never go up, the character of the show is ever increasing in merit. For instance, take that exquisite story of John Luther Long's, "Madame Butterfly," which David Belasco is now producing with such astonishing artistic and financial success at Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre, Broadway and Twenty-eighth street. It is admittedly the most superb feature ever introduced into a continuous performance programme. Pick out the house nearest to you—the Twenty-third Street Theatre, just west of Sixth avenue; the Fifth Avenue Theatre; the Palace, 58th street and Third avenue; or the Harlem house, on East 125th street—and witness the performance and all will assure you that you will see a good big show for such low prices; as 15c, 25c and 50c. At the Palace and the 125th Street Theatre, daily matinees are given at bargain prices; 25c for the best orchestra seats. Kindly remember that the performances are continuous every day from 12:30 to 10:45 p. m.

Kreutzfeldt, Mrs. Peter Finger, Mrs. Henry Bergen, Mrs. Weigmann and Mrs. Charles Felber.

—Prof. Ivison, of Lonaconing, Md., suffered terribly from neuralgia of the stomach and indigestion for thirteen years and after the doctors failed to cure him they fed him on morphine. A friend advised the use of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure and after taking a few bottles of it he says: "It has cured me entirely, I can't say too much for Kodol Dyspepsia Cure." It digests what you eat. L. W. Randolph.

Frank Mogall, of West Third street, is seriously ill with the grip.

—When you are bilious, use those famous little pills known as DeWitt's Little Early Risers to cleanse the liver and bowels. They never gripe. L. W. Randolph.

CUBANS UNEASY.

Radicals Will Not Accept the Platt Amendment.

HAVANA, March 11.—Although the political demonstrations have ended, the radical element in the Cuban constitutional convention has not given up hope that the United States will recede from the position taken regarding the Platt amendment. The radical press is doing everything in its power to keep this view before the public. It attributes the action of the United States congress to the influence of the trusts, declaring that the American people "are in favor of giving Cuba absolute independence and of rebuking the action of the administration." Articles from American papers which seem to sustain the attitude of the convention are given wide publicity.

Senor Gualberto Gomez says in La Patria:

"Let us, the champions of our country's independence and sovereignty, preserve the calm, dignified attitude we have assumed. Do not let us lose our calm judgment. Let us maintain our energetic resolution to be free, but let us avoid furnishing the slightest pretext for the unhealthy imperialism which is corrupting the blood of a generous people and inclining them to trample upon our rights.

"Let us still have faith in the justice of our cause and in the honor of the country which produced Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln."

Thus far the radical members of the convention remain firm in their determination not to accept the Platt amendment. The committee on foreign relations will meet today, but a final report is not expected for several days.

A HOT WATER MOTOR.

Successful Test of Power From Superheated Water.

NEW YORK, March 11.—On the New York and Putnam railroad Saturday a demonstration was made of a new application of power for the purpose of propelling cars which experts present declared to be not only one of the greatest discoveries of the present age, but also one that was bound to revolutionize suburban traffic the world over.

What the experiment was meant to show was the possibility of feeding into an engine like the ordinary engine water heated to something like 500 degrees F. and converting that water into steam without interfering in any way with the proper action of the engine and then making it give up the heat power stored in it to propel the car of which the engine was a part.

That the experiment was a success every one who attended it was ready to attest.

Wilson Memorial Fund Growing.

LEXINGTON, Va., March 11.—With each mail the William L. Wilson endowment fund grows slowly but surely. Since the last report by Treasurer Herbert Welsh of Philadelphia there was received in one day $1,650 from various sources. Former President Grover Cleveland, the chairman of the committee fund, sent in a check for $500 which was sent to him by a well known statesman whose name was requested to be withheld for the present. Professor Henry S. G. Tucker, acting president of Washington and Lee university, received from Dr. Hunter Powell of Cleveland a check for $1,000, which was contributed by John H. Brown, a well known citizen of Cleveland.

Mrs. Nation's Work Bears Fruit.

TOPEKA, March 11.—The result of Mrs. Nation's crusade was shown in 50 Kansas towns where Republican primaries were held for city officers. Without a single exception Kansas towns voted for "law and order' and against saloons and "joints." Four-fifths of this vote was for prohibition. In Topeka and other towns sleet, snow and finally rain did not deter them. Dispatches state that the women abandoned social functions and used their carriages in taking men and women to the polls who would agree to vote against saloons.

A Railroad War.

SYRACUSE, March 11.—There is a merry war on between the Marcellus Electric railway and the village of Marcellus, this county. The railroad's franchise was recently rescinded, but at 3 o'clock yesterday morning the company started a gang of men laying tracks. The village officers ordered the work stopped, but were not obeyed. Trouble seemed near, but cooler heads finally prevailed. The courts will probably be asked to interfere.

Roberts Returned Kaiser's Gift.

BERLIN, March 11.—It is rumored in court circles that Earl Roberts "thankfully returned" to Emperor William the insignia of the order of the Black Eagle conferred at the time of the kaiser's visit to England after noticing the unfavorable comment in the German press upon the bestowal of the honor. This would explain the omission of the customary announcement in the Reichsanzeiger of the conferring of such a distinction.

Glass Plant Destroyed.

GREENSBURG, Pa., March 11.—The Standard Glass company's plant, located near the County Home junction, south of here, has been totally destroyed by fire. The plant was recently leased from the National Glass company and was to be started up in full today with a large number of men. The cause of the fire is attributed to an explosion of gas. The loss is estimated at $50,000.

Railway Collision In Belgium.

BRUSSELS, March 11.—A serious railway accident occurred yesterday at Heule, near Courtrai, Belgium. A passenger train going at full speed struck a freight train. The engineer of the former train and two passengers were killed, and many others were dangerously wounded. Several cars were literally reduced to splinters.

President Diaz Gaining.

CITY OF MEXICO, March 11.—The Official Gazette, published by the government, announces that President Diaz will return here within a fortnight in order to preside over the cabinet session which will discuss his coming message to congress, which opens next month. All reports agree that the president is steadily gaining in strength.

The Emperor's Wound Healing.

BERLIN, March 11.—Emperor William's wound is healing, the swelling of the eyelids is subsiding, and his majesty's general condition is satisfactory.

The Manchesters In Ireland.

DUBLIN, March 11.—The Duke and Duchess of Manchester arrived yesterday at Tanderagee castle.

COMMISSIONERS SAIL

More Provincial Governments For Luzon Towns.

NATIVES GIVE THEM A SEND OFF.

Insurgents Surrender Five Hundred Rifles In Pampanga Province. Many Converts Reported—A Movement to Stop Smuggling.

MANILA, March 11.—Judge Taft and his associates of the United States Philippine commission, accompanied by their wives and a number of prominent Filipinos, embarked yesterday on the United States transport Sumner and sailed for Lucena, province of Tayabas, Luzon, where they will organize a provincial government. At the time of their departure the pier was thronged with natives, who cheered the commissioners and gave many other proofs of the popularity of the commission.

The insurgents have surrendered 500 rifles in the provinces of Pampanga, Bulacan and Bataan during the last four weeks.

The Methodists report 120 converts in Manila last week, and the Philippine Evangelical church claims to have secured many new members.

It is reported that the small steamers, the Oriente and the Carman, plying on the Pasig river and Laguna de Bay, have been seized, it being alleged that they were trading with the insurgents. Contraband articles were found aboard the steamers.

The Oriente had been seized previously, but had been released, the evidence against her not being sufficient to justify her being held.

This time, however, the evidence of illegal trading is stronger. The authorities are determined to stop smuggling on Laguna de Bay, and other arrests may follow.

Frank A. Brannigan, disbursing officer to the American Philippines commission, has been appointed treasurer of the Philippine archipelago at a yearly salary of $6,000. Brannigan furnishes bonds in $200,000.

The commission has passed a bill providing an additional $1,000,000 in Mexican currency to the $2,000,000 for the improvement of Manila harbor and an act empowering General MacArthur to organize municipal governments in those towns where none now exists.

Colonel Murray of the Forty-third United States volunteer infantry has received the surrender of 44 insurgent officers and men at the port of Tacloban, on Leyte island.

Captain Gulick of the Forty-seventh United States volunteer infantry has received the surrender of 40 insurgent officers and 200 men.

Mitchell and the Mining Situation.

SCRANTON, Pa., March 11.—President John Mitchell of the United Mine Workers spent yesterday here on his way to the Hazleton convention. He reiterated the statement made by him at Indianapolis that the posting of notices by the operators to the effect that the present terms of employment would be continued for another year was not satisfactory. "In my judgment," said Mr. Mitchell, "the proper way to adjust wages and insure uninterrupted employment is to have annual conferences between the operators and the employees, as is done in the soft coal region. There is no good reason why the operators should not confer with the organization. Last fall they claimed the organization did not represent the miners. That excuse cannot be put forward now. Practically speaking, every miner in the region is now enrolled in the organization."

To Legalize Polygamy.

SALT LAKE CITY, March 11.—Polygamy may be practiced without fear of prosecution under a law which has passed the Utah senate. The new law grants immunity from prosecution except under the United States statute to all persons living in polygamy. The federal statute applies only to the celebration of a plural marriage. The avowed object of this act, which was passed at the dictation of the Mormon church, is to allow men now having several wives to live with them undisturbed. In consequence preparations are already being made to resume openly polygamous relations. The measure, which is known as the Evans bill, passed the senate Saturday. It will be put through the house probably under "gag" rule.

Kicked to Death by a Horse.

TRENTON, March 11.—Thomas Applegate, a farmer living at Extonville, about ten miles from here, was found dead in his barn yesterday morning with his head crushed in. Owing to threats that had been made by white caps to punish Applegate for ill treating his family it was at first thought that he had been murdered. A thorough investigation was made by Coroner Bower and County Physician Rogers. Both are satisfied that Applegate was kicked to death by a horse.

Ecuador Warned.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, March 11.—The government of Jamaica, acting on behalf of the British government, has sent a strong protest to the president of Ecuador against the employment of soldiers to compel thousands of laborers from Jamaica to work under the McDonald syndicate in the construction of the railroad from Guayaquil to Quito. The protest is almost an ultimatum, as it calls for an immediate discontinuance of the coercive measures.

Old Stage Driver Dead.

SAN JOSE, Cal., March 11.—William Buckley, a pioneer stage driver and owner, is dead. He was born in Albany in 1828 and drove a stage in the Mohawk valley and along the old post road to New York city. He brought the first stagecoach across the continent from St. Louis to Salt Lake City in 1847.

Vassar's Big Farm Enlarged.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., March 11.—Vassar college has leased the Boardman farm of 400 acres to give pasturage for a herd of cattle, enlarged because of the growing student population. The college farm now embraces 1,000 acres of land.

Neck Broken by a Fall.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., March 11.—An unknown man, evidently of Irish descent and about 50 years of age, supposed to be a tramp paper maker, fell from a railroad bridge while intoxicated. He struck on his head on a floating cake of ice and was taken from the water dead. His neck was broken.

EARL LI IS VERY ILL.

Life Hangs by a Thread, Say Physicians.

FALSE REPORTS OF COURT'S PLANS.

Generally Believed That the Empress Dowager Would Be Glad to Return to Peking Under Certain Assurances.

PEKING, March 11.—Li Hung Chang is again seriously ill, and his physician says his life hangs by a thread.

Prince Ching and Earl Li seem to think that by spreading rumors of the court's unwillingness to return to Peking unless this or that is done they can influence the deliberations of the ministers of the powers. As a matter of fact, according to reliable reports from Sian-fu, the imperial personages are extremely uncomfortable at Sian-fu, where they live in the house of the governor, which is only a small structure. French missionaries who have just returned here from Sian-fu believe the empress dowager would bring the court back to Peking on the first offer of the allies, having as a basis the removal of the troops except the legation guards.

The foreign envoys will not hold a general meeting until tomorrow, owing to the absence of M. Pichon, the French minister at Pao-ting-fu.

The United States signal corps will be ready to leave in a week, according to instructions. No transport has been announced, however.

Gloom has been cast over the entire American command by the death of Captain Richard B. Paddock of the Sixth United States cavalry, who died at Tientsin of pneumonia. The funeral services will be held today.

CHINESE HAVE SIGNED.

Manchuria Convention Assured by Russia's Gift.

LONDON, March 11.—"Chinese signature of the Manchurian convention is practically assured," says the St. Petersburg correspondent of The Daily Mail, "because Russia last August sent to the empress dowager 7,500 poods of bar silver."

"The Japanese battleship Hatsuse, just completed in England, has been ordered to proceed hither with all possible speed," says the Yokohama correspondent of The Daily Mail. "Other orders given to the Japanese navy indicate the seriousness with which the Japanese government views the situation in the far east.

"Well informed Japanese regard Russia's action in Manchuria as a gigantic bluff, inspired by the notion that England's hands are tied in South Africa, but as Germany is only half hearted in the maintenance of Chinese integrity a coalition with Japan is improbable, and Japan is too much embarrassed in her finances to do more than to protest and to endeavor to secure compensating advantages in Korea."

"It is not likely that the powers will oppose the schemes of Russia," says the Peking correspondent of The Morning Post, wiring Saturday. "The situation is regarded as very gloomy. Even the Chinese plenipotentiaries declare openly that intervention by the powers is not desirable unless they are prepared to back up their protests.

"There are reports from the province of Shansi that the Chinese are constructing extensive fortifications and mobilizing large bodies of troops to resist an advance of the allies.

"General Chaffee refuses to allow the decapitation of several notorious Boxer chiefs, guilty of murder, whom a Chinese judge has condemned. The Americans are the only foreigners who have carried out no executions in Peking."

Chinese Leaders Will Resist.

SHANGHAI, March 11.—Dispatches from Lan-chau assert that General Tung Fu Hsiang, with 20,000 men, and Prince Tuan, with 10,000 men, are at Ning-hsu, prepared to resist arrest. The China Gazette announces that Sheng, the taotai, has memorialized the throne in favor of the abolition of the likin duties and that all the viceroys and governors support him.

Still Punishing China.

BERLIN, March 11.—The war office has received the following dispatch from Count von Waldersee, dated Peking, March 10: "Colonel Ledebur's column stormed a gate of the Great wall 80 miles west of Pao-ting-fu Friday, March 8, capturing four guns."

A Bloody Rain In Sicily.

PALERMO, March 11.—A strange phenomenon is now being witnessed here. For many hours a heavy red cloud has extended over the city, the sky being a deep red. The rain now falling resembles drops of coagulated blood. This phenomenon, which is called "bloody rain," is attributed to dust from the African deserts, transported by the heavy south wind now blowing. A dispatch from Rome says the phenomenon now to be seen there extends also over southern Italy. At Rome the sky is yellow, and at Naples a rain of sand has fallen, the heavens being dark red.

Would Check Balkan Outbreak.

LONDON, March 11.—"It is reported that Russia is seeking the support of the powers in a scheme to prevent a sudden outbreak in the Balkans," says the Vienna correspondent of The Morning Post. "She proposes that Servia, Bulgaria and Greece should greatly reduce their armies on condition that the powers give a pledge to protect their independence. It is asserted that the assent of Great Britain and Austria has already been obtained."

Telegraphers to Make Demands.

NEW YORK, March 11.—The telegraphers in the service of the Central Railroad of New Jersey will today, through their grievance committee, meet General Superintendent Olhausen and demand a minimum scale of wages of $50 per month. Their wages now range from $40 to $65. They will also ask for annual passes and the customary trip passes as well as shorter hours for the towermen.

Blooded Stock Burned.

SYRACUSE, March 11.—A special from Massena says the stock barns of the St. Lawrence Power company, near Massena Springs, were burned, and 14 blooded Jerseys were lost. The Exchange hotel at Colton was also burned. The loss was total.

DE WET'S ESCAPE.

Almost Impossible to Trap Him Now. Few Boers In Cape Colony.

LONDON, March 11.—The Times publishes the following dispatch from Aasvogel Kop:

"General De Wet has escaped northward by a forced march with 400 men. His objective is believed to be the vicinity of Kroonstadt.

"Four other Boer leaders are still in the southwestern part of Orange River Colony.

"Now that General De Wet is back in his own country it will be almost impossible to operate against him. Just so soon as he is pressed his commando dissolves to meet again a few days later.

"Only a few bands of Boers are now left in Cape Colony."

No further news has been received concerning the negotiations between Lord Kitchener and General Botha. The Daily Express says it hears that Lord Kitchener declared the surrender must be unconditional, while the question of the future treatment of the Boers was referred to London.

It is asserted that Mr. Kruger through Dr. Leyds has sent a long telegram to Mr. Schalkburger, acting president of the South African Republic, asking for details regarding the negotiations.

THE NEW STAR.

Marvelous Changes Since Its Discovery.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 11.—A report of photographic observations at Harvard college observatory of the new star in the constellation of Perseus just issued shows that this remarkable Nova has been undergoing very rapid changes. It was discovered last month by the Rev. T. D. Anderson of Edinburgh, and the news of his discovery reached Harvard on Feb. 22, when an examination of photographs of Perseus taken on Feb. 19 proved that at that date the new star was invisible or fainter than a star of the eleventh magnitude.

Three days later Mr. Anderson observed its magnitude to be 2.7, and on Feb. 23 the Harvard observations showed that it was a star of the first magnitude, but it then began to diminish slowly in brightness. During the interval between the 19th and the 23d ult. the intensity of the Nova's light increased, according to the astronomical rule of computation, more than 10,000 times.

As this enormous, flaming, flashing world is so remote from us that the tremendous outburst of its light has taken nearly a century to reach the earth it is not surprising that no very definite theory of its sudden conflagration has yet been put forth.

Former President Harrison Worse.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 11.—The condition of former President Benjamin Harrison is serious. Dr. Jameson states that the upper part of General Harrison's left lung is inflamed. There is some danger of the congestion extending to the rest of the lung and to the right lung. The change for the worse came at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. General Harrison was resting easily, but at that time he became slightly worse, and Dr. Jameson was called. He said that he was certain nothing was to be apprehended for the next 48 hours, but the age of the patient renders all calculations uncertain. General Harrison is suffering some pain, but resting comparatively easy.

Railway Station Burned.

NEW YORK, March 11.—The passenger station of the Harlem division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad at Willis avenue and One Hundred and Thirty-second street, in the borough of the Bronx, was destroyed by fire last evening. The firemen say that the low pressure of water was responsible. The fire department lost no time in getting to the fire; but, try as they would, the engines were unable to raise a stream that would carry more than 20 feet in the air. Nearly $1,000,000 worth of freight records were destroyed. One of the engineers of the road had valuable charts stored in a locker, and these also were destroyed.

Cashier Still Missing.

NILES, Mich., March 11.—Cashier Charles A. Johnson of the First National bank, which closed its doors Friday, is still missing. The bank officials refuse to talk. The bank examiner worked on the books all day, but will divulge nothing. Johnson's friends still insist that he is deranged mentally as a result of the shock of the bank's suspension and is in Chicago. However, they do not give his address in that city.

The Nation Verdict Sealed.

WICHITA, Kan., March 11.—A sealed verdict was returned last night in the case of the state versus Mrs. Carrie Nation, Lucy Wilhoite, Julia Evans and Lydia Muntz, charged with wrecking a saloon here on Jan. 21. The verdict will be read in the district court today. Eleven of the jurymen are said at first to have favored conviction. The jury deliberated 24 hours.

Postoffice Robbed.

TOLEDO, March 11.—Six masked men secured tools from a blacksmith shop early yesterday morning and breaking into the West Toledo postoffice blew the safe open with nitroglycerin and secured $700. The safe was demolished and the building wrecked. They fired several shots at citizens who were aroused by the explosion and drove away in a wagon.

Spanish Gunboat Ashore.

MADRID, March 11.—The Spanish gunboat Ponce de Leon is ashore near Huelva, about 50 miles southwest of Seville. At the next council of the ministers the dates for the dissolution of parliament and the general election will be fixed. In official circles it is denied that two bands of Carlists have made their appearance in Catalonia.

Fire In Great Barrington, Mass.

GREAT BARRINGTON, March 11.—The Mahaiwe building, the largest business structure in town, was burned last night, causing a total loss of about $65,000, of which $25,000 is on the building and the balance distributed among the numerous tenants. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Catholic Church Burned.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., March 11.—The Catholic church at Lyon Mountain, N. Y., 30 miles west of here, of which the Rev. Father Ginqua Mars is pastor, was totally destroyed by fire at noon yesterday, entailing a loss of $1,500, partially covered by insurance.

ADJOURNMENT IN SIGHT.

New York Legislature Will Close Early In April.

ALBANY, March 11.—With the Ramapo fight settled, the administration tax bills well on their way to final passage and the Brackett amendments to the corporation and stock law practically completed, ready for final debate, legislative leaders are beginning to guess a day of adjournment. Neither the governor nor Majority Leaders Nixon and Ellsworth have definitely decided upon a date, but it is thought that the speaker's gavel will fall on the sine die session within the first ten days of April.

In the meantime the Stranahan mortgage tax and excise law amendment bills will come up for a great share of attention. The mortgage tax bill which was introduced last week is practically the same bill which Senator Stranahan introduced last year, but which he was compelled to abandon because of the heavy opposition to it. This year Senator Stranahan says he feels positive he can pass the bill, as it is a legislative tax year and everything bearing the label of tax is "booked to go through" despite all opposition.

Hearings will be given, it is expected, some time during the present week on both the mortgage tax bill and the excise law amendment.

Liquor dealers from all over the state will very likely put up a most vigorous fight at the hearing on the excise law bill. The bill proposes to make it absolutely impossible for a fake Raines law hotel to exist. It defines the guest of a hotel as a person whose intention in coming to the hotel is to procure bed or board. The hotel must beyond all doubt be engaged in the business of furnishing bed and board to permanent guests. Persons patronizing such hotel for meals alone must show that they have frequented the place at the time meals were served and not as a drinking resort. Raines law hotel keepers are already girding for the fray, and the hearing is likely to be one of the most exciting of the session.

Two of Governor Odell's tax bills, one taxing insurance companies and the other the surplus of savings banks, will be on the second reading calendar in the assembly for tonight.

The Plague In Cape Town.

CAPE TOWN, March 11.—The official reports regarding the progress of the bubonic plague in Cape Town since the outbreak show a total of 22 deaths and 102 cases. The Malays gathered yesterday to oppose the removal of a Malay who had been attacked by the disease and of several persons who had come into contact with the victim. The police were overpowered, and the persons who had come into contact with the Malay made their escape. In the event of a repetition of this experience it will be necessary to employ an armed force, so that trouble is anticipated.

Boiled Alive.

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., March 11.—Howard Frost of Elizabeth, N. J., a mechanical engineer, received terrible scalds while at work in one of the large boilers at the Stanley works. Frost was inside the boiler when a steam gauge blew out and turned on the full pressure of steam and hot water. He was dragged out by workmen, but not until the entire upper part of his body had been practically parboiled. He is not expected to live.

Private Bank Burglarized.

ARGONIA, Kan., March 11.—The private bank of J. P. Springer was burglarized here by three men and $2,600 in cash and $4,000 in registered government 3 per cent bonds secured. The robbers secured their tools from the Santa Fe section house near by. The vault was entered through the brick wall, and the safe was blown open with nitroglycerin. The robbery was not known until morning.

Addition to Sibley College.

ITHACA, N. Y., March 11.—An addition to Sibley College of Mechanical Engineering, the gift of Hiram Sibley, Jr., of Rochester, son of the donor of Sibley college, is to be built at once. The building will cost $85,000 and will be erected between the old Sibley and the new Sibley, joining them and giving the north end of the campus a building almost 400 feet long.

A Ministerial Black Sheep.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., March 11.—Judge Seaman in the United States district court has ordered Rev. John S. Reynolds taken to Colorado to stand trial at Colorado Springs on the charge of embezzlement while acting as postmaster there. Mr. Reynolds has just concluded a two year term at the Chester (Ills.) penitentiary for bigamy.

Heavy Snowfall In Missouri.

KANSAS CITY, March 11.—A snowstorm, one of the severest of the winter, has visited western Missouri and northern Kansas. While the fall was not heavy it drifted badly. The Missouri Pacific had a passenger train stuck in a drift for six hours near Jamestown, Kan. There are bad drifts on a number of Missouri Pacific branches.

Countess Not Guilty.

BERLIN, March 11.—The trial of Countess von Schlieben, accused of having set fire to her own villa in order to obtain the insurance money, which began Friday in Berlin, ended at half past 2 Sunday morning in a verdict of acquittal. The countess was immediately liberated.

Riot In Madrid.

MADRID, March 11.—During a riot against the city tax last evening the mob stoned the municipal employees engaged in collecting the tax and set fire to ten sentry boxes. Four persons were injured, one of them seriously. Order was finally restored by the prefect.

Alabama Did Not Sail.

PENSACOLA, Fla., March 11.—There was a severe storm on the gulf, and on account of the high seas the battleship Alabama did not sail on her trial trip. All the preparations were made for the trial, and the postponement is only to await favorable weather.

FIERCE MARCH GALES

Many States Suffer Loss of Life and Property.

HEAVY DAMAGE CAUSED IN CHICAGO.

Telephone and Telegraph Lines Badly Crippled Throughout the Middle West—Tornado Cuts Wide Swath In Texas.

CHICAGO, March 11.—One of the worst windstorms of the season struck Chicago early yesterday and during the two hours that it was at its height damaged property throughout the city to the extent of $175,000. Many heavy plate glass windows were blown in. Telegraph and telephone companies were the worst sufferers, and it will be some time before order can be restored. Thousands of poles were blown down, and Chicago was practically isolated from the west and northwest by telephone and telegraph.

The long distance telephone service was crippled so badly that it was of little value. Up to a late hour last night neither Milwaukee nor Minneapolis could be reached by long distance telephone.

The storm is believed to have been most severe in southern Wisconsin. Along a short stretch of the Milwaukee road in southern Wisconsin 500 telegraph poles are down.

Reports from many points in Indiana and Kentucky also indicate heavy damage from the storm. The Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies suffered severely by fallen poles. It was estimated that there were not fewer than 5,000 poles in the city thrown down by the fury of the wind and storm. Service almost as far west as Omaha was stopped until late in the evening.

Trains entering Chicago were delayed all the way from ten minutes to one hour. The Burlington and Milwaukee and St. Paul companies were the worst sufferers in this respect. All the roads suffered damage to their tracks and switch yards.

At the life saving station at the mouth of the Chicago river it was considered the worst gale which has struck Chicago harbor since 1894. The water, lashed into fury, came up to the life saving station and flooded the floor for the first time in 12 years. Most of the shipping was protected in winter quarters, so that the damage done to it was slight.

Many Texas Towns Visited.

HOUSTON, March 11.—News from Saturday's storm is now coming from northeast Texas. The casualties were small considering the amount of territory visited, but there are four dead and five believed to be dying at Wills Point, where the property loss will reach $100,000. Five persons were badly hurt at New Boston, though not fatally. A number of houses were wrecked. The property loss there will reach $75,000. At Blossom no one was seriously injured, but the damage to residences was great. At and near Emery, Raines county, one man was killed, and several persons were hurt, two seriously. The damage to property was heavy. The wind was accompanied by heavy rain, which, with hail, did considerable damage in the rural districts. The storm was first reported from Uvalde, on the Mexican border, where a church was wrecked. Several towns between Uvalde and Wills Point report small damage, but it was not until the last named place was reached that the tornado's effect was felt.

Kentucky Storm Swept.

FULTON, Ky., March 11.—In the terrific storm that swept over this section the damage was greatest at Clinton and Hickman. At Clinton 20 negro cabins were demolished, two negroes being mortally hurt and many others badly bruised. Part of Marvin college was unroofed, and the waterworks plant was destroyed. Eight freight cars on the Illinois Central switch at the depot at Clinton were blown from the track. The Baptist church at Hickman was destroyed by the wind. A large number of tenant houses and barns were blown down in Fulton and Hickman counties, and the loss of property is large.

Michigan Telephones Crippled.

DETROIT, March 11.—Over 10,000 telephones were rendered useless yesterday by the rain which fell and froze during the entire morning. The 30 mile an hour wind which accompanied the rain raised havoc with the wires, weighed down as they were by ice. Officials of the Michigan Telephone company estimate their total loss in the state at $20,000. Street car service was greatly impaired during the morning by the ice. The storm was general throughout the southern part of the state, wires suffering everywhere.

Cloudburst and Lightning.

ROCHESTER, March 11.—A severe thunder and lightning storm passed over Rochester between 9 and 10 o'clock last night. At Charlotte, seven miles from here, there was a cloudburst. The village was flooded, and considerable damage was done. At the same time lightning struck the barns on the stock farm of ex-Congressman Halbert S. Greenleaf, and they were burned to the ground, together with their contents, consisting of 43 blooded Jersey cows, 24 thoroughbred horses and 200 tons of hay and straw.

Tornado In Indiana.

PRINCETON, Ind., March 11.—This city was struck by a tornado late Saturday night. One dwelling was wrecked, several others were moved from their foundations, and hundreds of outbuildings were demolished. No lives were lost. The courthouse and the high school building were much damaged. Hundreds of windows, many of plate glass, were blown in.

Much Damage In Arkansas.

LITTLE ROCK, March 11.—The heavy rain, wind and thunder storms which swept over Arkansas did great damage. At Conway 15 business houses were unroofed, three others were blown down and many stores flooded. Reports from Pine Prairie say that a tornado struck there, wrecking everything in its path. A boy named Turner was killed.

Brutal Lisbon Police.

LISBON, March 11.—As the result of a manifestation against the Jesuits by students of the Polytechnic school the police entered the institution and struck many with swords. Among the wounded are some infantry and cavalry cadets. The affair has caused lively indignation, and the assembled students have passed resolutions, addressed to the house of peers and chamber of deputies, denouncing the brutality of the police.

COMING EVENTS

March 18--Last entertainment in Y. M. C. A. Star Course.

The People's Paper.

Some borough politicians who believe in strict allegiance to party under all circumstances and who cannot understand the feelings of the independent voter or "mugwump," as they choose to call him, have criticised The Daily Press because it has not taken a stand in favor of one side or the other in the present campaign in North Plainfield. Being unable to take a fair and impartial view of the situation themselves, they are unable to see why anyone else should wish to do so.

As has been stated many times, The Daily Press is independent in politics and will continue to be so. Both sides will be treated fairly. While the political parties in city and borough maintain their present high standard and the rights and liberties of the citizens of the two municipalities are not menaced, The Daily Press will not enter into any partizan warfare. If it should ever happen that any municipal officials or political party should attempt any measure that will affect the welfare and good name of Plainfield and North Plainfield, The Daily Press will be found where it always is on such occasions, on the side of good government and the best interests of the people.

The Daily Press is the peoples' newspaper as it has often demonstrated and it will continue to oppose any plan or act which is not for their best interests. The people of Plainfield appreciate this fact as is shown by the steady increase in our circulation. The Daily Press gives the news of Plainfield and vicinity in fair impartial form and keeps its readers thoroughly in touch with the existing state of affairs in the community. Even the most partisan of its readers are glad to scan its columns as they know that there they will find the news of the day carefully and truthfully told.

While there are a number of prominent Republican newspapers in Union county the Democrats of this county have heretofore been without any representative daily journal in the field to defend their cause. There are several staunch Democratic weeklies published throughout the county but they fail to reach the bulk of the voters. So some of the leading Democrats have formed a company which will soon begin the publication of a Democratic daily in Elizabeth where they believe that their best opportunity exists. William W. St. John, who was for five years city editor of The Daily Press, will be editor and business manager of the new publication. Mr. St. John is a bright, energetic newspaperman and may be expected to devote his utmost efforts to make this new venture a success. He has the best wishes of his Plainfield friends in the new undertaking.

The adjourned meeting of the Common Council next week will practically be a public hearing on the proposed sewer ordinance. This ordinance provides for the changes at the sewage disposal beds as suggested by Engineer J. O. Osgood. Its full text has been already published in The Daily Press. If anybody has any strong objections against that plan or else has some other plan to suggest, he will do well to visit the Council chamber this evening or else forever after hold his peace.

It is no easy thing to successfully manage an amateur dramatic performance, particularly when it is given on the scale of the production of "The Private Secretary" which was given at Music Hall by local talent last month. Former Mayor W. L. Saunders was remarkably successful in his management of that play and has just made his final statement of the finances of the affair. The statement shows that $473.80 was netted and will be divided among Plainfield's charities.

Tomorrow will bring to an end the series of evangelistic meetings which have been in progress in this city for the past two weeks. It can be truthfully said that these services have been the most far-reaching in their influence of any ever held in this city. While this Gospel campaign has already resulted in many conversions, the meetings have been entirely free from all sensationalism, although very earnest and impressive.

Are the voters of North Plainfield satisfied with the present administration of borough affairs? That is a question the answer to which a great many people would like to know. It will be answered tomorrow.

The teams from the Westfield Club and the Roselle Casino are still to meet in The Daily Press Bowling League. On that series of games the result of the League depends.

In North Plainfield township, one of the issues before the voters in tomorrow's election is the question of the extension of the trolley line to Watchung.

There will be an election of local officials in all the boroughs and townships of the State tomorrow.

It is the duty of every citizen of the borough to visit the polls tomorrow and cast his ballot.

TWO INTERESTING CASES.

Plainfield Interested in Two Suits Decided By the Court of Errors.

In the present term of the Court of Errors and Appeals, two cases have been argued in which Plainfield people are interested. The one was the case of Annie M. Matthews against John Mullins & Sons, which was taken to the Court of Errors on a writ of error taking up the judgment which Mrs. Matthews had obtained against Mullins & Sons for $1,500, obtained in the Union County Circuit Court, the object of the writ being to obtain a new trial if possible. Mrs. Matthews was represented by Codington & Swackhamer, and Mullins & Sons by Vredenburgh, Wall & VanWinkle, of Jersey City.

The other case was that of the city of Summit against August C. Hahr. This is a case in which August C. Hahr was convicted of violating the license ordinance of Summit. Hahr's attorneys, Codington & Swackhamer, certioraried the case to the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court reversed the judgment of the police justice of Summit, and then Summit took the case to the highest court on writ of error. The Court of Errors on Friday last unanimously confirmed the decision Summit must necessarily pay all costs. C. N. Williams, of Summit, and Adams & McCarter, of Newark, appeared for Summit.

Strikes a Rich Find.

"I was troubled for several years with chronic indigestion and nervous debility," writes F. J. Green, of Lancaster, N. H. "No remedy helped me until I began using Electric Bitters, which did me more good than all the medicines I ever used. They have also kept my wife in excellent health for years. She says Electric Bitters are just splendid for female troubles; that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak, run down women. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by L. W. Randolph.

Twenty-fifth Anniversary.

Friday afternoon and evening the Park Avenue Baptist church will observe its twenty-fifth anniversary. A very fine programme has been arranged which will be of great interest to all. Among the speakers will be Rev. Asa Reed Dilts, formerly pastor, and Rev. Harry Lowry, son of Dr. Lowry, first pastor of the church.

Is Not Employing Non-union Men.

Mayor N. B. Smalley says a rumor has come to his ears which charges him with employing non-union men for work on the new building being constructed by Smalley Brothers on North avenue. The Mayor desires an emphatic denial to be recorded against this statement.

—Their promptness and their pleasant effects make DeWitt's Little Early Risers most popular little pills wherever they are known. They are simply perfect for liver and bowel troubles. L. W. Randolph.

Gentlemen:—My mamma has been a great coffee drinker and has found it very injurious. Having used several packages of your GRAIN-O, the drink that takes the place of coffee, she finds it much better for herself and for us children to drink. She has given up coffee drinking entirely. We use a package of Grain-O every week. I am ten years old.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence.)

Dunellen, March 11—Tonight will see the wind up of an interesting borough campaign, in which the respective political forces have spent so much effort and time in fostering the booms of the vatious nominees of the two parties. Tomorrow the citizens will be confronted with the necessity of having to choose those who are to govern and to fill the various offices for the ensuing terms. The offices that are to be voted for are Mayor, two members of the Council, an assessor to fill an expired term, a freeholder and a constable. The polls will be opened at 6 o'clock in the morning and close at 7 at night. The judges of election are Eugene Runyon and S. C. Stables and the clerks Harry Gaskill and George W. Day. The vote polled will no doubt be the heaviest in years as the campaign has been the most interesting the borough has seen in some time.

Although a quorum was present at the meeting of the Dunellen Gun Club held on the grounds Saturday afternoon, those who attended deemed it advisable to postpone the election of officers. A meeting will be held some evening this week at which time it will be decided when the election will take place. The weather Saturday was not at all conducive to good shooting but a number of the more enthusiastic members spent several hours at the traps.

Garretson & Gray have commenced filling spring orders from their reserve stock of stone and within a week or ten days will resume work at the old crusher.

The Mandolin, Banjo and Guitar Club will meet this evening at the residence of Miss Weatherwax at 7:30 o'clock for the regular rehearsal.

J. Y. Wilson returned Saturday after a three weeks visit with his daughter, Mrs. Cortez Clawson, of Salem, West Va.

Miss Martha Kratzel was the guest of relatives at Westfield Saturday.

NEW MARKET.

New Market, March 11—For the second time Saturday, the Board of Education was unable to secure a quorum for the purpose of settling accounts in connection with the building of the South Plainfield school. A third attempt will be made tomorrow when the board will meet at Dr. Whitford's office at 10 o'clock.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church held their social Saturday evening at the residence of Mrs. A. H. Burdick. There was a very good attendance and all present enjoyed themselves thoroughly.

The Sunshine Mission Band of the Seventh-Day Baptist church will hold their anniversary on the evening of March 16.

The polls at the Hotel Nelson will be opened during the usual hours tomorrow for the township election.

Mrs. Samuel Pyatt is able to be out after a brief confinement to the house by illness.

Miss Florence Nelson has nearly recovered from a severe attack of the grip.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence.)

Scotch Plains, March 11—The ticket named at the borough primary Thursday evening may meet with opposition at the polls tomorrow, as it is said there will be an independent ticket in the field. The Citizens' ticket will be as follows: For mayor, Thomas S. Young; councilman, three years, Wright Babcock, W. E Collins, two years, Frank D. Warren; commissioner of appeal, Harry P. Robison. There will be a hot fight over the proposed plan of bonding the borough for the purpose of changing the present crushed stone walks to concrete.

The Saturday Night Club, of the borough, held another of their delightful Saturday night hops in the borough fire house Saturday evening. Dancing was the feature of the evening's enjoyment for the younger set, while those who did not care for this enjoyed the evening with cards and social talk.

The house committee, of the Public Library Association, will be able to turn into the Library treasury about $20, as a result of their efforts at the rummage sale held Wednesday and Friday of last week in the Marsh building.

The township election held tomorrow in Excelsior Hall promises to bring out a large vote for a spring election, and both parties are working hard to get out as much of the vote as possible.

Edward Johnston led the weekly meeting of the Baptist Young Peoples' Union in the Baptist church last night. Subject, "A Castaway."

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Apgar and children were the guests yesterday of relatives and friends in Plainfield.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

(Special Correspondence.)

South Plainfield, March 11.—Announcements were made at the Baptist church yesterday of an entertainment to be given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, in Washington Hall, Friday evening, and of the Farther Light meeting Saturday night at the home of Mrs. R. B. Manning.

Chas. Brantingham is unable to go to work today as expected, having contracted a slight attack of the grip.

Miss Gunther, of Metuchen, has returned home after a two days' visit with Nellie Manning.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Smith have been entertaining out-of-town friends.

The P. O. of A. meets tonight in Washington Hall at 7:30 o'clock.

Mrs. William Manning is confined to the house by a slight illness.

A. W. FISH DEAD.

Passed Away at the Home of His Brother in Chicago.

Andrew W. Fish, a former Plainfield resident, died Saturday at the home of his brother, Roswell P. Fish, of Chicago, after a lingering illness. At the time of his death he was approaching three score and ten and during the latter part of his life he had resided on Franklin place, leaving this city for the west but one year ago. He was a commission merchant for years, with a New York office.

In addition to the brother in Chicago he is survived by another brother, Frederick K. Fish, of Grant avenue, a sister, Miss Virginia Fish, of this city, and a daughter, Miss Emma V. Fish, of Brooklyn. He was a member of the Park Avenue Baptist church.

Mr. French Explains.

Elston M. French, the Democratic nominee for re-election to the assessorship, states in explanation of the allegation that he assessed persons for poll tax in 1900 who were dead or had removed from the borough, that the list is made up May 20 and the names of all those who have died or removed are stricken from it. He adds that the names of those dying or removing subsequent to the compilation of the lists are not stricken off and that this no doubt has been the cause of the rumor.

Endorsed Mahil.

Nearly every member of the local branch of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers was present at the meeting held Saturday evening in Washington Hall for the purpose of nominating a representative to the conference to be held at Manchester, England, the coming summer. The members endorsed the nomination of William Mahil, of Brooklyn, who was present and addressed the meeting, informing the society as to what were his intentions if sent as a delegate

Entered Wrong House.

Oscar Waldron, a youth hardly out of his teens, attempted to enter a wrong house by mistake Saturday evening and was placed under arrest. This morning at the hearing City Judge Runyon, being satisfied that the young man's error had been unintentional, suspended sentence on Waldron.

HUNDREDS THRONGED TO HEAR THE WORD

the Seventh-Day Baptist church. A stirring address was made by F. H Andrews, of Warren chapel, and the seekers for Christ, for whose benefit the meeting was held, were dismissed after a benediction had been said by the pastor of the First Baptist church

AN OVERFLOW MEETING.

Most of the members of three Sunday schools were unable to gain admittance to the First Baptist church for the Sunday school rally in the afternoon and an overflow meeting was held for them in the First M. E. church. They were from the Trinity Reformed, Park avenue Baptist and Crescent Avenue churches, and well filled the church.

The first part of the service was given over to song and prayer, the musical part being in charge of Horace J. Martin. As soon as Mr. Hall's address at the First Baptist church was over he took charge of the overflow service. Immediately upon his arrival Mr. Jacobs sang in a very impressive way, "What will you do with Jesus?"

Mr. Hall's address was substantially the same as the one he gave in the First Baptist church, his text being the same. He closed with an earnest appeal to the young people to start a Christian career at once.

A short after meeting was held in which many of the young people were told of the importance of the step to be taken.

MEETING AT Y. M. C. A.

Fully as interesting and as greatly enjoyed as is his singing, was the address which F. H. Jacobs gave in the Y. M. C. A. Hall at the afternoon rally yesterday before an audience of men which completely filled the hall. Mr. Jacobs did not confine himself to one text but took three and from them drew a heartfelt talk.

His only purpose in speaking, he said, was to bring men to Christ, and they had the privilege of accepting or rejecting Him. His remarks were presented in such a way that at the close twenty of his hearers raised their hands, indicating their acceptance of the Saviour and a desire to lead a better life.

In addition to Mr. Jacobs' talk, the meeting included singing by the Jubilee Singers who are favorites at the Y. M. C. A. rallies. E. M. Honeyman led the chorus singing.

TALK TO MEN.

One thousand men sat and listened to the stirring and convincing argument for Christ made by Wm. Phillips Hall in the First Baptist church last evening. The service was for men only. The meeting was commenced with a song service. Prayers were offered by Rev. J. O. McKelvey and Rev. C. L. Goodrich, and before Mr. Hall began his plea F. H. Jacobs sang one of his sermons in song with telling effect.

"Seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness and all things will be added unto you," was the biblical quotation upon which the evangelist based his appeal. He recited numerous cases to show how men who first made it their duty to seek God were prosperous in their worldly life. If one takes care of God's business, God will take care of his, said Mr. Hall. Hardships endured for the cause of Christ are rewarding by blessings bestowed by Almighty God and the sinner will find that it pays to yield himself body and soul to the Lord Jesus Christ.

It is safe to say that at least a score registered themselves as desiring to live a Christian life by signing the cards supplied by the ushers.

Rev. A. E. Main pronounced the benediction.

WOMEN'S MEETING.

The meeting for women, which was held in the First M. E. church at the same hour as the men's meeting, was also very well attended. The pastor of the church, Rev Dr. W. O. Snodgrass, presided, but the sermon of the evening was preached by Rev. Dr. William R. Richards, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church. Charles L. Lewis acted as musical conductor.

The meeting opened with a song service, after which prayer was offered by Dr. Snodgrass, and Mr Lewis sang a very impressive solo, "Eternity." The sermon followed immediately. Dr. Richards using as his text, St Luke ix, 26: "Whosoever shall be ashamed of Me and of My words, of him shall the Son of man be ashamed."

The speaker said that in some things a feeling of shame was an advantage to a person. Because a man would be ashamed to be caught in a lie, or to run away from a post of duty, he would be far less likely to commit those sins than if he were without that incentive to keep away from them,

But there was another side to the matter, Dr Richards proceeded. Besides keeping a man from the lowest things, a feeling of shame may also keep him from the highest. It is the best things that a person is usually most ashamed of. He cited as instances of this the fact that men usually would rather be seen reading any other book than the Bible, and would rather be heard to swear than to pray.

The penalty of being ashamed of Jesus, the speaker went on to say, was to bring sorrow to Him; to force Him to be ashamed of His disciple. But, he hastened to show, it is also a joy to Him when a child of His is willing to confess belief in Him.

In closing, Dr. Richards asked all present who were not ashamed to acknowledge their faith in Christ, to rise. The greater part of the audience responded. Then he asked those who were not acknowledged Christians, but who were not ashamed to say that they wanted to become followers of Christ, to rise also; and to this there was an encouraging response. Cards to be signed by those desiring to begin a Christian life were circulated and the benediction was pronounced by Dr. Richards.

EVENING OVERFLOW MEETING.

The overflow meeting held in Vincent chapel last evening was well attended. A short song service was conducted by City Judge Wm. N. Runyon. Rev. J. W. Richardson, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, was in charge of the service and he delivered a powerful discourse on the Bible, showing how it has stood for two thousand years and is today just as strong as ever. He showed that it had withstood all the attacks, criticism of the most pronounced skeptics, and despite every effort to tear the Word to pieces, it still stands as the Book for the sole guidance of the world.

After Mr. Richardson made a strong appeal to those present to identify themselves with Christ, he called upon Judge Runyon to make a few remarks. Mr. Runyon bore sincere and earnest testimony of the preciousness of Christ to him, especially during the past few weeks. He realized, he said, that he had failed to receive many blessings and live as close to Christ as he should as a church member, but he prayed that he might live closer to Christ and be the means of helping others to do so.

Before the meeting closed Judge Runyon sang very tenderly and effectively "Will There Be Any Stars in My Crown." The workers then passed the invitation cards, and after they were collected the benediction was pronounced by Mr. Richardson.

WEST END CAMPAIGN.

The evangelistic campaign in the West End, was continued in the evening at the Monroe Avenue church. The speaker of the evening was Rev. G. W. Smith, presiding elder of the Elizabeth district in the Newark conference. The fore part of the evening was taken up with a brief song service led by W. S. Weeden and at its close Mr. Smith announced his text as being found in Luke xiv:16 17, "A certain man made a great supper and bade many; and sent his servant at supper time to say to them that were bidden, 'Come for all things are now ready.'"

In the course of his remarks, the speaker said that man is composed of two natures, a physical and spiritual, and that each has its wants. God provides for his hunger and thirst and gives him shelter while all his other physical requirements are supplied by nature. It would be considered a queer thing if men were unable to gratify these tastes yet the spiritual nature is just as vital and it would seem equally as strange if there were no appeasement. The cost of any supper today prepared by the greatest men in the realm cannot compare with this gospel supper which cost the life of Jesus Christ A man receiving an invitation to the former would feel under an obligation to the inviter and could settle with him by accepting or rejecting, but an invitation to accept the Gospel must be settled between he and God, not with the servants who present it, whoever they may be.

DID NOT STAY LONG.

Unpleasant Sensation of a Boston Man in New York.

Mistook the City Morgue for a Hotel and Sought Lodging on a Slab—Joke Very Nearly Drove Him Insane.

It was one a. m. and eight doctors from Bellevue hospital and a dozen newspaper reporters sat in the office of the morgue, says the New York Sun, awaiting the arrival of the body of a woman who had shot herself. The massive door suddenly swung open and a well-dressed man entered. He was about 25.

"Will you let me have a room for the night?" he said, approaching the morgue keeper.

The crowd in the office tittered.

"Certainly," replied the man behind the desk. "What priced room would you like?"

"About two dollars," said the visitor.

The doctors nudged the reporters and the reporters smiled. Then some one told a young man to go into the adjoining room and get a big key for the purpose of personating a hotel bellboy. The morgue keeper picked up a big book resembling a hotel register, the identification book they call it at the morgue. Shoving the book toward the visitor he handed over a pen, and said in a businesslike way:

"Register there, please."

In a full round hand the man wrote: "C. O. Cooper, Boston, Mass." Then he dug a roll of bank notes from his pocket and was peeling one off when the morgue keeper said: "Never mind, pay your bill in the morning." Going toward the door that led to the morgue proper, the keeper shouted:

"Hey, Front!"

A dapper young man immediately appeared. He had a key with a tag attached to it.

"Room 66," said the morgue keeper "Show this gentleman to his room."

"This way, please," shouted the bogus bellboy, opening the door leading to the main room of the morgue building. "This way, follow me."

The stranger was led past an ice box with a body, but he did not seem to notice it. They brought him to the room set apart for children. When the bogus bellboy opened the door a chilly blast came through the doorway.

"Oh-h-h! Its awfully cold here," said the man from Boston. "I want a room that is heated."

Just then they turned up the electric lights which threw yellow rays on a dozen dead faces. The man from Boston staggered. He grabbed hold of the door casing and said, in trembling tones:

"Please-ese-ese take- take-e-e me out."

Dr. Mourning, one of the surgeons attached to Bellevue, arrived about this time. He caught hold of the stranger in time to prevent the man from falling.

"This has gone too far," said the doctor. "Quick! Get this man out or he will collapse."

The stranger was assisted back to the morgue office. There he was assured that he was in safe hands. Dr. Mourning explained that he was in the city morgue and not in a hotel.

"Some of the boys have carried the joke too far," said the doctor, "but you're all right now, and we'll send somebody with you to a warmer hotel. But how the devil did you fetch up at the morgue?"

The stranger explained that he came from Boston in a late train and walked about a mile "to look around a little." He was not a drinking man and had never tasted intoxicating liquor in his life. But he had never been in New York before, and after reaching Twenty-sixth street and Third avenue he asked the first man he met: "Where can I stop for the night?" The man evidently believed that Mr. Cooper, of Boston, was looking for the city lodging houses. He told Mr. Cooper to walk to the foot of Twenty-sixth street. When Cooper got there he saw a big, new brick building with two artistic street lamps at the entrance. Believing he was at a hotel he went in. After getting in, he said, he saw men sitting around smoking cigars. Some had uniforms and caps. They were the Bellevue doctors, but Cooper believed they were baggage handlers. When led to the room his brain whirled and he got dizzy and he believed that he had suddenly become insane. And when he was going he said:

"You bet I'll never come back again. It was nothing funny for me."

BIG STEAM SHOVELS.

With a Single One as Much as 6,000 Tons Have Been Loaded in About Nine Hours.

Much of the ore from the Lake Superior region is loaded into railroad cars at the mines by steam shovels. A good deal is transferred at lake docks from steamers into freight cars in the same way. The shovels are also used to dig and load ore directly from mines of the "open pit" kind.

The machine shown in the picture not only shovels, says the Little Chronicle, but is a kind of locomotive and takes itself wherever it is needed. It consists of a dipper which will hold several tons of ore; a steel I-beam nearly 30 feet long which helps to hoist and swing the dipper; a boiler and several pairs of engines; all mounted on a turntable on a stout, four-wheeled railroad truck. One pair of engines thrusts the dipper into the ore pile; another hoists it, and another can swing the boom and bucket through about 200 degrees of a circle. There is a draw bar at each end of the machine, so that it can be coupled into freight trains and hauled as an ordinary car. The shovel can scoop up its load from a considerable depth below the track on which it stands, and hoist it about 18 feet above the rails. The dipper is made of steel plate and forgings, and has hardened, chisel-pointed teeth. It is fastened to the dipper arm in such a way that it turns a little when striking objections and this lessens the strain.

In "open pit" work a whole train of empty cars is switched into the mine at once. The shovel scoops up the ore, which may first have to be loosened by blasting, and loads the cars. Sometimes a gang of men loosens the ore and keeps it sliding down into the big bucket. It takes eight or ten people to work a machine of medium size. However, one man controls all the motions of the dipper by means of levers. With a steam shovel as much as 6,000 tons of ore has been loaded in a little over nine hours. As fast as the cars are loaded they are drawn out of the mine and shipped.

A large shovel of this kind is about 40 feet long, ten feet wide, weighs 100 tons and costs from $7,000 to $10,000.

Woman Lands a Big Shark.

At Palm Beach, Fla., one of the most exciting sports of the season is shark fishing. The ravenous monsters are plentiful in the waters roundabout, and many of the transient residents have had "the fun of their lives" in hooking and landing them. The other day Charles Dana Gibson, the well-known sketch artist of New York, and his wife were on the pier. The couple are enthusiastic over the sport, but Mr. Gibson had caught all the fish. This time Mrs. Gibson held the line, and when the shark took the bait she had great difficulty in holding on, but with the assistance of her husband the fish was landed. It proved to be of the shovel-nose variety, and weighed 550 pounds.

A hotel keeper had been suffering for four years with indigestion and dyspepsia. Night after night he would lie awake in bed tossing and rolling, the inside of his stomach seeming all on fire, the food fermenting and causing violent vomiting. His stomach, being thus disordered, contaminated his blood, making it impure, so that rheumatism eventually took hold upon him and it was with difficulty that he was even able to walk. At the climax of all this, he heard of Ripans Tabules. The first Tabule gave him relief. As soon as the entire package had been taken, he found that there was a marked improvement in his case. He states that the illness has now entirely left him and that he believes that Ripans Tabules have made a new man of him.

Some Materials for Tailor Gowns of Coming Spring

Broadcloths Will Lead in Popularity—Other Gossip of Dame Fashion

Popular Materials for the Coming Spring

BROADCLOTH will lead as a popular material for tailor gowns during the coming spring season, but at the present time, and in fact all through the winter, it has been a favorite for dinner gowns. The wealthy women seem never to tire of the handsome material, no matter how many novelties are offered them, and the fashionable dressmakers have made a number of the handsomest gowns of the season of it. For ordinary purposes, such as street gowns, cheviots, serge, soleils and cashmeres have been used to a great extent, but few of these have been used in the more elaborate costumes.

For dinner wear the pastel shades have been the popular colors, and for the spring street wear the light shades will be the favorites.

One of these elaborate afternoon dinner gowns of broadcloth is a striking affair in a deep shade of mauve. The bodice is tucked up and down, and opens over an inner vest of mauve velvet. The velvet vest is also opened so as to reveal a white silk vest and stock. The sleeves are of the cloth and plain, with white silk tucked under sleeves. Above this is a gantlet cuff of velvet, with a finish at the wrist of a velvet band. The skirt has a deep shaped flounce headed and edged with clusters of tiny tucks.

A fascinating dinner gown is of black broadcloth, piped with white broadcloth. The graceful skirt has a stitched black taffeta band two inches wide eight inches from the bottom. This band has pipings of the white broadcloth on each side. The jacket is made just to the waist line, and is of three pieces, having the effect of three jackets. The first has straps of cloth, with small white crochet buttons to finish, while the second is piped with the white broadcloth, and has a turnover collar of white guipure lace. The third is merely piped with the white cloth. Bell-shaped sleeves, piped three times over a puffing of black taffeta caught at the wrist in a narrow band.

One of the new spring street suits of broadcloth is in a light shade of tan. The skirt has two tucks at each side of the front that are caught to just below the knees, where there is a plaiting of tan silk revealed underneath. The jacket is of the pointed bolero variety with three strappings of tan taffeta stitched all the way around. Three gold spikes fastened with ribbon to finish the front. A rather full sleeve in a narrow cuff trimmed with the stitched taffeta.

Lace Collars and Chains Are Now in Vogue

ONE of the novelties of the winter that has been steadily growing in popularity promises to stay with us through the spring. That is the various kinds of wide collars which are features of the bolero jackets. They are called Louis XIII. collars, but the name does not include all varieties. One of the finest linen lawn, handsomely hand embroidered around the edge, is shown in a pale blue cloth gown and so deep that it almost reaches the elbows. A wide black satin belt fastens up the front with gold buttons. The bolero fastens with a black satin bow and buckle, and the vest and undersleeves are of pale blue chiffon with lines of fancy black lace beading sewn on to give a striped effect.

Lace colors in particular are great favorites, and it is these especially that promise to remain with us. The latest forms vary in width, but it should be deep enough to fall a little over the shoulders, and circular in shape, and it may be arranged to fall from underneath a narrow yoke of some other sort of trimming or directly from the collar band. Lace collars of this variety appear on some of the Louis XV. coats with an over collar and revers of fur, and lace undersleeves are the usual accompaniment.

Many and curious are the long chains that are being worn. I saw one woman at a recent fashionable ball adorned with multitudinous loops of chain, chiefly coral, fixed so as to dangle row under row across her figure at the waist. Five long chains also surrounded her neck, and were looped and disposed below the waist and on the bust in various fashions.

Another pretty chain was of small black beads with a large round onyx bead at frquent intervals. Still another was composed of blue beads, twisted together, and unitedly passing through a large gold bead every three inches.

Will the Queen's Death Change the Styles?

MERCHANTS, manufacturers and wondering what effect the the fashionable women are all death of Queen Victoria will have upon the spring and summer styles.

Merchants who have already filled their shelves with the accepted spring and summer novelties showing the most brilliant of colorings are wondering if eccentric womankind will now take it into her head to follow the English style and go into mourning for the dead monarch. If they do the merchants have thousands of dollars invested that will be almost a total loss to them.

Manufacturers are watching the trend of fashionable opinion to see if it will demand the starting of their mills on a new line of goods to meet a new demand. They are willing the change should come, it would mean many thousands of dollars in new orders to them.

The fashionable woman, too, is waiting. She looks with longing eyes upon the charming spring and summer materials with which the merchants are tempting her to buy, but she looks only. She is anxious to first hear from Paris, and while she does not like to miss the first choice from the array of new novelties that are offered, she does not like to spend her surplus of dollars for that which the turn of a card may make undesirable. Should Paris as well as London take advantage of the grief in England to don dark colors for the coming season New York will quickly follow. But I believe that the New York woman really hopes the bright colors may remain in style.

IN A LIGHT SHADE OF TAN BROADCLOTH.

ARE GOOD MOTHERS.

Indian Women of the Far West Love Their Little Ones.

Fully Conversant with Prenatal Culture and Effects of Heredity—Boys Are Taught to Respect Their Elders.

[Special Arizona Letter.]

IT HAS always been a singular thing that the idealists have pictured the Madonna as standing for the sacred Motherhood of the Human Race, and yet they have never placed an Indian mother among the favored ones in the gallery of the Madonnas. Surely, if tenderness, gentleness, careful training of their children, according to the highest and best knowledge they possess, go for anything, it has been most unfair to leave out the Indian mother from the Madonna category. In my 20 years of personal experience with the Indians of the American southwest, I have seldom seen any but the highest type of mothers among the Indians; using the word "highest type," of course, in its comparative sense. Long years before prenatal culture was made a scientific study by civilized peoples, the Indians believed in it, knew its potency and practiced it. What Oliver Wendell Holmes sagely advised the querist who wished to know how early she should begin to train her child, viz.: "A thousand years before it is born," the savage Indian has done in a measure, without his advice. Among the Hopi, the young man must make himself swift and athletic and strong ere he marries, and the woman must be able to do her work with ease and skill—work that would tax the muscles of many a hardy, strong American laboring man—before she is deemed worthy of marriage.

HOPI MOTHER AND CHILDREN.

Figure 1 is a picture of a Hopi mother and child, and though the mere casual observer would see nothing attractive either in mother or babe, they are both remarkably interesting and worthy of note. For I have before described how the Hopi babe is cared for as soon as it is born, and watched to keep all evil from it. I have described the ceremony of baptism and the prayers that accompany it. Here is one I heard a few weeks ago when fortunate enough to witness the ceremony of baptizing a boy: "May you have much corn. May you never be sick, but always be well and strong. May you never die, but may you grow old, and then gently fall asleep!"

As the boy grows older his mother trains him in honesty, sobriety, reverence and labor. Whatever may be the ordinary conception of the white person as to the working capacities of the Indian man, certain it is that the Hopi man works as hard as any day laborer in the United States. He is trained to it from the earliest years by his mother. Honesty, too, is one of the cardinal virtues of a Hopi. "You are a thief, like a Navajo and an Apache," is the worst kind of a taunt and insult that can be offered to a Hopi man or youth. And I never yet saw a drunken or partially drunken Hopi. To shun the white man's whisky, the pulque of the Mexican, el vino of the Rio Grande Pueblo Indians, and the smalagatoa of the Navajos, is the earnest warning of the Hopi mother to her son. And, better even than this training, in my estimation, are the Hopi mother's instructions to both her sons and daughters in reverence. Among the civilized Americans boys, nowadays, have no reverence.

A PAINTED DESERT MADONNA.

"Young Americanism" is almost synonymous with rudeness to the aged, and scoffing insult at everything that was once held sacred. To see an American boy rise and give his seat to an aged man or woman is a rare sight (thank God, it is sometimes seen), but for a Hopi boy to even sit in the presence of his elders without their permission is a thing utterly unthought of, and for a young man to speak in council until all the old men have had their say, or until he is invited, would be to subject himself to the certain rejection of his counsel, however good it might be.

Fig. 2 is a Madonna and child I found on the great painted desert of northern Arizona. A pretty, cunning, smiling baby, and a happy, proud, kindly mother. When I assured her it would do her child no harm to be photographed, she hesitated awhile before consenting, and then, when I motioned to her that I had finished the task, she hugged the little one to her breast as if to ward off any possible evil that might have hovered near her loved one.

Fig. 3 is a fine representation of a Wallapai Madonna. Triumphant pride in her maternity is clearly shown in the face of the mother. The great masters of the past 2,000 years have sought to depict the faces of their Madonnas all the virtues and graces of womanhood, and the special qualities the Christ Mother is supposed to have been possessed of. The greatest pictures clearly portray the holiness and sanctity of maternity; the triumphant joy in its blessedness; and in the case of the Christ Madonna the recognition of the greatness and dignity of the career of her Holy Son, her own pride in that grandeur of His calling, and yet her recognition of the woe and anguish that were sure to fall to His lot; and in one or two pictures the Madonna face shows all these things with the added expression of clear foreboding of the cruel and agonizing death that was awaiting Him.

Of course, it could not be expected that these things would be seen in the face of this ignorant Wallapai woman, but tenderness, gentleness, kindness, motherly pride and care are all as well manifested in this picture as are the other graces in the ideal pictures of the master artists.

And yet the Wallapai women are generally regarded as notoriously bad mothers, and not without some cause. Yet there is a reason for this, which again and again Wallapai mothers—very old women—have given to me. Said one of them not long ago: "When I had my first baby I lived with my husband at Pine Springs. Often he went away hunting for seven sleeps, for ten sleeps, for twice ten sleeps, and all those weary days and nights I was alone. The Apaches often used to come up into our country and steal our cattle and sheep, and rob us of our corn. They would kill our little children and steal the women and girls to take as wives for themselves. One day I saw the warning smoke signal on the mountains to the south that told me that the Apaches were fast coming this way. What could I do? If I tried to escape by carrying my babe on my back I knew I should be captured, and either killed or compelled to become the wife of my Apache captor. I knew my baby would either be killed now or later, so I told the 'shadow people' how it was and I shut his little mouth and nose with a blanket and he soon died. Then I was able to get into the Canyon of the Havasupais and hide until the danger was past."

A WALLAPAI MADONNA.

And there is no doubt but that this is the real explanation for much of the so-called Wallapai cruelty to their children. But as the fear of the Apaches dies away, owing to the protection afforded by the United States government, the natural instincts of maternity again begin to assert themselves, and in the case of the mother here pictured it seems to me it would be impossible to find anywhere a prouder or more satisfied creature than this so-called rude savage now that Those Above have given to her a man child.

Anyhow, I should be pleased indeed to see in the bringing up of many American civilized children the same care and thought and sense of responsibility that are manifested by many an ignorant savage out in the deserts of the far-away west.

G. WHARTON JAMES.

Beyond the Pale.

"Of course, you quite understand that I shall call upon Mrs. Whiffler for your character," remarked Mrs. Taggetly to the girl she had just engaged.

"Certainly, m'm," replied the girl, "although I would rather you didn't, for Mrs. Whiffler is so eccentric that she is not always to be relied upon."

"In what way is she eccentric?"

"She insists that her husband is quite a model father and husband, and that her children have never caused her a moment's anxiety."

"H'm, not much in that."

"Then she says that she is perfectly content with one new dress and one new hat each season."

"H'm, she is eccentric, then!"

"And, finally, she has never attended a bargain sale, and says that the only things sold at them are the women who buy!"

"Oh, the woman's mad! I shan't trouble her for your character; you can come in when you like!"—Cassell's Magazine.

JUROR AND WITNESS.

Justice Brewer Thinks They Have Some Rights Which Trial Lawyers Should Respect.

Justice David G. Brewer, of the United States supreme court, arraigned the jury and witness systems of the United States in a recent lecture on "Responsibility of Citizenship" before Yale students. He said:

"It is one of the duties of American citizenship that we are called to serve as jurymen. How many cases of sickness the jury call reveals! Men do not like to serve as jurors, and I don't blame them. The jury system as it is at present administered is little more than a relic of a semi-barbaric age.

"The juror is treated little better than a criminal. He is locked up at night and is given little more pay than a day laborer. He is compelled to listen to the wrangle of lawyers I hope that the time will come when the juror will be treated like a gentleman and when he will receive the pay of a business man. I also hope that the jury system of conviction will give way in which the concurrence of a reasonable number of jurors shall determine the verdict.

DAVID G. BREWER.
(Associated Justice of the United States Supreme Court.)

"It is one of the duties of American citizenship to perform the duties of a witness when summoned into court, although under the present system the witness is treated like a liar and is browbeaten by opposing lawyers. But the juror and the witness should strive for their own elevation, and should perform their duties of citizenship in these respects when called on to do so.

"It has been said that prohibitory laws are the most certain incentives of perjury known. Both witnesses and jurors are parleying with conscience, and their attitudes spring from objection to the law. I do not mean to say that some of them may be unwise. I don't mean to say that sometimes the people may be made good by statutes or ordinances, but I do wish to say that when a city passes an ordinance it is the duty of its residents to uphold it."

PHILANDER CHASE KNOX.

Mentioned for Attorney General of the United States to Succeed Mr. Griggs, Resigned.

Philander Chase Knox, who is prominently mentioned as a probable successor of Attorney General Griggs in President McKinley's cabinet, is a prominent lawyer of Pittsburgh and well known to the Pennsylvania bar at large, of whose association he was president in 1897. He is in the prime of his intellectual vigor at 58. He would go to Washington clear of having held any office but one, and that one appropriate to his profession. Soon after his admission to the bar in 1875 Mr. Knox was appointed United States district attorney, and from that post he resigned after only one year's tenure for the purpose of devoting himself to the cultivation of his private practice. Mr. Knox is well known in Pennsylvania as an intimate and cherished friend of the president. He is a graduate with the '72 class of Mount Union college, Ohio. He served as president of the Duquesne club of Pittsburgh for three years, and is also a member of the Pittsburgh club, the Americus, the Pittsburgh Golf and Country clubs, and likewise of the Union League club of New York, the Lawyers' club of that city and the Lawyers' club of Philadelphia.

Fine Bachelor Apartment.

Six wealthy clubmen in New York have paid $160,000 for a site on East Forty-ninth street, on which they will erect a $250,000 apartment house for themselves and their bachelor friends. An automobile entrance and elaborate quarters for horseless vehicles are to be one of the features.

It Cannot Be Explained.

Before going any further a lecturer on sociology wants to hear a reasonable explanation of why a man has 20 pockets and a woman none at all.

KIDNAPED BY A BEAR.

Bruin Carried Off a Little California Girl, But Was Hotly Pursued and Finally Killed.

News has been received here, says the San Francisco Call, of the narrow escape of Nila Bigsby, the three-year-old daughter of John Bigsby, of Cahto, from a horrible death. While the child was playing in the yard it was attracted by a peculiar noise in the woods, and, childlike, toddled off to investigate. A few minutes later Mrs. Bigsby peered from the doorway to see if the little one was safe, but it was not in the yard. She immediately made a thorough search of the premises, but could find no trace of her missing baby.

BRUIN AND HIS PREY.

The worried mother then went to a neighbor's house for assistance, but found the door locked and the house empty. While returning to her home she noticed a large brown bear passing through a clearing. It was pursued by a pack of hounds, and close on their trail were three hunters—John Osby, James Green and John Huston. She called to Osby and told him of the disappearance of her child. He at once rode up to the others and suggested that they pursue the bear while he assisted Mrs. Bigsby.

Green and Huston pursued the animal to a large redwood tree, where he had taken refuge. When the animal saw them he jumped to the ground and started to run. At the same time the cry of a child was heard. The dogs followed bruin in his flight. The huntsmen noticed that the animal had something in his mouth which appeared to be a child. The dogs pressed bruin close and he dropped his burden, which proved to be the missing Nila, and took to a tree. A well-directed shot brought him to the ground, and Green carried the child to its mother.

Mrs. Bigsby was horrified when she heard of the narrow escape of her offspring from death. The baby welcomed the embraces of her mother, but trembled from fright until finally soothed to sleep.

BRAVE TELEPHONE GIRL.

Rushes Into a Burning Building and Saves Lives of Two Boys at Risk of Her Own.

Kitty England, a pretty telephone girl in the exchange at Millvale, Pa., did not give the "busy, call again," signal the other night when a fierce fire swept through a house adjoining her mother's home, imperiling the lives of two children.

Instead she raced up a stairway, down which suffocating smoke and flame were driving, and carried little Ralph and Elmer Engelhardt to safety.

The two boys, three and five years old, had indulged in a pillow fight after they were put to bed. The kerosene lamp was knocked over, and when the mother heard the screams and started upstairs the blinding smoke drove her back.

A CRITICAL MOMENT.

Kitty England, next door, heard the screams and ran in. Gathering up her skirts she ran nearly to the top of the steps, only to be driven back. Once more she tried, however, and succeeded. Both boys were unconscious when she passed them out of a back window, but they were unharmd by the fire. Her own hands were slightly burned.

Milkmaid's Job in Danger.

A lecturer on agriculture predicts that 50 years from now milk will be sold in a dried state to save the transportation of water, that cows will be milked by machinery and butter produced without churning. The milkmaid must prepare to join the ranks of the new woman.

Pity the Poor Husband.

A bearded woman in Philadelphia often has spats with her husband. She cuts her corns with his razor, instead of using her own, and the husband thinks this is a really mean trick.

DOPE FOR MONKEYS.

Wild Simians Are Caught by Help of Knock-Out Drops.

They Are Fond of Fermented Rice Juice and Drink of It Until Intoxicated—Then the Busy Hunter Picks Them Up.

"Yes, I am in an interesting profession, which is not generally understood by the people," said Arthur Spencer, of Cleveland, the wild animal catcher, to a Chicago American reporter. "People crowd and jostle into the tents during the season to look at the wild animals, but they never realize what patience it requires and the hardships going through to catch the beasts in their native lands and bring them to America.

"A wild animal catcher has to study the ways of living and the characteristics of the animals he is after. For instance, a monkey can never be captured unless you know how to go about it. A man can't scramble through the tops of a tall tree and get within a hundred feet of a nimble monkey.

"The way we take them is to carry into the jungle a big gourd of fermented rice juice. When we reach a tree which is filled with chattering monkeys we open the gourd and pretend to drink the liquid. We then retire to a safe distance, and the monkeys, in their imitative way, come down the tree and all freely drink of the liquor. A half hour later we can come back and pick the little fellows up as they lie about under the trees in a drunken stupor.

"A baboon is taken in a similar manner, but I have never known one to live through the trip to Europe or America. They generally died on my hands before we got 100 miles away from the coast. They either died from seasickness or from the effects of a change in climate.

GORILLA ON THE WARPATH.

"I consider a gorilla the fiercest of African wild animal life. In efforts to get him we are compelled to pierce into the heart of jungles, where in midday it is dusk. When we suddenly come upon the gorilla family the mother sends her young one scampering up a tree, while she stays to defend him. The old man, standing on his rear legs, beats his chest and gives a roar louder and more terrible than that of a lion. He then comes at you like a flash of lightning. The only thing to do is to wait until he is about on you, then shoot him with an explosive shell. If your shot misses it is all over with you.

"We take all large animals in pits. If a man is careful there is not much danger. A deep pit is dug in the path of an elephant tank, which in this country is known as a deer lick. In the pit is placed a heavy net, the top of which is fastened with rubber. When a rope which is attached is pulled, it closes and forms a strong bag. The net is stretched and the pit covered with bamboo, earth and grasses.

"The rope which closes the net is run a little to the windward of the pit to a second pit, where the animal catcher is hidden. When he sees the beast break through the covering of the pit he pulls the rope and the animal is securely held until help arrives and he can be lifted into his cage, with the net still about him. The net is only pulled away after the lion or whatever animal he happens to be is securely locked in his cage.

"The only safety of the animal catcher lies in his using his rifle at the proper time. There is an odd and unearthly feeling in shooting a lion with a highly explosive shell such as we use. We watch the lion bounding toward us with his mouth open and his eyes like coals of fire. Suddenly the report of a gun echoes, and there is no lion in sight. The nitroglycerin in the bullet blows him to pieces, and there is not even enough hide left to cover the seat of a chair."

Biggest Hat Ever Known.

A straw hat, measuring 21 feet round the brim, over 7 feet across the brim and 3 feet round the crown, has, says a London newspaper, been manufactured by a Luton trader. It has eclipsed all previous records. Nearly 250 yards of dark blue and white "jumbo" plait were used, and the services of four experienced hands were occupied in the making of this extraordinary specimen of headgear. While this is the largest, the most expensive hat in the world is undoubtedly the one which was presented to Gen. Grant while he was in Mexico in 1882. It cost £300 in gold, and is now to be seen in the National museum at Washington, and is the finest specimen of a Mexican sombrero ever made.

ON THE EVE OF BOROUGH ELECTION DAY.

ministration promised that there would be no increase in taxes, there has been a raise of 26 points or about 12 per cent. in the rate in the past two years.

Attack is also made on the method adopted to meet the expense that will be incurred in widening Somerset street. This, they say, is to be shouldered unjustly on the borough and they demand that the expenses be at least partially borne, as in the past, by the abbuting property owners, who they claim will be particularly benefitted by the improvement in question.

The Republicans explain the increase in the tax rate, which they claim only amounts to $.04 more than in 1898, by the extra expense incurred in introducing the public street sprinkling system and by having to pay $1,000 on the principal of the Watchung avenue bonds. They submit to the people for endorsement the record made by the present administration. It is contended that the history of the party in power in the past few years marks an epoch of honesty and progressiveness in the life of the borough.

These are the candidates and these are the issues. Tomorrow night at 7 o'clock the will of the people of North Plainfield will find expression in the ballot boxes in the two districts of the borough.

In the meantime beware of eleventh hour campaign canards. Charges and counter charges will, no doubt, be made at the last moment. Saturday a rumor gained circulation that Mayor Smalley had engaged non union men for work on the new building about to be constructed by Smalley Brothers on North avenue. This charge the mayor declares to be false and he is emphatic in his denial. Another rumor was that the Democrats would distribute some important campaign literature before the polls open, but this also is denied by those in control in Democratic political circles.

The polls open at 6 o'clock in the morning and close at 7 o'clock in the evening. They will also be closed, as usual, between one and two o'clock in the afternoon.

Both parties are anxious to get the vote out as early as possible. Last year three hundred Republicans votes alone were polled before eight o'clock in the morning and it is the object of each party this time to run up as big a vote as possible during the fore part of the day.

Wrecked by Trolley Car.

Trolley car No. 13, of the Netherwood and Dunellen line, ran into Charles Debele's milk wagon at 6:35 o'clock this morning as the wagon was turning from Front street into Compton avenue. The wagon was in charge of Mr. Debele's son, Charles. The wagon was completely wrecked and about 100 quarts of milk upset in the street. The boy escaped injury, but the horse sustained slight injury. Mr. Debele was delivering milk nearby at the time, and he claims that the accident was entirely the fault of the motorman.

MARRIED AT HIGH NOON.

MISS MARGARET COE WEDDED TO ARTHUR BOSTWICK TODAY.

Ceremony Took Place in Grace P. E. Church—Wedding Luncheon at Bride's Home Followed.

The marriage of Miss Margaret Coe, daughter of Mrs. Mary C Coe, of 827 Third place, to Arthur Bostwick, of Pittsburg, Pa., took place today at high noon at Grace P. E. church. Rev. E. M. Rodman, rector, performed the ceremony, which was made very pretty and impressive with the full choral service by the choir under the direction of Mrs. Freeman, organist.

The choir preceded the wedding party to the altar, then followed the six ushers and the flower girl, Miss Cerito Coe, a niece of the bride, who was gowned in white and carried a basket of flowers. The maid-of-honor, Miss Rachel Coe, a sister of the bride, came next. She was gowned in blue silk, trimmed with lace, and carried a bouquet of choice flowers. She also wore a hat to match her costume.

The bride then followed, accompanied by her brother, George J. Coe, who gave her away in marriage. Miss Coe's gown was of beautiful white satin. She wore a long veil, and she carried a large bouquet of violets. At the altar the bridal par y met the groom and his brother, who was the best man.

Following the ceremony the party retired from the church while the Lohengrin wedding march was being rendered on the organ. A reception and wedding luncheon followed at the home of the bride's mother, where a few intimate friends were present. Mr. and Mrs. Bostwick will soon sail for Europe, where Mr. Bostwick goes on important business for the Carnegie Steel Company, with which he is associated.

BOLD JESSE JAMES.

Incidents in the Life of the Bandit King Recalled.

How the Young Wife of a St. Joseph Traveling Man Came to Hold the Secret of the Train Robber's Life.

A New York Journal correspondent writing from St. Joseph, Mo., says that a few days ago when a brakeman, on a train rolling into the station, opened the door and called out "St. Joe," two men, sitting near each other in the smoker, hastily threw up the windows and, forcing themselves half-way out looked up and down wisely and excitedly, and, drawing in from the frosty air, simultaneously exclaimed: "This is where Jesse James lived!"

On the high ground that stretches southward from the beautiful convent grounds to the old, historic Patee house, where "Gene" Field, in his early literary career, courted the muse stands a house, once cut and defaced by relic hunters, and saved only by the vigilance of a special patrol. Thousands and thousands of the city's strangers have stood before it with mingled awe and curiosity, trying to peek into the room in which was enacted one of the most cold-blooded tragedies of the century.

The man who lived in that house on the hill was known as Mr. Howard, and his wife, a retiring, modest woman, was a member of the church and deeply religious. He was, seemingly, domestic, dressed plainly, gave no sign of having either occupation or profession, and went and came at his pleasure. He was gentle, kind, liked by his neighbors, was extremely fond of little children, whom on all his walks he would pet and caress; while all who ever looked into his eyes thought their expression so kind and charming as to be almost angelic.

One day this man, who always kept people in front of his wonderful eyes, and who, to use the words of the sport, "never gave one an opportunity to get the drop on him," was hanging a picture in one of the rooms of his house, when he fell dead, from the chair on which he was standing, shot through the heart, from behind; and his slayer, holding a pistol from which the smoke was still creeping, looked down upon the body of a man whose name had been a household word on two continents, a terror to the people of Missouri and the west.

Yes, Jesse James was dead at last! Killed by his companion and friend! Killed by Bob Ford, the only man whom he ever trusted.

There was only one person in St. Joseph, a young woman, the wife of a prominent traveling man, to whom the news of Jesse James' death came like a benediction, for it unsealed lips that had been closed for a year.

One night, when the shadows were cut here and there by the flickering lights of the tower, she entered the drug store about three blocks from her home to get something for her husband who had just come home with a high fever, when she overheard two men talking about a rumor that Jesse James was in town, the papers of that day having contained full particulars of another of his celebrated raids and "train hold-ups."

She grew alarmed and had just said to the druggist that she was afraid to go home alone, when who should step in but Mr. Howard. She knew him well, was a near neighbor of his, and, stepping up to him said: "Mr. Howard, will you take me home?" to which he nodded assent.

Outside the door she lost no time in telling him of her fright; how she had just read about Jesse James' last raid and the conversation she had heard in the drug store as to his being in the city; the awful fear she had of perhaps meeting that terrible man, and the possibility of her husband's being on the same train that he might hold up.

The man was silent until they reached her gate, when he said to her: "Don't scream, and on your life keep secret what I tell you; but to show you who I am and that I am not so black as I am painted, my name is—Jesse James! Your husband will never be molested by me or any of my gang, and you are safe as long as you keep what I have told you. Good night!"

And this was her secret—the sword of Damocles which so long hung over her fair, young head.

Bob Ford for a time was conspicuous here and there in the states, and felt that he was a hero—felt flattered by the gaze of the curious; but, awaking to the enormity of his treachery, he grew haggard and conscience stricken and wandered westward to the gold fields, where, in an altercation in a common dancing house, he fell, as his victim fell, with a bullet though his body.

THE FINAL EFFORT IN GOSPEL CAMPAIGN.

This Evening's Services Mark the Close of Evangelistic Meetings in Plainfield.

IT IS A DAY OF PRAYER.

NEARLY EIGHT HUNDRED HAVE COME OUT FOR CHRIST.

Sunday Saw the Greatest Results When Five Hundred Pledge Cards Were Turned In—Meetings Planned For This Evening.

The end is here. Today marks the conclusion of the series of evangelistic meetings which have opened the Twentieth Century Gospel campaign in Plainfield. As a fitting climax to these impressive meetings, the day is being observed as a day of prayer. A meeting was held this morning, another will be held this afternoon and monster "farewell" services will take place this evening.

Wonderful results have been achieved during the sixteen days that the campaign has lasted. During that time, the committee of one hundred has received nearly eight hundred cards signed by those who have determined to lead a Christian life hereafter. Sunday saw the most remarkable results of any during the campaign. At the Sunday-school rally, cards were received from two hundred and twelve, at the union services at Hope chapel eighty-four cards were turned in and nineteen at the Y. M. C. A. meeting. A total of five hundred cards were signed Sunday of which four hundred represented those desiring to be Christians for the first time.

Although the movement is not general, a number of the local stores have closed part of the day in order to allow their clerks to attend the meetings today. Most of the saloons have taken the same course.

This afternoon's service will be held in the First Baptist church. A prayer service will begin at 3 o'clock. At 3:30 o'clock, William Phillips Hall will speak.

Meetings this evening will be in the First Baptist church under the charge of Evangelist Hall and at the First M. E. church under the charge of Rev. T. S. Henderson. Overflow meetings will be held, if necessary, in Vincent chapel and the Trinity Reformed church. All the services will begin at 7:45 o'clock.

TALKED TO THE CHILDREN.

Rev. T. S. Henderson Addressed Meeting of Young People at Monroe Avenue Church.

The boys and girls of the west end of the city had their especial share in the evangelistic campaign yesterday afternoon, when, at 3:30 o'clock, Rev. Theodore S. Henderson conducted a meeting for children in the Monroe Avenue M. E church.

The room was well filled with young folks, and with a considerable number of adults also. On the platform, in company with Mr. Henderson, were Rev. John McMurray, pastor of the church; Rev. G. Kennedy Newell, of Hope chapel, and the younger Mr. Weeden, who had charge of the singing.

After a bright song service, the young folks joining heartily in some stirring hymns, prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. McMurray, then Mr. Weeden sang as a solo "The Wonderful Story."

The text of Mr. Henderson's talk was Revelations iii: 20, "Behold, I stand at the door and knock." He said that there was not one person present, who had not already given his heart to Christ, at the door of whose hearts the Saviour was not knocking. He would never break open a door by force; the owner must open it himself.

Three keys, the speaker continued, everyone has in his possession, which should all be used to unlock this door of the heart. The first key he spoke of was that of the mind; Christ should be taken into the thoughts, he said, and then the thoughts would be pure, good and true. The second key was that of the heart, the seat of the affec-

BOROUGH SCHOOL MEETING.

APPROPRIATIONS RECOMMENDED BY BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Three New Members And Appropriations Will be Voted on at Meeting March 19.

Public notice has been given of the North Plainfield school meeting to be held in the Somerset street building on the evening of Tuesday, March 19 The citizens will vote on that occasion for three new members of the Board of Education and will also take action on the proposed appropriation for the maintenance of the schools, for the ensuing year.

The total amount of the appropriation recommended is $15 700, which is made up of the following items: Teachers' salaries and current expenses, $12 900; text books and school supplies, $1,400, and a special appropriation for the manual training department of $1,400. At first sight the appropriation for the manual training department seems to be large but the explanation is given that some of the items heretofore included in the general appropriation for salaries and current expenses have this year been transferred to the manual training department account.

By reason of the great increase in the revenue which is due from the State for the manual training expenses, the appropriation asked for by the Board for the manual training work is less than $400 more than last year.

BLOCK SIGNALS FOR TROLLEY.

MIDDLESEX AND SOMERSET TRACTION CO. IS INSTALLING THEM.

This Improvement Will First be in Operation Between New Brunswick and South Amboy.

An innovation in the operation of trolley roads is soon to be made by the Middlesex and Somerset Traction Company, who will install a system of block signalling on their lines throughout Somerset and Middlesex counties. By this system it is thought that accidents caused by collisions will be reduced to a minimum.

On the Milltown and South Amboy division of the company's lines the system is now about completed and will probably be put into use some time this week. It has already been delayed somewhat by a scarcity of wire. The system is a simple one and is operated by electricity, a current of which is controlled by a lever fastened to a pole at each switch on the line. At every switch there is also a light, which is operated by the current.

When a car reaches a switch it is the duty first of the motorman to see if the light is turned on. If it is he must lay up at the switch. If the light is out the conductor leaves the car and turns on the light by moving the lever handle. This action turns on the light also at the next switch ahead and a car reaching that switch must wait there until met by the second car. If another car following the first reaches the switch it must remain there until the light goes out or until met by another car. The light is turned out when the light of the next switch is turned on.

Time will be saved for passengers by the block signal system as a car will not now have to wait on a switch for another when there is time to reach the next turnout. The responsibility in running past a signal rests equally upon the conductor and motorman as the latter is supposed to see that the signal is set against him and the former is supposed to set the signal guarding his own car if the track is clear. The company had under consideration several automatic devices which did not require manual operation, but after looking into the different plans decided that the one adopted would insure the greatest degree of safety.

It is in operation on the Bridgeport and many other lines thoughout the country. The signal lights are now in place at each of the eight switches between New Brunswick and South Amboy, and will soon be put up on the Bound Brook and Metuchen branches. The work is being done under the supervision of Superintendent J. F. McGregor.

Canal Late in Opening.

Navigators of the Raritan canal are anxiously awaiting the time for opening that waterway. No orders have as yet been received as to when the canal will be opened, but it is believed that it will be officially opened March 18. The new drawbridge in course of construction at State street, Trenton, is not quite completed, and this fact, together with the presence of ice in the Delaware river and Raritan river, probably accounts for the late date in opening the canal to navigation.

WAR IS DECLARED AGAINST TROLLEY CO.

Middlesex and Somerset Co. Refused to Grant Five-Cent Fare From Somerville.

MUST OBEY ORDINANCE.

IN RETALIATION SOMERVILLE COMMISSIONERS TAKE ACTION.

Trolley Co. Must Strictly Obey Provisions of The Ordinances Which It Has Not Been Doing Lately—Refused Franchise For Water.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, March 12—At a meeting of the Somerville Board of Commissioners, held last night, a communication was received from the Middlesex and Somerset Traction Co. refusing to grant the five-cent fare. A motion was passed directing the trolley committee to see that the traction company strictly conformed with the present ordinances, which means that they will be compelled to run their cars half-hourly until midnight instead of until 9 o'clock, as they now do, and that they will be compelled to put up iron in place of the wooden poles.

The committee to whom was referred the application of Horace J. Subers to supply the town with water, recommended that the application be rejected on the ground that the present water company was composed of citizens of town who would suffer greatly if a new company was admitted; that applicant had not satisfied the committee that he was able to build; that they did not want streets of town torn up.

Subers offered to furnish the town water free for fire purposes, and it was thought the present company might reduce their rate from $25 a hydrant to $15. It was also stated that municipal ownership was desired and the town did not want competition. The matter was finally laid over until the next meeting after much discussion.

The purchase of a chemical engine for Lincoln Hose Company, at a cost of $1,976, was ordered.

CARED FOR HEAVY RAIN.

Storm Sewers Carried Away the Steady Downpour of Sunday and Yesterday.

Considering the heavy downpour of rain Sunday night and yesterday morning the various sewers about the city took excellent care of the water. Street Commissioner Gavett is very well pleased with the result. At a few points about the city the streets were filled with water, but in the course of a very short time it disappeared and in no case did the water cause any amount of inconvenience to travelers. In some places there was a quantity of ice to be found in the culverts causing a blockade, but a continuation of moderate weather will remove this stoppage.

FORTY HOURS' DEVOTION.

Will Commence in St. Mary's R. C. Church With High Mass Sunday Morning.

A service of forty hours' devotion will commence in St. Mary's church at the high mass Sunday morning and will end with low mass Tuesday morning. The service, which is customary in the Roman Catholic church, is for the purpose of a Lenten commemoration of Christ's stay on the Mount. Every communicant is expected to make at least three visits to the church during the forty hours for devotions.

Fifteen Years as Janitor.

Stephen R. Hope, of East Third street, celebrates today the completion of fifteen years' service as janitor of the Bryant School. Mr. Hope was born near Milford, Hunterdon county, and settled in Plainfield shortly after the close of the Rebellion. Prior to becoming janitor of the Bryant School he was employed in the lumber business. For thirty-three years Mr. Hope has been a special officer.

Spotted Employe's Pass.

The eagle eye of Conductor Morris Barick detected a colored man with a railroad employe's pass on the train leaving Plainfield for New York at 1:35 Friday afternoon, and the pass was promptly taken up by the conductor and turned in to the railroad company on the arrival of the train at Jersey City.

Will Reach Here Soon.

The body of the late Lieut. Walter E Stewart, Jr., is expected to arrive in Plainfield today or tomorrow morning. The body left San Francisco last Thursday, and instructions were given to send it through with all possible speed.

MERRY THRONG PRESENT AT "CALICO" BALL.

Annual Calico Masquerade Ball of Women's Section of Gesang and Turn Verein.

WAS HELD LAST EVENING.

GRAND MARCH WAS LED BY CHAS. F. MEYER AND MRS. SPIEGEL.

Assisted in The March by Members of The Committee Attired in Yachting Costumes—What Some of The Masquers Wore.

The annual "calico" masque ball of the women's section of the Plainfield Gesang and Turn Verein, seemed to have lost none of its popularity last evening for Saengerbund Hall where it was given, was filled with the usual good natured crowd all intent on having a jolly time with their identity concealed behind a tantalizing mask. While the affair is termed a "calico ball" it by no means indicates that all must be arrayed in that material, although some of the costumes were composed of it in a very ingenious manner. There were Japanese women, shepherdesses, dairy maids and fairies without number while the sterner sex present contented themselves with impersonating dudes, clowns and sailors thus affording themselves an opportunity to display their humorous talents.

The grand march, which is always looked forward to with expectant pleasure on the part of the spectators, was fully up to the standard and with twenty-five couples in their rear, Charles F. Meyer and Mrs. Rudolph Spiegel moved over the dancing floor in the most intricate and interesting figures.

Directly behind the leaders were eight women of the society, dressed in natty yachting costumes, who by previous preparation were able to assist the former and add greatly to the effectiveness of the march. The eight participants, who also comprised the committee in charge, consisted of Mrs. Rudolph Spiegel, Mrs. Charles F. Meyer, Mrs. Herman Klinsman, Mrs. Peter Finger, Mrs. Emma Weigman, Mrs. L. Kreutzfeld, Mrs. Henry Bergen, Mrs. Carl Felder and Mrs. Matthias Menzenbach.

At the conclusion of the march, dancing was resumed under the direction of Charles F. Meyer, and with the music from Prof. O'Reilly's full orchestra as an incentive, the merry masqueraders glided about the waxed floor until the gray dawn this morning, when with many regrets they wended their way homeward, tired but happy.

While it was impossible to learn the identity of all those who appeared in costume, some of the most attractive noticed were as follows: Miss Mabel Smith, of Somerville, dairy maid; Miss Muriel Gunn, "Evening;" Mrs. Emberley, "Morning;" Mrs. William Boe and Mrs. Bartlett, Japanese; Miss Christine Sorensen, Miss May Hughes and Miss Lottie Cockley, fancy costume; Miss Clara Wolf, Miss Minnie Hardfelder and Miss Clara Weber, calico costumes and Mrs. Annie Southard, dancing girl. Among the men were August Windheim and Walter Higgins, negroes; Jesse Perrine, Mother Hubbard; George Newmiller, Spanish cavalier; Frank Perrin, negro soldier; Fred Koller, sailor; Fred Smith, clown.

WESTFIELD'S ELECTION.

Chief Fight is Over the Police Force and Whether It is to Be Reduced.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, March 12—Although but one important office is to be filled, the election being held today is being fiercely fought. The issue being the present efficient police force or a force of half the present size.

The Democrats have placed a police appropriation of $1 500 on their ticket, while the Republicans have been more liberal and named $2,500 as the amount to be used for police purposes.

Both tickets have the name of W. W. Connoly, a Republican, on them for member of the Township Committee for three years.

Indications are that the Republicans will carry the election, and the police appropriation of $2 500 will be carried.

Rev. Mr. Smith to Preach.

Presiding Elder G. W. Smith will preach at Monroe Avenue church next Sunday morning, and the regular church services will be resumed after this evening.

CAUGHT BY BELTS AND TORN TO PIECES

Jacob Schomberger Met With Horrible Death at Works of Somerset Chemical Co.

A LADDER SLIPPED.

BEFORE MACHINERY STOPPED HE HAD BEEN GROUND TO DEATH.

Schomberger Was Assistant Carpenter And Had Only Recently Been Married—Twenty-Two Years Old—Burial Permit Granted.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, March 12—While engaged in repairing some machinery in the factory of the Somerset Chemical Co., at this place, Jacob Schomberger met with a horrible death yesterday morning.

He was the assistant carpenter at the factory and was working at some of the machinery connected with the shafting, having brought into use a ladder for reaching the overhead work. While standing upon the ladder it slipped in some way, and before he could disentangle himself from the belts, he was drawn into the machinery.

A boy helper, who was standing near, gave the alarm, but before the machinery could be stopped the body of the unfortunate man was horribly mangled, being literally torn into pieces.

The coroner was notified and yesterday afternoon he gave the necessary permit for the removal of the body.

Schomberger was an unusually bright mechanic, and was well liked by all his fellow-workmen. He was but twenty-two years old and leaves a young wife, having been married but a very short time.

ANOTHER STORM SEWER.

CITY MAY DECIDE TO BUILD ONE ON MADISON AVENUE.

Would be a Great Advantage to Electric Light Company As Well As to The City.

In the line of street improvements being considered for the coming year, one very important improvement is likely to be made. That is the building of a storm sewer through Madison avenue, so that a surplus of surface water may be taken care of easily. This sewer, if built, will be used largely by the Plainfield Electric Light Company at the corner of West Second and Madison avenue. If they use this sewer it means the doing away with the New street sewer as far as the company is concerned.

At present the electric light company is paying the city $25 a year for the use of the New street sewer. At the same time the steam exhaust at the corner of West Front and New streets, has always been a nuisance and frequently complained of. If the city will build a sewer in Madison avenue, the electric light company will stand half the expense. Of course, it will be a great benefit to them and they would then be released from the payment of the $25 a year for the other sewer.

It would be a great relief for the avenue at the point where surface water causes a flood, and it would be greatly appreciated by people who live in that vicinity or who have to travel that way. It is quite likely that some action will be taken in the matter early this year.

BOYS FOUGHT FOR LIFE.

CAUGHT IN POWERFUL FRESHET AND NARROWLY ESCAPED DROWNING.

Canoe Upset—Exciting Experience of Two Boys Near Otto's Mill at New Market.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Market, March 12—Alfred Becker, aged twelve, and Claude Penrose, aged eleven, both of this place were nearly drowned in the rushing waters of the brook, just below the mill dam, yesterday afteroon. Owing to the recent heavy rains, the lowlands in the vicinity of Otto's mill have been flooded. A number of boys stopped at the mill yesterday and began playing in the water with an old canoe. Becker and Penrose became more venturesome than the rest and, taking the small craft paddled in to the rougher water.

The canoe was suddenly caught by the swift current and whirled down the stream. It collided with a long pole suspended from the bridge over the main road and both lads were thrown in the water. Penrose swam out, but Becker was unable to follow and grasped the pole, which immediately sank beneath his weight.

But for the timely arrival of Charles Kelley the lad would have undoubtedly drowned. Kelley swung himself beneath the bridge and bracing himself against the iron work partially pulled Becker out of the water and held him until a rope was procured by which he was drawn to the shore. He was afterward taken to his home on Rock avenue and today has fully recovered.

W. W Warnock Will Move.

W. W. Warnock, the well-known baker and confectioner who for the past five years has been in business on North avenue, will remove March 25 to C K. Compton's store at 144 West Front street. Mr. Warnock is compelled to make the change in order to secure better facilities for his constantly increasing trade. During the summer it is his intention to manufacture ice cream in which he has had many years of experience.

Wife Wouldn't Appear Against Him.

John Phillmore, a laborer, was brought before City Judge Runyon this morning on a charge of disorderly conduct preferred by his wife, with whom it appears he has not been on good terms for some time. The breach of the peace is alleged to have occurred Saturday. This morning Mrs. Phillmore withdrew the charge, and City Judge Runyon discharged the defendant with a warning.

Funeral of J. W. Van Horn.

R., of which he was a member, will attend in a body and take the usual part in the service. Interment will be made at Hillside.

BATTLE OF BALLOTS GOES MERRILY ON.

Workers of Both Parties in North Plainfield Are Trying to Get Out Full Vote.

POLLS CLOSE AT 7 O'CLOCK.

CAME NEAR BEING A FIGHT OVER MISSING DEMOCRATIC TICKETS.

Election Officers in the Two Districts—Who Cast the First Ballots—Smalley and French Leading Opposing Parties.

The battle of ballots for political supremacy is being waged over the brook today. Mayor Smalley is in command of the Republican forces and his men are using every effort to maintain their present position in borough politics. In the lines of the Democrats can be found in control Elston M. French, the genial and energetic young leader of that party.

The polls in both the First and Second districts were declared open promptly at 6 o'clock this morning. The election officers of the First district are: Judge, John H. Carney; inspector, D. C. Allen; clerks, W. W. Rowley and Levi C Kline; challengers, Charles W. Hummer, (Republican), and Charles A. Case, (Democrat).

At the Second district polls across the street, the election officials are: John Goodman, judge; James Bailey, inspector; George Fairchild and W. C. Linbarger, Republican and Democratic clerks respectively. The challengers are: J. Q. Miles, (Republican,) and Sylvester Conover, (Democratic.)

A slight hitch occurred prior to the opening of the polls. It was discovered by the alert Democrats that no tickets for their voters were on hand. This condition existed in both the First and Second districts and for a time there was a merry war of words. The Democrats accused their opponents of trickery in the Second district, and for a time it seemed as if serious trouble was brewing.

The judge and inspector got somewhat excited, but peace reigns now. The cause was that all in a misunderstanding Louis Bird, on behalf of the Democrats, delivered to Clerk Rowley a package of tickets for the election and Rowley, thinking that the tickets were meant for the use of the Republican party, put them in his pocket. Rowley says the candidates must furnish the tickets direct to the election officers and therefore he did not suppose that the package handed to him was for that purpose. The two parties exchanged packages of tickets and this is where the misunderstanding arose. This morning Mr. Rowley rectified the mistake before the polls opened.

The vote polled this morning is very light. At 9:30 o'clock, only 110 ballots were registered in the First district and 121 in the Second. A half hour later, 39 voters were added in the former district and at 11 o'clock 140 citizens had voted in the Second district and 180 in the First, making a total of 320 votes in all or less than thirty per cent. of the entire voting list.

James Q Miles was the first man to vote in the Second district while Harry S. Potter shared the honors across the way. Former Mayors William L. Saunders and John F. Wilson, Democrats, voted early as did also Mayor N. B. Smalley. Late this afternoon the commuters' vote will begin to roll in.

So far no votes have been rejected in either district with one exception. In the First, Charles Nichols, colored, attempted to vote but his ballot was rejected although his name was placed on the registry Tuesday. C. A. Case, the Democratic challenger, objected to Nichols' vote on the ground of insufficient time of residence.

Company K to Elect Officers.

There will be a meeting of Company K Saturday evening next when the election of commissioned and non-commissioned officers, exclusive of captain, will take place. First Lieut. John E. Wehrly, battalion adjutant, will be in charge.

Talmage Will Sustained.

The Talmage Will contest has been decided by Judge Vail in favor of the will, and decree has been entered dismissing Mrs. Worthington's appeal with costs. The successful counsel in the case were John H. VanWinkle and Craig A. Marsh.

Evangelist W. N. Flanders, assistant pastor of the Tryon Street Baptist church, Charlotte, N C., arrived in Plainfield today on a short visit to his mother, who resides with her daughter, Mrs. James Middledith, of Mercer avenue.

AT THE THEATRES.

Something About the Attractions Which Plainfield Theatre-Goers May Care to Witness.

The Great Herrmann appears at Music Hall tomorrow night and will offer to theatre goers of this city what the management announce as the most startling black art entertainment ever seen here. Herrman, the past summer, made a short tour of Europe, and during his peregrinations on the other side, called upon his aunt (the widow of Carl Herrman, who was the original of that name) in Vienna, Austria. From her he received many of the wonderful tricks which gave Carl fame and which made the name of Herrman renowned in the early forties. These tricks have never before been seen in this country and possess the double virtue of being at once novel and mystifying. Herrmann's tour the present season includes the United States, from New York city to California, Canada, Mexico, Cuba and others of the West India Islands, besides a spring and summer engagement in South America.

. . . . . .

Not since the days of Hoyt and his merry "Trip to Chinatown" have audiences in the Madison Square Theatre, New York City, laughed so heartily as those which assemble every evening to witness William Collier and his sterling campany of comedians in "On The Quiet." This company, which has been pronounced by critics all over the country the greatest success of the decade, is by Augustus Thomas. It is clean, bright and clever, and the whole idea is American. The situations are carefully studied out and the climaxes are thoroughly effective. Neither pains nor expense have been spared in staging the comedy. The scenic effects are veritable triumphs of stage realism. The yacht scene is wonderfully true to nature, and with its background of moving clouds is so near to the real thing that it requires quite quite a stretch of imagination to believe that the vessel is not dancing merrily over the Sound. The cast is a strong and capable one, and as Robert Ridgway, Mr. Collier is seen to better advantage than ever before.

Night Was Her Terror.

"I would cough nearly all night long," writes Mrs. Chas. Applegate, of Alexandria, Ind., "and could hardly get any sleep. I had consumption so bad that if I walked a block I would cough frightfully and spit blood, but, when all other medicines failed, three $1.00 bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery wholly cured me and I gained 58 pounds." It's absolutely guaranteed to cure Coughs, Colds, LaGrippe, Bronchitis and all Throat and Lung Troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

A FIGHT FOR MILLIONS.

Mrs. Hall Insists She Is Sole Heir of the Tea Merchant.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., March 12.—The fight between Mrs. Helen Blakely Hall on one side and the blood relations of George Francis Gilman on the other for the possession of the millions of the dead tea merchant is now on in earnest. There is an armed neutrality at the Black Rock mansion between the contending forces. Edward S. Percival is domiciled there as custodian on behalf of the heirs, and Mrs. Hall and her mother are there, too, apparently dwelling under the same roof in the most harmonious relations.

When Mr. Percival, Edward S. Norton, George W. Smith and Attorney Charles H. Brush paid a visit to the Gilman house late Sunday night and told Mrs. Hall that they were representatives of the heirs at law and would like to obtain control of the property and take it from the management of strangers, Mrs. Hall replied that she could not consider herself a stranger, but that that was a matter of opinion. She then made the statement that she was the heir to all of Mr. Gilman's estate wherever situated and that when the proper time came she would prove her claim.

This statement was a staggerer. The men withdrew to a room and talked it over. Their conclusions were that Mrs. Hall was "bluffing." It was agreed that Mr. Percival should remain in the house as custodian till the appointment of an administrator. Mrs. Hall does not recognize him as such, and to her and her friends Mr. Percival is in the house as her guest.

Lawyer Stiles Judson of the firm of Canfield & Judson, local representatives of the heirs at law, said:

"We are not aware that Mr. Gilman left any will nor that Mr. Gilman adopted Mrs. Hall as his heir. It is possible she may have some very important papers in her possession, but it is hardly probable. Many of the heirs at law are not inclined to be overlenient with Mrs. Hall, and it was agreed that action would be taken to force her out of the house, but I do not think any such action will be taken, for the reason that by the time the papers are drawn up and action started a legal administrator will be appointed."

JAPAN FOR PEACE.

That Government Loath to Believe That Russia Is Scheming.

LONDON, March 12.—The Japanese legation in London has received a bundle of dispatches from Tokyo relative to Russia's movements in Manchuria, but Baron Hayashi Tadasu, the Japanese minister, is unwilling to admit that Japan is alarmed over the recent changes in the situation.

"Japan is still reluctant to believe," said an official of the Japanese legation, "that any power, even Russia, is acting outside the concert of powers. Apart from the interest which all the powers have in a successful solution of the Chinese question, Japan would have special cause to be offended should the present harmony be disturbed by any individual arrangement between China and any other country.

"It may be set down, therefore, that Japan will do her utmost to maintain peace and to insure a successful settlement of all questions in China. This does not mean that we will submit to any injustice, but the attitude of the Japanese government today is that it is unwilling to believe Russia would defy the powers by secret negotiations with China or that the powers would permit such an arrangement to proceed to the manifest injury of Japan as well as themselves."

Maryland Ballot Law Opposed.

ANNAPOLIS, March 12.—Twenty-two members of the Reform league of Baltimore came down yesterday to protest before the joint committee on legislation against a favorable report on the new ballot bill, which if passed will result in the disfranchisement of about 50,000 illiterate voters, most of whom are negroes. They were granted a hearing in the senate chamber, and for nearly four hours their spokesmen argued against the provisions of the bill. Charles J. Bonaparte, the principal speaker on behalf of the league, denounced the proposed law as being wholly bad from beginning to end, some parts of it being worse than others. Furthermore, he declared the entire scheme to be unconstitutional and cited numerous decisions to sustain this contention. Other speakers followed.

England Behind In Yacht Building.

GLASGOW, March 12.—Mr. John Harvard Biles, professor of naval architecture at the University of Glasgow, in the course of a lecture said: "Great Britain has always been several years behind America in yacht construction. The problem is to reduce weight without reducing strength. The plea that British yachts have to cross the Atlantic has done duty as an excuse too long. Development has been steadily in the direction of lighter hulls and more sail, but we are yet behind the Americans."

First Shipment of Oil.

AUSTIN, March 12.—A dispatch from Port Arthur says: "The first shipment of oil from the great Lucas gusher has just been made from Port Arthur. It amounted to 6,000 barrels of the crude oil and is consigned to Philadelphia. The pipe line built by Messrs. Guffy & Galey, owners of the Lucas well, will soon be in regular operation."

TERRIFIC EXPLOSION

Eight Killed and Twenty-nine Injured In Chicago.

MANY BUILDINGS WERE SHATTERED.

Bursting Boiler In a Laundry Caused the Damage—The Ruins Being Searched For Dead Bodies. Many Persons Missing.

CHICAGO, March 12.—By the explosion of the boiler in the Doremus laundry, 458 West Madison street, yesterday 8 people were instantly killed, 29 were injured and several are missing.

The cause of the explosion has not been determined with accuracy as yet, and it will probably require an official investigation to settle the matter. It is known that the boiler was old, a second hand affair, and there is no record in the office of the city boiler inspector of any inspection having been made within the last year. Pending the verdict of the coroner's jury A. L. Doremus, the proprietor of the laundry, is held in custody by the police, and it is the intention of the authorities to institute criminal proceedings against him should the facts brought out at the investigation warrant such proceedings.

The list of dead and wounded was difficult to secure. Reports of the number of dead in the ruins run all the way from 6 to 20. It is known that 36 employees of the laundry had entered the place before the explosion, because the automatic timekeeper found in the ruins and which was not damaged showed that number of registered arrivals. Two or three were entering at the moment of the explosion, making an approximate total of 40 employees in and around the building. The list of injured includes, however, several people residing in the adjoining buildings, nearly all of which were badly damaged. The most conservative estimate by the police concedes that at least three, dead or alive, are still in the ruins.

The explosion was one of almost unparalleled severity. For nearly two blocks up and down Madison street buildings were shattered by its force. Practically every window in these two blocks was broken, and the list of persons cut by falling glass will reach to 50 or more. Persons who were in bed in the near vicinity say they were hurled from their beds. Men in barrooms were dashed to the floors and covered with showers of glass. Passengers in street cars were thrown violently from their seats.

Woman In Hard Lines.

ELMIRA, N. Y., March 12.—Mrs. J. A. Jenkins, widow of the first private secretary of the late President Abraham Lincoln, was given lodging at police headquarters Saturday night. Mrs. Jenkins left this city for Hornellsville. She is on her way to Springfield, Ills., her former home. Overseer of the Poor Mackey furnished Mrs. Jenkins with a ticket to Hornellsville. Mrs. Jenkins arrived in this city late Saturday afternoon. She called on Overseer of the Poor Mackey and told him her story. Mrs. Jenkins said that she left Washington several days ago. She told a story of a hard struggle to earn a living.

Good News For Miners.

PITTSBURG, March 12.—Private advices to Pittsburgers announce the posting of notices late last evening by the Berwind-White Coal Mining company at Windber, Osceola Mills, Horatio and other points in the central Pennsylvania mining field as follows: "The average advance of 20 per cent in wages given our employees April 1, 1900, will be continued until April 1, 1902." This notice affects about 10,000 men, all told, and is of the utmost importance in central Pennsylvania mining operations. The action of the company continues in effect the highest rate of wages ever paid in the central Pennsylvania field.

Plague Spreading In Cape Town.

CAPE TOWN, March 12.—The bubonic plague is developing seriously in Cape Town. Fifteen new cases were officially reported yesterday, and 97 other persons were isolated because of having come into contact with victims of the disease. Yesterday two colored persons who had been attacked by the plague died in the streets of Cape Town. A European died while being removed to the hospital. The malady is reaching the more prosperous classes, and it has been necessary to remove to the hospital the entire family of a gentleman.

An Electric Road Projected.

CANAAN, Conn., March 12.—A company is being organized for the construction of an electric road from the Massachusetts state line north of here to Bridgeport, a distance of 70 miles. The plan is to have this road connect with the proposed Berkshire line from the state boundary to Pittsfield, Mass., and with its connections form a continuous line to New York city.

LONG DROUTH ENDED

Heavy Downpour of Rain Causes Damaging Floods.

DAMS AND BRIDGES SWEPT AWAY.

Serious Washouts on the New York Central and Harlem Lines—Much Property Destroyed Elsewhere.

NEW YORK, March 12.—The hard rainfall which began about 8 o'clock Sunday night and continued until nearly noon yesterday served to relieve Manhattan from the prospect of a water famine. The weather bureau reported that nearly three inches of rain had fallen in this vicinity. This is the heaviest fall for many months.

The Bronx river, which usually is nothing but a small creek, is now by reason of the heavy rain a torrent.

The stream overflowed its banks, sweeping away sheds, fences and small bridges. The power house of the Tarrytown, White Plains and Mamaroneck railroad is located on the west bank of the river here, and the water was so high that the furnaces could not be kept burning, and so no steam was generated, with the result that the whole line between Tarrytown and Mamaroneck was out of business yesterday, and not a car was run.

The storm paralyzed the trolley roads in Sing Sing, where it tore out the road from under the rails and in other places covered the rails with sand, mud and sometimes with heavy bowlders which had been loosened from overhanging banks.

The storm caused a great deal of trouble to railroads at points near this city. There was a landslide on the Central between Hastings and Dobbs Ferry that seriously interfered with traffic for several hours, and at Kensico, on the Harlem road, there was a washout of such an extent around the abutment of the railroad bridge over the Bronx that for awhile no trains were run over it.

Bursting Dams Cause Destruction.

PROVIDENCE, March 12. — Two dams at Wanskuck, just north of this city, burst yesterday afternoon, carrying away two wooden buildings containing nine persons, all of whom have been accounted for excepting one. The upper dam burst first, and the water with a rush swept away the lower dam a few minutes later. Over this lower dam were two wooden buildings, each 60 feet square and three stories in height, run as a cotton mill by George Weedin. These buildings were crushed by the flood. Of the nine persons caught by the flood eight were rescued by the firemen, who, with ropes tied around their bodies, waded out to the persons clinging to debris which had become lodged. Several bridges have been carried away, and the whole country below the ruined dams presents a scene of devastation. Every part of the flooded section is submerged, varying from one to several feet, the water being filled with floating debris brought down by the floods.

The Susquehanna Raging.

WAVERLY, N. Y., March 12.—Ice in the Susquehanna river and which is 20 inches thick is causing a great strain on the Lehigh railroad bridge at Towanda. The bridge is anchored, and it is believed it would cripple the Lehigh road for months if it should go out. Cattle valued at $1,000 were drowned in the basement of a barn at Smithboro on account of a quick rise in the Susquehanna river by a cloudburst. The storm was general in this section.

Flood at Kingston.

KINGSTON, N. Y., March 12.—Heavy rains have raised the Esopus creek and inundated the lowlands. The American Cigar company's factory was flooded by a clogged sewer, and work had to be suspended. Immense melting snowdrifts throughout the mountains indicate coming extensive freshets, with great damage.

Brown Spanked His Wife.

AKRON, O., March 12.—James Brown paid $5 and costs in the police court for spanking his wife. He said that he had spent half an hour or more trying to get her out of bed. It was getting time to start for work, and there was no breakfast in sight. According to the testimony, Brown finally dragged her from bed, but she went back again. He pulled her out and laid her across his knee. She says that he used a hairbrush. He denies this and says that it was his bare hand. Brown paid his fine and left court with his wife.

Sammy Kelly Beaten.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, March 12.—Sammy Kelly, the New York featherweight, met Will Curley of England in a 20 round bout in this city last evening for a purse of £200 and a side wager of the same amount. The contest was most unsatisfactory. Kelly, hopelessly beaten, went down thrice without a blow in the seventh round. He was disqualified and the fight awarded to Curley.

Our Export Trade.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The monthly statement of the exports of domestic products of the United States shows that during February the total exports amounted to $65,760,998. During the last eight months the total amounted to $598,740,375, an increase of $80,000,000.

Death of a Centenarian.

BATH, N. Y., March 12.—Mrs. John Flynn, who was born in County Kerry, Ireland, in 1801, is dead at her home in Prattsburg.

GENERAL HARRISON'S ILLNESS

A Very Sick Man, but He Seems to Be Holding His Own.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 12. — Dr. Henry Jameson has been in constant attendance on the patient and has alternated in a close watch for the slightest sign of improvement or relapse.

At 7:30 o'clock last night Dr. Jameson issued the following statement:

"I find no great cause for alarm tonight in the condition of General Harrison and attribute the change today to the fact that he has been laboring with his ailment one day longer. At this hour he is more restless. His temperature is now 102 4-5, pulse 95 and respiration 35. I think he will have no difficulty in going through the night. As to the definite time when a crisis will occur I cannot say. In dealing with pneumonia and kindred forms of illness a crisis is a quantity hard to reckon with. In 48 hours there will be a change of some sort either for the worse or better.

"With the other physicians I am very hopeful at this time of General Harrison's ultimate recovery. The chief danger we fear from the illness is an extension of the inflammatory process in the left lung. Unless there should be an extension of that inflammation involving the pleuræ and some of the lobules of the left lung we are hopeful of speedy recovery.

"At the residence I alternate with Dr. Dorsey in close attendance, and two trained nurses remain night and day, always watchful for the slightest change. Mrs. Harrison spends a large part of the night with the general."

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Minister Conger left Peking en route for the United States.

Filipinos friendly to the Americans are said to have been buried alive by insurgents.

The training ship Dixie, which has been aground at Maryland point, was floated.

Fatal labor riots were reported from a town in Catalonia, Spain.

The Dominion government decided to reduce the royalty on gold from 10 to 5 per cent.

The president heard a protest of the Porto Rican commission against the Hollander tax law.

Companies A and B of the Ninth United States infantry were selected to remain in Peking.

The Roumanian police were asked to arrest suspected conspirators against the life of Queen Wilhelmina of Holland.

Nation Jury Disagreed.

WICHITA, Kan., March 12.—The jurors in Mrs. Nation's case, after having been out since last Saturday afternoon, were called before Judge Dawe in the district court yesterday and asked if they had agreed upon a verdict. They said they had not. The vote stood seven for conviction and five for acquittal. The disagreement was caused by the fact that two women charged in the complaint as smashing the saloon windows with Mrs. Nation took no active part in the smashing, and one could not be acquitted unless all were. A new trial will be ordered.

Captain Paddock's Funeral.

PEKING, March 12.—The funeral of Captain Richard B. Paddock of the Sixth United States cavalry, who died Saturday at Tien-tsin, was held yesterday. It was an inspiring spectacle, and the Americans were profoundly affected. Representatives of the British headquarters staff and of every British regiment were present, as well as a troop of Bengal lancers. No other foreigners participated.

Linen Manufacturer Dead.

WEBSTER, Mass., March 12.—Word has reached here of the death in Jacksonville, Fla., of Henry Hale Stevens, the multimillionaire linen manufacturer, formerly of this town. FILIPINOS SURRENDER.

General Mariano and Men Received In Cavite Province.

MANILA, March 12.—Colonel Walter S. Schuyler of the Forty-sixth volunteer infantry has received the surrender of General Mariano de Dios, 4 officers and 57 armed and uniformed men at Naio, province of Cavite.

Lieutenant Colonel Edward B. Pratt of the same regiment has captured 38 rifles at Alfonso, province of Cavite. A detachment of the Thirty-ninth volunteer infantry has captured ten rifles at Batayan, province of Batangas.

In the case against Fernando Rustan, general agent of the Tabacaleria company, who is charged with having aided the insurgents, papers have been discovered which places in an unfavorable light M. de Berard, former French consul in Manila, who has returned to Europe.

A detachment of the Forty-eighth volunteer infantry has defeated a body of insurgents near Santa Cruz, province of Laguna.

A contract has been awarded for raising the Spanish warships which Admiral Dewey sank in the battle of Cavite.

The coasting steamer Carmen, 266 tons, the property of Galliano Urrietta, and the schooner Orient, 97 tons, the property of Jose Yranez, were seized on the recommendation of the commander of the United States gunboat Petrel on the charge of illicit transshipment of cargo between Sorsogof and Bulan, in the province of Albay. Contraband of war was found on board the vessels, both of which will be held pending investigation.

Mr. Montgomery Bell, who has arrived in Manila from southeastern Luzon, says the outlook in the provinces of Albay and North and South Camarines is very favorable. The Federal party there is rapidly increasing, and the insurgent leaders will probably soon surrender. The epidemic of rinderpest, Mr. Bell asserts, is virtually stamped out.

POLYGAMY BILL PASSED.

The Utah House Has an Exciting Session.

SALT LAKE CITY, March 12.—Three days before the legislature comes to a close the house by a vote of 25 to 47 and after an exciting debate passed the Evans senate bill amending that portion of the revised statutes of Utah relating to prosecutions for adultery. Having passed the senate last week by a vote of 11 to 7, the document now goes to the governor for signature.

This bill, which was introduced by Senator A. J. Evans of Juab county, has caused more discussion and more feeling than any measure introduced at the present session. Its text is as follows:

"Every person who has reason to believe that a crime or public offense has been committed may make complaint against such person before some magistrate having authority to make inquiry of same, provided that no prosecution for adultery shall be commenced except on complaint of the husband or wife or relative of the accused within the first degree of consanguinity or of the person with whom the unlawful act is alleged to have been committed or of the father or mother of said person, and no prosecution for unlawful cohabitation shall be commenced except on complaint of the wife or alleged plural wife of the accused, but this provision shall not apply to prosecutions under section 4208 of the revised statutes, 1898, defining and punishing polygamous marriages."

NEW YORK LEGISLATURE.

Another Tax Bill Up—Governor Vetoes Four Bills.

ALBANY, March 12.—Senator Krum last night added another bill to the rapidly increasing list of tax measures. This time it is a bill to tax private bankers 1 per cent on their capital stock and surplus. The assembly, with a full attendance, considered a very heavy calendar with many important bills upon it. Mr. Bryan's bill fixing the punishment for murder at life imprisonment was advanced to third reading without debate. The three bills taxing insurance companies, banks and trust companies went over until today.

Governor Odell sent four veto messages to the legislature. The bills vetoed were: Senator Slater's, extending the powers of "the trustees of scenic and historic places and objects;" Senator Hill's, changing the name of the Niagara Fire Insurance company; Senator Doughty's, authorizing the town authorities of Nassau county to have their records recopied; Senator Doughty's, providing for reimbursement of the sheriff of Nassau county for expenses incurred by him.

Spars For the Yachts.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., March 12.—Several hollow spruce spars are being made at Spalding's St. Lawrence boat works here for Herreshoff of Bristol, R. I., for the yacht Eagle, now building there to compete in the trial races for selecting America's representative against Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock II. It is stated here that the yacht Independence, building at Boston from designs of Crowninshield for the trial race, will also carry Ogdensburg hollow spars.

Caught on a Drawbridge.

MATTEAWAN, N. Y., March 12.—While returning from a social gathering six persons of Matteawan were caught between two trains on a drawbridge which spans an inlet of the Hudson on the New York Central tracks. Only their presence of mind in lying down on a narrow plank between the two tracks saved them from death. Nellie Grennan, 17 years of age, had her skull fractured because she raised her head an instant too soon.

Iowa State University Burned.

IOWA CITY, Ia., March 12.—With the wind blowing 50 miles an hour fire started at 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning in the medical building of the State university, and 40 minutes later it was in ruins. It was built in 1880. The south building, one of the oldest in the state, caught fire and is also a total loss, with no insurance. The loss will reach upward of $250,000.

Murdered For Her Money.

NEWARK, O., March 12.—The widow of Jerry Hess, aged 67 years, was found dead at her home in Bladensburg, having been murdered for her money by robbers during the night. There is no clew to the murderers.

His Unsuccessful Search.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., March 12.—Wilson Wright has returned home here after an unsuccessful search in San Francisco for $100,000 which clairvoyants informed him was buried there by his grandfather, a miner of 1849.

ENGLAND'S ANSWER.

Senate Amendments to Canal Treaty Rejected.

THE EPISODE CONSIDERED CLOSED.

Text of Lord Lansdowne's Reply Will Not Be Published For the Present—The Hay-Pauncefote Treaty Comes to Naught.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Lord Pauncefote, the British embassador, appeared at the state department yesterday and handed Secretary Hay a memorandum embracing an instruction from Lord Lansdowne, the British minister for foreign affairs, in regard to the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

The memorandum explains Great Britain's reasons for not accepting the senate amendment to the treaty and expresses regret that the negotiations should have been brought to such a conclusion.

There is nothing in the British answer to suggest that a reopening of negotiations for a new treaty would be welcomed by Great Britain; in fact, the answer indicates that the Salisbury cabinet regards the question of arranging a convention to take the place of the Bulwer-Clayton treaty as ended. There is no doubt from the tone of the British answer that any attempt to reopen negotions must be initiated by the United States.

It cannot yet be stated what action, if any, will be taken by our government. It is stated that there is no hurry even in the event that it shall be decided to invite Great Britain to join in fresh negotiations as to an isthmian canal, congress not being in session to consider a treaty if one should be framed. The belief seems to be warranted that there will be no further negotiations on the subject in the immediate future, unless some event not now foreseen by the officials causes a radical change in the situation.

For the present the text of the British answer will be withheld from publication on this side of the water at least, though it is said that after the president has thoroughly considered the matter some general statement may be made as to the points developed.

The British answer is quite long, as such documents go, and would make about two newspaper columns. The tone of the reply is distinctly friendly throughout, particularly so in the concluding assurances of good will and a desire to cooperate in the realization of this undertaking. Although the text is withheld it is understood that the answer takes up each of the three amendments made by the senate and presents the difficulties in the way of assenting to them. As to the amendment which struck out all that clause of the treaty inviting other maritime nations to concur in the neutralizing of the canal, the British view is that while the United States and Great Britain can bind themselves by treaty to neutralize the canal they cannot make this action binding on all other governments unless these governments concur.

As to the entire abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty as provided by one of the senate amendments, it appears to be the British view that such a step is too farreaching to be taken without some negotiation in which the British side of the case is presented.

Murderer Sentenced.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., March 12.—John Lutz, the West Pittston wife murderer, has been sentenced to be hanged by Judge Halsey. The prisoner, when asked if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed, merely shook his head. He seemed dazed. When taken back to jail, he for the first time seemed to realize his position and told the warden it was not all over yet. A strict watch will be kept over him. Lutz was tried twice. At the first trial one of the jurors, after being out 15 days, said he had been intimidated. He was sick and in order to get out of the jury room had signed the verdict of murder in the first degree, although it was against his conscience to do so.

Cubans Take No Action.

HAVANA, March 12.—The committee on foreign relations of the Cuban constitutional convention informally discussed the Platt amendment yesterday. No decisive policy was outlined, and the committee will probably not report until after a conference with the other delegates. There is no unanimity in the convention as to what action should be taken regarding the amendment. Even the extreme radicals seem to hesitate to take a vigorous attitude. Everybody is hopeful that something may happen to bring about a solution.

Spanish Mill Employees Locked Out.

BARCELONA, March 12.—In consequence of a dispute with operatives who oppose the erection of new spinning machinery the local manufacturers have closed the mills, locking out 18,000 employees. Serious riots have occurred. The strikers have set fire to houses and assaulted employers.

To Straighten the Mohawk.

UTICA, N. Y., March 12.—The contract to straighten the Mohawk river in this city has been awarded to the T. H. Riddle Construction company of Palatine Bridge at $130,973, the lowest bid. The contract will be void unless the mayor and common council authorize the issue of bonds.

Trolley Troubles.

The Board of Commissioners of Somerville and the officials of the Middlesex and Somerset Traction Company are at odds. The officials of Somerville have been working to secure a five-cent fare from Somerville to Bound Brook. The traction company has had certain concessions in mind which it has been equally anxious to secure. It was thought that a satisfactory compromise might be effected.

Of course the officers of the traction company are supposed to know their business better than any one else but it is not the custom of such corporations to reduce the amount of their revenues unless it is absolutely necessary and it may that the firm stand that the Somerville Commissioners have taken may eventually bring the trolley company round to their views of the subject.

Among the concessions which the traction company desired was to continue the present arrangement of running cars every hour after 9 o'clock at night. The present ordinance calls for cars every half hour until midnight. Then there are some disputed points about the character of the poles to be used and the storing of cars on the switches in Somerville.

Regarding the five cent fare, the Commissioners argued that if the company could carry passengers for that price from Dunellen to Bound Brook, that they could do the same between Somerville and Bound Brook. As the traction company has refused to grant that point, the Somerville officials have practically declared war on the company and will compell it to follow strictly the terms of the ordinance. This is likely to make things unpleasant for the trolley company at times. It is to be hoped that these differences can be adjusted shortly and that the trolley company will see the wisdom of reducing the fare.

Today is election day in the boroughs and townships in the State of New Jersey. Naturally the people of this community are most interested in the contest now in progress in the borough of North Plainfield. Every reader of this paper will look forward with unusual interest to the arrival of tomorrow's Daily Press so that they may learn the results of the election. The Daily Press will appear tomorrow at the usual hour and will contain a complete account of the election in the borough and the neighboring municipalities The election returns given by The Daily Press have long been noted for their accuracy and this year's returns will be no exception. A bulletin in front of The Press office will early announce the result.

That long discussed question of the improvement at the city sewage disposal beds is soon to come up for definite action. The meeting of the Common Council next Monday evening has been called expressly to consider the proposed ordinance which provides for the changes according to the plans submitted by Engineer J. O. Osgood. If anybody has anything to say on the subject, the members of the Council would be very glad to hear it. The proposition has now been considered for several months and the members of the Councilmanic committee on streets and sewers feel that they are justified in bringing the subject to a decisive vote.

Elizabeth's new Democratic daily newspaper will not make its appearance this week as was first announced. Those in charge of that enterprise had no idea of starting so soon. It is their expectation to begin its publication in the course of four or five weeks. Its advent at the county seat will be watched with considerable interest as under the existing circumstances the Elizabeth Daily Journal, the Republican organ, has everything its own way An enterprising rival in the field may tend to give the people of Elizabeth an improved local service.

The Daily Press printed pictures of Mayor N. B. Smalley and the two candidates for assessor, Mr. French and Mr. Martin, in yesterday's issue. It was hoped that a likeness of Hiram A Woodruff, the Democratic candidate for mayor, might be secured but Mr. Woodruff has not had a photograph taken for ten years and so it was impossible to get one.

With the services this evening the series of evangelistic meetings under the auspices of the Ministers' Association will close. Wm. Phillips Hall will be at the First Baptist church and Rev. T. S. Henderson at the First M. E church. They will undoubtedly be particularly impressive services.

There will surely be a large number of borough citizens who will visit the new manual training department of the North Plainfield public schools Thursday afternoon and evening, when the work in that department will be exhibited to the public.

It is the duty of every citizen of North Plainfield to cast his ballot in the election today. If you haven't done so yet, go at once before it is too late. The polls close at 7 o'clock.

That burglar is having no end of fun but the residents of the neighborhood are not so happy when they are unable to tell where he is going to visit next.

New Jersey's only remaining toll road has been closed to the public. The famous "plank road" across the meadows from Newark is no longer available.

Remember the polls do not close until 7 o'clock this evening and that it is the duty of every citizen of North Plainfield to cast his ballot before that time.

It will not be a great many hours before it will be known who is to be the next mayor of North Plainfield.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May Be Of Interest to Plainfield and its Citizens.

Freeholder Lutkins is a candidate for re election in North Plainfield. He has made a capital official and will doubtless be returned to the Board for another term.—Bound Brook Chronicle.

The bill now pending in the Legislature providing for the use of voting machines at elections is worthy of consideration. And yet voting machines have for years caused no end of anxiety to candidates in New Jersey as well as in other States. It seems to be a paradox, but the friends of the bill say that the voting machines mentioned therein would, in the vernacular, put the present machines largely "out of business."—New York Tribune.

The Central Railroad has made extensive improvements and additions to its station at Plainfield, but these improvements have caused no end of trouble to the provincial Plainfielders. Still, as one of the Plainfield papers expresses it, "they'll get used to the improvements after awhile." Let us hope so. At present the Plainfield commuters are climbing the fence that separates the tracks, not understanding that the company means the tunnel to be used.—New Brunswick Times.

Strikes a Rich Find.

"I was troubled for several years with chronic indigestion and nervous debility," writes F. J. Green, of Lancaster, N. H. "No remedy helped me until I began using Electric Bitters, which did me more good than all the medicines I ever used. They have also kept my wife in excellent health for years. She says Electric Bitters are just splendid for female troubles; that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak, run down women. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence.)

Dunellen, March 12.—The young men of the Presbyterian church are busy at present fitting up the study room which will be opened Friday evening as a free reading room. It will contain a large number of excellent books and magazines and popular parlor games including crokinole will also be added. The room will be open every evening with the exception of Wednesdays and Sundays and will be for the use of the young men of the church and their friends. It is a new innovation for the borough and will no doubt be greatly appreciated by its beneficaries.

In some mysterious manner the barns and outbuildings belonging to Frank Totten, who lives on the Bound Brook road, a short distance from the borough, caught fire Saturday evening and were burned to the ground, entailing a loss of over $2,000. It is said to have been covered by insurance.

Oscar Pierce, of the borough, has been appointed fireman on one of the Royal Blue line passenger trains running between New York and Philadelphia. He will enter on his new duties tonight for the first.

In company with Lieutenant Wherly, of Somerville, Wilson Fredericks, of the borough, was a recent visitor at the Sportman's show now being held in Madison Square Garden.

Mrs. Clarence Oakley, of New Brunswick, has returned home after a visit with her parents, Mayor and Mrs. R. J. Swackhamer.

Mrs. J. Newton Apgar and her sister, Miss Annie Campbell, of Martinsville, have been visiting relatives at Camden.

The Juniors of the Presbyterian church will hold a sociable in the chapel this evening.

H. L. Terry, of Westfield, was the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Terry, Sunday.

George Vosseller, of Somerville, was the guest of borough friends Sunday.

NEW MARKET.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Market, March 12—The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church will hold a social Thursday evening at the residence of Mrs. H. C. Gaskill.

Ambrose Byno is again able to be out after several weeks' trouble with his eyes, during which he nearly lost the sight of them.

The G. E. Club was entertained in the usual pleasant manner last evening by Miss Lillian Gunther.

A dance will be given at the home of Mrs. H. L. Patterson next Thursday evening.

Alexander Herlick, of Warrenville, is visiting his sister, Mrs. C. T. Rogers, Jr.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence.)

Scotch Plains, March 12—Mrs. William S. Corey is spending a few days with relatives in New York city, where she was called a week ago by the serious illness of her brother-in law, William Marshall. Mrs Corey arrived at the bereaved home too late to see Mr. Marshall alive, as he passed away shortly after she received the telegram. Mr. Corey received word March 3 of the death of his mother, Mrs. Phoebe A. Corey, which occurred at Washington. Mrs Corey had passed the century mark in life being, at the time of her demise, 101 years and 3 months old. A strange coincidence of her death was that she died upon the same day of the month and the same hour as her husband, Josiah Corey, who passed away at 9 o'clock on the evening of March 3, 1863.

The havy rains of Sunday night and yesterday turned some of the roads through the village into minature rivers. Owing to the frost in the ground the water was unable to soak into it so overflowed the roads and sidewalks in a number of places.

The township election being held in the town hall today, has been very quiet up to noon, only a fair vote has been cast, but the party leaders are working hard on both sides to get the vote out, and it is expected to liven up a great deal this afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grant, of Plainfield, have been visiting at the home of Mrs. Grant's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Paff, Sr.

Charles Cooper, a former resident of the village, but now of Brooklyn, was the guest Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Edw. L. Hand.

Mrs. Ira G. Walker led an interesting meeting of the Epworth League in the Methodist church last evening.

MUST PAY THEIR TAXES.

COLLECTOR SMITH IS PREPARING FOR AN ACTIVE CAMPAIGN.

Two Important Decisions Given by Corporation Counsel Regarding Tax Collections.

Collector Frank H. Smith has just received an opinion from Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, in which the latter states that Mr. Smith has no legal or moral right to erase from anyone's tax bill any amount, in consideration for the payment of the other tax. There is a law which provides that certain persons are exempt from the payment of certain tax, but otherwise Mr. Smith is supposed to collect every dollar unless it has been set aside by the Common Council or by the Commissioners of Appeal.

This decision will set at ease the minds of many, including that of Collector Smith. So often taxpayers call at the collector's office and offer to pay their taxes provided a certain dog tax or some other tax is removed. They claim that they did not own a dog when assessed for one. This sort of thing has caused Mr. Smith much trouble and now that a decision has been given he will not be expected to explain or argue the whys and wherefores of the matter.

Mr. Marsh also gives as his opinion that a person discharged from bankruptcy is not excused from paying taxes, and where there are no personal goods to levy upon the collector is supposed to seize the body. This will be done in several cases very soon. Collector Smith is getting ready to adopt drastic measures for the collection of delinquent taxes and he will be assisted by Constable George E. Rogers. Mr. Smith says that in the case of laboring men or persons who are pressed for ready money to pay their taxes, he will consider ways and means for the payment of the same if these people will call on him and show some disposition to settle.

tions and the conscience. In connection with this part of his subject, Mr Henderson spoke of the danger of letting the heart become hardened by not obeying the conscience when it first speaks.

The last key, that of the will, Mr Henderson pronounced to be a very important one. He explained that it is not enough to think about Jesus; not enough even to feel that one wants Him for a friend; the real decision to become a Christian rests with the will.

The closing part of the meeting gave an opportunity for those present to use the keys and admit the Saviour to their hearts and lives Many children showed by rising their desire to lead a Christian life and cards were distributed for them to sign. Mr. Henderson stated that he would be glad to shake hands with all those present and the meeting ended in a sort of informal reception.

CAMPAIGNING FOR CHRIST.

Impressive Meeting Held at First Baptist Church Last Evening Addressed By Mr. Hall.

The First Baptist church was well filled last night when those zealous apostles of the Twentieth Century Campaign for Christ, William Phillips Hall and F. H. Jacobs, started on their evening's work to save souls.

The large congregation joined in services of prayer and praise to a manner that bore evidence of a sincere and hearty desire to contribute whatever lay in their power towards the accomplishment of the glorious work.

After the fifteen-minute song service the invocation was delivered by Rev. A. E. Main and Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards. These two divines prayed that the souls of the unsaved be lead to Christ and that their hearts might be turned towards the light before the close of the service. "The Home Land," by Dr. Stebbins, was grandly rendered by F. H. Jacobs, as a conclusion to the song service, and then his co-worker, Mr. Hall, took charge of the meeting.

The evangelist began his remarks by referring his auditors to St. Luke xiv, 15-20, which relates the parable of the great supper. This, he said, would be his topic in general but he spoke more particularly on Luke xiv, 17—"Come; for all things are now ready."

Theologians have agreed, said he, that this parable refers first to the blessed Gospel feast offered to God's chosen people—the Jews; second, to the blessed spiritual feast of which all at this very hour are urged to partake, and third, that blessed marriage feast which will be held in Heaven, where all those who are bidden will go. Christ, said he, spread a feast of redeeming love for each and every one in all times and to that feast Mr. Hall, as a humble messenger of God, extended an invitation to his hearers

The evangelist scored those who are wont to make foolish excuses for not coming at once to God. He particularly arraigned those who offered the plea in excuse of not seeking Christ that some who had sought Christ were hypocrites. These, said Mr. Hall, bar themselves from the kingdom of God by making use of a thread-worn excuse. The excuse given in St. Luke xvv, 18, 19 and 20, serve as an illustration that Christ will accept no excuse whatever.

What valid excuse can one offer for not accepting perpetual citizenship in Heaven by joining in the feast on earth? Men, said he, often treat dogs better than their souls because they feed the dog and starve the soul. Delays are dangerous and while God is patient yet there is a time when patience ceases to be a virture. All the unrepented were entreated by the evangelist to yield themselves to Christ and to accept His blessed Gospel of peace which insures life eternal.

"O, Jesus, Thou Art Standing" was sung in a sweet and soothing tone, while all Christians arose in obedience to a request. Many joined those standing and thus expressed a desire to lead a Christian life.

Prayers were said by Rev. C. L. Goodrich and Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph.D., and after "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow" was sung by the entire congregation, Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass pronounced the benediction.

WEST END CAMPAIGN ENDED

Last Meeting Held in Monroe Ave. Church Last Evening and Was Very Largely Attended.

The last of a series of special services in the West End was held last evening at Monroe Avenue church, and like all of the other meetings was very largely attended. Rev. Mr. MacMurray, pastor of the church, opened the service with prayer, after the usual song service, and "The Land of Love," was sung by W. C. Weeden.

Rev. T. S. Henderson then took charge and in his preliminary talk gave much helpful advice to Christians, especially those who have decided for Christ within the past few weeks. He then went on to speak of the characteristics of Christ. In part he spoke as follows:

"Christ is a mighty Saviour, mighty to save everyone from every kind of sin. No person does the best they can without Christ. You may have tried to lead a Christian life, but if you have not had Christ with you to help you you will fail. No matter how low a person is Christ goes still lower to to save to the uttermost. Christ is able to keep you from stumbling, and He will.

"He is a willing Saviour. Though your sins be like scarlet or crimson He will make them as white as snow. He is a compassionate Saviour. He is the world and for you. He is the only Saviour you have, and unless you let Him save you you will be lost."

At the close of the meeting all who gave their hearts to God during the past few weeks arose, after which Mr. Henderson gave each one a chance to testify "I have received Christ as my Saviour." Nearly everyone of the many who arose gave testimony A short after meeting was held when others decided for Christ.

OPENING OF DAY OF PRAYER.

Great Congregation Assembled at First Baptist Church This Morning.

The unusual spectacle of an immense attendance at a week-day morning service was seen at the First Baptist church at 10 30 o'clock this morning. The congregation began to gather early and when the song service commenced the building was well filled.

The speaker of the morning was Rev. Theodore S. Henderson and the music was in charge of W. C. Weeden

The opening prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards. Mr. Weeden sang very touchingly the consecration hymn, "I'll Go Where You Want Me to Go;" then, after a few words of earnest prayer, Mr. Henderson began his address, speaking from the last clause of Isaiah xliii :1, "Thou art mine."

The speaker commenced by saying that God claims the ownership of the whole world, and especially of all souls. The claim is based on four facts

The first claim, Mr. Henderson explained, is that of creation. God's claim is greater than that of a manufacturer over a manufactured article; the stars are His workmanship, but men are His offspring, upon whom He has put the stamp of His own likeness.

The second point of the address was that God has upon men the claim of having moulded and fashioned them by His providences, giving them just what will best bring out His likeness in them.

The third claim, Mr. Henderson went on to say, was that of having redeemed men. It cost something to do it. When one has taken another's place, has he not a claim on him?

One more claim upon men was mentioned by the speaker: "I have called thee by thy name." The ties of relationship, between those who call one another by familiar home names, were dwelt upon by Mr. Henderson.

"What are you doing with the claim?" was the speaker's searching question. He urged everyone to be God's, not only by ownership but by choice.

The opportunity was given for any present to make a confession of their desire to give themselves to God, and for those who were already His to confess that fact, and to both requests there was a large response. This was followed by the benediction, which was pronounced by Mr. Henderson, and closed the services.

IT IS SERIOUS

Some Plainfield People Fail to Realize the Seriousness.

The constant aching of a bad back,
The weariness, the tired feelings,
The pains and aches of kidney ills
Are serious—if neglected,
Dangerous troubles follow.
A Plainfield citizen shows you how to avoid them.

Mr F. D Smith, of 686 West Front street, contractor for painting etc., says: "There was a distressing pain across the small of my back which clung to me all the time. When I got seated at times if I moved a sharp pain struck me in the back and loins and almost made me exclaim. Any change in the weather or if I caught the least cold it always aggravated the trouble and caused me to suffer severely. Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me by one of my employes, who had been cured of a long standing case of kidney complaint by their use. I commenced the treatment, derived benefit from it immediately and before I had finished the first box I was cured."

some dealers have about our stock being just the same. We know it isn't. Beef, Veal, Lamb or Pork which has been carefully raised and fed will taste better and give more nourishment than "wild" meats. We don't sell any but prime meats, and a customer can sit down to a roast or steak or chops from here without fear of hurting his teeth or his sense of taste. Dainty At-Home Gowns of the LENTEN Season

They Are More Elaborate This Year Than We Have Been Accustomed To Elaborate Gowns in New York for the Lenten Season.

CHARITIES are receiving unusual attention these days of Lent. A great part of the New York society people are away for the so-called dull season, but those who are in the city are improving the time well, and though they are barred by custom from any of the elaborate entertainments that have been a feature of the season now closed, yet in the name of charity they manage to find many amusements of the milder sort. There are charity teas, charity parties, charity receptions, charity balls that are comparatively speaking quiet occasions, and even charity breakfasts.

For these affairs the gowns are much more elaborate than we used to see during the Lenten season. Of these the at-home gowns are probably the most attractive. They are of cloths, satin foulards, foulards, silks, cashmeres and crepe de chines. The new foulards and satin foulards all have large scroll patterns, or on the stripe order. They are decidedly striking, and judging from the colors, which are decidedly vivid, American society is not going into mourning for England's queen, and the merchants are pleased because of this. But these vivid colors are subdued by a trimming of a darker shade of velvet or applique, with finishing touches of lace, spot dress nets, black silk cluny guipure net, and plaited chiffons.

One of those gowns, in which society are spending the Lenten days was worn the other day at a five o'clock tea, is of crepe de chine in a lavender shade. The skirt has a front panel, with applique of black velvet entwined with gold. The sides are tucked in clusters of three, with a tucked back caught down about eight inches then in loose folds. The bodice has a round yoke of shirred white chiffon, with the chiffon falling loosely to the waist line, forming a vest. The crepe de chine is at each side, cut in square vandykes, and finished with the black velvet and gold. The sleeves are shirred at the top, and brought closely to the arms in a shirred cuff of black velvet and gold.

signs in sleeves. The gown is of peau de soie silk in a bright blue, and trimmed with narrow black velvet ribbon, and a cream cluny guipure net. The skirt is perfectly plain, with great breadth, showing a dozen rows of narrow black ribbon at the hem. The bodice has a vest and deep revers of cluny guipure net. The lower half is of the silk covered with rows of black velvet ribbon in a diagonal from under the arms and revers toward the waist line in front. A crushed girdle of the silk. The sleeves are plain with the exception of a full puffing of silk at the elbow, a la Parisian.

A pretty home gown is composed of a handsome cloth skirt and a silk waist. The skirt is a light gray in color, and trimmed with a deep shaped flounce of braided open work in black and silver. The bodice is of satin foulard, with a gray background and small yellow figures. It is shirred with a round yoke effect, and brought in at the waist line with a slightly pouched front. The sleeves are finished with a puff at the wrist.

The Princess Skirt as a Novelty for the Spring.

A PROPHECY was made in the middle of the fall season of last year by the fashion editor of that very excellent paper, the Dry Goods Economist, regarding the coming of a new princess skirt. The followers of the styles, and especially the fashion writers have learned from experience to watch for the hints given in the trade journals for coming changes, and expect to see the prophecies realized. But for the princess skirt they seemingly watched in vain. Through the winter season it did not materialize, and now just about the time that everybody had forgotten all about them they begin to appear, and give promise of being a prominent feature of the spring and summer seasons.

This new skirt extends to the bust line, fitting closely over the figure below the bust over the waist and hips, thus forming a girdle effect. In making it the goods are cut all in one—that is to say, from the top line of the girdle effect to the bottom of the skirt, whole lengths are the form. There is no belt line. The girdle over the waist and over the hips is lined usually with haircloth. The back is finished with organ plaits or a plain effect, and is usually stiffened with interlining in order to preserve a swinging and graceful effect. The skirt is going to be very broadly popular, and when sufficiently stiffened and boned, upon slender figures, it is assumed that stays may be to a certain extent dispensed with.

Odds and Ends of Fashion in the New York Stores.

ONE of the pretty millinery effects for summer wear that is shown in a New York store is a straw hat trimmed with chiffon and foliage. The shape is flat and off the face. It is but one of the many comparatively cheap but charming models that are promised for summer.

A novelty that should be appreciated by every home dressmaker is the new waist linings that are made and fit to join to the dress material. A small investment in this line saves a great amount of work.

Linen collars will not be worn to any great extent during the coming summer.

Huge flowers in gauze, in gold to affix on any colored dress, or of a tint to harmonize or contrast with that of the robe, though they seem rather a tawdry addition to a fine material, will be much used on the best of frocks for spring and summer evenings. Some of these, immense imitation blossoms have black chenille in the center, by way of imitation stamens; some are sprinkled with a diamond or strass dewdrop or two. Long strands of chenille or baby ribbon may depend from the flower. The left shoulder in front is the place where they are generally set, but some of the lace or gauze empire gowns have such a flower placed between the shoulders at the back, with long and rather wide streamers of ribbon falling thence on to the train. The big gauze blossoms, like the bead chains worn in the day time, are inexpensive and somewhat gaudy additions to smart toilettes that are well worn for a time.

SARAH DAVIDSON.

THE ACTIVE YANKEE.

HE IS A GREAT PRODUCER OF AUTOMATIC MACHINERY.

His Accomplishments During the Kineteenth Century Will Be Illustrated In a Comprehensive Manner at the Pan-American Exposition.

The Machinery and Transportation features of the Pan-American Exposition promise to be of superior interest. The inventive Yankee has for a hundred years been particularly active in producing machinery. Every year adds new laurels to his well decorated brow, and he can but marvel at his own progress. In recent years he has been particularly active in producing automatic machinery. It is said that with the first steam engines it was necessary to have a boy work the eccentrics. One day a particularly bright boy who preferred play to work threw himself out of a job by fixing the eccentrics to work automatically. American inventive genius has been building more and more of a class of machines that will feed themselves and perform their intricate work without other attention than starting and stopping.

The Machinery Exhibits will include the most modern agricultural machinery and appliances. There has been remarkable progress in this one direction during recent years, and the saving of time and expense by the new machinery produced must be recognized and taken advantage of by wide awake agriculturists. At this Exposition will be assembled all the latest patterns of the class of machinery in question. Roadmaking is a subject of universal interest and importance, and how to construct good roads at a reasonable expense is puzzling many minds. The hope is in machinery of the right kind. The most improved order will be exhibited here.

The evolution of devices for developing power will be illustrated with a completeness never before attempted. The newest types of steam and gas engines will be shown, together with their accessories.

Factory machinery is constantly undergoing improvement and brand new inventions are every little while given to the world. Some are so wonderful in their mechanism as to seem almost human. This feature of the machinery exhibit will be abounding in interest for all visitors.

The Transportation exhibit will be no less interesting. The world was never before on wheels to the extent that it is today. With our own country gridironed with railways and every other country destined to be likewise marked with the steel tracks of ambitious commerce, the transportation exhibits will attract the visitors as those of no other exposition ever did.

The automobile has been developed since the Columbian Exposition at Chicago. What marvels may be exhibited and in practical daily use at the Pan-American Exposition can only be dimly conjectured. The railway, vessel and vehicle exhibits at Buffalo this year will outrival in interest anything that has been possible in the past.

MARK BENNITT.

GOVERNMENT EXHIBIT.

Three Buildings Erected on the Pan-American Exposition Grounds.

The Pan-American Exposition has the cordial indorsement of the United States government, which for buildings and exhibits appropriated $500,000. The government has three handsome buildings. The main building is 130 feet wide and 600 feet long. The others are each 150 feet square. The architecture is a free treatment of the Spanish Renaissance, the details suggesting a Mexican rather than a strictly Spanish origin. Like the other Exposition buildings these are covered with staff and are lavish with color and gilding, which give the intricate plastic decorations and sculpture groups an ensemble both striking and interesting. Red Spanish tiles on the roofs add to the beauty.

The Louisville Exhibit.

A movement is on foot, backed by the Commercial club of Louisville to interest the merchants and manufacturers of that city in the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo to such an extent that a building may be erected to be known as the Louisville building. The board of trade will probably co-operate, and it is hoped to raise from $15,000 to $20,000 for the purpose of such a building.

The Louisville Tobacco Exchange will act in the interest of a fine tobacco exhibit in case this is carried out.

WHAT A BRIDAL COUPLE SAW

Wonderful Objects of Interest Added to the Many Features at Niagara Falls.

In 1884 Herbert Wilson, whose home was in an adjoining state, visited Niagara Falls on his wedding trip. On leaving the hotel he took his bride to the park, so that she might drink in the full beauty of the great cataract. The highest hopes of both were realized, and their hearts were happy. Both felt nothing could interest them more than that beautiful scene. Fifteen years later Mr. and Mrs. Wilson again found themselves at the Falls. When they were there before, there was a charge to view the Falls. Now it was free. However, Mr. Wilson's order to the cabman when he left the hotel was to drive to the big power house. In the years that had elapsed since his marriage Mr. Wilson had become interested in the industrial growth of the country. He was alert to the possibilities of the electrical development, and on this second trip to the Falls the thing he wanted to look upon first was the wonderful power station.

It is so with thousands. The Niagara power development has set the world to thinking on this subject. From all sections, from all countries, men travel to Niagara to view the installation in the central station of the Niagara Falls Power company and in the station of the Niagara Falls Hydraulic Power and Manufacturing company. Men who have reached prominence in scientific and engineering fields on more than one continent look upon the Niagara development with astonishment. Is it any wonder, then, that the use of Niagara power in connection with the Pan-American Exposition is destined to astonish the world by what will be accomplished by its use?

Never before was there such a supply of electric power at the command of man; never before has any man known so much about electricity as he does today; never before has man been able to handle the subtle current so cleverly as he does today, and for these reasons it is plain to be seen the electrical effects of the Pan-American Exposition will be so notable that they will give to the beholder somewhat the same feeling of surprise that the first white man must have had when he viewed the falls of Niagara. And in the development of these electrical effects a diverted portion of the tumultuous waters that pour over the mighty precipice will play a part.

ORRIN E. DUNLAP.

FINE ARTS AT BUFFALO.

Exhibit at Pan-American Will Include the Best Works.

The Fine Arts as they have been cultivated in the various countries of Pan-America will be presented in an exhibit pre-eminently American in spirit and character at the Pan-American Exposition.

There will be no attempt to cover everything of an art character in the entire universe; but, as the Exposition as a whole is to be devoted to the achievements of civilization in the New World, it will be the purpose of the Fine Arts exhibit to show the progress made in Pan-America in the culture of painting and sculpture and the allied arts. The Pan-American Exposition ought to mark a new era in the New World and doubtless will, since it will give workers in this important field of human activity a stimulus such as perhaps could be obtained in no other way and will direct the attention of the great public of all the Americas in the most emphatic manner to the importance of giving substantial patronage to the artists and sculptors native to our own soil if it is desired that art should flourish in the western hemisphere. In making up the exhibit in Fine Arts for the Art Gallery the plan to be followed is to secure the most representative and excellent works that have appeared within the last 25 years, particularly within the last decade. As the opening of the Pan-American will come at a time when all of the important annual exhibitions of art will have been held, it will be possible to secure some of the best works produced within the 12 or 15 months preceding it.

Finest on Earth.

The recent test of the electric lights on the Machinery building of the Pan-American Exposition has shown that the great lighting scheme of the Exposition will be literally a brilliant success. Perhaps in the streets of the New Jerusalem there will be an illumination exceeding that to be effected next summer on the grounds of Pan-American Exposition, but it is a safe prediction that no one will see anything finer than this before arriving within the gates of the heavenly city.

HOW MONEY IS MADE

System of Coining Adopted in Uncle Sam's Mints.

No Business in the World Is Conducted with More Care and Attention to Details—Loss Almost Impossible.

THERE is no subject with which humanity as a whole is more deeply concerned than that of "money making." However, this expression is seldom taken in its literal sense, but, since the earliest times, when the exchange of merchandise was the foundation of intercourse between the several races, money of some description has been manufactured. In ancient Rome leather money was in circulation, but, as a rule, civilized nations have employed medals and coins of metal. The Chinese are said to have had rude, square, bronze coins, 1120 B. C. Those in use in Greece, 300 B. C., equaled, if not surpassed, in design those of the present day. Portaits of individuals, records of historical events, languages and the fine arts have been preserved to us, in many instances, only through the coins and medals of the people with whom they passed current.

One of the first concerns of a nation, when it begins to individualize itself, is to have a legal tender of its own. Hence nothing could be more consistent than President Washington's approval, in 1792, of an act establishing a mint, and the first building erected in the United States, for public use, by authority of the federal government, was the United States mint building in Philadelphia. In 1829 a more pretentious structure was built to accommodate the growing requirements of the institution. In 1786 the present decimal system was established. The collection of United States coins up to the present time is complete at this mint, although, in some cases, only one was struck from a die. These are marked "unique," and are in value beyond price. The mints established in other cities, as the growing needs of the nation demanded, were, for many years, denominated "branch mints," but under the treasury department of the United States a bureau of the mint was established in 1873. The mints were then all made independent, reporting to a director at the head of the bureau.

The largest of our mints—in fact, the largest in the world, and, in many respects, the most interesting—is located in San Francisco. It issued its first money in 1854. The corner stone of the present edifice, which, with its site, cost $3,130,512, was laid in 1874. A visit to this building, under the escort of one of the conductors provided for the purpose, during the early part of the day, well repays anyone who is anxious to see how Uncle Sam makes his money. Of the 17 watchmen employed, 12 guard the treasure at night, four outside the building and eight inside. At stated periods each must be at certain designated points, and a system of electric signals keeps all in communication. In certain rooms no one watchman may go alone. In this mint are 230 employes. The capacity of the four vaults of the building is $60,000,000 in silver. There is also a vault for the assayer, cashier and receiver, two for the coiner and three for the melter and refiner, with a fourth in process of construction. When working to its full capacity, about 20 gold melts are made in the San Francisco mint per day, amounting to about $600,000, or 32 silver melts at $35,000. When gold is brought to the mint it is received on deposit after being weighed, and the depositor is given a receipt, which he may present the next day, when its value in coin will be paid. Meantime an assay is made, the dirt, quicksilver, silver and other substances being separated from the richer metal. Each deposit, weighed and tagged, is placed in a sheet iron box, inclosed in a lock box, and sent to the melting department. After being made into a bar it is returned, weighed and recorded and taken to the assayers, where chips are taken off to test its value, after which it is locked up in the receiver's room. When an assay has been reported the depositor may have his money.

As 1,000 is the standard for pure gold the number of thousandths of gold in a mass of metal determines its fineness. Gold is almost never found absolutely free from silver. The depositor receives payment for the silver as well as the gold which he brought. The baser material found in the mix is of almost no intrinsic value. The assaying process is very interesting.

After the baser metals have all been removed and the gold and silver parted, about 3,000 ounces of gold are weighed out for a "melt" and the requisite alloy of one-tenth copper added to make standard coin. If a slight particle of silver remains in the bar it must be taken into account in weighing in the alloy, and this fractional amount accounts for the difference in tint in gold coins. The copper is added to give necessary hardness to the coin. A $20 gold piece contains $19.99 and a fraction of pure gold. The first and last ingot cast from every melt is assayed to ascertain if the right proportion of alloy has been used. Out of 2,013 gold melts made last year, only seven were rejected. Each morning the melting room is charged with all the metal sent in, and everything returned is weighed and shortage noted before the workmen go out. At stated times the bits adhering to the crucibles and the ashes and sweepings of the room are recovered and entered to its credit.

The ingots, differing in size and weight according to the denomination for which they are to be used, are turned over to the coiner of the mint. Here they are rolled into thin strips, gauged, tested, annealed and taken to a cutting press, where planchets of the exact size and thickness of the coins into which they are to be made, are punched out.
